London, Ont., Feb. 21 (CP)—Fred Mailing, St. Thomas, and Frank Haines, London, will be freed on a reckless driving charge on Saturday as a result of the death of Mrs. Harold Davies, city. The case was called in police court today but neither Mailing nor Haines appeared, through a misunderstanding. The Crown explained the case would be withdrawn since a coroner's jury attached blame to no one.

WAGES INCREASED 6 1-2 P. C.

Chicago, Feb. 21 (AP)—A wage increase of approximately 6 1-2 per cent. has been put into effect in all United States plants of the International Harvester Company, it was announced today.

The increase restored wages to about 97 per cent. of the 1929 level. Approximately 23,000 men were affected.

PLENTY OF SNOW IN ATLANTA, GEORGIA

Not Much Respite From Cold Over American Continent

Winter weary residents of this city may have become dazzled by the glare of the mounting snowdrifts during the past month or so, but in sunny Florida birds are singing, residents of the State are gathering fresh vegetables in the garden for each meal, and the bursting blooms of the sweet pea vines that have climbed on the trellises to a height of eight feet and more are just as sweet smelling as the Canadian variety in June. Atlanta, Georgia, however, is covered by a six inch depth of snow. The information is contained in a communication received today at the office of the local Chamber of Commerce from St Augustine, Florida, where the President of the local Chamber, Mr. W. C. Springer, together with Mrs. Springer and daughter, are now wintering.

Some severe weather was said to have been encountered by the party who motored to Florida from this city.

"It is still snowing in Atlanta, and already there is five or six inches on the ground", added Mrs. Springer in a post script to the message.

Justice Armour Dismisses Malicious Prosecution Action

Harry Yanover Fails In His Action Against L. Bender, Toronto

Without having to retire to consider a verdict, the petty jury unanimously agreed with His Lordship, Mr. Justice Armour, in deciding that there had been no malice or cause for action in the only jury case to be presented at the Spring Assizes now in session at the County Court House. Thus being assured, that the jury were unanimous in their decision His Lordship dismissed the action against the defendant, for unstated damages, entered by Harry Yanover of this city against one Louis Bender of Toronto on charges of malicious prosecution. The case arose out of three charges entered in the criminal courts of Toronto last summer against Yanover, with Bender as the complainant. The charges were of the theft of $600.00, false pretences and receiving. The cases in the Toronto courts were dismissed only to be followed by the entering of the action for damages in the Spring Assizes at Belleville, by Mr. Yanover. Costs in the matter were assessed the plaintiff.

Previous to the opening of the Spring Assizes on Monday afternoon, B. C. Donnan, K.C., on behalf of the Hastings Bar Association, officially welcomed His Lordship, Mr. Justice Armour, to Belleville on his first visit to the local bench and congratulated him on his recent elevation to the high office he now enjoys. In reply His Lordship said, "Although this is my first visit to Belleville in a judicial capacity I have visited your ancient and honorable city before and thank you, gentlemen of the bar, for your hospitable welcome."

When assured by Sheriff Stokes, that no criminal cases were listed, His Lordship lauded the citizens of Hastings County on their law-abiding community. "Throughout the entire province diminished crime has been a credit to Canadian people in these times of stress. Especially it is perhaps more creditable during the present unemployment period."

In presenting the only jury case Ormond Butler, solicitor for the plaintiff, Harry Yanover, addressed the jury relating to the charges faced by Mr. Yanover in the criminal courts of Toronto, June 6th last. Mr. Butler stated, that through the use of the criminal courts the defendant, Mr. Louis Bender, had allegedly tried to use, that court for the purpose of collecting an alleged debt, contrary to law.

After calling sixteen petty jurymen the following were selected to sit on the case,—Cecil Ross, Wm. Jenkins, Joseph Collins, Leonard Pozard, A. R. Eddy, Ernest Brown, Arthur Burkett, Frank Patrick, John Burns, Clayton Blackburn, John Cummins and Bert Connor.

The remaining thirty-six petty jurymen were dismissed from further service as there was but one jury case listed. The other jury case entered for trial having been postponed at the request of the defence solicitor.

Plaintiff Called

The case opened with Mr. Butler calling Harry Yanover, the plaintiff in the case, who told of Louis Bender coming to his place of business in Belleville last April and completing arrangements for the purchase of muskrat skins.

Mr. Yanover purchased 1970 skins at a cost of between 82c and 85c each and delivered them in Toronto to Mr. Bender. He was paid 83c per skin, but expected no less than 95c he said.

"Did you ever have any other deals with Mr. Bender?"

"Yes, later in April, 1933," said the witness as he assured the court that he demanded an adjustment for the previous consignment of skins.

"Was there any adjustment?"

"Yes, I got $600.00 from Mr. Bender and bought more skins."

"What did you pay for these skins?"

"83c. I bought 606 at that price but Mr. Bender refused to accept them," stated Mr. Yanover. Later Bender came to Belleville and accused Mr. Yanover of obtaining the $600.00 by false pretences.

Mr. Butler then produced a warrant for Mr. Yanover's arrest that had been issued by Mr. Bender. Subsequently the charge was dismissed in the Toronto police court last autumn.

Mr. Yanover stated that Mr. Bender endeavoured to lay charges here in Belleville but without avail. Mr. Yanover claimed unstated damages due to the fact that the publicity received during his arrest and trial had seriously injured his business standing in the fur trade and also his reputation had been injured, he said.

Upon cross-examination by Mr. Louis M. Singer, K.C., the witness admitted that there was a slight rebate coming to Mr. Bender but the defendant wanted the full $600.

"How much did you owe Mr. Bender?"

"Oh, a little over $100.00, maybe."

Witness Did Not Answer

"Did you swear at a previous court that the skins cost 78c"

No answer.

"You told me 83c to 85c," pointed out His Lordship.

"Yes, I know, but that included my expenses,' explained Mr. Yanover.

"What did you pay for these skins?" asked His Lordship.

"Oh, between 80c and $1.00."

"Did your son Jake ever say he paid 67c?" asked Mr. Singer.

"Not that I know of."

"When Mr. Bender first met you did he give you a cheque for $500.00 or did he leave it with your wife?" asked Mr. Singer.

"He left it with my wife."

"I thought you said Bender and you made the deal?" queried Mr. Singer.

"So did I," said His Lordship.

Mr. Yanover went on to explain that the deal was made previous to Bender's leaving the cheque with Mrs. Yanover.

"What did your wife tell you when you received the cheque?" asked the Bench.

"Go ahead and buy rats."

"What profit did you expect?" asked Mr. Singer.

Expected 10 Cents Profit

"Ten cents per skin."

"Was there any price set on these rats?" asked His Lordship.

"No, sir."

"Did you have a license to buy or sell rats?" asked Mr. Singer.

"No."

"Did you not lose your license under the Game and Fishery Law?"

"Yes."

"How many times were you convicted under the Game and Fisheries Laws?" asked Mr. Singer.

"Oh, about three, but I have a license now," said the witness as he disclosed the fact his son had a license in April 1933 when the deal was made.

Mr. Singer produced a cheque for $1134.20 as the balance of payment when the skins were delivered. Mr. Yanover stated that this amount was not sufficient to recompense him for his loss.

"Why didn't you complain before?"

"I don't know, I was waiting to see him."

"Did you subsequently get $600.00 from Mr. Bender after a telephone conversation?"

"Yes."

"Did you purchase any more skins for Bender?" asked Mr. Singer.

"Yes, but he would not accept shipment."

"Why?"

"Because he bought western rats cheaper, he said," replied the witness.

"Did you send a bill with that last shipment?" asked His Lordship.

"No, sir," said the witness as he told the court that he never billed a client and Jack Yanover kept his account books.

Son of Plaintiff Witness.

Ben Yanover, a son of the plaintiff, told of meeting Bender inadvertently in Belleville last spring and struck up an agreement with Bender after being assured of a legitimate profit. "Bender left a cheque for $500.00 as a retainer," pointed out the witness.

"What did you pay for skins?"

"Between 80 and 85 cents."

"How did you buy them?" asked Mr. Butler.

"Mostly from dealers."

"Who delivered the skins?"

"Jake and myself."

"Was Mr. Bender satisfied with the skins?"

"Why, yes, but we were not satisfied with the price paid."

"How much did Mr. Bender pay you?"

"About 83 cents a skin."

"Did your father have any other dealings with Mr. Bender?"

"Yes, after he straightened up the previous transaction, but he refused to accept the skins," said the witness.

Upon cross examination Ben Yanover admitted his father did not have a license although he and Jake, his ocusin, did.

"Who gave you the money to buy the skins?" asked His Lordship.

"My dad."

"Were you satisfied with the sale price?"

"No."

"Why did you leave them, then?"

"Because we had made the bargain."

"Why did your father telephone the second time?"

"Because Mr. Bender wrote him desiring more skins for which he forwarded $600.00," said the witness.

"Did you deliver them?"

"Yes, but Mr. Bender refused to accept the goods, and we sold them elsewhere."

Evidence Corroborated.

Jake Yanover of Picton and an agent in the transaction, corroborated the previous witness' evidence stating he had purchased the majority of the skins at a price of between 80 and 85 cents each. He was not satisfied with the sale price, however.

In the matter of the second sale the witness stated Mr. Bender refused to purchase the skins after ordering them.

Upon cross examination the witness said that the gross cost of each skin would be between 80 and 85 cents although he admitted the purchase price was lower.

Mrs. Yanover, the wife of the plaintiff, corroborated all previous evidence.

B. C. Donnan, K.C., told the court of Bender coming to him and desiring to prosecute Mr. Yanover relating to a possible charge of false pretences being lodged against Mr. Yanover. The witness stated he did not deem it advisable to lay an information as it might lead to a subsequent charge of malicious prosecution.

Defendant Called.

Mr. Butler, the plaintiff's solicitor, called Mr. Bender, the defendant, to the stand. Mr. Bender swore he never offered any stated price or profit for the skins procured from the Yanovers. He denied ordering them, although he wanted muskrat skins, he stated.

"What quality of skins did you want, good ones?" asked Mr. Butler.

"Muskrats are not made by machine, you have to pick them as they come," came back the witness.

"What did you offer for the Yanover skins?"

"Eighty cents."

"What did you pay for them?"

"Eighty-three cents."

Not H. Yanover's Skins.

The witness stated the second lot of skins were presented as J. Yanover's skins and not H. Yanover's, that being the reason he refused to accept them.

The witness stated that Mr. H. Yanover had consented to make restitution. He also told the court that he later found out that Mr. H. Yanover had no fur license to buy or sell. The witness was certain that the second lot of skins belonged to "Jake" Yanover, that being the reason he refused to accept them as H. Yanover owed him $600.00 worth of skins following the first deal.

Upon the recall of the plaintiff to the stand Mr. Yanover again told the reasons of estimating his damages.

Mr. Singer asked that the case be dismissed owing to lack of sufficient evidence. His Lordship pointed out five essentials from the statutes that must be established by the plaintiff in such cases.

Mr. Singer, continuing, was of the opinion that there was no evidence to even point to guilt on the part of the defendant. The action was dismissed while the jury retained their seats.

OXFORD GROUP AND WORLD AFFAIRS

Fear which is keeping individuals apart and from true understanding according to the view of those interested in the Oxford Group Movement is the same motive which is causing so much trouble in the world today with misgivings as to peace, "groupers" were told at a meeting held some time ago in the British House of Commons. Right Hon. J. C. Hambro, President of the Norwegian Parliament, declared that the world was facing not only a material crisis but a spiritual crises which might be lasting. He wondered whether international conferences would not be more successful if the delegates adopted the group methods, speaking frankly with one another and telling of their real difficulties and misgivings. It was impossible, he said, to get international results people longed for unless they demanded in international affairs the same honesty a man showed in his private affairs.

Mr. Carl Vrooman of Washington, affirmed: "There is only one hope for the individual or for the nation and that is to surrender to God and seek His guidance. All over the world, the groups are demonstrating that this can be done."

Dr. de Bordes, a member of the League of Nations Secretariat, told how his old jealousy of some of his colleague in Geneva had cramped his co-operation with them and how it had disappeared under the Group influence. He suggested that the feelings of fear, jealousy and hatred that kept individuals apart and led to war. Governmental and political machinery could not remove these, he said, and he saw the only possible solution through a world, changed by seeking the guidance of God.

CROSSINGS

All cities have the same problem of street crossing as Belleville—to have the motorist realize that when he is making a left turn with a light signal, he is cutting across the right of way of a pedestrian crossing with the protection of the red light. Motor traffic must be adjusted to pedestrian traffic where pedestrians are using their right of way just as a motorist is in full swing when he is using his right of way. In Toronto drivers who 'blow' walkers out of their way on a turn are being brought to police precincts for a little advice and explanation and sent out to follow the admonition.

The pedestrian and the motorist must co-operate and yet that thought seems far from some minds. There are thoughtless drivers, but fortunately all drivers are not such. There are some who give little heed to the pedestrian at the crossing. The pedestrian is expected to back up or run for the sidewalk. The law never intended such domination of the roads and crossings.

The turn from the pedestrian's left brings a car up right behind a pedestrian and there is real danger that the pedestrian, if frightened, may dash back into the car. The motorist turning a corner should be very careful for the onus is on him in the event of an accident.

But many drivers are careful and do not belong to the other class. These good motorists know the pedestrian goes first when protected by the light.

PAGEANTRY AT AYR, SCOTLAND

Hamilton Spectator tells of an approaching pageant to be held for the County of Ayr, Scotland. To bring to the attention of the Dominions this pageant, a Burns exhibit is to be shipped to Toronto. It consists of a replica of Burns' cottage and pictures, busts, images and other interesting objects.

At Alloway, near the town of Ayr, is a famous museum containing relics of the poet. The names of the great Robert Bruce, William Wallace, and the Covenanters are associated with this famous part of the world. The Ayr Advertiser tells of governors-general and prime ministers of the colonies who have come from this same county of Ayr.

The pageant will cover the history of the county in six episodes, marking battles, trials, martyrdoms, heroic exploits. There will be a Burns episode dealing with the life and work of Robert Burns to the musical setting of tunes associated with his songs.

Twelve thousand persons will be accommodated at the performances in Dam Park, Ayr, from June 16 to June 23.

Scotsmen who are to be found all over the world and many of them from Ayr, will take particular note of the approaching celebration.

JUST INVENTIONS

Beacons which may be left for six months without attention are in operation on the islands near South California. The wonder of the operation is that they flash their signals for so long a period at night when they shut themselves off with the advent of daylight, turning on the beacons as night comes on.

These in other ages would have been unexplainable. Of course they did not exist then nor could have existed, but had they existed they would have been thought miracles. So accustomed to scientific progress are we today that such achievements do not give the average person a thought.

TO BRAVE HEARTS GONE

When you look back to time's misty dawn
Think, are you grateful for brave hearts gone,
Those who have journeyed across strange lands,
Those who have labored with eager hands,
All who have ventured upon far seas;
Have you remembered their destinies?

They were, as you are, young and glad,
Happy maiden or laughing lad,
Even as you, they had dreams so fair
That they veiled life's dullness and hid time's care;
Though in many an hour they faced defeat,
Yet they struggled on, for life still was sweet.

Have you ever thought how the tears they shed,
And the strife they waged in the days long dead,
How their lonely years in the wilderness
Helped earth to blossom, helped life to bless
Your lot today? Ah, in some rare mood
Have you given to their valor your gratitude?

UNITED STATES ARMY AVIATORS took over the mail routes Sunday night, flying the mails from coast to coast, following President Roosevelt's cancelling of all air mail contracts pending investigation of charges of excessive and enormous profits made by air mail contractors. President Roosevelt is a sudden kind of man, wastes no time in lengthy deliberation, but strikes when the iron is hottest. He said himself, in baseball parlance, he may not make a base hit every time at bat but he hopes to make a good batting average. He may not always be right but he certainly does things and thus far is laps ahead of his team mates in Congress and the Senate, and has proved his mettle as a leader, almost a dictator.

"ACT YOUR AGE, if over fifty," said Hon. Dr. J. M. Robb, Ontario Minister of Health, in a resume of health conditions. An alarming increase in the number of deaths from heart disease led Dr. Robb to say: "Those citizens who have passed their fiftieth milestone should exercise caution. A great many of them think that because they feel so fit and well they can do with impunity the things they used to do in the heyday of their youth. It cannot be done and an early acceptance of this axiom will undoubtedly save many homes from premature bereavement. Neither heart nor arteries can continue to carry the heavy overloads we ask of them, nor meet the sudden stresses we so thoughtlessly subject them to. In 1922 there were 3,757 deaths in the province of Ontario from organic heart disease, while in 1932 there were 6,679 deaths, an increase in the ten years of 78 per cent." Dr. Robb advises regular hours of rest for young-old men and women of fifty and onward, care of diet and habits, and periodic medical examinations, the latter not only being the best safeguard, in his opinion, but an essential duty owed "to themselves, their families and their dependents."

A SAGE OF THE BACK CONCESSIONS was in Belleville this week, coming in by horse and sleigh power in old-time fashion. Chatting with a storekeeper of his acquaintance the topic of weather naturally came up and reminiscences were in order, which brought forth this and that and the following acceptable contribution of general interest. Said the sage: "I am seventy-eight years of age and have seen many winters, some mild, some otherwise, but I have always noticed that after a hard winter came prosperity." So, we hereby nominate this Sage of the back concessions to the Hall of the Immortals as a Cheerful Philosopher who endures the bad in the firm belief that it is but the preliminary to better things, whose philosophy embraces the comforting thought that out of evil much good can come. So, let's be like him and "Smile and the world smiles with you, weep and you weep alone, for the cheerful grin will get you in where the kicker is never known."

NEXT WINTER and for many winters to come, in all probability the winter of 1933-34 will be known as "The Hard Winter."

He Found a Life's Fortune

Mr. Jacobus Jonker, Jr., holds in his finger the fourth largest diamond in the world, which he sold for 70,000 pounds. Jonker unearthed the gem at Elandsfontein, twenty miles north of Pretoria, in South Africa. It weighs 726 carats, is 2½ inches long, an inch and one-half high and one-inch wide. He had been prospecting in the vicinity for eighteen years and now that he has found his "bonanza", he says he will give up searching for the precious gems and buy a farm and a top hat and frock coat to wear when he goes to church. The insert shows a comparison between the precious stone and a coin.

After supper pop started to change his shoes for his slippers to make his feet feel better and ma said, Dont be so hasty, Willyum, there's a wonderful picture at the Mawsoleum tonite, it's perfeckly marvellous.

O, you've seen it? pop said, and ma said, Certeny I haven't, do you think I'd be raving about something I'd already seen. I meen you know what I meen. I've heard it from countless sources, at least 2 or 3, she said.

You meen you couldn't count them on the fingers of one hand if you'd lost your fingers, pop said, and ma said, Now dont try to be funny, the result is too paneful. It's a picture that everybody will soon be tawking about, so what are we to do, sit there like dummies? she said.

Not at all, we're to sit there and listen intelligently, pop said. All tawkers and no liseners makes the werst of all possible werlds, he said, and ma said, Now Willyum the fact remains that it's a picture in a thousand.

That may be, but we're people in a million and I for one see no reason for any falts modesty, pop said.

Now Willyum I've been told on good authority that Rosa Rita never had such a part as she has in this picture, ma said, and pop said, That's hard to bleeve if it's a bad part, and if it's a good part she doesn't deserve it.

Pop not thinking any movie acters are any good, and ma said, Now Willyum, you don't even know the name of the picture and it's impossible to be so rediculous without bordering on the verge of the obserd, and now Willyum I'm serious and I want to see that picture, and pop said, I'm serious too and I'd rather not see it, so in some mystick way that proberly makes it unanimous, so let's go.

TRENTON YOUTH COMMITTED TO THE INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL

Admits Theft from Several Stores in Town of Trenton

Trenton, Feb. 21 (Special)—A nine year old Trenton lad appeared in juvenile court before Magistrate T. Jarrett and through his father pleaded guilty to breaking and entering the Selrite store on Feb. 4 and Richard White's dry goods store on Dec. 3 and removing money from the till of both places. On Feb. 15 he stole a horse and cutter. With T. D. Ruston of the Children's Aid Society at Belleville and Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan concurring, Magistrate Jarrett committed the youth to Victoria Industrial School at Mimico.

Late Mrs. W. J. Crawford.

The funeral of the late Mrs. W. J. Crawford was held yesterday from St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church to the vault at Mount Evergreen cemetery. Rev. Kelly, pastor of St. Andrew's and the Ladies' Orange Lodge conducted the service. The late Mrs. Crawford was suddenly stricken with a heart attack at her home on Edward street as she returned from the Women's World Day of Prayer at St. George's Church on Friday afternoon and expired before medical aid arrived. At the time of her death she was in her fifty-second year. Besides her husband, W. J. Crawford of the Bridge and Building Department of the C.P.R., two daughters, Mrs. Clayton McCullough of Mount Carmel and Elsie at home are left to mourn her passing.

Late Kathleen Payette.

A very sad death occurred when Kathleen Payette, fifteen year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Payette of the Telephone Road passed away from injuries received when she fell down the cellar steps some five weeks ago. The late Kathleen Payette was born in Queensboro but had resided here for the most part of her life. She was a member of St. Alphonsus' Catholic Church at Wooler and a favored student of the York Road school. Besides her parents four brothers, Fred, John, Ted and Louis and three sisters, Margaret, Bessie and Mary survive. The funeral was held from St. Peter-in-Chains Church yesterday morning with Rev. Father Corkery of Wooler celebrating solemn requiem mass. Interment was made in the vault at the Catholic cemetery.

Gilbert Palmer Johnson.

An esteemed resident of Consecon for the past half century, Gilbert Palmer Johnson, passed away at his late residence on Main street on Sunday after a few days' illness. Until four years ago the late Mr. Johnson carried on the business of blacksmithing and was well known throughout Prince Edward County. The late Gilbert Palmer Johnson was born in Brighton seventy-five years ago, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Elisha Johnson. Besides his sorrowing widow one daughter, Mrs. Kathleen Taylor of Consecon and a son in Winnipeg, survive.

Fight Card Arranged.

The second boxing card of the 1934 season, sponsored by Relief Project No. 28 at the local base of the R.C.A.F., has been arranged for Thursday night, Feb. 22, in the heated hangar. Ten first class bouts have been matched with Howard Cole meeting Joe Wright of Kingston in the main bout. Cole returned to the ring last meet after several weeks' absence due to a broken hand received at Oshawa, and knocked out his opponent in the first round. George Fisher, elongated mitt artist of the South End Athletic Club of Belleville will trade punches with Bill Waugh, hard slugging mittster from Kingston, and George Smith of Campbellford and Joe Vido of Kingston will stage a return bout. This bout stole the show at the last meeting. Seven other high class fights appear on the card and the price of two bits everyone come! The hangar is heated and a special section is reserved for ladies and their escorts.

Boy Scouts Banquetted.

Twenty-five Trenton Boy Scouts were tendered a banquet at the One Minute Lunch on Friday evening by Bryson's Bakery. William Bryson and his two sons, Ralph and Ronald, are enthusiastic over forming a Boy Scout camp in this district. The scouts sold cookies a few weeks ago with the proceeds going to the camp fund. For their work, Mr. Bryson gave the boys the dinner. Joe McGregor welcomed the boys on behalf of Bryson's Bakery.

Personals.

Mr. and Mrs. Morton Weese of Rednersville spent Sunday with their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George D. Rosenplot.

Mr. Harold G. Crowe, branch manager of the Continental Life at Belleville, was in Peterboro last week on business.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Wiggins of Peterboro, formerly of Trenton, were in town on Sunday.

Messrs. Wm. Nugent, H. D. Graham, Wm. McClung, Dr. J. W. Johnson and J. Kinney attended the Maple Leaf-Boston game on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cunningham of Victoria spent Sunday with Mr and Mrs. George Rosenplot.

Mrs. Eva Sweet, Mr. W. Andrews and Mr. W. Hutton are in Toronto attending the convention of the Registered Hairdressers and Barbers Association.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stinson have returned from several weeks' vacation in California.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Tinney spent the week-end in Cobourg.

Mr. R. Y. Wemyss is in Toronto on business.

The gang of men working on the Bay of Quinte with the government engineers taking the soundings have been idle since Friday noon owing to the severity of the weather.

Fights Occur at Ottawa Boston and Montreal Games

LEAFS BEATEN

Canadiens for Fourth Time in Six Games Defeat Leafs 3-2

(A. E. Fulford)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Edged tempers, that flare easily in the nerve-racking last weeks of the schedule left several National Hockey League players nursing bruises and bumps today after the roughest night the circuit had seen in weeks.

Fists flew along a wide front as three teams battling for two Canadian Division playoff berths won games and Detroit Red Wings increased their lead over Chicago in the United States division to four points.

Eddie Shore the famous battling Bruin, ended the Boston game, won by Red Wings 4-1, in a tangle with Teddy Graham. The pair wrestled and punched on the ice and renewed the brawl in the penalty box until police separated them.

Happy Day, Toronto eLaf captain, who usually wears a cool head, stepped into an argument between his teammate Charlie Conacher and Pete Lepine and got a major penalty for attacking the Canadien.

At Ottawa where Maroons won a rugged game 6-2, Jimmy Ward, Maroon,s and Jerry Shannon, Ottawa, put on one first fight and then did Howe, of the Senators and Dave Trottier, staged another.

Leafs Beaten

The old partner of Aurel Joliat and Howie Morenz, most lasting in the League, gave Canadiens their four win in six games with Toronto 3-2 at Montreal. They paired in the overtime, when Day, Conacher and Lepine were in the penalty box to score the winning goal, Morenz feeding Joliat the pass.

In the cleanest game of the night Joe Simpson's defensive methods beat those of the old master of that sort of thing, Tommy Gorman, and New York Americans took a 3-2 decision from Chicago at New York.

Detroit flew to a 3-4 advantage in the first period of the Boston game and then coasted home without any trouble. Herb Lewis scored the first on Larry Aurie's pass and then Aurie got the second on his own hook. Young Doug tallied the third. Marty Barty scored Boston's only goal in the second period and Lewis and Aurie combined for Wings' fourth.

Only 1,500 persons braved a storm to watch the section leading team and the cellar outfit play.

Penalties were costly to Toronto in the Montreal affair. King Clancy was off when Johnny Gagnon scored the Habitants first goal and again when Leo Bourgeault got their second. Joe Primeau and Andy Blair tallied Leaf goals in the first period after Gagnon's score and Bourgeault's came in the second.

Rough Ottawa Game

A serious outbreak threatened throughout the rough Ottawa game but the officials, Odie Cleghorn and Eusebe Daigneault, held the players check. Maroons scored four goals in the first period through Stew Evans, Herb Cain, Baldy Northcott and Dave Trottier while Earl Roche was the only Senator to beat Dave Kerr.

Paul Haynes scored the first of his two goals in the second period and got the other in the first minute of the final session. Two Niagara Falls players, Max Kaminsky and Jeff Klahfleisch combined for the second Ottawa goal.

Only 6,000 saw the Americans beat Hawks in Chicago. The New Yorkers took a two goal lead in the first period through goals by Normie Himes and Deed Klein and Eddie Burke got their third in the final period Lou Trudel's pass to Tommy Cook paved the way for the only Chicago marker.

PLAYOFFS IN SENIOR O.H.A. START FRIDAY

The first four teams in the Senior Ontario Hockey Association race today were grooming themselves for the playoffs which start Friday night when Hamilton Tigers League leaders, meet third-place Torontos at Toronto and West Toronto Nationals, in second place, journey to Niagara Falls to meet the fourth-place Cataracts.

Last night Torontos wound up the League schedule by walloping University of Toronto 13-3 in a wild scoring game. Normie Mann and Nakina Smith led the point-getting, the former with three goals and two assists and Smith with two goals and three assists. Kitchen and Weiner Lough collected three goals each and Bruce Paul and Olliver completed the goal barrage.

Varsity's marksmen were defenceman Rey, Cunningham and Fullerton. Torontos rapped in three goals in the initial period while Varsity popped in two. In the second frame each team scored a goal but in the third Torontos ran amok to beat goaler Shipp in the Varsity net eight time in an onslaught that had the students dizzy.

Nationals had a difficult task to emerge with a 2-1 victory over Cataracts at the Falls. Nationals lost Chuck Good when he was injured in a crash with Preston of Cataracts. Good was given medical treatment and was instructed to undergo an X-ray examination of his hip which was hurt by Preston's body-check.

Campbellford Outplays Queens but Held to Tie in Playoff

Score 3-3 with Queens Coming from Behind to Even Count

Kingston, Feb. 21 (CP)—Queen's and Campbellford intermediates played a 3 to 3 tie here Tuesday night in the first of the home-and-home games of the first round O.H.A. intermediate series. Campbellford outplayed the Tri-color for most of the game, but had to come from behind to pull down the two-goal lead that the Maroons had secured early in the last period. It was the stellar work of Earl McDonald, Queen's defence star, that pulled the game out of the fire. The return game is to be played in Campbellford on Thursday night.

Queen's went ahead soon after the start of the game when Johnny Wing drove in a hard shot from almost mid-ice and it was not till near the end of the first period when Fred Ingram sent in a hard shot to beat James.

The second period was goalless and resulted in hard close checking with both goalers making some stellar stops.

Play was fast in the third period when Campbellford went ahead with a couple of goals. In three minutes Bush took a pass from H. Ingram to put the team ahead. They maintained an edge and in nine minutes Fred Ingram scored on a shot from the boards.

Campbellford then fell back on the defensive and Queen's sent four men on the attack with Earl McDonald leading almost every rush. Fred Ingram was hurt and had to retire from the game, and with six minutes to play McDonald smashed through the defence to score, repeating in less than a minute. For the remainder of the game Queen's played better hockey, but failed to beat Morton again.

Campbellford — Goal, Morton; defence, F. Ingram and H. Ingram; centre, Whitton; wings, Bush and Hendy; subs, Davis, Shannon, McArthur and McWilliams.

The Summary

First Period

HERE ARE THE UP-AND-AT-'EM BOYS

Those who think that there's no action in soccer as played in the United States as compared with the English variety, need only look at this picture to prove the opposite. Here are the players of the Los Angeles Athletic Club in a wild scramble for the ball. Left to right, Walter Dekema, goalie, up to stop the ball if it reaches him; Ernie Howarth, Captain Mervyn Scott, with Johnny Dekema hid, in the rear. The Los Angeles team won fifteen consecutive league games this year.

CURRENT SPORT

(Day By Day)

According to recent press notices from throughout the province there is a possibility that the O.H.A. may divide its junior series into "A" and "B" sections this year, with a winner for each respective section being declared and the stronger junior clubs in "A" section. If, understand us, if, such arrangements are completed and the local kids can hop over the sturdy Queen's outfit tonight, the Belleville juniors should go places in this newly proposed "B" section.

It is understood that Peterboro desire an "A" rating while such clubs as Oshawa, St. Michael's, Stratford, Windsor, Owen Sound and other stronger junior clubs throughout the province will battle it out leaving the weaker clubs in a class by themselves. On the surface it looks like a break for the smaller centres, as was the introduction of a class "B" series in the intermediate baseball ranks.

With a five goal lead in the bag the local Cubs left for Kingston late this afternoon where they meet the sturdy Queen's juniors in a return match. Eddie Thomas' kidlets will have to be right on edge this evening as the "students" are no push-overs. It must be remembered that Wally Elmer's charges had been idle for over two weeks previous to Monday night's tilt and may surprise the "red and white" this evening. On the other hand the locals enjoy a five goal margin and providing they play their usual brand of hockey the boys should experience little difficulty in "bringing home the bacon".

The trend of hockey players to appear on a local ice varies from season to season. Not over two years ago the local teams found it a task to round up adequate left wing aspirants. Today the shoe is on the other foot. Manager Thomas at present has but two right wing players on his roster, Cy Barriage and Jack Harvey. Barriage is on out-and-out centre man and cannot be seen at an advantage along the right boards leaving the locals with but Harvey to patrol the right alley. Jimmie Semark gave a good account of his endeavors at right wing on Monday night but then again was at a disadvantage when he was in scoring position, as he is a left hand shot playing right wing. Naturally the lad was handicapped considerably on the offensive. All local fans will be anxiously awaiting the results of tonight's game and pulling to a man for the Cubs.

Did you know that—of the 18 men and women to attempt the 20-mile English channel swim during 1933 only one—a women—was successful. She was Miss Sunny Lowry, a Manchester (England) girl, who swam from Cape Gris Nez on the French side to the South Foreland, near Dover, on August 27 in 15 hours and 39 minutes.

Owing to the fact that the Queen's University basketball teams do not compete in provincial basketball play-downs the local Deacon A. C. juniors, who finished second to the Queen's juniors in E.O.A.B.A. this season, may be invited to represent the E.O.B.A. in the provincial play-offs. Although all final arrangements in the matter have not been settled as yet Convenor Phil Brockell informed the local squad yesterday that in all probability they would be asked to continue towards the Ontario junior basketball title. If these arrangements are realized, and they apparently seem to be authentic, the local juniors should at once get down to rock bottom and practice. The lack of adequate conditioning spelled havoc in their ranks during the two Queen's games .... well boys, you know the old chestnut, "once bit, twice shy" .... so knuckle down and get in a little practice, if you have provincial-honor aspirations.

The following sport note was recently observed in the Kingston press, as to its origin and authenticity we cannot say but it reads: "Right now there is what seems to be a well-founded report that the O.H.A. will step in and try and arrange some kind of schedule that will start in November and at the same time there is plenty of talk of an Eastern Ontario League embracing Kingston, Gananoque, Brockville, Perth, Cornwall and other places. Some of the teams in the Ottawa Valley League are said to be anxious for a new grouping and there is a big chance that another loop will be in operation next winter."

The sport scribes around the country seem to be somewhat skeptical as to whether or not Tommy Loughran and Primo Carnera will ever meet. Twice now the title-bout has been postponed with the assurance of the bout being held looming on the horizon. Many seem to think that Tommy has no licence in the same ring with "Da Preem" All of which reminds us of the all-star boxing bouts at the Trenton airport on Thursday night when ten well-matched tilts will be presented. According to information from local fight authorities the "air camp" bouts are always of the highest origin and assure the fans of action personified. Boxers from Oshawa, Belleville, the Airport, Campbellford, Kingston and other centres will provide the night's entertainment.

The Queen's intermediates ran into an unexpected snag last night when the Campbellford Maroons held them to a three all tie in Kingston. The teams will now take to the ice at Campbellford on Thursday night on even terms and the game should provide plenty of excitement. Perhaps the "wise acres" down in the Limestone City will now sit up and take notice of the calibre of hockey that has been played in this group of late. The Kingstonians were of the opinion that because the Maroons nosed out the local intermediates, who were not considered as good as the Belleville Cities Service team, that Queen's would have little difficulty in winning from the Hydro Town aggregation.

Thursday night's tilt should see the largest crowd of hockey fans ever to grace Davidson's Arena in Campbellford and providing the Maroons play up to standard they should have little difficulty in downing the "students" in the smaller Campbellford Arena. After being merely nosed out of O.H.A. competition in their group for the past three seasons, the Maroons seem to be headed towards better times. "May they go far".

GRILLS GARAGE HOLD POSITION

Defeat Madoc 8-7 and Remain in Running

Madoc, Feb. 21 (Special)—Grills' Garage, the Belleville entry in the Central League, remain in the running for a play-off berth by defeating the Madoc intermediates by the odd goal in fifteen. The visitors, facing elimination with a defeat, went to work early in the game and piled up a four-goal lead in the first period. The Madoc team looked very weak and were unable to cope with the speed of the visitors. As a result of penalties Madoc drew up close in the second with the score being 6-4 for Belleville. The final stanza proved the most thrilling with Madoc losing out only in the final minutes of the game having battled gamely to tie the score at seven all. Over-anxiousness to win proved the downfall of the losers when they left H. Canning uncovered who pushed in the winning goal from a scramble.

The Belleville first string went exceptionally well scoring all eight goals. They were able to skate through the Madoc team at will. Henderson, Akey and Ware were the best for Madoc, Akey and Henderson each scoring three goals. Numerous penalties were handed out, Henn of Belleville receiving seven alone.

Belleville—Goal, Davies; defence, Blaker and Henn; centre, H. Canning; wings, Day and J. Canning; subs, Ford, Brown and Walsh.

Referee—James Watson.

TECS IN THIRD PLACE

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 21.—(CP) London Tecumsehs today rested in third place of the International Hockey League, tied with Buffalos Bisons whom they defeated last night 1-0 in a game which provided much loose checking and little excitement.

The single tally, scored by Daley with only one minute to go before the final bell brought the crowd to its feet and provided a stirring climax to play that has seen the Londoners' lead repeated onslaughts against a defensive herd of Bisons.

Four times in the last frame Tecs had Bill Taugher, Buffalo net minders at their mercy, but he staved them off each time. With overtime play apparently inevitable Kendal hoisted a pass across the ice for Daley to smack it past Taugher into the far corner of the net.

JUST A NICE LITTLE NECK-TIE PARTY

This nice little "necking party" took place in a ring at San Francisco and shows Louis Miller, Italian middleweight, wrapping his arms around Joe Parelli's Adam's apple, and applying a little rope in the process. Parelli, however, got rid of the rope and finally won the match.

MADOC MAKES THE PLAYOFFS

Madoc, Feb. 21 (Special)— By virtue of a 5-1 win over Marmora Madoc intermediates clinched a play off berth in the last scheduled game between these two teams. Madoc won three of the four games played and the other resulted in a 3-all tie. The game was the roughest played in the arena this winter Marmora without the services of Shannon and McWilliams displayed little hockey ability and resorted to old time shinny. Numerous penalties were handed out by Referee Watson, Madoc receiving nine and Marmora several more. Stuart was the chief offender being put off four times for rough play. R. Ware, Madoc right winger received a nasty crack on the hand when he was hit by the puck. The game became a donnybrook in the third period when Callery and Hewitt of Madoc and Blue of Madoc joined in a battle. All of them received penalties.

The score:

First Period

1—Madoc .. .. Akey
2—Marmora .. .. Wilson
3—Madoc .. .. Akey (D .Whytock)
4—Madoc .. .. Blue

Second Period

No score.

Third Period

5—Madoc .... Ware (D. Whytock)
6—Madoc .. .. Akey

Final score—Madoc 5; Marmora 1.

The line-ups:

Marmora—F. Callery, goal, Callery and Wilson, defence, T. Shannon, centre, R. Neal and O. Hewitt, wings; subs. Stuart and J .O'Neill.

Referee—Jas. Watson.

Madoc Juveniles Win

On Saturday morning the Madoc juveniles defeated Queensboro for the second time by a score of 8 to 6. Unfortunately the game was quite rough. Kellar and Ross for Madoc were easily the outstanding men on the ice.

The line-ups:

Queensboro — Goal, Rollins, defence, R. Rollins and A. Sagar, centre, E. Rollins, wings, H. Sexsmith and Courneyea. subs. Barrie, B. Barrie and Allore.

Madoc — Goal, Martin, defence Lowery and Saylor, centre, O'Rierdon, wings, Kellar and Ross. Subs. Munro, Reeves, Nayler and Wellman.

Referee—W. Hill.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

THE WIDOW'S SIGNATURE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. A friend of mine whose father died some time ago insists that her mother should now use her own name, which is Mrs. Elizabeth Pale, and I say she should continue using her husband name, Mrs. William Pale, and never sign her name directly with Mrs. but this way, "Elizabeth Brown Pale", and over to the left (Mrs. William Pale). Who is correct?

2. My friend also says that banks do not permit a married woman to use her husband's name whether living or not. Is this correct?

I shall be very glad if you will answer these questions. I may be wrong, but I will never be satisfied until you settle this for me.

B. V.

1. You are right, exactly right. A widow uses the same form of name that she used when her husband was living. She uses the same visiting-card, with Mrs. William Wells Hale engraved on it, usually nowadays not even changing the card for a black-bordered one.

And you are so right about her signature to a letter:

Yours very sincerely,
Elizabeth Brown Pale
(Mrs. William Pale)

For a widow to use her first name in her formal name is to show very poor taste.

2. When a married woman or a widow registers her signature for checks at her bank she should register Elizabeth Brown Pale, or, if she prefers, Elizabeth Pale, or sometimes she uses a middle initial, Elizabeth B. Pale. But the first form is the usual one, registering as it does, her first name, the surname of her maiden name, and the surname of her married name For the records of the bank, she may register her formal married name—Mrs. William Wells Pale—but it is the informal name that she uses when she signs her checks.

RETURNING LOANS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a person borrows money, say four dollars, is it just as proper to return this in other currency covering the same amount, or is it proper to return this loan in the same currency as when "borrowed"? I contend the latter is correct.

B.

I've always felt that there is a certain delicacy about returning a loan in exactly the same currency as it was received when borrowing. Of course this isn't strictly necessary, but it's a good thing to try to do. And if we use bills, they should always be new ones!

WHEN LEFT IS RIGHT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

At a dinner which I recently attended, the question was raised as to whether a breach of etiquette was committed when a left-handed person, all other things being equal, ate food using the left hand in place of the customary right hand.

H.

If a left-handed persons does not determine to learn to eat with his right hand (and I understand that this means only a certain amount of persistence and patience), there is nothing for him to do but to eat with his left hand.

WELCOMING PROSPECTIVE DAUGHTER-IN-LAW

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My son has just become engaged and as yet I have not met the girl's family. She invited me to her home for dinner, but called a few days later to say that she could not have me that evening. I have now received an invitation for a shower to be given by the girl's sister at her mother's home. I feel that I am an unwelcome guest and therefore am in doubt as to whether I should go.

Please tell me what to do.

K.

Please don't consider not going to this party. There is every reason why you should go, and no reason, since you have received this kind invitation, why you shouldn't.

And, dear friend, may I say something very friendly to you? Since you are the fiance's mother, it was you who should have gone at once to see the girl and her mother. It is the social rule, and a very definite rule, that when the young man informs his parents of his engagement, his parents, or at least his mother (if it is not convenient for the father to go) should go at once to welcome the girl into the family. So definite is this rule that this call should be made within twenty-four hours after the news has been told the parents by their son. It is not too late for you to do this now, and I am sure that the girl and her family would appreciate your welcoming call and your wish to know them.

The fact that the girl broke the dinner-engagement does not need to be misinterpreted, for there are so many reasons why she may have had to do this. But don't, I urge you, do anything now for which you will be sorry later. The new relationships to be established between families who will always be so close are extremely important and extremely significant, and there must be a definite spirit of cooperation and friendliness.

ANNOUNCING THE ENGAGEMENT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please give me the correct procedure for letting my friends and relatives know about my engagement?

A.

When you have decided on the date on which you wish to make your announcement, it is gracious of you to go to see your close relatives and tell them of your engagement. And you would probably want to go to see your close friends to tell them also by word of mouth. Those who live too far away for this direct giving-of-the news you would write to, charming little notes about the happy news and the date on which you plan to "tell the world" about it. You would, of course, ask them not to tell until the date of announcement.

This is all you need to do. Then, when the date comes, you wear your ring—and the news is out generally. But if you wish, your mother and father may send an announcement to the newspapers. And also if you wish, there may be some kind of announcement party, but this isn't necessary. You do not send formal announcement cards, for these are not in good taste

COMPLETE THE GIFT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I just bought a leather key case for a boy friend of mine. Attached to one of the key holders is an identification tag of metal with a number on it. Also enclosed in the case is a card with directions to send name, address, and tag number to a distant state where the firm which makes the product is located, and where they have a special department for this purpose.

Will you please tell me which is the proper thing to do, should I send this card away, or is it the young man's place to send it (The chances are he'll neglect to send it.)

It would, I think, be a pleasant and generous thing for you to complete your gift by registering the number with the manufacturer. And I'm sure that your friend will be grateful for your thoughtfulness!

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on Good Manners submitted by readers.)

Inferiority Complex In Children

It is Not a Natural Condition And Can Easily be Avoided

The world abounds with men and women having inferiority complexes, who are not only the unhappiest of people, but the most dangerous. Never sure of themselves, never satisfied, they are naturally prone to envy, resentment and hatred.

These jealous, restless persons, suspicious and distrustful of their neighbors, are malicious. Ruled by fear, they are destroyers of peace, knowing no peace themselves. Forever maladjusted they wander the earth frustrated, with love and respect for no man, having none for themselves.

And how and when did they get that way? Not after maturity, certainly, or even during adolescence, but in that first period of adjustment when a child must pull the world into focus with himself; when his first cruel disillusionment comes to him—that he is not all-important; that the world does not revolve around himself.

He Is His Own World

A baby is conscious only of his own being, and his food given him gratis. He is his own world. The first persons of whom he becomes conscious are persons who serve him—his mother, his nurse. He is still the world. For these persons, as far as he knows, have no other purpose or function but to wait on him, to attend to his comfort. They exist only in their relationship to him. They are his mother, his nurse, his father, his brother. A baby's ego, like his head, is at first overdeveloped. It is out of proportion.

And getting it into proportion, into focus, is a very difficult and painful adjustment — an adjustment that many, many children never make satisfactorily. Largely through the fault of those in charge, the lack of intelligent cooperation on the part of the parents.

The First Great Shock

Starting with a superiority complex, the sensitive child's first discovery that the world, far from revolving around himself, merely tolerates him as a small and unimportant factor, is a very great shock indeed.

That is a shock that we, as parents, must hasten as well as soften. For the sooner the baby is forced into the realization of his proper place on the world, the better and the easier the adjustment will be for him. Forced upon him early, it will not be so painful for him to discard the happier conclusion of his own all-importance. This former, happier conclusion will not have become a habit; he will not yet have grown dependent upon it. The child left too long in this illusion is apt to refuse altogether to relinquish it, and to lead a very uncomfortable life in consequence, heartily disliked by everyone, laughed at and scorned.

Teach your child that, though never all-important, he need never be unimportant; that he is never inferior unless he himself makes himself so; that there is no one without some talent or aptitude that he may develop and thereby gain his share of importance and position, both in the family and the community.

Fashion Flashes

Underneath the sun down South, interesting fashions are being shown. A typical outfit is a white knitted suit in fancy stitch, the tailored-looking jacket made with revers and a self-belt. It is worn with a white satin shirt blouse and a white knitted beret.

Right in the picture for a Spring evening, is a lovely evening frock of black net posed over a slip of lustrous black satin. The skirt is full below the knees in front, while the back spreads into a full train. A bow of the net in front, near the kneeline, is centered with a cluster of white satin gardenias, the same flowers also accenting the neckline.

Right in front of the skirt has been picked the place to display fulness in the form of soft pleats. This type of skirt is featured in a new dress of olive green silk crepe with a white scroll printed pattern. White organdie marks the neckline.

Take the air, when Spring comes, wearing a trim navy suit. A new model is done in navy lightweight woolen, the top of its bodice and its crisp bow fashioned of striped taffeta in navy and red. The jacket has wide tailored revers and frog fastenings.

Under cover shoulders still are a feature of some of the smartest formal frocks. A model of gray chiffon has huge cape sleeves formed of citron-colored ostrich feathers, extending to the waist and outlining the decolletage.

Still on top is the beret which, in the Spring version, is very flat and very deep over one side, with a lift at the back. A new model has wide loops of black and white striped ribbon, as trimming. These radiate from the center of the black silk straw model.

AT THE CAPITOL "BY CANDLE LIGHT" AND "BROKEN DREAMS"

How would you feel if you were the butler of an Austrian prince, and were entertaining a lady in your master's luxurious apartment during his absence, only to have him suddenly walk into the room, bearing champagne for your entertainment and wearing the servant's coat which you had previously removed in favor of the prince's smoking jacket?

That's exactly how Paul Lukas felt when Nils Asther, his titled employer, returned home unexpectedly and resolved to lend his assistance in his servant's tete-a-tete with his newly found lady-friend. The prince had a sort of a fellow feeling for him, for he was a notorious philanderer himself.

Elissa Landi, the lady in the case, was not at all flustered, since the rascally servant had led her to think that he himself was the prince—and it was a long time before she learned otherwise.

This is a part of "By Candlelight" Universal's gay Continental comedy which comes to the Capitol Theatre Thursday with Miss Landi and Lukas in starring roles.

On the same program is another feature "Broken Dreams."

Stories of palship between a young boy and a man and particularly of that strong bond of sympathy between father and son, have provided material for some of the screen's most poignant dramas.

It is this strong bond of human relationship that provides the theme of the screen production, "Broken Dreams," which comes to the Capitol Theatre on Thursday. The story is from the pen of Olga Printzlau, with Buster Phelps playing the role of the boy, Billy, who was brought into the world at the price of his mother's life, and deserted by the father who hated the infant whose right to live had cost him such a tragic sacrifice. How Billy was reclaimed by his father after six years, and how a strong affection was gradually established between the two, with Billy overcoming the prejudice and jealousy of his fashionable stepmother, supplies drama that is as absorbing and moving in its appeal as any production of its type to come to the screen.

Buster Phelps, an amazingly clever and personable youngster, has created in "Billy" a boy character that ranks with the outstanding creations of Jackie Cooper, Dickie Moore, and other star boy actors. Buster will be remembered for his work in "Little Orphan Annie," "Three on a Match," "Handle With Care," "Sailor's Luck" and "One Man's Journey."

Merchants thrift night tonight.

AT THE BELLE "Counsellor at Law"

Authentic Broadway goes into the far corners of Canada with the showing of Universal's great production, "Counsellor at Law," co-starring John Barrymore, Bebe Daniels and Doris Kenyon. This highly dramatic picture is the New York stage play of the same name transferred intact to the screen. As a play "Counsellor at Law" was an outstanding hit. It opened at the Plymouth Theatre, New York, Nov. 6, 1932, and played for a complete year to packed houses. The following season it was still just as popular.

To assure the excellence of each role in the picture, the producers summoned ten of the New York actors who created their roles in "Counsellor at Law." Arriving by airplane these players were Isabel Jewell, Clara Langsner, Malka Kornstein, Angela Jacobs, T. H. Manning, Marvin Klein, John Q. Qualen, Conway Washburn, Vincent Sherman and J. Hamilton Dailey. This brilliant array of stars was then matched by the best Hollywood could offer. John Barrymore, Bebe Daniels, Doris Kenyon, Thelma Todd, Mayo Methot, Onslow Stevens and Melvyn Douglas were among those cast in the picture. It was an amazing assemblage of screen and stage talent.

The story, then, of three thrill-packed days in a lawyer's office, reaches the screen in a series of brilliant dramatic flashes. By deft camera work and clever dialogue the pasts of a varied assortment of characters are revealed. These characters, which include a murderess, a Senator, and a chorus girl, have come to lay their troubles before the great criminal lawyer. Skillfully interwoven with their actions, is the struggle of the lawyer himself, who, at the height of his career, faces disbarment and estrangement of his wife. The outcome of these conflicts is the dramatic triumph of the screen.

In the screen versions of "Counsellor at Law," Elmer Rice employs the same direct simplicity which was so popular in the stage production. He makes the characters all appealingly human—so human in fact, that the audience is swept along by the movement of the story. Spectators feel that they themselves are taking part in a sterling drama of real life.

"Twin Screws" is the title of the new all-star comedy series to be presented at the Belle and will be exhibited with the above feature offering with Screen Oddities and a clever Vaudefilm.

Ten major gifts of beautiful Lamps will be given away Thursday evening at 9 p.m.

EASTERN U. S.

In Brooklyn, N.Y., John Cook, amateur wireless fan, sent word to his boss through the ether that he couldn't report for work. The boss said "O.K."

Subway riders in New York were frantic because doors froze and trains carried them beyond their stations. In North Adams, Mass., 200 families were without water because the mains, deep down in the ground, froze. Bobsledding at Lake Placid was discontinued. Too much snow.

Wireless calls summoned all New York firemen who were off duty to report for work to help clear the streets. A milk famine threatened on Long Island, where many communities were isolated.

At Floral Park, L.I., two locomotives fell over on their sides trying to buck snowdrifts. A conductor was killed at Rockville Centre, Long Island, when a snow plough plunged off the track.

The American Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals handed out "carpet slippers" for horses. Made of thick carpet, they prevent the animals from slipping.

And—

Up in Ketchikan, Alaska, strawberry plants are budding and the boys are paddling in the old swimming hole.

PRODUCE PRICES IN MONTREAL

Butter continued to advance in price on the Montreal wholesale market yesterday. The market for No. 1 Quebecs became generally 29c to 29½c per lb., up 1c from Monday and 2c from last week's closing levels. Receipts were 1,812 boxes, against 1,597 boxes on the same day last week. Cold weather retarding production; blocked country roads; light stocks, distributors running short of supplies, and a good demand were factors. The market is at new highs for the winter season, being higher than for over a year. Small lots to the retail trade are quoted by jobbing houses at 30 cents for solids and 31 cents for prints.

The egg market also was stronger, graded shipments in carlots or l.c.l. lots being quoted 43-44c for A-large, 41-43c for A-medium, and 40-42c for A-pullets. Receipts, 1,179 boxes, compared with 2,196 on the same day last week. Above prices were 1c above Monday's levels and 2c to 3c above last week's close.

The cheese market was ¼c firmer, being generally 11c for current make Ontarios. Receipts, 120 boxes.

The potato market was unchanged at $1.05 to $1.15 per 80-lb. bags.

The dressed poultry market was steady. Prices to the retail trade by local wholesale jobbing houses follow, per pound, "B" grade generally being under the "A" grade prices listed:

	"A"
Milkfed chickens	22c-28c
Selected chickens	20c-26c
Fowl	16c-19c
Turkeys	20c-23c
Broilers	22c-28c

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Feb. 21.—Brewery shares moved higher again in the early part of today's industrial section, Toronto Stock Exchange, but plenty of stock was available at the upper levels and prices eased moderately before noon.

Outside of the brewery and distillery issues, volume was heavy in Ford A, Standard Steel and fair in International Nickel. Nickel had a gain of 10 cents at $23.75 and Smelters at 150½ was up 2½ at noon. Ford "A" gained a small fraction and C.P.R. held unchanged.

Brewers and Distillery was taken in substantial blocks at $2.80, unchanged, and Walker's common, after selling up to 46½, weakened to 45¼, off ½. Industrial Alcohol and Distillers Seagrams were both down ⅛ to ¼.

Industrials were generally firm through the early part of the session without any gains of importance except for a two-point advance for Consolidated Smelters. Bank shares registered more losses than gains.

Nickel and Ford "A" were narrowly higher and Distillery shares dipped after a strong opening. They showed some recovery this afternoon from low points touched in the second hour. Brewery stocks were volume leaders on good buying.

WALL STREET FINANCIAL

New York, Feb. 21—(AP)— While stocks appeared to be poised on the cheerful side of the market fence today, they gave few indications as to which way they might jump.

A number of low-priced specialists were run up fractionally to a point or more, but the old-line leaders did little or nothing. The exchange will be closed for tomorrow's holiday. Bonds moved sluggishly.

Specialty share gainers included Packard, Hupp, Kelvinator, Electric Auto-Lite, Sparks-Withington, Remington Rand, Studebaker, Stewart-Warner, Maytag, Glidden and McKesson & Robbins. Such issues as American Telephone, U. S. Steel, Consolidated Gas, General Motors and Santa Fe showed few signs of life.

Insignificant price changes were shown by Canadian stocks. Shares of Dome, McIntyre, Canadian Pacific and International Nickel ranged from a shade lower to slightly higher. On the curb Hiram Walker eased 1-2 point. Canadian government 4s were unchanged. The Canadian dollar was 1-8 of a cent higher at 99.25 cents.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Feb. 21—(CP)— Silver stocks were in the spot light in the morning session of the Toronto exchange mining division today, and prices ruled higher. The general price level was up for the gold issues, and Base Metal stocks were steady and quiet.

Howey sprang to the front as a volume leader, trading in thousands of shares in the first hour and the price pushed up to 1.16 and was holding at 1.14 for a gain of 4 cents at noon.

In the high-priced gold issues Dome was up 45 cents to 35.70, Lake Shore 30 cents to 45.05 and McIntyre 75 cents to 41.50. Pioneer, Teck Hughes and Hargreaves were unchanged and Bralorne up 25 to 11.35

Mining Corporation was a strong spot in the silver picture, climbing 8 cents to 2.20, Nipissing gained 8 to 2.75, Bear Exploration 2 1-2 to 71, White Eagle 1-2 to 39 and Castle 4 to 66. Eldorado and Premier were unchanged and slow.

Silver stocks and the penny groups claimed first attention in the early part of today's Toronto Exchange, mining section, although the golds moved better after noon. Prices were up generally from yesterday's close.

Mining Corporation and Nipissing traded in heavier volume than usual and both were up about 10 cents.

Gains up to $1 were boarded in the senior gold group, in Lake Shore, Dome and Hollinger.

EDDIE SHAPIRO CLUB BOOSTER

F. S. Grafton Gives Splendid Talk on The Far East

The Kiwanis Club was treated to another lecture with lantern slides by F. S. Grafton of the Collegiate staff at their weekly luncheon on Tuesday. The members were taken through the Garden of Eden, the Urs of the Chaldees and the famous city of Damascus. The speaker on previous occasions has delighted the club with his interesting sidelights on the famous places of the world and his story of Tuesday was no exception.

President Eddie Shapiro was in the chair with Joe Delaney as sergeant-at-arms and Claude Tice as song leader. Eddie Shapiro was also booster for the day and was introduced by Cliff Barragar. Eddie was born in Montreal but it would not be fair to tell the date although the members are in on the secret and after his education in that city entered the ready-to-wear business, which he has successfully followed for many years. He came to this city in 1927 and has taken a prominent part in all activities of the city being interested in the Y.M.C.A. and Chamber of Commerce. He is also a real sport and divides his time between golf, baseball and hockey. The favors, that he awarded at the boost were won by Mr. Grafton and Jack McIntosh. Kenneth Munnings of the Older Boys' Parliament addressed the club on its aims and objects and hoped that the Kiwanis Club would assist them in building up a better Canadian citizenship. No business of any importance was brought before the club. A large number of the members were out.

Livestock

Toronto, Feb. 21 (CP)—The Toronto Livestock Market was practically at a standstill at the opening today with calves again the only livestock moving. Cattle trade was very slow and few sales were made in the morning. The holdover was 750 head and fresh cattle totalled 680 head. Hogs opened unsettled with sheep and lambs slow.

Receipts as reported by the Dominion Livestock branch were: Cattle 680; calves 260; hogs 1570; sheep and lambs 660.

The calf market sold steady at Tuesday's decline with choice vealers going to a top of $9.00 on a few sales. The majority of the supply moved from $8.00 down. Hogs were unsettled as buyers offered $9.00 f.o.b. for bacons, $9.35 off truck and $9.75 off car. Westerns again made up the bulk of the lamb supply. No early sales were registered.

"Investing for Security" Told in Interesting Way by Prof. J. L. McDougall

Pitfalls To Be Avoided Carefully Outlined By Speaker

MANY ATTEND

No Element of Uncertainty In Life And Annuity Insurance

The little fellow, the small investor, who seeks to place his savings in some guaranteed sure and safe proposition from which the returns will assure him an unworried competence in his old age, was guided past the pitfalls of modern investing last evening as the Y.M.C.A. rooms in one of the most highly instructive and entertaining addresses yet given in the series arranged by the local Chamber of Commerce through Queen's University, Kingston, as part of the business course for local residents.

The speaker, Prof. J. L. McDougall of Queen's skillfully and thoroughly covred his subject, "Investing for Security," with a convincing naturalness of manner in a talk addressed primarily to the working man, the office man and others, whose savings could be counted from the pay envelope containing the week's salary.

His informality, his eagerness to interpret the science of careful investment for the men who needed it most, prompted the large audience to shower him with questions throughout the discourse, and to keep him in the room long after the scheduled hour had passed.

No Secret in Investing

"There is no secret, no great mystery in the matter of investing money", stated Prof. McDougall. "After all, investment is merely the matter of trading current dollars against a future income. An income most needed generally at about the time it is received."

"The only thing about investing, that must be impressed upon those who seek to provide for themselves in later years is that they choose carefully, and buy only that which is assured, preferrably a guaranteed proposition which will pay low but certain returns."

"It is a big subject to cover," admitted the speaker at the outset. "By rigorous exclusion we must bar the non essentials and get down to the bare factors of the address. For example, what is investment?" Simply the trading one-lump sum down against regular installments of income in the future."

A brief excursion into the realms of English investment was taken by Prof. McDougall.

"There is a certainty, that the ideal investment is hard to find, but perhaps one illustration of a good investment would be the Consols. (consolidated) British government bonds, with no due date, and with the option of a call privilege upon them. You have the option also of either one lump sum, or the payment of regular installments."

These bonds were cited by the speaker as being a perfect no risk investment owing to the fact that the debt was being slowly paid off, and would eventually clear itself. Unfortunately, reminded Prof. McDougall, this type of investment had no standing in this continent.

Common stocks were stated by the speaker to be bought by those, who generally give the opinion, that they are not interested in regularity of payment.

"For example", he explained "shares are bought in a company. The returns to the investor are secured only, when this company has paid off its debts and has enough over to present payment in the form of dividends from the balance. As time goes on, the shareholder hopes for larger dividends and the debt is reduced and finally cleared. But mind that I say 'hope' for larger payments. Sometimes this hope is not realized. Not always do these companies grow and expand as time goes on."

Speaks of Crash

"In 1929, and years previous, a lot of people in this country were busy buying common shares in almost everything. They all believed that the smooth road to prosperity lay just ahead. They had visions of becoming rich overnight, of being able to retire with a comfortable fortune from the money invested. But what goes up, very often comes down. Many of them received a very valuable, but a very sad and well learned lesson."

The theory of investment outlined by Prof. McDougall, warned against the urge to buy some proposition where over-large payments were promised in return for the money. There are bonds with a high rate of interest, and conversely, there are bonds which return a comparatively low rate. The average investor is apt to overlook the relative values of safety he was told.

When one buys a risky kind of common stock the investor may be lucky. He may go high in this particular investment. He may be able to clear a considerable amount of money. Sometimes he is wise enough to sell out and secure that money. But on the other hand he is liable to come down with a hard bump and lose everything. For this type of risk he should get a very high rate of return for the money invested. A bank, on the other hand, with its very lowest payment of only four per cent., is the ideal investment for the more conservative."

4 % Propositions Quite Safe

Safe propositions, stated Prof. McDougall, could be roughly listed under those which return a rate of four per cent. For those, who wish to take a little risk with their money stock that will return between nine and ten per cent. will give them some little excitement along with their higher rate.

"Investment markets are intelligent; they're uncannily intelligent," the audience was warned. "The market is looking ahead to protect itself, and not let the heavy depositors take all the loss, when certain stocks go down. This point can't be too strongly impressed upon the investor," continued the speaker. "Particularly upon bonds, the market is normally highly intelligent and can look far ahead over the whole range. I wouldn't like to think, or have anyone else think, that they could enter the market with the expectation of cleaning up, or of beating the game. If the average investor sets out with that idea, well, he may get a good education in a very short space of time. The difficult part here is, that it's hard to warn against this unless one has tried it."

"If you do venture, venture with small sums, the loss of which will do little more than cause temporary embarrassment".

"It sounds quite impressive to hear, that a man dropped a quarter of a million, but that fellow, remember, can drop that quarter of a million more handily than you or I can fifty or one hundred dollars."

"Don't monkey with the buzz saw, especially, when it is running."

The necessity of a policy for every man who intends to invest was easily outlined by Prof. McDougall.

Must Aim at Something

"A man who aims at nothing will very probably hit just that. It is very important, that any investor have a policy, and stick to it. Let us suppose, that a young business man has reached that point in his career where it is possible for him to save a few thousand dollars annually. His present salary is sufficient to meet all current needs, and he is not dependent in any way. Well, if there are any prototypes of that young man in this audience, this talk is not meant for him. I want to show only the average man and woman how to find out for themselves just what the need for careful investing is."

"A sense of security in this matter is paramount. There is an enormous assurance in building up some kind of independence. Most of us are trying perhaps to do something in that direction."

At this point, life and annuity insurance of the various kinds outlined by Prof. McDougall as a real social service, was explained

"There is no element of uncertainty in this type of investment," he stated. "For payments to the company over an agreed period of time, a certain sum will be paid on death, or regular payments after a certain date agreed upon. For the man who wishes to accumulate, it is wise to make something in the way of a term policy. What he wants is protection as well as investment."

The average man has no time to be an expert investor, stated Prof. McDougall. Investment is a highly skilled occupation, and it is perhaps easier to make mistakes in this field, than in any other.

"After insurance," he urged, "don't overlook the loans of the Dominion, the Provinces, and the solid municipalities, when looking for a safe place to invest your money.

Mortgages Good

"Don't overlook mortgages, also, on the ordinary house property. The rate of interest is still pretty high here, considering, and the investment is a fairly good one. It is wise, however, to ask for a sinking fund payment when taking it up. The virtue of a mortgage is that if trouble does come it can be seen a long way off, perhaps five years before, and the holder has time to prepare. He is given advance notice, unlike that of the market which swoops unhesitatingly and rapidly.

"Common stock....long term investments. The man who invests in common stocks," solemnly reminded Prof. McDougall, "is a post graduate. There is little, that can be said to him. This investment is in the nature of a speculation, pure and simple. They buy, not with the idea of investing, but with the hope of being able to unload their holdings at a higher price than they paid. The purchase of common stock should be done only by men worth from seventy-five to one hundred thousand or more, with plenty of time, on their hands to watch the reactions".

The rooms of the Y.M.C.A. were comfortably filled to hear the sparkling and important address by Prof. McDougall, and more questions were addressed from the audience than have favored other speakers who have lectured on previous topics outlined in the course. Even with the meeting dispersed, small knots of interested citizens grouped around the speaker to gain more education on the knotty points, that had been dealt with.

Calling the meeting to order, Mr. J. O. Herity, manager of the local Chamber of Commerce, outlined the remaining addresses, of which two more are to be delivered on Tuesday of each week as the remainder of the course. The last address, that to be given by Prof. F. A. Knox of Queen's will be given in the Collegiate auditorium on Tuesday evening. The meeting will be on open one to which all citizens will be invited, along with scholars and staff of the Collegiate. The topic will be The Roosevelt Recovery Programme. Mr. Herity introduced Mr. C .W. Browne, chairman of the Open Forum Committee of the local Chamber of Commerce, as chairman of the evening, and expressed a desire to relinquish the job of perpetual chairman, forced upon him from the start. Mr J. B. Boyce and Mr. E. P. Bernstein will act at succeeding lectures.

E. V. Illsey Introduces Speaker

Called upon by Mr. Browne to introduce Prof McDougall, Mr. E. V. Illsey previous to the introduction stated, that if those in the audience could absorb just one half of the meat of the lecture about to be delivered, then the effort of attending would be well repaid.

"It is well known among those who serve the public that hundreds of thousands of dollars are lost in this county alone annually through the failure of or the lack of observance of the first principles of careful investment. A sum, which would wipe off the standing debt of the county and the city, too, might have been saved if people knew this. Only one in ten know how to invest carefully, know how to ward off the salesmen of doubtful issues. As one who sees the awful results of universe investing, I have great pleasure in introducing Prof. McDougall.

At the conclusion of the lecture Mr. Robt. Dewar moved a hearty vote of thanks to the speaker, responded by hearty applause from the audience.

Stahremberg Threatens 'Double-Cross'

Now with the Socialists either killed off or in jail, Austria faces another crisis—the well-known "double-cross". Prince Ernest von Stahremberg (left), on whom Dollfuss has been relying for help from Stahremberg's Heimwehr troops, is threatening to double-cross Dollfuss now and join the Austrian Nazis, blaming the bloody strife of recent weeks in Austria on the Dollfuss government. Such a move would be serious in the light of European affairs. The two "dictators" of Austria are shown above.

OBITUARY

MRS. JOHN McKEOWN

RAWDON, Feb. 21.—(Special)—Following several months' illness, Mrs. John McKeown passed away Monday last, at her late residence, in the 12th concession of Rawdon. Born in that township 55 years ago, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth (Duncan) Stewart, and the late James Stewart, she had been a life-long resident here. Mrs. McKeown was a member of St. Mark's Church, Bonarlaw, and a woman forefront in the Christian activities of the community. To those left to mourn her loss the sympathy of a circle of friends is extended.

Surviving are the husband and mother; four sons, Kenneth in western Canada and Cyril, Ralph and Garland at home with a daughter, Marion; one brother, John Stewart in the 9th concession of Rawdon; and three sisters, Mrs. P. Allen and Mrs. A. McDonald of Seylon, Sask., and Miss Grace Stewart of Windsor. An adopted daughter, Mrs. McDonnel (previous to marriage, Miss Florence Sanders McKeown) of Seylon, Sask., also remains.

The funeral took place this (Wednesday) afternoon.

MRS. WESLEY G. GRAHAM

Trenton, Feb. 21 (Special)—The town of Trenton was shocked Tuesday on hearing of the sudden death of Mrs. Jessie Graham after a few days' illness. Born in Murray township sixty-six years ago, she was a daughter of the late Duncan and Sarah (Hennessey) McPherson. Her husband, Wesley G. Graham, predeceased her many years ago. The late Mrs. Graham always took a prominent part in the affairs of the church and women's organizations of the town. At the time of her death she was president of the Women's Missionary Society of Grace United Church where she was an untiring worker. Five sons, Charles W., Claude V., Howard D. and Bruce of Trenton, and Ernest, of Toronto, and one daughter, Edith, at home, mourn the passing of a loving mother. Mrs. Graham was the mother of Howard D. Graham, K.C., ex-Mayor of Trenton, who served in office in 1933.

The funeral was held this (Wednesday) afternoon from her late residence, Byron street, and entombment made in the vault of Mount Evergreen cemetery. The Rev. C. Brethren, pastor of Grace United Church, conducted the services, and acting as bearers were the five sons and Mr. O. Alyea.

NO FEARS FOR SAFETY

Halifax, Feb. 21 (CP)—Another fortnight should disclose the fate of a trio of venturesome Ontario youths who set out among he ice floes of Lunenburg Harbor fo xa leisurely voyage on their little craft to the Bitish West Indies, accoding to Capta'n Angus Walters, veteran skipper of the fleet banker Bluenose.

ESTIMATES FOR THE BOARD SOON TO BE BROUGHT DOWN

Appropriation Should Be More for Repairs Says Finance Chairman

A meeting of the special committee on Finance, named by the Board of Education at its regular meeting will be held this week for the purpose of striking the year's estimates for the Board. Following this, the recommendation of that committee will be passed on to a joint committee of Finance and School Management for further approval. Later the results of the work of the committees will be presented to the Board as a whole, for final approval. For this purpose a special meeting of the Board some time next week seems probable. Members were warned of this contingency by Mr. Cyril Waite, chairman of the Finance Committee, at the last regular meeting, owing to the necessity of placing the estimates before the city council at the earliest opportunity.

It is expected, that the estimates, which will be presented to the city council this year will be higher than last year. There have been added costs in several departments, it is pointed out, although to offset this, several economies are expected in other departments. The chief expenditure, according to members of the Board, should centre on building maintenance, but this item will be but little higher.

"I don't see how we can cut the estimates down any lower than we did last year," stated Mr. Cyril Waite, chairman of the finance committee when questioned today. The worst feature of the business is that we are going blithely along, forgetting to make an appropriation for needed work on the schools, until some day we're going to be jacked up with a bill that is really going to mean something for the tax payers."

"But, we can't go to the taxpayers this year and ask for more money to repair these buildings. They're burdened heavily enough as it is. What is going to happen if we just slide along from year to year without making an appropriation for this work?"

Worth Million and Quarter

"Look," requested the chairman. "We have property, school property, in this city appraised at one and one quarter millions. Our repairs last year to this huge and extensive group were in the neighborhood of twelve hundred dollars. Ordinary business provides for not less than one per cent on maintenance, not figuring in the depreciation and so on. Putting the expense of maintenance on this basis, it should have cost us twelve thousand dollars to keep the schools in repair. I know there's been some talk of the amount of money being spent here and there on the schools, but the property involved is sometimes overlooked by those who talk."

"Let us look at it another way. An ordinary citizen with a home costing five thousand dollars will spend from one hundred and fifty to two hundred dollars a year on the upkeep, including repainting and so on. Ordinary business also writes off so much each year for depreciation and wear and tear. We haven't bothered a bit lately on the Board of Education with this angle. We haven't figured in the depreciation of the machinery in the vocational class rooms, or anything else. Not one cent."

Facing us right now is an expenditure for repairs on the roof of the Collegiate Institute. Why we could employ one man steadily doing nothing but repairing and redecorating in the Collegiate alone. It would take him three years of steady labor to repair and redecorate the rooms in this one building, and by the time he had finished the first room, he'd be ready to start back on it again. Figure out the work then on the other schools, and the little, that has been spent so far on maintenance seems very little, indeed."

"We pay about one hundred and twenty thousand dollars a year in salaries, but we are providing nothing for the upkeep of the beautiful school" pointed out the chairman. "What will happen eventually if this angle is persistently overlooked?"

The sum appropriated this year for the upkeep and maintenance of the schools will not be substantially larger than it was last year, informed Mr. Waite. "But I thought it just as well to call the taxpayers' attention to the matter," he added.

Oklahoma City, Feb. 21 (CP)—Oklahoma City's needy often take home their dole of food in a taxi. "Five men get together, chip in a few cents apiece and all ride home with their food," workers at the Federal Commissary said. "Five can ride as cheap as one," the taxicabs advertise.

Charity had been an expert swimmer since, as a little child in pigtails, she conquered her fear of water in the pond at home. Something in the determined manner in which the strange girl had thrown herself into the water and moved out with swift sure strokes held the crowd back. They watched breathlessly while she swam nearer and nearer to the half drowned man.

As he came to the surface again by her side, she realized with a start that it was Batch. He was in his street clothes. He was not too exhausted to fight, and for a moment Charity feared he would pull her under. Holding him up with great difficulty, she pulled her arm back and hit him on the chin with all her strength.

"Stop it—you fool!" she yelled frantically in his ear, "you're pulling me under."

Whether it was the blow, or whether what she had said sank into the doctor's consciousness, Charity did not know. But he stopped struggling and allowed himself to be towed in Charity's strong, young arms.

It seemed hours to Charity before she felt hands reaching out to help her. Two of the men had waded out to pull them in. hen she saw Batch was safe she walked painfully in and threw herself on the sand to catch her breath.

She opened her eyes to see Billie's white face bending over her. "Oh—I was so scared! You— were marvelous."

Charity raised up feebly. "I'm all right. How is Doug?"

When she was assured he was all right, she turned to Batch. She was a little disgusted to see that everyone in the crowd was under the influence of liquor from the old Temple cellar.

Charity turned to Billie. "We'll have to see if Dr. Batchelor has swallowed any water."

Billie knew something about life saving methods and they set to work resuscitating him. Charity smiled ironically as she saw that life was coming back into the half drowned physician.

Billie was not too busy to look up once in awhile to see whether anyone recognized the ... transformed Charity. She was quite sure no one did.

Soon Batch opened his eyes and tried to sit up. Charity urged him gently: "Take it easy. Rest awhile." Then she moved away from him a little and took time to catch her breath. Chickie Belle, she saw, was bending over Doug who still lay panting on the sand.

"You poor darling," Chickie cooed tenderly, "let me rub your head."

Charity turned away and caught Billie's eye Billie glared murderously at the celebrated dancer. Charity shrugged. She hadn't even thought of her lack of clothes. Billie watched her for signs of panic and was glad she had forgotten her attire in the excitement.

When he was assured he looked around and his eye lit on the tall, white skinned girl in a slip of a black bathing suit whom he recognized as the one who had outswam him and rescued Batch. He got up shakily and walked to where she and Billie sat near the doctor. He threw himself down with a tired grin.

"Introduced me to the mermaid, Billie. I thought I knew all your girl friends."

Charity held her breath. Billie thought quickly. Pretending she didn't hear him, she grabbed Charity's hand.

"Charity!" she yelled the name so loudly that no one missed it, "your bathing suit—it's all ripped."

Before Charity realized what had happened she was running, half dragged along by Billie, away from the crowd toward the house.

Billie was sorry she had to miss the effect her revelation had on the crowd. Especially on Doug. Back on the sand it was Chickie who found her voice first.

"It—can't be," she said unbelievingly, and stared at Doug, her large green eyes full of amazement. "It—wasn't your wife—was it?"

Doug had to think quickly. "Sure it was." He forced a grin. "Didn't I tell you I'd married a mermaid?"

It was not a bad attempt. But Doug was more shaken than anyone in the crowd would have guessed. To hide his confusion he turned his attention to Batch who was trying to sit up. Doug slapped him on the back. "How do you feel?"

Batch shook his head, trying to shake the cobwebs out of his brain. "Swell. Who won?"

Doug laughed. "All bets are off. I said I'd bet you a hundred dollars you couldn't swim out to the light in your street clothes—but I meant swim back too."

"What th—I did swim back!"

There was a roar of merriment from the crowd. Doug grinned. "You swam back in the arms of a fair damsel. But she had to hit you over the chin to persuade you to be reasonable."

The shock of Doug's words brought Batch to his feet. "Who brought me in?"

"Charity."

Doug was surprised at the look of confusion that crossed the doctor's face. Batch said slowly. "Your—wife swam way out—there and brought me in—alone."

Doug nodded and tried to look the proud husband "Like a fish. She's a great little swimmer."

Batch sat down on the sand his face a study. "I'll know better than to jump into the Sound in my street clothes, when I'm potted, after this. Where is Charity?"

"I think Billie dragged her back to the house to change clothes."

The crowd was silent, leaving the explanations to Doug. In a little while Batch got up. "I must go in and thank Charity."

Doug felt he must talk to her first. He got up and pushed the doctor gently back to say solicitously, "There's no hurry. You rest here a little while. You've been through a tough session. I'll run over and see if Charity and Billie are ready to come back. If they are I'll run them down. I'm sure Charity's all done up too."

Chickie shrugged, and turned her attention to Batch when Doug hurried off down the sand. In a moment the beach was a babble of voices. And most of the conversation was about Charity.

Batch heard snatches of it and turned to Chickie for enlightenment. "What's all the excitement about?"

Chickie shrugged again. "I'm sure I don't know. Unless it's because Mrs. Temple came down to the beach with all that awful hair of hers cut. She must have spent the morning at a beauty shop trying to take the hayseeds out of her hair."

It was Maisie Cotton, a little comedienne, who turned to the doctor to squeal delightedly, "Oh—Bell's jealous. 'Cause Mrs. Temple came down here in a swell bathing suit—and she just looked to—oo marvelous. Gosh, she made us all look like a bunch of hams. And has she got a shape!"

Chickie smiled sarcastically and was ready with a retort. Batch raised his hand placatingly. "Enough my children! I shall take the first opportunity to judge my hostess' beauty. Meanwhile—let us dwell in brotherly love. Selah!"

—CHAPTER THIRTEEN

Billie, wise in the ways of the world, knew there was something all wrong with the Temple marriage. She had heard rumors that Doug's father had left a strange will. She was certain Doug had not married his father's secretary for love.

There was something indescribably pathetic about Charity, Billie thought. . . She had always been champion of the underdog. There was not a selfish, mean bone in the tall slender body—from her red head to the soles of her dainty feet.

She couldn't have told why, but from the time she met the ill-dressed Charity on the porch the afternoon before, she had determined to be her friend and try to help her. Perhaps, she thought, it might be because they'd both been brought up in the sticks. A girl had to have a great deal of nerve and a lot of brains to jump from an Iowa farm to be a successful business woman in New York. And she was entitled to happiness.

Billie felt she had accomplished miracles with Charity in getting her to consent to cut her hair and use make-up. But she had no intention of stopping at that. As she sped Charity from the scene of the rescue toward the house, her mind was working fast. She felt certain Doug would feel duty bound to stick close by his wife the rest of the day. That he would make a great pretense of being devoted to her. He would have to save his face. For the first time, Charity had the upper hand.

And so it was that Billie determined to either give Charity the best advice she'd ever had before Doug got a chance to talk to her—or make her very angry and perhaps never see her new-found friend again.

First Billie went to her room to change into a sport skirt and sweater. When she got back Charity was lying tiredly across the bed—arrayed in a dressing gown of the unbecoming blue.

Anticipating that Doug might arrive before she was through talking with Charity, Billie turned the key in the lock. "Some one might accidently walk in," she grinned self-consciously. "I want to talk like a stepmother to you." She laughed nervously and wondered how to start. In a minute she plunged.

"Charity," she began hurriedly, "would you hate me if I told you some things I think you should know?"

Charity shook her head "No, Billie—I wouldn't. I like you. I think if you said anything you'd say it because you thought it was for my good."

Billie grinned self-consciously.

"Shoot." Charity said, resting her chin in her hands and looking deeply interested. "I can take it."

Billie sat up very straight.

"I don't know how you happened to marry all the Temple millions. But I do know you got a break almost any girl in New York would sell her soul for. Yet you let a bunch of Broadway chiselers come out her and scare you to death. And you've got more brains than all the rest of that bunch put together—and more personality."

Charity watched her silently and did not speak. Billie plunged on with great difficulty.

"I cut your hair and put some rouge on you, and when you went down to the beach there wasn't a girl there who looked any better. You're a type. And that's about all any of them are. Take the glad rags off their back and keep them away from the beauty parlor a few weeks and they'd look just like you did."

Billie flushed painfully when she realized what she had said. Charity motioned for her to go on, smiling understandingly.

"There isn't anything in the world you can't buy with all your money. What I want to know is—are you going to get a little horse sense and snap out of it and thumb your nose at all these people who'd give half their lives to be in your shoes? Or are you going to let them get you down?"

She paused. Charity said thoughtfully, "I —don't know why, but you give me courage."

Billie leaned toward her earnestly. "You've got everything you need to make you happy—right in your own hands—if you just learn how to use it."

Suddenly Charity broke in. "Oh—but there's a lot about my life you don't know. I—I think I want to tell you."

"I don't want you to," Billie stopped her. "I'm not asking you to tell me secrets."

"But— I trust you." Charity reached out and took Billie's hand. "I'd like to get it off my chest."

Then she told her, in halting words, the whole story of her queer marriage. Of the letter Doug's father had written her begging her to marry his son and help make a man of him. Of the cruel way Doug had talked to her that day in Simmons' office. Of his engagement to Yanner Vandergriff. Billie sat spellbound through Charity's story. When she finished and lay back, exhausted from the ordeal of telling things so near her heart, Billie sat a moment tears in her eyes.

"You poor darling—" she said, seeing the pain in Charitys' gray eyes.

They were silent awhile. Billie spoke first, clinching her fists.

"Its rotten of Doug. I think I hate him. He wasn't man enough to get a job and go to work. He took advantage of you to get half of his father's fortune. Now he's going right on with Yanner Vandergriff—and there's no doubt they're planning a way to trick you into a divorce."

Charity couldn't have told why she defended Doug. But she broke in upon Billie earnestly.

"Oh—Doug isn't mean at heart. He's had too much money and has not had a mother or anyone really close to him since he was a little boy. He's been very nice these last few days. I—mean—he hasn't been rude."

Billie sniffed. "Sweet of him to be decent. If you hadn't done him the favor of marrying him, he wouldn't have a roof over his head."

Just then a knock came on the door. Charity started to get up. Billie pushed her back, her hand to her lips. She crossed over and opening the door just enough to see who was there. Charity was surprised to learn it was Doug. She lay back quietly. It was a relief to let Billie handle the situation.

"She pretty's much all in," Billie told him curtly, "but I guess she'll live."

"She—she' not sick?" Doug was all concern. "I—think we'd better call Dr. Siensen and have him make sure she didn't overdo."

There was no doubt that the concern in Doug's voice was genuine. Charity's heart beat fast. Billie smiled inwardly.

"That isn't necessary. She's just tired."

"Can't I see her?" he begged then.

"Not till dinner time. Run along and play, little boy."

Billie closed the door in his face. Charity sat up—round-eyed. Billie leaned against the door to laugh. When she heard Doug going down the hall slowly she threw her arms in delight.

"You've got him going, darling! He's actually worried about you."

"He—sounded really solicitous," Charity said wonderingly. "I told you he really isn't mean."

Billie sat down skeptically. "But he's got to be nice to you now, to save his face. He didn't even know you on the beach, and it'd be terrible if anyone found that out. That he didn't even know his own wife in a bathing suit. He'll eat out of your hand, till the crowd leaves—to save his face. And you're not going to give him a chance. You're going to start being just as sassy to him as he's always been to you. The nicer he is to you the sassier you're going to be."

Charity smiled. "I've heard that's good psychology. Are you suggesting that I make my husband wear his heart on his sleeve for love of me—then laugh in his face?"

TARZAN AT THE EART H'S CORE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

© 1933, by Edgar Rice Burroughs, Inc. All rights reserved.

After leaving the man-eaters' village, Tarzan made his way southwest, crossing after the most appalling hardships a vast, waterless steppe covered with dense thorn. At last he came into a district that probably had never previously been entered by any white man and was known only in the legends of the tribes whose country bordered it.

Here were precipitous mountains, wide plains, well watered plateaus and vast, swampy morasses, in which at night, the ape-man saw many weird monsters. Only after weeks of arduous effort did he succeed in finding a spot where he might cross these dreadful, forbidding swamps. It was a hideous stretch infested with all manner of venomous and dangerous creatures.

When at last Tarzan of the Apes stood upon firm ground, he realized why it was that for perhaps countless ages, this territory had defied all efforts to penetrate it. It seemed to him that he had discovered a new world as yet unspoiled by man. Hippopotamuses, rhinoceroses and elephants in and about the marsh he often encountered in great numbers.

In this strange country Tarzan was amazed to find every known species of bird and beast, together with many unknown to the rest of the world. Not the least interesting to him were the black and yellow striped lions. These were smaller than those he knew in his own jungle. They possessed sharp, saber-like teeth and were exceedingly ill tempered. Some were spotted like leopards.

LAPORTE DIES IN MONTREAL

Sir Hormisdas Built up Large Grocery Business

Montreal, Feb. 21 (CP)—Sir Hormisdas Laporte, who built up a huge wholesale grocery business from a humble beginning in a corner store, and who became a power in the financial and industrial life of his native city, died at his home here, aged 83.

During his long life Sir Hormisdas achieved prominence in almost every field of activity here. He was a member of the Privy Council of Canada, Mayor of Montreal from 1904 to 1906 an Honorary Doctor of Laws and Literature of McGill University. During the Great War he served as chairman of the War Purchasing Commission and was Knighted in 1918.

Honorary President of La Banque Provincial and its President until last month when ill-health forced his retirement founder and lifelong President of Laporte, Martin and Company. He was generally known as French Canada's most important businessman.

DEPOSITOR OF 10,000 NEVER SEEN AGAIN

Twenty-Nine Year Old Undisturbed Account in Detroit Bank

Detroit, Feb. 21 (AP)—If Charles Hehner will get in touch with the Michigan Public Administrator he can collect $22,062.46 representing the principal and compound interest on $10,000 he deposited in the Detroit Saving Bank in November, 1905—and never called for.

Under the laws of Escheat the money has become the property of the State, it was learned today, but Hehner himself still could claim it. So long as the bank retained the account, his heirs likewise could have had the money upon application and proof of Hehner's death.

Hehner, 36 years old when he deposited the money, was a Michigan commission agent. He never returned to the bank after depositing the cash.

EARLY RAIN IS BENEFICIAL

Ottawa, Feb. 21 (CP)—Rain falling between 59 and 110 days after seeding is detrimental to wheat, according to J. H. Hopkins of the laboratory division of the National Research Council. The annual report of which body was tabled in the House of Commons. The most beneficial effect upon increased yields of wheat comes from rain falling within the first 30 days after seeding. following that there is a progressive diminution of the good influence of rain

In the matter of temperatures, it has been demonstrated that higher than average temperatures are good for wheat during the first month of the growing season. Between 30 and 85 days after seeding, however, high temperatures are unfavorable and subsequent to that, between 85 and 110 days high temperatures are again beneficial.

EXERCISE IN MIDDLE LIFE MODERATELY

When Young The More Exercise Taken The Better

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology
(Copyright 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

When the muscles are still growing and developing, as is the case in youth, one might say that the more exercise the better. On the other hand, after maturity has been reached, especially after middle life, exercise can readily be overdone and to the detriment of the health of the individual in question.

The more exercise adolescents take the better they feel. In the male, indeed, even violent exercise is enjoyed. Football, basketball hockey, tennis, running and swimming races, all and many more besides give zest to life when one is in the teens and early twenties. In fact youth speaks of such exercise when taken daily as keeping itself "in the pink of condition".

Muscular tissue is divided into two kinds. One is "voluntary" muscle because it responds to an act of the will; the other is "involuntary" muscle because it functions without direction, as such from the brain.

Voluntary muscles are the ones thought of when we speak of physical exercise. They are the muscles of the arms, legs, neck, etc. which young men try so assidiously to make large and hard. Involuntary muscles however, are even more important for health, for these are to be found in the vital organs, in wa'ls and the like.

When a tiny piece of voluntary muscle is examined under the microscope it is seen to be made up of bundles, large and small, which, "en masse", look like linear striations. These closely packed sticklike muscle cells—for such they are —are bound and held together by so-called "connective tissue" Each single muscle cell also is a functioning unit all by itself although it works in conjunction with thousands of other similar cells, thus giving to the muscle bundle its power and strength.

In involuntary muscle tissue no such bundles are to be seen—in other words no striations are present.

The heart is a muscle and in a class by itself, being neither voluntary or involuntary. Its structure is unique and there is no other muscle of the same type in the body. It possesses this peculiar property: when it contracts—that is, gets smaller—it cannot do so part way but must, of necessity, contract all the way or not at all.

When muscle contracts, no matter what its variety may be, waste products are carried away because, literally, the blood is forced out of the part. New, rich blood is, of course, also allowed to flow into the part. That is why exercise is such healthful measure.

After all, nobody dies because his muscles give out. We become ill or die because a vital organ, one in the chest or abdominal cavity as a rule, deteriorates and finally ceases to function.

Exercise therefore should be moderate, never strenuous; just enough to contract the muscles frequently without necessarily making them grow larger.

To try and do stunts with our muscles is extremely unwise unless we wish to become professional athletes. But even these persons must watch out when middle life arrives else they will become "muscle bound", as the expression goes, and there over-developed muscles will give them pain and other trouble.

DR. BISCH'S DAILY DIET HINT

Loss of weight, or inability to gain weight, may be due to one of several causes. The diet may be at fault because of not being sufficient in amount or rich enough in starch sugar and fat ingredients. The individual may, however, be suffering from diabetes, incipient tuberculosis, and the like and not be aware of it. The safest rule, really, is to see a doctor.

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Knoxville, Tenn., Feb. 22—(CP) "If I were only a minister", mused Dr. G. J. Mills, Negro physician today.

As a physician Mills brings folk into the world. As a real estate owner he rents them houses. As a doctor he can treat them if they become ill. As an undertaker he can arrange the funerals when they die.

"If I were a minister," mused the doctor, "I'd be the alpha and omega."

As that the doctor can put the final touches to life and death. He owns the cemetery.

Solemn Requiem Mass in St. Gudule Cathedral in Belgium

BURIAL AT LAEKEN

Veterans Pass Bier of Late King at Palace

(By Albert W. Wilson, Associated Press Foreign Staff Writer)
(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press)

Brussels, Feb. 22—King Albert I. was buried today in the crypt of a little gray church near the royal castle at Laeken.

He was laid to rest beside the bodies of his predecessors Leopold I. and II., after one of the most impressive funerals given a national leader in modern times.

Eight hours of military processions and religious rites in two churches were ended at 3 p.m. when the body was lowered into its last resting place after a brief, private benediction before the Royal Family.

Tens of thousands of persons took part in the processions and hundreds of thousands more witnessed the pageantry under heavily overcast skies.

Rain fell slightly for about half an hour while services were held in the 13th. Century Cathedral of St. Gudule. The rain stopped again when the mourners resumed their march toward Laeken.

One of the most spectacular scenes of the day was a demonstration by detachments of the Allies and the Belgian army in front of Laeken church.

Guns Boom, Bells Toll

There the troops drilled for the last time before their King as his body lay outside the church.

Visiting royalty, princes and diplomats witnessed the military manoeuvres from a dais. The Grand Duchess of Luxembourg, a cousin of King Albert, was the only woman of royalty to witness this review.

Queen in Cathedral

Queen Elisabeth and her daughter-in-law, the Princess Astrid, who tomorrow will be queen of the Belgians, attended the services in St. Gudule Cathedral.

Accompanied by a score of ladies of the court they took their places in the choir of the great church half an hour before the cortege arrived.

All were so heavily veiled in black that it was impossible to distinguish their features at a distance of 20 feet.

There was considerable doubt for a time as to whether the Queen actually was present in the church but this doubt was dispelled when the Queen and the Queen-to-be sat together under the royal canopy.

Bugle calls and the simultaneous ring of bells heralded the arrival of the cortege there.

Preceded by an impressive ecclesiastical company, the Cardinal in a white mitre and scarlet robe entered the church and took his throne opposite the seats of the royal family.

The ceremonies at St. Gudule ended, a group of petty officers carried the coffin down the stairs. They placed it upon the gun carriage.

Headed by detachments of cavalry and artillery, with a band playing a solemn march, the procession moved again—this time toward the final destination.

King's Colors Borne Ahead

The dead King's personal colors were borne ahead of the gun carriage. His favorite charger followed immediately after the coffin

WARNING BELL TOLLS REQUIEM

Dover, England, Feb. 22—(AP)—During the funeral today of King Albert of Belgium at Brussels, the Zeebrugge bell at Dover Town Hall sounded a knell every two minutes.

It was this bell, mounted on the stone mole embracing the western approach of the Bruges Canal, which gave warning against air attacks during the German occupation of Belgium in the Great War.

Brussels, Feb. 22—(CP Cable) — Hon. Phillipe Roy, Canadian Minister to France represented the Canadian government at the funeral today of King Albert of the Belgians. Col. G. P. Vanier of the high commissioner's office in London represented the Canadian Department of National Defence.

Toronto Feb. 22—(CP)—Solemn requiem high mass was offered at St. Michael's Cathedral today for the repose of the soul of Albert, King of the Belgians, while military officials in full uniform and church dignitaries mourned the passing of the soldier monarch.

The altar was draped in violet and black and high up in the chancel hung the Union Jack and the Belgian tricolor. Before the altar was a catafalque draped with a pall of black on which great white cross surrounded by palms, was placed.

While the carillon in the Peace Tower of the parliament buildings played appropriate music, representatives of the government, the diplomatic corps, veterans' organizations, as well as members of parliament and of different associations, gathered in the basilica for the memorial service in honor of the dead monarch. A fall of fresh white snow formed the background for the gathering at the old church which has been the scene of many important functions.

Within the building the solemn music of the mass was chanted by Mgr. Andrea Cassulo, papal delegate. Assisting him was Mgr. Joseph Charbonneau, Vicar General. The attendance testified to the high place which the Belgian King had won in the hearts of Canadians.

Brussels, Feb. 22—(AP)—Princess Astrid will not be at the side of the Crown Prince when he makes his entry into Brussels Friday as the new king of the Belgians.

Because of her health—she is expecting the birth of a child—the Crown Princess will motor from the Royal Castle at Suburban Laeken to the Parliament Building where Prince Leopold will take the oath of fidelity to the constitution.

Arriving, the Princess will be greeted by a delegation from both Houses of Parliament and conducted to a throne erected in the Chamber of Deputies.

FATHER CHARGED FOR STRAPPING SON

London, Ont., Feb. 22 (CP) — Alleged to have assaulted his seven year old son by beating him with a strap Howard C. Jones, London, appeared in city police court today and was granted a week's adjournment at the request of Chief Harry Down.

Eat Light Snack Before Retiring to Get Superior Night's Sleep

South Hadley, Mass., Feb. 22 (CP) —If you are like eight healthy young collegians at Colgate university the best way to get a superior night's sleep is to eat a light snack just before going to bed.

The eight, all young men, demonstrated this 100 per cent. in the psychological laboratory, and kept it up for five months running. The results and reasons had been announced here today by Dr Donald A. Laird, director of the laboratory.

Child sleep, Dr. Laird reported, can be improved by doing away with the time honored custom of a heavy evening meal and giving the youngsters something light to eat. Eight children, ages four to 8½ years, demonstrated this—also 100 per cent. for five months.

In explanation Dr. Laird said that with adults by the time they retire their evening meals are likely to be completely digested so they retire on empty stomachs. Those organs, when empty begin rhythmical contractions—called hunger contractions—and this interferes with sleep. Crackers and milk were cited as one of the best snacks tried.

King Albert's Death Leaves Two War Monarchs

With the death of King Albert I. of Belgium, in a fall while mountain climbing, only two monarchs who reigned during the world war remain on their thrones today. They are King George V. of England, and King Victor Emmanuel II. of Italy. The former is again reported ill.

WOODCUTTING CLAIMS TWO

Western Ontario Farmers Scenes of Winter Tragedies

Toronto, Feb. 22 (CP)— Winter wood-chopping activities on Western Ontario farms this week had taken a toll of two lives today and so seriously injured another man that his life is despaired of.

Jestus M. Field, Woodhouse township farmer, died Tuesday, Morley Tribe, 42-year-old Malahide township farmer, was killed almost instantly yesterday and Edwin C. Schooley, 47, suffered a fractured skull near his Burnaby homestead, all three being struck by falling trees.

Field was cutting down a tree on a hillside. The tree fell, struck a wire fence and rebounded, striking Field and inflicting injuries which caused his death a short time afterward.

Tribe was struck on the head, dying almost instantly. His son, Fred found the body.

Schooley suffered his injuries in a similar manner to that of Field. The tree he was felling struck another tree and shot back to where he was standing, knocking him to the ground. He is now in Welland county hospital.

MENNONITES WORSHIP IN BUSY CAFETERIA

Farewell Said to Three Missionaries Off For Africa

New York, Feb. 22 (AP)— Four hundred Pennsylvania Mennonites in quaint black garb had held a two-hour service in a bustling Fifth Avenue cafeteria today to speed three missionaries off to Africa.

The missionaries were the first their sect has ever sent, and many of the Mennonites who saw them off had never been this far from their fertile farms before. Precautions were taken lest any got lost.

At intervals during the stay in the cafeteria, informal choir groups of men and women would stand and sing. Their clear voices filled the large room. None of the Mennonites seemed conscious of the curious stares of New Yorkers who came to eat.

R. P. WHITE ELECTED

TORONTO, Feb. 22.—(CP)—C. P. Mahoney, Ottawa, today was elected president of the Ontario Retail Lumber Dealers' Association at the organization's annual convention here.

Other officers were:—Vice-President, A. R. Stinson, Toronto; Honorary Directors, M. R. Bogart, Chatham, and D. Kemp Edwards, Ottawa; Directors, R. M. Richardson, Gananoque; R. P. White Belleville; R. Comrie, Scarboro Junction, and C. F. Richards, London, all re-elected; new directors,—W. J. Stewart, Sudbury; G. T. Reid, Toronto; N. M. Dearinger, Elmira and John Davis, St. Catharines.

"Blanket of Allah" Awes Natives, Eighteen Inches of Snow in Africa

Bengasi, Cirenaica, Africa, Feb. 22 (AP)—Hordes of awe-struck natives formed caravans from the lowlands today to see "the blanket of Allah" which covered the Hinterland of the plateau of South Bengasi for the first time in the recollection of the oldest inhabitant.

It was a snowfall, one-and-one-half feet deep on the level and deeply banked on broken land.

It caused the most reverential reactions by the natives, many of whom prostrated themselves in the fleecy drifts in subjection to Allah's will.

All Persons are "Charged" "Shocking" Results of Cold

If on a particularly cold day, you get a slight electrical shock upon placing your bare hand on the radiator of the house or the metal door knob, or even the family radio, think nothing of it. You're just a walking generator. We all are—on cold days. We get so "charged" with electricity that when the hand or the body comes in contact with some metal object, it's grounded. Hence the spark and the shock, according to Mr. G. B. Smith of the local office of the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario.

"If you are dry-skinned the shock will be greater. You're liable to be more heavily charged than other individuals," stated Mr. Smith.

According to Mr. Smith this startling condition of being shocked every time the individual scuffs his feet across the carpet to turn on the family radio, the high content of static electricity in the air is brought about by the exhaustion of humidity in the air of the house. Windows in most cases are kept tightly closed, and no fresh air has entered. The house is then heated until all moisture has evaporated. If the heating system is of hot water type it will be just so much worse.

One man of the city is so susceptible to these shocks that he had come to dread touching anything metal in cold weather. He has even been figuring some way to ground himself from these startling shocks. At times, he stated, clear sparks were visible when his fingers came in contact with something metal.

"There is no cause for alarm, however," stated Mr. Smith. "The shocks are not injurious, and have for their reason a natural cause." People are advised however, that a tiny spark such as noticed might be dangerous in a room heavy with the fumes of naptha, gasoline or other combustible cleaning fluids.

"It's shocking," admits Mr. Smith, but there's little that can be done with those who are particularly able to store up so much electricity, except keep the pan in the hot air furnace filled with water, or install a humidifier. This will cut down some of the static.

KING GEORGE PAYS TRIBUTE

British Monarch And Queen in Deep Mourning at Abbey Service

London, Feb. 22—An immense crowd gathered in the streets, bare headed, as King George and Queen Mary drove to Westminster Abbey today for an impressive memorial service for King Albert of the Belgians, being buried in Brussels.

The King and Queen, like the Duke and Duchess of York, wore deep mourning. The Prime Minister and many other members of the cabinet, foreign ambassadors and a host of other notables were present.

The King sat in the Dean of Westminster's stall and the Queen occupied the Archdeacon's stall. The Duke and Duchess of York were in two of the Canons' places.

Very Rev. W. Foxley Norris, Dean of Westminster, conducted the service and at the end the Archbishop of Canterbury pronounced the blessing.

Simultaneously a memorial service was held at St. Paul's attended by the Lord Mayor and sheriffs of the city of London, in state. A requiem Mass was also sung at St. George's Catholic Cathedral in Southwark. This is on the site of the chapel in which Belgians living in London were wont to worship.

Story of Assault by Police Disbelieved

London, Ont., Feb. 22 (CP) — Telling a sensational story that his head had been beaten against the wall by detectives and his arm bent back in order to force a confession following his arrest for attempting to break into a local warehouse, Robert B. Hunt, 17, Sarnia, failed to sway Magistrate T. W. Scandrett in city court today.

The Magistrate said the story of the prisoner was the worst he had ever heard and said it was the first time any such charge had ever been made against a London police officer. "I do not believe a word of it," he said with emphasis.

Sunfish and Perch Schools Move Line Fishermen's Catch is Lower

Transient fishermen whose tiny shacks have been doting the ice of the bay of Quinte during the winter months have in many cases turned to a more lucractive method of employment since the past week or so. The finny specimens for which they have been patiently angling through the ice have almost disappeared from their regular haunts lately, and no particular reason is given.

Tales were common a week or so age of line fishermen catching as many as twenty-five and thirty sun fish and perch an hour. Their bait was the summer stored fish worms, or even a small red ball of wool. The fish snapped eagerly. Now a good average catch is four and five an hour. The fish, visible through the green ice have been nosing the bait just in fun.

Contents of their stomachs reveals that they have gone vegetarian. They have evidently been feeding on the marine growths in the bottom of the bay, and scorning a meat diet. But this does not account for the reappearance of the large schools previously seen swimming under the ice. Theory is that a migration of larger fish has occurred from the lake to the inland waters and that the schools of perch and smaller fish have been serving as portable dinners for the larger tribe. But no large fish have been seen or caught.

Brantford City Bill to Control Finances Amended by Committee

MET MONARCH IN DARKNESS

Canadian Recalls Running Against King Albert in Trench

Kitchener, Ont., Feb. 22—(CP)—The death of Belgium's soldier King, has recalled an experience which the late Albert L. Schmuck, postmaster at Waterloo up to the time of his death, had met with King Albert during the Great War.

Schmuck, then a private, had just left the headquarters dugout and in hurrying around a corner in the trench collided heavily with a big sixfooter rushing in the opposite direction. The first glimpse in the semi-darkened trench did not reveal that the man was an officer of high rank and private Schmuck demanded rather gruffly, "why the hell don't you look where you are going." As he recovered he enquired more civilly as to where the other was going.

The tall officer apologized in French and then informed private Schmuck in English that he was carrying a special message to headquarters, and inquired how much farther he had to go. His genial attitude and the offer of a cigarette smoothed the ruffled Canadian private's feeling.

Returning to headquarters later Schmuck was told that he had missed a big thrill—King Albert of Belgium had just delivered a special message to the C. O. Descriptions followed and Schmuck soon learned that his victim in the trench collision was the King of the Belgians.

Council Control of Expenditures by Boards Refused

City Council of Brantford Will be Reduced by 16 to 11

TORONTO, Feb. 22—(CP)—City of Brantford's Bill, a clause of which would have given the Council control over all expenditures of municipal boards such as Board of Education, hospital and other bodies, was passed by Private Bills Committee of the Ontario Legislature, today, but not until drastic changes had been made in the measure.

The city's application for power to administer the finances of the Boards was turned down flatly, as was another clause which would have given council the right to place all insurance under the control and management of the Public Utilities Commission under the direction of Council.

After considerable argument, the city was granted the right to borrow sums not exceeding $50,000 each year for three years and to issue debentures for this sum. The municipality had asked for the right to borrow the money each year for twenty years. The money would be used for payment of maturing instalments of principal upon outstanding instalment debentures, or for "refunding".

Permission was given to reduce the City Council from 16 to 11 members and to establish a Public Utilities Commission. A by-law authorizing the issue of debentures for $29,712 for the construction of relief work was validated.

WED ACTRESS PRINCE'S PLAN

With or Without Royal Consent, Sigvard Will Marry

London, Feb. 22 (AP) — With or without royal consent, the wedding of Prince Sigvard of Sweden and Erika Patzek, pretty German actress will proceed as planned.

So far as is known today, the only guests expected at the simple wedding planned for March 8 are Erika's father, Anton Patzek, Berlin business man, and her mother. It is understood they will be married at the London Registry Office.

Both the Prince and Fraulein Patzek remained in seclusion after the Prince, son of Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf, had turned a deaf ear to Count Folke Bernadotte who flew to London to dissuade them from marrying.

Prince Sigvard, who, like his bride-to-be is connected with the U.F.A. Motion Picture Company in Berlin, was induced to talk briefly last night. He shied when the marriage was mentioned. A questioner was referred to his lawyer. Neither added anything to published reports.

It is known, however, that they plan to return to Berlin as soon as they have completed the 15 days residence required in the United Kingdom before notice of intention to marry may be given.

IS FOUND DEAD

Windsor, Ont., Feb. 22—(CP) — Body of Christopher Fletcher, District Administrator for the Department of Pensions and National Health, was found hanging from the head of his bed today. Coroner Dr. Hassard declared death had taken place some hours before and an inquest was not necessary.

"Y" PREPS ENJOY SLEIGHING RIDE

The "Y" Prep Group (boys ten and eleven year of age) had a glorious time on their annual sleighing party last evening. The weather conditions were ideal. The group assembled at the Y.M.C.A., travelled about the city and suburbs for a couple of hours, then returned to the Y where games, music and refreshments finished up a big night. Some thirty five boys were entertained and supervised by Messrs. Gather and Shortt of the "Y" staff.

WORK NIGHT AND DAY AT MILL

Little slackness is observed around the mill of the Trenton Cooperage on the Trent River these days, reports a resident of that section. The mill has been working day and night and the output during the past month or so has been in the neighborhood of 9000 barrel staves by the day shift, and 8000 by the night shift. Hundreds of farmers all through the section have found a ready market there for their elm staves and bolts which in previous years had been left uncut.

CHURCH MOURNS LATE MRS. CLEAVER

News of the death of Mrs. Solomon Cleaver, wife of Rev. Dr. Cleaver, former minister of Bridge Street Church, Belleville, reached here today. The board of the local church instructed the minister Rev. Dr. J. Semple and the secretary Mr. F. S. Deacon to forward a letter of condolence to Dr. Cleaver in his bereavement.

SLIGHT TIE-UP ON C. N. RAILWAY

Derailment of an express car on Train No. 19 in the north yards of the Canadian National Railways at Kingston this morning caused a slight delay on that line until emergency crews opened up traffic. A broken journal was given as the cause. The accident happened at 2.30 a.m.

NO WONDER HE WAS SILENT

It was very cold the other evening when a resident of North Front street went to bed. He placed his false teeth in a glass of water on the bureau, as usual. Next morning the water was frozen solid. Fearing a rapid thaw would damage the plate, he went to work without his teeth and breakfast. And throughout the day his associates at the office wondered why he was so unusually grim and taciturn.

Letters to The Editor

St. Andrew's Manse, 271 George St.,
Belleville, Ont., Feb. 21, 1934

Editor Ontario Intelligencer:

Dear Sir.—Could I through your paper express to the citizens of Belleville Stanley's and my deep appreciation of all their love and sympathy to us at this time.

We cannot express in words how we feel it all.

And to your paper for its very fine appreciation and splendid record.

"Dr." did give of his very best to his Master's work and we will ever treasure this memorial to him.

Yours very sincerely,
Elsie Seymour.

VOLLEY BALL

The Volleyball House League got away to a flying start at the Y.M.C.A. yesterday evening when all six teams which compose the league got into action. Unfortunately several of the teams did not have their full quota of players present, the opening set between Maroons and Purples being the worst off with only three players aside instead of the regulation six.

Maroons proved much too strong for the Purple combination winning all three games. The scores were 15-2, 15-3, 15-6.

Maroons—Wickerson, Munnings, Shortt, Purples, White, Neal, Bryant.

Eagles and Hawks staged a nice battle with the Eagles (R.C.A.F.) showing a better brand of ball than the Hawks. The former took the first game 15-9, the second 15-4 but dropped the third by the score of 16-14. Eagles, Smith, Burdes, Mitchell, Drolet, Gigere, Skuce. Hawks—Cole, Burley, Boyd, Blaker, Foster.

Swallows found the Golds tough opposition and although they fought back all the way, they were unable to break through for a win in any of the three games. The scores were 15-1, 15-5, 15-6. Golds—Brown, Hitchon, Houston, McFee, Davis, Shedden, Swallows, MacLean, Wease, Perry, Goodman, Edmondson.

SHAKES HAND

3 Held Trench Against Strong Counter Attack By Germans

A Belgian Croix de Guerre, coveted war decoration of the French and Belgian armies, gleams on the wall of a home at 44 Frank Street, this city, but its owner, Mr. Carl Kessler of that address, upon whose breast the medal was pinned by the late Albert, King of the Belgians, for valour, less than sixteen years ago, dismisses the matter with a shrug.

Now employed by the Citizen's Dairy Company as milk delivery man on a city route, Mr. Kessler sees no need of dragging forth a mere incident of the war in which he was engaged. After all he maintains, lots of soldiers were decorated for bravery. What's the use of talking about it?

"Yes, it's true that I have a Croix de Guerre. The late King Albert gave it to me. I don't know exactly what it was for. He pinned it on me back in Esquelbec, just below Ypres some time in 1918. He was a great guy."

Then the interviewer who sought the story came up against the brick wall of reticence.

But there was a story. After the methods and manipulation known to reporters, it was edged out in halting sentences, pieced together and assembled. There were many gaps. Soldiers soon forget.

Three steel helmeted, olive clad men, members of Company "K" United States 148th. Infantry, crouched in a small hastily scooped out machine gun pit on the Scheldt River front, Flanders, on a bleak October morning less than sixteen years ago, quivering under the terrifying impact of bursting shells which swooshed and crumped in vomiting clouds of smoke and razor edged pieces of steel mere yards away from their flimsy shelter. One of them, Carl Kessler, methodically fed a chattering machine gun with long belts of nickel nosed slugs whose deadly spray from the red hot barrel melted like a garden hose the screaming, shadowy mass of running, gray-coated figures who advanced in determined but hopeless fashion to the attack. In the dim half light of dawn their shapes loomed indistinctly, at intervals whole knots of them were enveloped in the rolling smoke clouds of screaming shells hurled at blank range from batteries placed wheel to wheel in the open.

Many Counter Attacks

It was a counter attack. One of the many counter attacks that characterized those dying days of the Great War when the Germans were relentlessly but stubbornly being driven from their holes in the honeycombed front to the open. To be pursued with machine gun and field battery from trench to trench until in their very desperation they counter attacked in surging waves to gain a brief respite and rest in the battered trenches and dead littered redoubts they had won back.

Three men, one the local resident, and two more buddies whose names have since been forgotten, stood in the way of this massed counter attack launched by the Germans on that morning. They had advanced these three, with their machine gun, above the main body of the company confident in belief that they had them on the run. They had chased up the retreating vanguard with short rapid bursts from the smoking gun. Then they consolidated in a hastily dug position for the night. Now they were fighting. It was early morning. Through the mist, which floated and hung above the tortured, shell-torn ground, bodies loomed. Rifles barked. Verey lights plopped and flared to cut the half light in a yellow flood. Whizbang batteries were living up to their name. Rapidly, savagely, in thumping salvos that tore and screamed and whanged in a lurid, blinking devastation of orange and crimson, the blazing barrage was laid down on the ground known to be full of American attackers. Coal boxes from back of beyond rumbled like express trains through the sky overhead, to bury themselves deep into the ground, and then explode with stunning concussion. Five-nines obliterated whole sections of trench with their shattering blasts. Rifles barked, chattering and deadly machine guns added to the din and inferno of noise and flying steel and screams and cries of dying men.

Fight for Lives

And in that shallow machine gun pit three men fought for their lives against a gray attacking horde. Their life depended upon putting up a fight. They alone stood in the way of that massed advance of attackers. They had been cut off from the main body of the company some hours before. Between them and the main force lay solid wedges and lines of grey clothed German infantry, fighting with the stolid cold fury of the Kaiser's bravest "strumtruppen." Only their hammering machine gun stood between them and certain death from a dripping bayonet or the quicker and neater slug from a crashing Mauser.

"So we just fought, that's all," stated Carl Kessler today when pressed for the story. "If we hadn't fought, well we wouldn't be here now. "We just sat there by Old Nellie and let them have it."

There were times that morning when three men had about given up hope. Those glittering bayonets held in the hands of the massed attackers wavered and pressed very close to that little gun pit at times, only to be driven back by the last few rounds in the belt. Then a new one was chased through the gun, and another burst would clear fresh lanes in the advancing men, letting little spaces of daylight thru' the ranks.

With dawn came help. With dawn also came further discouragement for war weary Germans whose ranks had been thinned and decimated by shell fire, by machine gun bullets and by the wasp-like drone of rifle bullets which killed as certainly as the largest piece of jagged shell casing. To counter attack further was useless. The gray figures melted into the thinning mist. The attack was over. Three grimy, mud splattered and tired men looked at each other and reached feelingly for "the makin's." Maybe they cursed and swore a little over the relief that was felt. Their number had not been called just yet.

Word Went Out of Bravery

Somehow it got around that three men with a machine gun had helped stem a raging tide of gray coated Germans that night—just might—have penetrated further than allied officers could imagine. Might just possibly take and hold valuable territory that would have cost many lives and much ammunition to recapture. There was talk in official channels of rewarding three doughboys, of giving them some little thing to remember the war by.

So about three months later in the little village square of Esquelbec, a whole United States infantry regiment was drawn up at attention. Of 180 men of "K" Company, however, only 33 men were left from that morning attack. But each button on each olive tunic gleamed with its satiny golden polish. Each pair of army service boots sparkled in its lustre of blacking. Each steel helmet was set at the exact angle. Three soldiers stood at rigid attention in front of the drawn up regiment.

A tall figure, moving along with the ease and bearing of a soldier, and wearing the insignia of the country's highest officer, accompanied by his sword jangling, gold-braided staff officers and aide de camps, approached the small group of three Yankee doughboys who stared straight ahead. From a plush lined box three glittering decorations were handed the tallest figure of the group. Albert, King of the Belgians, moved forward, confronted the first man, reached for a spot above the pay book pocket on the tunic and fastened thereto a shining medal.

"It gives me pleasure to offer this recognition of your gallant conduct. It is the least our country can do. I congratulate you," said His Majesty, simply, in perfect English as he affixed the pin to the cloth.

The King stepped back. A warm clasp pressed between soldier and king. A hand went up to a hat, in brisk, soldier-like fashion, and the kingly salute was answered by the soldier, who snapped his right hand to the steel brim of the war time helmet. The procedure was carried out twice more in that particular group. A cheer went up from the square of soldiers massed for the ceremony. A King had decorated just another Allied soldier who fought in the defence of his country.

Carl Kessler, born in this city, was in New York when the United States joined the Allies in the fight against the common foe. He immediately signed up in a newly recruited regiment and was despatched at once to a cantonment in Virginia. He was assigned to the 148th Infantry, and left Norfolk, Virginia, with the 37th. Division of Ohio. He served ten months in France with that unit and barring the minor wounds suffered by most soldiers who managed to get into the thick of things he returned to Canada and Belleville comparatively whole.

"But why all the fuss now?" he asks when the stubborn reporter attempts to probe into some of the highlights of a distinguished army career.

"The war's over. Sure I got a medal. But what's that?"

And there the story ends.

MRS. SOLOMON CLEAVER

A loving wife and mother and a loyal friend, Ida Anna Edgar, wife of Rev. Dr. Solomon Cleaver, 85 Glen Road, Toronto, passed away on the morning of Feb. 21. Mrs. Cleaver met with an accident about a year and a half ago, from which she never fully recovered, and a heart attack ended her useful life. Naturally modest and retiring, shunning every form of publicity, Mrs. Cleaver, nevertheless, was possessed of a vivid, sparkling personality, which endeared her to a host of friends. In her quiet, unobtrusive way she was continually doing good and was a great inspiration and help to her husband during his long career in the ministry. Besides her husband, Mrs. Cleaver leaves a son, Dr Ernest E. Cleaver and a daughter, Mrs. Harld M. Purser; a granddaughter, Mary Edgar Cleaver and two sisters, Mrs. W. H. Baker and Mrs. Sherlock Faircloth all of Toronto.

The late Mrs. Cleaver will be remembered with affection by many in this city where she formed many friendships when the Rev. (Dr.) Cleaver was pastor of the Bridge St. Methodist Church.

The funeral will be held privately from her late residence, Friday afternoon next.

EDWARD BURLEY

Picton, Feb. 22 (Special)—Edward Burley is dead at his home here, aged 77 years. He was born in Prince Edward County, but spent the greater part of his life in Alberta, where he was Provincial Auditor. He returned here five years ago. Surviving are his widow, two brothers, Oscar Burley of Picton and Harry Burley of Cressy, and a sister, Mrs. E. Bull of Bloomfield.

NELSON STORMS

A resident of this city nearly all his life, Nelson Storms a respected employee of the Canadian National Railway shops here, passed away this (Thursday) forenoon in the Belleville General Hospital, following a three-week's illness. The deceased was born in this province and had resided here practically the whole of his lifetime. The late Mr. Storms was a member of Emmanuel Church, and most popular with his fellow employees and throughout the community.

To mourn his loss remain a son, William of this city; two daughters, Mrs. Everett Stratton in Shannonville and Mrs. Walter Rose, with whom the deceased had lived at 180 Station Street, and a brother Thomas in Kingston.

Funeral notice will appear later.

LATE HAROLD GREEN

To tender their last tribute of respect to the memory of one who had been most popular in this city during his life here, many former friends were, Wednesday afternoon, in attendance at the funeral of the late Harold Green, the victim of a motor accident in Bakersville, California, on the 11th instant. The funeral was held from the home of his brother, Charles Green, 62 Octavia street, where the Rev. G. G. Wright, rector of Christ Church, assisted by the Rev. Robert Hall, pastor of the John Street United Church, conducted the service. The Rev. Mr. Wright also officiated at the committal in the vault of the Belleville cemetery.

The bearers were six members of the Belleville Fire Department, of which the deceased had been a member for three years during his residence in this city; assistant chief G. Vance, S. Pomeroy, C. Weaver, Frank Orr, S. McDonald and E. Clarke.

LATE GEORGE I. FRASER

With many former friends and neighbours in attendance the funeral of the late George I. Fraser was held Wednesday afternoon from his late residence, 233 West Moira St. The Rev. W. R. Merrick of the Cannifton United Church conducted the service at the home, and at the vault in the Belleville cemetery where entombment was made.

Acting as bearers were:—Messrs. Joseph Adams, Frank Daley, John Townsend, Nelson Kiser, Cecil Sinfield and William Flundel.

JOHN W. GAY

Suffering with heart trouble for sometime, John W. Gay of Mountain View, expired suddenly about 8.30 o'clock this (Thursday) morning in the yard of his residence, as he was preparing to go to the woods to carry on a day's work there. Discovery of his death was made by is niece, Miss Irene Gay.

Mr. Gay was born in West Huntingdon, 66 years ago, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gay, well known pioneers of the district. For some time he resided in Sidney Township, but for the past twenty years he had carried on the occupation of farming at Mountain View. He was a member of the Mountain View United Church.

To mourn his loss remain the widow; two sisters, Mrs. Byron Tripp of Trenton and Mrs. Wm. Simmons of Alberta; and one brother, George Gay residing in the Front of Sidney.

MRS. FRANK VANDERWATER

Following an illness of sometime's duration, Mrs. Emma Edna Vanderwater, beloved wife of Frank Vanderwater, passed away early this (Thursday) morning at her late residence in Moira. The daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Dennison Haight, the deceased, was born at Moira, 48 years ago and lived all her life in that community. A member of the Moira Standard Church, the late Mrs. Vanderwater had been an active member of that congregation. To the husband and family bereaved in her passing, the sympathy of many friends is extended.

Surviving immediately are the husband and daughter, Miss Lillian at home; two sons, Harold of this city and Gordon at home; one brother, Fred Haight of Thurlow township; and five sisters, Mrs. George Mitts in Toronto, Mrs. Geoge Clare at Thomasburg, Mrs. Walter Salisbury of Madoc, Mrs. Arthur Salisbury of Belleville and Mrs. Harry Vanderwater at Moira.

MRS. WILLIAM H. HOWARD

Taken suddenly ill, Mrs. Florence Jane Howard, widow of William Henry Howard, passed away Wednesday at her late residence, 25 Lime Street. Born in Tyendinaga township 53 years ago, the daughter of the late Jediah and Maria Walker, she had lived there and in Huntingdon township till nine years ago when she removed to this city to make her home here. Her husband predeceased 19 years ago. To the large family left to mourn her sudden death the sincerest sympathy of friends is extended.

Surviving are five sons, David and Robert of this city and William, Stafford and Charles at home; two daughters, Mrs. Charles Casselman of Belleville and Mrs. William Jay in Oshawa; four brothers, Frank Walker of Napanee; William in Western Canada; George at Thomasburg, and Norman Walker of Barrie's' Bay, and three sisters, Mrs. John Casselman at Bird's Creek; Mrs. George Hawn of Rome, N.Y., and Miss Annie Walker of New York City.

ALL ROADWAYS CLEARED, OPEN

Little Difficulty is Experienced in Travel

Roads are fairly clear and open all through the section, stated governmental hired snow plow men of the city when questioned today. Only on the less travelled concession roads where billows of snow have been piled by the wind is difficulty in travel being experienced, particularly by rural mail carriers. Horses are being used almost to the exclusion of automobiles all through the district this year, it is reported.

"Madoc road is open all the way, and little difficulty is being experienced," stated Mr. Stapely, proprietor of the Madoc-Belleville bus.

No. 7 Highway was reported clear after considerable work on the part of snow plows which have been constantly patrolling the stretch between Tweed and Sharbot Lake.

Traffic was constant on No. 2 Highway east and west of the city, with reports indicating that only near Prescott on the east had the going been heavy.

Peterboro to Kaladar is open, according to the latest report of the Ontario Motor League. It was added that from the Frontenac County line to Perth sections were impassable.

Kingston to Ottawa is open throughout.

Port Hope to Peterboro is in good condition.

Trenton to Stirling is in good condition.

Brighton to Campbellford has been plowed and road is now clear.

Gananoque to Seeley's Bay is impassable.

This district apparently led in the amount of snow received this week, according to a check of the various sections. Montreal was listed as receiving only 1-2 inch, Sault Ste. Marie, less than one inch, and Quebec, 4 inches. Average depth received in Belleville district was 5 inches.

POPULATION DECREASES

Toronto, Feb. 22 (CP)—A decrease in the estimated population of Toronto of 4,528, making it now 706,522, was reported today by a Toronto Directory Company. Greater Toronto, however, showed an increase o f199 to 143,037, it was estimated.

FATHER, SON SOCIAL HELD

Trail Rangers of Tabernacle Church Entertain Heads of Household

At the regular meeting of the Trail Rangers of the Tabernacle Church, the occasion was given over to a Father and Son social. The boys entertained their fathers with a splendid program after which refreshments were served by the mothers. The program was as follows:

Opening Prayer by Rev. I. B. Naylor; Business of Trail Ranger Group carried out by Chief Ranger H. McGuin; Chalk Talk by Mr. Chas. Greenleaf; Lantern Lecture, Mr. Grafton; Songs by Mr. Sid Hector, accompanied by Professor Morgan; Guitar and harmonica solos by Don Grass; Sing Song led by Mr. Hector; Games and fun for the boys by Mr. R. Edmondon; Hobby Show, Dick Henley; Prizes won by Gordon Williams and Douglas McBride.

Judges of hobbies were Mr. Hector Poste, Mr. Mifflin and Mr. McGuire.

The evening was enjoyed by everyone and words of appreciation were given by the fathers for the splendid work which is being carried out by the boys. The meeting closed with the Trail Ranger verse: "May God watch between me and thee while we are absent one from the other."

OBITUARY

HARRY D. MILLER

Funeral services for Harry D. Miller, 52, of 1415 East Patterson street, Alliance, Ohio, former member of City Council, were held at 2 p.m. Saturday at the Cassaday and Turkle Funeral Home, in charge of Rev. O. N. Church, former pastor of First Methodist Episcopal Church. Interment was made in the City Cemetery.

Miller passed away at 2 p.m. Wednesday at the City hospital. He had been ill since December 20, and complication of diseases was given as the cause of death.

Born at Washago, Ontario, Canada, he had lived here for 33 years. He was a general machinist foreman at the Morgan Engineering Company where he had been employed since coming here from Canada. He had been a council-man-at-large from 1922-25. He was a member of Alliance Lodge 567, B.P.O.E., and Alliance Camp 4536, Modern Woodmen of America.

Besides his widow, Detta Trail Miller, he is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Clara Miller Walshe of Toronto, Canada and Mrs. Laura A. Johnston, wife of Rev. H. B. Johnston of Belleville, Canada, and two brothers, Gordon, a court stenographer at Mercer, Pa., and William of Washago, Canada. His mother, Mrs. Julia White Miller preceded him in death last December, while a son, Harold, passed away in 1921.

EARL OF SUFFOLK TO MARRY DANCER

London, Feb. 21—The Earl of Suffolk, Charles Henry George Howard, plans to marry one of England's loveliest dancing girls, Mimi Crawford, it was announced today.

Miss Crawford, whose real name is Mimi Forde Pigott, danced before their Majesties in many London successes and started her stage career as a little girl in "Prinkie and the Fairies."

The Earl owns 10,000 acres at Wiltshire and has travelled the world over. He is 27 and it will be the first marriage for both.

SPRAINS SORE MUSCLES

Yield to NERVILINE

Those who have tested out numerous liniments will agree that where something is needed to dislodge a deep-seated, more or less chronic condition, nothing compares with Nerviline.

Try Nerviline for Stiffness

Miss B. Witherell, of 30 Bloor Street West, Toronto, points the way to health for many a poor sufferer. "I want to tell you," states Miss Witherell, "how I have benefitted by Nerviline. As I am an athlete, I suffer from sprains and muscular soreness of the limbs. I have found after an application of Nerviline upon retiring my limbs feel as good as new."—Miss B. Witherell.

THE ROYAL BANK OF CANADA

U. S. Immigration Officials Act in Spirit of Helpfulness

Instructions Issued by Commissioner MacCormack

GOODWILL OBJECT

Members of the Immigration and Naturalization Service in District No. 1 were told by United States Commissioner Daniel W. MacCormack that they must perform their duties efficiently but at the same time humanely and in a spirit of helpfulness, rather than persecution. This district comprises the Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Northern New York borders besides offices in Canada at Halifax, St. John, Quebec and Montreal. The Commissioner's message was read by H. R. Landis, District Director, at a conference of Immigrant Inspectors in Charge and Chief Patrol Inspectors in the District headquarters at Newport, Vermont. It was the first of a weekly series by experts covering the purposes and policies of the Immigration and Naturalization authorities in Washington.

"The following are some of the points which I would like to have all of you keep constantly in mind," Commissioner MacCormack's message said:

"1. We are a Service. That means that not only are we public servants in the ordinary sense of the word, but that our organization is assigned to serve and assist aliens coming to this country, or seeking American citizenship.

"2. Prosecutions are an inevitable incident of our work, but they must never degenerate into persecutions. We must always keep in mind the essentially judicial nature of our duties, our obligation to accord fair and impartial hearings and our responsibility for the development of all facts, both for and against, the interests of the Government and of the alien concerned.

"3. Courtesy and consideration are the least expensive and perhaps the most useful of the tools we must employ in our work.

"The immigrant inspector on line duty who greets the border crosser with a 'good morning and a smile' goes far toward eliminating the possibility of friction or resentment at the questions he must necessarily ask those coming before him. If he must turn him back or hold him for further questioning, he can soften the decision by prefacing his remarks with 'I'm sorry.'

"The boarding officer who greets the citizen or alien examinee courteously, couches his questions in polite phraseology, avoids a gruff, impersonal tone, and strives to use one that is friendly and encouraging, not only will complete his examinations more rapidly and with less friction but will make friends for himself, his service, and his country.

"Inspectors in final hearings should take steps to see that the alien is according an opportunity to be properly represented by a welfare agency, if necessary, as this does much to inspire confidence in the justice of our procedure. The presence of a representative of a welfare agency does not, of course, preclude the right of an alien to be represented by counsel, and in no instance should the inspector fail to advise the alien of such right.

"The naturalization examiner who is courteous, avoids any appearance of harshness, arbitrariness, or irritability, does much to dispel fear, expedite examination, and inspire confidence in the Service and in the Government.

"If, in our contact with the aliens who come before us, we constantly have in mind the necessity for courtesy, consideration and fairness, we may confidently expect a prompt recognition of this treatment on the part of the alien population and of those concerned with their welfare.

"We must bear constantly in mind that the port inspectors constitute the first contact of returning Americans and arriving aliens with the officials of our Government and that the treatment they accord those coming before them has reactions throughout our country and far beyond our shores. They can and should be not only 'guardians of the gate' but ambassadors of good will."

DESIGN STREAMLINE LOCOMOTIVE MODEL

Will Not Be Used or Built For Some Time

Ottawa, Feb. 21—(CP)—A new model for a streamline steam locomotive has been made at the National Research Laboratories. It has been so designed as to reduce the air resistance 35 percent and to lift the smoke from the stack clear of the cab. Particulars of the new locomotive were contained in report of the National Research Council tabled in the House of Commons.

Locomotives following the lines of the new model will probably not be built until such time as the Canadian National Railways or the Canadian Pacific require them.

SNOW PILED HIGH ON HIGHWAY NO. 7

The result of the heavy downfall of snow on Monday, the worst snowdrifts on the Corbyville-Foxboro circuit over which the government snow plow manned by S. Jackson and H. McCreary operates, were reported on Tuesday as being in the vicinity of Actinolite, where the drifts were said to be higher than the cab roof on the truck. The services of the plow were requisitioned during the early part of the week to clear sections of the Perth district. The worst snow banks in that section were reported in the vicinity of Sharbot Lake.

FROST DOWN OVER 5 FEET

Waterworks Department To Have Busy Time This Summer

The tugging and straining of miles of metal pipe in the city's great underground waterworks system network by the contraction of frost during the present season, one of the coldest on record, is expected to provide constant work next summer for departmental employees.

Hundreds of big and little leaks from the sprung joints will have to be traced and repaired, it is expected. Burst services will have to be dug up and lowered. Even sections of water mains, which have given trouble must be prepared for other winters, that may duplicate or better this season's unprecedented low temperatures.

Belleville, numbered this year among the coldest spots of the Province has been watched closely by outside municipalities. Careful note has been taken of the damage done various civic departments by the cold weather, that has not been experienced in other cities. Managers of waterworks departments have taken heed of the behaviour of the local system, and have profited by the lessons that have been so graphically and expensively driven home in Belleville. One of the main features, that has been observed is that pipes in future will be laid deeper when installed to baffle the frost that this year has penetrated in many sections in this city to a five foot depth.

16 TRUCKS USED TO CLEAR SNOW

With 50 Extra Men Streets About City Now Are Passable

Sixteen trucks and fifty extra men employed by the department of public works on the operation of snowfall, which blanketed the district on Monday to a six-inch depth were laid off at ten o'clock this morning by city foreman Jack Henderson following the clearing of the downtown section of the city. The large force of trucks and men had worked throughout the day Tuesday on the work of removing the high piles of snow banked at the sides of the streets downtown. Trucks were busily engaged in hauling their white loads to be dumped from the western embankment of the Moira River and on Victoria Park. An almost unbelievable tonnage of snow has been deposited at both locations.

Fourteen other extra men were still engaged in the outlying sections of the city on the removal of the snowbanked walks in front of city property.

This winter will go down in records of the department as the most expensive one in years. With each succeeding snowfall trucks and men and snow plows have been necessary, working overtime on the job of digging out a snowed in city. This week nearly all streets have already been cleared in the city by the snowplows and grader, and it is the intention of Foreman Henderson to continue the operation of the plowing the streets until all have been cleared. The total number of extra men employed this season may set an all time high.

BELIEVED DROWNED NOW SAFE IN SARNIA

Kitchener Girls Supposed to Have Dropped Through Ice

Kitchener, Ont., Feb. 21 (CP) — City police received a letter from a Sarnia resident today stating that Clara and Viola Wilson, the two Kitchener girls, who were feared to have been drowned in the St. Clair River on Feb. 10 are alive and living in Detroit.

The girls were at home of the writer on the day when two young women crashed through the river ice. Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Wilson of this city, the parents feared from descriptions of the two women that they were their daughters. The writer's name was not divulged by the police.

SAYS LETTERS FOUND OPEN

Former Postmaster General Complains To Probers

Washington, Feb. 21.— (AP)— United States Senate investigators offered today to join former Postmaster General Walter F. Brown, in an investigation of the latter's charge that three letters addressed to him in New York from Washington had been opened before they reached him.

Taking the stand in the air-mail inquiry for the third day in succession, Brown volunteered he wanted to correct any impression from his remarks yesterday that the investigating committee had any connection with the alleged mail tampering.

"I was a little tired or a little on edge yesterday after the hearing," Brown said.

"I haven't the slightest idea that you (Senator Hugo Black) or any other members of the committee had anything to do with it."

Chairman Black said he did not interpret Brown's remarks yesterday as indicating the committee was involved and added:

"So far as I'm concerned I'll be glad to join you in an investigation."

SHOVELLING SNOW

Those residents who neglected to take the shovel in hand or employ some one to handle a shovel on their walks, did ultimately have their walks cleaned. In some parts of the city snow left from the downfall at the first of the week on walks uncleaned after other storms created a real nuisance.

Fortunately there is a power which can and does act—the public works department. Armed with shovels a brigade of men went to work the other day and cleared walks which had lain buried under a number of falls of snow. Today the walks are passable.

The only fly in the ointment as far as the properties are concerned is that the owners will pay the cost of the work.

They might have not been prepared to clear the walks but they could at least have employed men or boys to do the work. Ultimately their delay did mean jobs for the unemployed, numbers of whom are now engaged on city operations of this kind.

Residents take pride in having their walks clear because it is essential to walking. It is only fair that if one person clears a walk, others should do the same. No one wants to see residents forced to pay for the clearing of their sidewalks but what can the public works department do with others claiming the right to cleared walks and the duty of carrying out the resolutions facing them?

By clearing walks it is possible to avoid these unpleasantnesses.

A GOOD KING

The Belgian people gave to the world a monarch who had all the qualifications of a modern ruler of the finest stamp with the finest qualities of the greatest rulers of the ancient world. There was in him a lack of those characteristics which blur and blot the lives of some great figures in the ancient and recent past—his life was clean and rugged; he balanced the physical and the intellectual and spiritual, he was the model leader of his people and yet was one of the finest individuals it has been the privilege of the modern world to look upon. He was the product of ripe experience and knowledge and a natural life with no false ideals of overweening and oppressive power.

Take him for all in all, King Albert was one of the finest types the modern world could give history.

There have been kings with no such ideals, there have been kings who through some freak of circumstance or a weakness in their natures have won for themselves misunderstanding, but Albert, the open-hearted, was not misunderstood. He was such a natural figure.

It is no wonder that Belgium grieves along with the civilized world at the untimely passing of a hero-monarch, who had not thrust his fist into international politics of late, but was exerting an influence of the greatest importance in preserving calm in his own country along with the maintenance of progress.

It may be that Albert will become in the course of time a sort of myth for it is about such heroic figures that stories, true and legendary, gather.

RADIO'S ACHIEVEMENTS

The Radio Commission's operations are to be investigated by a committee of the House of Commons.

At one time because of lack of understanding or appreciation of the difficulties facing the commission at the inception of nationalization there was considerable criticism but little of this is heard nowadays as the commission is providing the best fare of all kinds. Canadian programs of the best class are being taken up by U.S. stations and the finest of U.S. programs including such programs as those of grand opera, sung at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York are being provided Canadians free of charge out of the million dollars which government voted the Commission from the million and a half of licence fees. Ottawa Journal, a one-time opponent of the commission, is now a staunch adherent of national broadcasting and has expressed the view that the Canadian Commission should have all the licence fees, namely about a million and a half dollars.

The Commission has barely got into its stride and it indicates a much brighter future.

All classes are satisfied. The lovers of dance music, of all sorts of humor, and the best in speech, address, and public entertainment, in classical music, and in religious services which do not break the heart of the commission by attacks on other faiths—these are some of the fine things the commission has to offer.

One has but to realize the immense labor in handling the commission to understand what an achievement has been made in broadcasting under national auspices.

CABEZA DE VACA

Of lands unknown and scarcely to be drawn
By fancy's pen. A hostile world and grim
In spite of lonely loveliness of dawn
Across wide, foam-flecked beaches where the sea
Could smile like heaven or in mad fury sweep
Upon the dreaming coast's tranquility
And drag destruction's harvest to the deep.

Cabeza and his valiant three alone
Were left of all the happy, eager scores
That had set out on chartless seas unknown
To seek a fabulous New World's golden shores.
The others? Death in many a strange disguise
With sudden hand had veiled their startled eyes.

TOMORROW'S TRAIN is the latest in modern rail traffic. It is a creation of the experts of the Union Pacific Railroad, and made its trial trip from Chicago to Washington. Called "Tomorrow's Train," the entire train is stream-lined, driven by electricity, created by its own oil engine, is designed to deliver a maximum speed of 110 miles an hour and a cruising speed of ninety miles per hour. Three larger trains of the same kind have been ordered to run between Chicago and the West Coast with the aim of clipping twenty to twenty-four hours off the present fifty-six hour schedule. The skill of the designer in creating engine and cars to give the least possible air resistance has resulted in an appearance altogether unlike present railway passenger trains, a rather startling effect, which will take the public some time to get used to. This is just another bid for the favor of the great god Speed, so many people seem to be going somewhere in the greatest possible hurry, and so few people cultivating that leisurely life which gives plenty of time for sober thought and calm consideration of things worth while. If folks were suddenly catapulted back to stage coach days would they fret themselves to death at the slowness of everything? or would they just naturally heave a great sigh of relief and begin to give their overwrought nerves a nice long rest.

SO MANY PEOPLE have bid goodbye to the devil for forty days that the old fellow must be feeling lonesome. He will be busier than ever finding things for idle hands to do—SO, let's keep ours busy.

COAL DEALERS AND ICE MEN report a very healthy revival in their business with the return of prosperity all the way. Demand heavy and no cutting of prices. Most folks will use nearly double the amount of fuel this winter they are accustomed to on account of the severity of the weather and the extreme length of the winter. The ice men were able to harvest the finest quality in years, of extreme thickness and cutting started early and continued without interruption until all the ice that could be cared for was cut.

PROPHETS ARE NOT WITHOUT HONOR save in their own country, but those weather prophets who prophesied a mild open winter have followed the ground hogs into their hibernating holes and quit the prophet business for good—their own good and everybody else's good.

The young married woman was sitting at her writing desk. There was a pen in her hand and a piece of paper was stretched out before her. She looked worried.

"Let me see," she murmured. "I want the bedroom walls papered, and I must have new electric lights in the lower rooms. The dining room wants painting. The bathroom will want re-tiling, and I'd like oak panelling in the hall."

"To whom are you writing?" asked her husband.

"To the landlord, of course."

"Oh! I thought perhaps you were sending a note to Santa Claus!"

Mr. Wm. Hudson, Jr., left today for Montreal, where he has obtained a position in the G.T.R. offices.

To-day is the anniversary of the birth of George Washington.

The freight department of the G.T.R. here seems to be a favorite place from which to draw reliable men for promotion. Within a short period Mr. S. A. Larke has been appointed agent at Trenton; Mr. Purdy agent at Oshawa; Mr. Ryan cashier of the freight department Port Hope and now Mr. Cole Hambly has been appointed agent at Napanee. The business men and the carters of freight will regret Mr. Hambly's removal as he has been an obliging and popular official.

Mr. Joseph Lamarche while engaged in cleaning snow from a roof near the Albion Hotel on Front street this morning, fell thirty feet to the ground and escaped uninjured.

Little Benny's Note Book

Me and pop was taking a wawk before supper, and I said, G, pop, that's the life, I bet he's a millionair.

Meening some man leening back smoking a long cigar in a grate big red automobeel as big as a locomotive with a chauffer in a uniform driving it, and pop said, He may be a millionair, but that's not the life. It's a vulgar display of wealth and the man whom you are envying is proberly suffering at this very moment from an unenviable attack of indigestion brawt on by lack of exercise and the acidity caused by the action of self sattisfaction on the digestive tracks. Did you get a good look at his face? pop said.

No sir, I said, and pop said, Neither did I, but I'm reasonably certain it didn't express true happiness, because grate riches ony bring happiness in proportion as they are used for the happiness of others, for relieving the unfortunate, for instants, and spredding nollege and isolating the germs of the poor so they can be recognized and shot at site.

And we kept on wawking, me saying, Well G, pop, do you meen I'd have more fun with this cent you gave me if I didn't spend it and dropped it in that man's hat instead?

Meening a one leg begger man sitting on the pavement against the wall, and pop said, You would have a rich glow of honest righteousness, wich is the way the angels are commonly sippose to have fun.

Then I bleeve I'll do it, pop, I said and pop said, I'll wait for you with pleasure.

Wich just then 3 ladies in a row each dropped money in the man's hat, me saying, Well gosh, pop, it's no use making him too rich or he mite not understand how to enjoy his money by helping others, he mite get like the man in the big red car.

And I put the cent back in my pockit and we kept on going, pop saying, Fillosophy, thou art often the handiest of excuses.

HOMES GUARDED AGAINST GUNMAN

Residents of Carrying Place Stirred up Over Night Visits of Stranger

Picton, Feb. 22. — Residents of Carrying Place are keeping their homes locked at night, as some unknown man with a revolver haunts the neighborhood. At two o'clock in the morning, a knock at his door aroused Harry McCredden. He asked who was there and, receiving no reply, secured his revolver. Opening the door, a man's voice ordered, "Open up, or I'll shoot." Mr. McCredden returned in kind, "I'll shoot first," and the intruder who could not be plainly seen in the darkness, made a hurried getaway. Dennis Brooks, another resident, reported a knock on his door late at night, which he did not answer; and R. Ellis reported that about 8.30 o'clock the same evening a man of medium height, came to his door and asked if he could come in and get warm. He acted queerly, stated Mr. Ellis.

CENTRAL BANK BILL READY

Hon. E. N. Rhodes Will Introduce Measure Today

OTTAWA, Feb. 22.—(CP)— The first step toward the enactment of the major piece of Legislation of the present session will be taken in parliament today when Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance, introduces a resolution providing for the establishment of a Central Bank.

Lengthy debate will take place before the Bill which will follow the resolution will pass. Although all parties in the House of Commons are committed to the establishment of a Central Bank there are differences of opinion as to its form. If the Government's Bill follows the recommendations of the Royal Commission on banking that the Central Institution be privately owned, this feature will be sharply attacked by proponents of a publicly-owned bank.

There will also be a dispute as to who is to get credit for the measure. The Liberals will claim it was part of their platform before the government took any action and the progressives will claim it is an endorsation of policies they have advocated for years.

Debate Insurance

Yesterday the House of Commons debated Unemployment Insurance. Private members on all sides of the House united in agreeing unemployment insurance was a desirable thing for Canada and the sooner it was brought into effect the better.

The question was raised in a resolution from A. W. Neill, (Ind. Comox-Alberni), who claimed the matter had been discussed, investigated and studied long enough. Now was the time for action he said. He claimed Premier R. B. Bennett had promised legislation would be presented before the dissolution of the present parliament and predicted this would be the last session of the present house.

The resolution now goes to the bottom of the list of private members' motions and may not be reached again until late in the session.

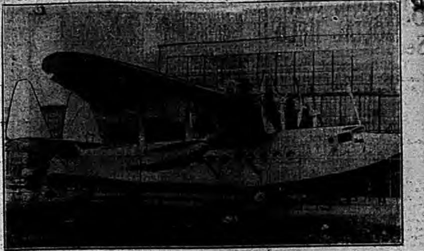
GIANT AEROPLANE FOR TRANS-ATLANTIC MAIL SERVICE



This gigantic flying boat, the largest in the United States, will some day soon, fly over the Atlantic ocean with the first passenger and airmail service. It is the Sikorsky S-42, now practically completed amid the greatest of secrecy in Stratford, Conn. It was only through extreme patience that the photographer was able to snap this exclusive picture. The huge flying boat can carry 32 passengers and 1,000 pounds of mail over a 2,500 mile range. Its first test will take place within 30 days at the Sikorsky plant.

Teams Ordered to Play Another Round, First Game Here Friday

SINFIELD HURT

Locals Should Have Scored Goal in Last Frame

Showing a complete reversal of form the Belleville juniors dropped the second inter-sectional play-off game for the group honors of junior O.H.A. group No. 1, to the speedy Queens kids by the score of 5 to 0 at the Jock Harty Arena in Kingston last evening. But a hand full of fans saw the "students" outplay the locals for the first two periods and create a tie in group play-offs, necessitating home and home games being again played, [illegible] goals to count, between these [illegible] fighting junior clubs on Friday and Monday nights, with the first game being played in Belleville on Friday night. The decision in the matter was handed down by the O.H.A. at the termination of last night's tussle after manager Thomas had strenuously objected to playing overtime at the suggestion of the Queen's management.

Presenting but a mere shadow of their Monday night's performance the local juniors literally wilted before the ferocious onslaught by the giant Queen's players during the first two periods. The Thomas-led club returned to form and redeemed themselves in the final stanza to all but eke out a last minute victory when they repeatedly carried the play into the Queen's territory and bombarded Marshall, but without the much needed result of goals being registered in their favour. Cy Barriage diminitive local centre, was the only cub to perform up to his average standard, although Greer went well on the defence. Freddie McGuire along the left boards, was a marked man and completely smothered all evening. Taken as a team, however, the locals were far below form during the first 40 minutes but, much is expected of them on Friday night.

Combining speed with their excess weight, the hefty Queen's juniors threw their all into the fray from the out-start and carried the play repeatedly to the Cubs. Mar[illegible] turned in a good game in the [illegible] and was given excellent support by his three defencemen. Avery led the forwards with Davis carrying plenty of speed and tricky hockey throughout. Lewis and McGinnis looked the best of the alternates. The game was quite clean with but three minor penalties being handed out by Referee Deniord, who handled an impartial game.

THE PLAY

Queens opened purely on the offensive, while the locals seemed lost on the strange ice. The game had but nicely started when Avery lifted a long easy hoist, that dribbled past Sinfield. Fired by their advantage the "students" were all over the locals. Sinfield was hit in the eye with a flying puck and later clipped over the head with a rival's stick to give him two serious injuries. After a scramble about the local goal McGinnis batted in Davis' pass-out. Barriage was in for a shot but hit the pads. Avery stickhandled his way through the locals to make the count 3 to 0 at the end of the initial frame.

The homesters again assumed the offensive in the second period and were much superior to the Cubs. Gibson on a one rush and Davis from Avery scored for Queens this period to knot the score. The Elmer-coached team finished the canto by applying the pressure. The final stanza saw the "red and white" return to form and [illegible]day the Queen's kids repeatedly, especially as the period progressed. The locals finished by repeatedly carrying the play but seemingly could not get into scoring position.

With goals to count on the next round, that will be considered an O.H.A. play-down, both clubs will be travelling at top form on Friday night, when they meet at the Belleville Arena.

The line-ups:

Belleville—Goal, Sinfield; defence, Greer and McElrath; centre, Barriage; wings, McGuire and Harvey, subs, Lee, Ridley, Semark and Hammett.

TWEED LADIES WIN GAME 2-1

Crowd Enjoys Sparkling Game Given by Girl Athletes

Madoc, Feb. 22 (Special)—On Tuesday evening the Tweed Ladies' Hockey Team defeated the Madocers at the local arena by a score of 2-1. Gathering a two goal lead early in the first period, they withstood the Madoc attack until 18 minutes of the third period was over when the homesters scored on a nice play by Nickle and Ross. Inability to score was due to poor shooting. Neither team were able to work themselves into a good scoring position. Ross, Nickle and Hanna were the pick of Madoc while Graeme, Cross, Rashotte and A. Thompson the goalie were the best for Tweed. Referee Alan Ross handled the game well handing out 7 penalties, 5 to Tweed had 2 to Madoc.

The score: first period, Tweed, V. Cross; Tweed, F. Wilson. Second period—No score. Third period, Madoc, Ross (Nickle). Final score Tweed 2; Madoc 1.

Line-ups:

Tweed—A. Thompson, goal, F. Graeme and E. Terry, defence, V. Cross, centre, F. Wilson and J. Sherry, wings. Subs. P. Rashotte, R. Long, E. Long and L. McConachie.

Madoc—A. Armstrong, goal, E. Keller and H. Nayler, defence, L. Ross, centre, M. Hamm and J. Nickle, wings, Subs. P. Stockloser, R. Walker, A. Ellis and D. Keller.

CHECKERS

Get out that checker board and start practising. Brush up on the rule book and be prepared. Belleville will play host on March 12 and 13 to scores of real dyed-in-the-wool checker players who will meet in the Y.M.C.A. on the above named dates for the purpose of staging a checker tournament for the Eastern Ontario Checker Championship.

Encouraged by the success of the meet held by the checked players in this city last spring, Belleville has again been chosen as the scene of the tournament. The match had originally been scheduled for Picton but it was decided that this city had more advantages and better facilities for the deep thinking players. The district from which representatives will attend is comprised of Prince Edward, Hastings Peterborough, Renfrew, Northumberland, Lennox and Addington and all other counties to the Quebec border on the east. The players will be divided into two classes A. and B.

The trophy for the Eastern Ontario championship has been donated by H. S. Colliver M.P.P. of Picton, and will be competed for annually.

So, resurrect the pipe and checkers. Dust off the "welcome" mat. And be prepared. It's your move.

CURRENT SPORT

(Day By Day)

Whether it was stage fright or the local juniors assumed assured victory will never be known but one thing is certain, they failed to impress during the first two periods last night and therein lies the answer to their defeat. The kids, facing elimination, returned to form and out-played their Queen's rivals in the final stanza to all but pull the game out of the fire.

Considerable controversy relating to the question of continuing the game after the regular sixty minutes was completed, ensued with Manager Thomas strenuously objecting, as the game was a group play-off and not an O.H.A. play-down. After communicating with Assistant Secretary Bill Tackaberry in Toronto the clubs were informed that two more games would be played with goals to count on the round. The first play-off game is scheduled to be played in Belleville on Friday night next with the return game in Kingston the following Monday. Last night's exhibition should bring the locals down to earth and teach them the folly of assuming victory.

According to information from Kingston Cy Barriage was the only local to display usual form. The Queen's hefties took care of Freddie McGuire and gave Sinfield the well known going over. The interest in junior hockey seems to be on the upward trend just at present as can be shown by the number of telephone calls received at Thomas' cigar store last night. Between the hours of 9.30 and 12.00 p.m. over 250 persons called in to ascertain the result of the game.

When the teams hook up here in Belleville again on Friday night the largest crowd of the season should be on hand to witness the struggle. Those who saw Monday night's game agreed that it was the best game of junior hockey seen locally in many years. Friday night's tilt should be even better. Manager Thomas informs us that his charges should have come home with a win, especially as they were much the better in the last stanza. Let's hope they continue Friday in that capacity.

Already there is a steady stimulation towards rejuvenated interest in amateur baseball circles in Toronto, especially after the suggestion that "commercialised" baseball would follow the recent move in similar directions of the hockey authorities. Amateur baseball moguls in the Queen city seem to think that the innovation of "commercialised" baseball will prove the salvation of their minor league series, which incidentally was all but "washed up" after a rather meager season last summer. Commercialized sport may be alright and it may do its part towards the stimulation of the various sporting activities that today seem to be on the decline, but it is false interest and will not last. The self-same calibre of sport rose to heights some years ago in Ontario but did not have the lasting qualities it boasted of. When a large manufacturing concern fully realises the initial cost of operating a baseball o hockey team, especially in the smaller circles, we will soon find the old standbys back at the helm of our amateur sport in the province. In the meantime this rejuvenated commercial sport may tide the present situation over.

According to a recent O.H.A. bulletin Young Rangers, Windsor Wanderers, Stratford and the winner of the St. Michael's-Oshawa series have been named by the O.H.A. as junior A clubs, and will battle it out for the championship and the right to enter the Canadian play-downs. In the semi-finals for the O.H.A. junior A title Stratford will play Windsor and Young Rangers will take on either St. Mike's or Oshawa. The other junior teams still in the running will play down for the junior B cup. Undoubtedly the club winning the B series will consider they have a legitimate right to enter the Dominion play-downs as well as their class A brethren, and rightly so. The least the O.H.A. could have done was to have given the winners of class B the opportunity to elect whether they desired to meet the winners of class A, in a post-season series to determine the junior championship of the province, or not. Naturally if a club from a small town in Ontario won the B honors and were called upon to meet, say the fast St. Michael's club, they would naturally think twice before taking any action.

The present system now in vogue does not give the clubs in the smaller centres an opportunity to compete for the Dominion championship, whether they so desire or not. For instance no later than last season the small village of Newmarket produced, or perhaps we should have said, provided for, the best junior team in the country. As the situation now stands the class "A" series looks very much like an invitation affair. The winner of the junior O.H.A. title from now on will be clubs selected solely by the association. The least the executive of the parent body could have done was to have given the class "B" champions the right to elect whether they wished to compete further in the Dominion play-downs, by playing the class "A" winners, or not. On the surface it looks like a closed affair throughout. Despite the fact a junior club may desire to play in the class "A" series they apparently have no say in the matter whatsoever. On the surface it just does not seem to give the smaller clubs an even break.

Providing local sport lovers desire action this evening they will have to go far afield for their entertainment. Up at the Trenton airport there are ten well-matched bouts being presented while out in Campbellford the Maroons and the Queen's intermediates hook-up in the second and final game of their play-off. Incidentally the outstanding player of the game on Monday night, so far as Kingston fans were concerned, was none other than Earl McDonald, a local product. A goodly number of local hockey lovers voiced their opinion as attending tonight's game in Campbellford.

For the boxing card at the airport the main go has all the markings of a real scrap as both mitisters, Howard Cole of Trenton and his opponent, Joe Wright of Kingston, are reputed to be sluggers. The return match between George Smith of Campbellford and Joe Vido of Kingston should set the fans agog as these two lads staged a real slugfest at the airport recently. The bouts will be held in a heated hangar so there's no fear of freezing your nose.

COLDWATER IS WINNER OVER MIDLAND TEAM

Win Protest And Also Sudden Death Contest by 6-5,

OTHER PLAYOFFS

O.H.A. Progressing Slowly to Championships in All Series

(By the Canadian Press)

The annual scramble among the intermediate and junior teams of the Ontario Hockey Association appeared today with the youngsters battling their way through group playoffs, spurred on by hopes of winning Dominion crowns before the wars of the ice end.

The sudden death battle in the intermediate Coldwater-Midland playoff, ordered by the O.H.A. Executive after Ted Beatty, Midland goaler had lost his certificate under the residence rule, brought a 6-5 overtime victory to Coldwater. It was Coldwater's protest, that ended Beatty's career with Midland.

Coldwater now entertains Gravenhurst as the next step in their drive to the championship circle.

In another intermediate tussle London East went through a hectic 60 minutes with Point Edward before winning out 4-2 and captured the round 5-3. The first game at Watford ended in a 1-1 tie and during last night's final period the Points threatened to repeat the deadlock when they flipped in two goals and threatened the London net on numerous occasions. The team London will meet next will be decided shortly by the O.H.A. heads.

New Hamburg Wins

New Hamburg intermediate earned the right to represent Waterloo County in the O.H.A. series, when they defeated Preston 4-2 last night and captured the round 8-5. Aurora intermediate emerged victors of their group in an upset that featured the night's games throughout the province. Beaten at Whitby 6-3 Aurora upset predictions, overcame the three-goal lead by beating Whitby 6-2 and took the round 9-8.

Warpy Tennant, powerful left-winger of Owen Sound, gave his team a one-goal lead to take into the second game of the play-offs with Listowel intermediates Friday night. At Owen Sound the home team last night trounced Listowel 3-2 after being on the wrong side of a 2-0 count, when the second period started.

In the middle frame Owen Sound tied the issue and in the third session Tennant's tally appeared to carry Owen Sound out on top.

Four Junior playoffs were staged with St. Michael's whipping Oshawa 10-4 at Toronto, winning the round in the best two out of three series. The first battle ended 8-2 in St. Mike's favor. Stratford Midgets accounted for the Kitchener-Waterloo aggregation 6-5, grabbing group twelve honors on a 11-9 round score and capturing the right to face Windsor Wanderers in the next elimination event.

Queen's and Belleville Juniors will have to play another home and home series. Last night Queen's walloped the Belleville boys 5-0, the same score Belleville used to beat the students in the first play-off game.

PRE-GAME PREDICTIONS

(By A. E. Fulford, Canadian Press Staff Writer).

Other teams may be a bit hesitant about qualifying to meet Toronto's high scoring Maple Leafs for the National Hockey League title but Detroit Red Wings are headed for the unenviable task and don't seem to care.

Although Jack Adams' Wings still have nine games to play they are being generally accepted as likely United States division winners and opponents for the Torontonians. True, Chicago Black Hawks trail them by only four points and New York Rangers by five but you can get odds they won't catch up.

Lester Patrick and Tommy Gorman would be quickly to deny either the Rangers or Hawks are stalling to escape the five-game league title series and are saving themselves for the Stanley Cup playoffs. In fact, Patrick did deny the accusation last year when it was said the New Yorkers were exerting themselves in the wrong direction so Boston could have first place and be knocked off by Toronto.

But even if managers are trying for the league title players cannot be blamed for observing the jinx, that has fixed itself to N.H.L. champions in the last two seasons. In 1932 Rangers won the title and lost the Stanley Cup to Toronto. Last year the situation was reversed with Toronto taking the league crown and Rangers the cup and world title.

Further light may be thrown on efforts of the United States division on teams to come out on top, when Detroit play Patrick's team at Madison Square Garden and Hawks meet New York Americans at Chicago.

Canadiens and Maroons clash at Montreal in a game that will decide the city championship and possession of the Kennedy Cup, a memorial to George Kennedy, onetime owner of Canadiens. So far each team has won two games and one has been tied. In goals, Canadiens have the edge with 13 to 11.

The Gerardmen are still leading Canadiens by three points and as Americans are sniping for a play-off berth from a position one point behind the Habitants the latter must win tonight to be sure of staying in the first three.

In the fourth game tonight Ottawa play at Boston.

MAX CAREY IS GIVEN GATE

Relieved as Manager of Brooklyn Dodgers by General Manager

New York, Feb. 22 (AP)— Max Carey today was relieved as manager of Brooklyn Dodgers. No successor has been appointed but Casey Stengel, Dodger coach, has been called to New York from California to be offered the job.

The announcement that Carey was being paid off on his one-year contract came from Bob Quinn, general manager of the baseball club, who is ill in a mid-town hospital.

Quinn, propped up in bed and with a nurse in attendance, said that Stephen W. McKeever, Dodgers President, had wired Carey that his services were no longer needed and that the club would pay him the full amount of his contract, believed to be for $12,000.

Eldorado—The Band of Hope Mission Band of Eldorado United Church met at the home of the leader, Miss Annie Holmes on Saturday, February 17th, with an attendance of 28 members and 5 visitors. The meeting came to order with quiet music played by the organist, Mrs. Albert Harvey, and the president, Miss Bernice McCann using the usual worship quotations. Prayer was led by Bernice McCann. Miss Reta McCann read the Bible lesson, I. Kings 17: 8-16, followed with Friendship Prayer led by the leader with response in unison. The Bible story "The Last Loaf of Bread" was given by Annie Holmes, and a song by Harry Whyte, "God Sees the Little Sparrow Fall." A reading entitled "A Wonderful Chance" was read by Bernice McCann, after which a letter from a boy in China, "Stephen Jones" Chungking, and a letter from "Phil Sun Park," Korea, were broadcast, Miss Margaret Robbins announcer, and was followed by a reading "Our Heroes," by Grenfell Trumpour. The Watch Tower was then given, China, by Reta McCann; Africa by Merton Wright; Temperance by Jean Trumpour, and Stewardship by Verna McCann. A song was then given by Clayton McCann and Harry Whyte entitled "Little Billy Bushy Tail." The Study Book story, "The Honorable Family of Wang" was given by Mrs. Albert Harvey which was very much enjoyed by all, and was followed with a song by Ruth Andrews, "Jesus Calls Me." After the usual business and reading of the minutes by the secretary the meeting was brought to a close with prayer by A. Holmes after which a short time was spent in Valentine games and stunts, also a Valentine post office, each member receiving a Valentine. A dainty lunch brought this part of the meeting to a close and sent all home happy.

HERO MONARCH

in the funeral procession.

Prince Leopold, Prince Charles and Prince Umberto of Italy, as the brother-in-law of the future king, led those who formed the solemn line of march behind the gun carriage.

Next followed the Prince of Wales; President Albert Lebrun of France; King Boris III. of Bulgaria; King Christian of Denmark; King Prajadhipok of Siam; Crown Prince Gustav Adolf, heir to the Swedish throne; Crown Prince Olaf of Norway; Prince Consort Henry of Holland; Prince Consort Felix of Luxemburg; Prince Nicholas of Rumania and Prince Carl of Sweden, father of Crown Princess Astrid.

Directly behind these kings and princes came the foreign diplomats, the provincial governors and representatives of learned societies and other civilian bodies.

At St. Gudule

Amid a salvo of 101 guns, the tolling of hundreds of bells and the clatter of escorting cavalry, the coffin was brought up the narrow winding streets on the caisson to the main entrance of the massive Gothic Cathedral.

The three front gates as well as side entrances to the great edifice were draped in black and silver with the King's coat of arms emblazoned upon each.

A dense crowd 200 yards deep was jammed behind wooden barriers and on balconies and windows en route to each entrance to the cathedral.

Waiting at the entrance at the nave of the cathedral, the Archbishop of Malines with the Papal Nuncio preceded the coffin to the high catafalque draped with the national colors.

Prince on Father's Seat

In the upper choir, to the right and left, were the thrones of the Royal family. Here for the first time, the Prince who is to become King Leopold III. tomorrow took the seat of his father.

Close to the throne were grouped foreign kings and princes. The famous choir of Malines sang the Pontifical Mass. After the benediction the National Anthem was played by the band of the First Grenadiers.

When the services were ended, the coffin was conveyed back to the entrance gates, the procession moved slowly over the two mile route for the private burial at Laeken, passing in front of the tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

Princes and kings who followed the body on foot to the cathedral rode to Laeken in carriages.

Groups of veterans, many in worn and faded uniforms, some sobbing, stood with heads bowed along both sides of the streets to the site of the royal castle.

In front of the little church at Laeken, foreign military detachments paraded, followed by Belgian soldiers with flags flying and bands playing.

Burial in Crypt

There was a last benediction in the family crypt.

Schools, shops and places of business generally were closed as Belgium paid its last tribute to her king.

With the Prince of Wales were Field Marshal Lord Allenby and Admiral Sir Roger Keyes of war renown.

Dr. Friedrich von Kaller, former German minister at Brussels, represented Germany.

Ignatz Paderewski, ex-Premier of the Polish Republic and famous pianist, headed the delegation from Poland.

Crowding at Funeral

Brussels, Feb. 22—(AP)—Thousands of mourners smashed police lines and surged about the palace today as the funeral procession of Albert I, King of the Belgians, formed in the crowd-lined streets.

The cordon was broken directly in front of the palace in which lay the body of the King.

Hundreds, who had beaten, like waves again and again against the human barrier, flocked into the gardens fronting the palace courtyard.

For a time confusion reigned. It was several minutes before order was restored.

Early in the morning, 12 Grenadiers sadly bore the body to a flag-draped catafalque in the palace courtyard, prior to the beginning of a march in which 30,000 and 40,000 war veterans passed in review.

Thousands Sink to Knees

Thousands of onlookers in packed masses of humanity sank slowly to their knees, when the coffin was borne from the palace. The air was sweet with the fragrance of freshly cut lilac blooms—Queen Elizabeth's favorite.

The royal bier in place, the veterans began their march. They carried not only the Belgian colors, but the Union Jack of the British Empire, the French and Italian Tricolors and the Stars and Stripes of the United States.

Silently, the hush broken only by the sound of a multitude of feet, the veterans marched past the bier, row upon row, thousands upon thousands, in unbroken ranks.

ODD JOBS ARE FEW IN CITY, ON FARM

Furnaces and Ashes Jobs Most Plentiful Today

Calls for odd job men at the office of the Central Relief Bureau in this city have been few and far between this year, according to statements of the office and requests for farm help this season have reached a new low. "I believe we have had about one call all winter from a local resident for a man to do a job. That was from a woman on the east hill who needed someone to shovel the walks," stated one of the officers of the bureau today.

At the Employment Service of Canada, Superintendent Lorne F. Green announced that calls for farm help particularly this season, had been few, although at about the first of April the first demand would evidence itself. Odd jobs here have also been scarce.

Many unemployed men have found their own jobs this winter by making personal canvass from house to house seeking odd jobs. The chief job has been that of cleaning furnaces and hauling out ashes.

POLICE COURT

Joseph Labrecque, St. Johns, Que., who was arrested by the local police a week ago on a charge of common assault appeared before Magistrate Mikel this morning and pleaded guilty to the charge. Labrecque's record was none too good, he having had seven previous convictions of vagrancy and begging against him. Sentence was enlarged for 24 hours in the case Labrecque being allowed bail on his own recognizance. As the accused is a native of Quebec province, he was advised to beat a hasty retreat from this community before his case was presented for sentence on Friday. The last seen of Labrecque, he was "travelling fast" eastwards.

In the local Juvenile Court that preceded the Police Court a local boy pleaded guilty to a charge of the theft of four automobile radiators. After receiving a severe reprimand at the hands of Magistrate Mikel the youth, aged 15 years, was given a year's suspended sentence. The boy told the court he had stolen the goods, which he fully intended selling to a local junk dealer when he was apprehended by the local police, for the purpose of purchasing food stuffs for his family, who were destitute, he said.

R. L. PIERCEY TO VISIT HERE

Reception Planned For Welsh Coal Co. Representative

Mr. W. E. Schuster, founder of the Belleville Commerce Crusaders today received from Mr. R. L. Piercey, managing director of T. T. Pascoe, Limited, Colliery Operators and Coal Exporters of Swansea, Wales, a photograph of the show window in Swansea in which are tomatoes and cheese shipped from Belleville in the two-way trade plan showing how Swansea citizens see Canadian goods on display. There are tins of tomatoes and boxes of cheese on view, part of the first direct shipment in the Swansea-Belleville and Belleville-Swansea shipments.

The T. T. Pascoe Company have offices in London, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Paris, Swansea, Hull, Rotterdam, Halifax, Boston and New York.

Mr. Piercey now in Montreal on business, writes Mr. Schuster on his plans in coming to Belleville very shortly. He will be entertained on his arrival by the citizens of Belleville.

"I note with great interest that you are satisfied with our small efforts to interest people in Swansea in the produce of Belleville and sincerely trust that some arrangements can be arrived at whereby Welsh coal can find a direct market in Belleville and district and your produce find a direct market in Swansea and district. Only after discussion can be ascertained how possible the project is. One of the difficulties will be the arranging of steamers. I note that some of the members of the Ontario Government would like to discuss this matter with me and I shall be glad to do so.

"As soon as I am in a position to plan my future arrangements, I will advise you when I expect to be in Belleville. Unfortunately at the moment I am tied up on Montreal business and am unable to get away, but I propose going to Belleville as soon as this business is out of the way."

R. L. Piercey, managing director of T. T. Pascoe, Limited, Colliery Operators and Coal Exporters.

NEW YORK - TORONTO - WINNIPEG

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO, Feb. 22. — (CP) — Bank, oil and beverage issues advanced by fractions in fairly active trading on the Industrial section of the Toronto Stock Exchange today while in the Metals, Smelters was higher by about four points and Nickel held unchanged.

Due to the New York Market holiday, interlisted issues moved slowly although the Distillery Stocks and Ford A recorded good volume. Walker's C hit 48 1-2 in first hour and then settled back to 47 1-2 for net gain of 1-4. Industrial Alcohol was unchanged at 16 3-8 and Distillers Seagram at 21 1-8 was up 3.8 Brewers and Distillers gained 10 cents to 2.85.

Interlisted shares did not get very far away from the closing prices of Wednesday, due mainly to the fact that the New York Market was closed for the observance of Washington's birthday.

Bank issues moved ahead strongly and some of the Beverage issues, including both Brewery and Distillery Shares had narrow gains this afternoon.

Consolidated Smelters developed outstanding strength, pushing up to 158 for a gain of 4 points. It was holding at 157 this afternoon.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Feb. 22 (CP)— Shares of the younger gold producers went forward like a house afire today, prices advancing on heavy turnover while the senior gold issues firmed considerably and the silvers added substantial gains. Trading was heavy despite the New York market close down, though the interlisted leaders traded in small volume.

Sylvanite, and Howey were group leaders, the former advancing 74 cents to 2.44. Reports that Howey had dipped into high grade ore sent that issue up to 1.22 for a gain of 6 cents. Ventures added a cent, Siscoe at 7.92 was up 2 cents.

In the senior gold group Dome added 25 cents, selling at 35.50 Lake Shore at $46 was up 10 cents, and Pioneer at 12.10 up 10 cents. Hollinger was firmer by 5 cents and Teck and Hargreaves unchanged.

Nipissing and Mining Corporation were silver leaders, both adding 5 to 10 cents to Wednesday's closing prices.

While the interlisted group in the mining market slowed up today in recognition of the New York market holiday, secondary gold shares traded at a lively pace and several of the producers added substantial gains, silver and base betal shares were steady to strong.

Reports that Howey had found some high grade gave that issue a boost above the $1.20 mark while Sylvanite moved up sharply to $2.44 and was holding above $2.40 this afternoon.

Nipissing and Mining Corporation led the way in the silver section with gains up to 10 cents.

Shakespeare Cited

During the debate, Hon. W. G. Martin, Minister of Public Welfare, predicted the epitaph for W. E. N. Sinclair, deposed Liberal House leader, would be the following variation of MacBeth's remarks about the slain King Duncan:

"Sinclair is in his grave;
After life's fitful fever he sleeps well;
Treason has done his worst: nor Hepburn, nor threat,
Malice domestic, foreign brain trusts, nothing
Can touch him further."

Only the other day Mr. Sinclair himself described Premier Henry's attitude on the beer-by-the-glass question by reading "Henry's Soliloquy," a parody on that of Hamlet, beginning:

"To beer or not to beer, that's the question."

Premier Henry, a few days after the session opened, said that the sentiments of Mr. Sinclair, when he was demoted as House leader in favor of his first lieutenant, Dr. G. A. McQuibban, must have resembled those of Julius Caesar when Shakespeare has him exclaim, "Et tu, Brute!" He said Dr. McQuibban's support of the revolt against Mr. Sinclair was, like Brutus' stab at Caesar, "the most unkindest cut of all."

IN MEMORIAM

SYMONS—In sad and loving memory of our dear ones who passed away thirteen years ago.

God knew that they were suffering,
He knew they were in pain,
He knew they would never get better
In this world again.
He saw the road was getting rough,
The hills were hard to climb,
So He closed their weary eyelids,
And whispered "Peace be Thine".
They left behind many aching hearts,
We loved them most sincere.
We never have and never will forget them.

—Sadly missed by Sons and Daughters. f22-1t.

PRODUCE PRICES IN MONTREAL

Eggs continued to advance in price on the Montreal Dairy and Produce Market today, again touching new highs for the season. Graded shipments in carlots or less became 44c to 45c a dozen for A-large 43c to 44c for A-medium and 41c to 43c for A-pullets, up a cent from yesterday. Receipts were still light, 982 cases being received, against 1,202 cases last Wednesday. Supplies here were the lightest in several years, and cold weather and blocked roads held up arrivals.

The butter market generally held steady at 29c to 29 1-2c a pound for No. 1 grade, the highest levels of the winter season to date. A few Westerns were reported under these levels, while sales of fancy Quebecs were made above these prices. Arrivals amounted to 242 boxes.

Current make Ontario cheese was unchanged at 11c a pound. Offerings were fifteen boxes. Quebec potatoes again sold for $1.05 to $1.10 for 80-lb. bags and New Brunswick Mountains at $1.10 to $1.15 for similar quantities. Prince Edward Island Mountains in 90-lb bags sold for $1.30 to $1.35.

Town Hockey Loop Opened With Two Smart Games

Trenton Developing Players For The Future Years of The Game

Trenton, Feb. 22 (Special)— The newly formed Trenton Town Hockey League got under way last evening when two first class games were dished out to the fans.

The St. Andrews team defeated the Trent Cottons 5-2 in the first game while the Cities Service downed the Imperials 3-2 in the night cap affair.

With the hockey material available in the town this league should have been operating for the past three months. Each team is allowed but one junior O.H.A. player and no intermediates. A league of this kind brings on new material and gives the has-beens a chance to carry on a little longer and enjoy a good game of hockey.

St. Andrews 5—Trent Cottons 2

Gene Behans red-shirted Cottons started off to force the play but "Shorty" Gray in the church lad's net just wouldn't let them score Hubbs and Alexander staved off the attacks of the St. Andrews till part way through the first period when Van Gates beat Foote for the first counter. The Cotton boys played fine combination but could not get the scoring punch. Ray Fox took the puck down to the opposing net and passed out to Van Gates to put St. Andrews up 2-0.

In the second stanza the Cottons played more cautiously and let the opposition force the play.

Fox, Jones and Van Gates made several rushes into the red clad Cottons without results till the half way mark was reached when Jones made it 3-0.

Cottons Get Two

"Bun" Lott, Bawden and Coughlin broke through and in a scramble in front of the net Coughlin notched the Cotton's first tally.

They forced the play but Gray rose to he occasion many times and showed the fans he should have wore the local junior pads this season.

Van Gates, the Wooler lad notched his fourth tally on a pass from Jones. The scoring ended when Gene Behan took a loose puck in front of Gray and drove it by, ending the game 5-2.

St. Andrews—Goal, Gray; defence, Keetle and Heaney; centre, Fox; wings, Van Gates and Jones; alternates, Newton, Stewart, Roberts and McDonald.

Trent Cottons—Goal, Foote, defence, Hubbs and Alexander; centre, Lott; wings, Bawden and Coughlin; alternates, Behan, Drake, Waldron and Scarlett.

Summary:

1st period—
St. Andrews—Van Gates 7.00
St. Andrews—Van Gates (Fox) 4.50
Penalties—None.
2nd period—
St. Andrews—Jones 6.30
St. Andrews—Van Gates 2.00
Penalties—Heaney.
3rd period—
Cottons—Coughlin 3.00
St. Andrews—Van Gates (Jones) 5.10
Cottons—Behan 6.00
Penalties—Fox.
Referee—"Barney" York.

Cities Service 3; Imperials 2

The youthful Cities Service sporting the majority of players eligible for Junior O.H.A. next year won a close decision from the Imperials who trotted out "Norm" Wells, "Benney" Bowen and "Bill" O'Malley who have played for many years and still show the lads how to get results without much work. It's been many years since Trentonians witnessed Benny Bowen on the forward line of a hockey team.

"Andy" Anderson and Scott, the goal tender, kept the score down as both turned in stellar games with Anderson being called upon to do the most work.

Lemoire and "Ski" Thompson were the best of the defence but were checked close on their rushes.

The first period went scoreless and Staples opened the scoring when he beat Anderson in the second stanza. Benny Bowen evened the count when he took Jack Kidd's rebound to beat Scott.

Kidd, Wells and Bowen forced the play while the second line of Beal, Miller and Anderson checked back with the latter pair breaking up many a play with their speed.

Whip Lemoire put the Cities Service one up when he took his own rebound to beat Anderson. Davis scored after Thompson shot and Anderson fell on the puck and Davis rushed in to force the rubber into the twine.

Jack Kidd ended the scoring on a nice shot from the side after beating the defence. The Imperials threw five forwards up but could not get the equaliser.

Cities Service—Goal, Scott; defence, Lemoire and Thompson, centre, Davis, wings, Price and Staples. Alternates, Dadswell, Long and Kerr.

Imperials—Goal, Anderson, defence, O'Malley and Cottrell, centre, Kidd, wings, Wells and Bowen. Alternates, Waldron, White, Miller, Anderson and Beal.

Summary:

1st period—No score.
Penalties—O'Malley, Thompson 2, Waldron.
2nd period—
Cities Service—Staples 6.00
Imperials—Bowen 3.00
Penalties—Price, Miller.
3rd period—
Cities Service—Lemoire 5.30
Cities Service—Davis 3.00
Imperials—Kidd 8.00
Penalties—Staples.
Referee—"Bill" Miller.

SEAL HERD MOVES NORTH

Good Hunting Expected With Herd Numbering One Million

Seattle, Feb. 22 (AP)—Preparing for an attack on the great seal herd as it moves northward to bring forth its young and mate once again, Indians of the North Pacific coast were sharpening their spears and harpoons today to exercise a privilege denied to white men.

Good hunting was in prospect with the seal herd numbering about one million. The sleek brown creatures yielding to the spring urge, come from all along the coast from as far south as Mexico and the hunting Indians will venture out to sea to attack them as they swim toward the barren Pribilof Islands of Alaska.

Although subject to the spears and harpoons of the Indians the seal herd is well guarded from the rifles of the white men. Half a dozen Coast Guard cutters already have received orders to patrol the coast and guard the herd on its migration.

By treaty among Russia, Japan and the United States, only natives are permitted pelagic sealing —that is, hunting the furry creature offshore.

Give Farmers Right To Keep Out Hunters

Toronto, Feb. 22—An amendment to the Game and Fisheries Act which would make it possible for any municipality to pass bylaws to prohibit hunters trespassing on private farm or rural property except where written permission is given by the property owner or renter, was introduced in the legislature yesterday by T. K. Slack, Progressive member for Dufferin.

MINING MEN HONOR M'CREA

Banquet Will Be Tendered Minister of Mines on March 5

In Toronto on March 5th a banquet will be tendered to Hon. Charles McCrea, Ontario Minister of Mines, by a representative group of men, associated with the mining industry in the province. The Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, Toronto Branch; the Ontario Prospectors and Developers Association and the Ontario Mining Association are sponsoring the occasion but attendance will not be limited to the membership of these organizations. Those in charge of the arrangements are inviting all who have a direct or indirect interest in Ontario mining, for which Mr. McCrea has done so much in his ten years as mines minister. The gathering is entirely non-political and is designed as a tribute to a valuable public servant irrespective of his political connections.

Balmer Neilly, president of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, probably expressed the common feeling of those associated with the industry when he says: "Far too often people fail to express recognition of valuable services being rendered. Hon. Mr. McCrea is an outstanding example of efficiency in high places. In his own legal profession he was a shining light, long before he took over the onerous duties of a government portfolio. In his association with the Ontario Department of Mines he has been a mighty help to prospectors, mining men and all those connected with mining in Ontario and, indeed, in Canada. He has carried the message of Canadian mining abroad and he has protected the industry at home. I heartily concur in the proposal to honour a man in public whom we have always respected and commended in private."

Robt. Jowsey, head of the Ontario Prospectors and Developers Association, made a characteristic comment on the coming gathering. "The prospectors know Mr. McCrea as a friend and we are delighted to honour him. He has fought many a fight for us and he has kept the Department of Mines in a high state of efficiency. The province is lucky to have had such a man on the job in a decade which has seen a doubling of mining activity. As a man and as an official he would be hard to beat. Because of Mr. McCrea mining is a bigger and better industry in Ontario.

Fraser D. Reid, who heads the Ontario Mining Association and who has been conversant with mining affairs in Ontario for thirty years as a mine operator, in seconding the proposal to banquet Mr. McCrea, remarked: "I wonder how many people in this province realise the value of a man like Mr. McCrea, who, by his outstanding ability and pleasant personality, has fostered one of the principal industries of the country? His championship of mining has been one of the really helpful factors in the past few years, when faith and hope were sometimes at a discount. A significant thing is that his department appears more closely in contact with the industry it represents than any other. There is a feeling of friendliness and a spirit of co-operation which only comes from the top in an organization of that kind. The Ontario Mining Association fully realizes its debt to Mr. McCrea and joins heartily in the plans to give public recognition to his non-partisan services."

R. A. Bryce, N. F. Parkinson and Joseph Errington who are in charge of the function have hopes of entertaining a record breaking gathering. The banquet will be held in the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, on the evening of March 5th. Mr. McCrea will be presented with an oil painting of himself on the occasion. The dinner will be followed by a dance.

The committee's headquarters are at the office of N. F. Parkinson, president of Toronto Branch, Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, 100 Adelaide Street, West, Toronto.

Hynotize Students To Learn Quickly

NEW YORK, Feb 22—Knowledge which could not be obtained otherwise without years of study may be acquired in a single college term if education by hypnotism tests to be tried this semester at the college of the city of New York are successful, Dr. Ralph B. Winn said. Ten students will be used in the tests.

"Small gray balls will be suspended before the students' eyes," he said. "Only a few minutes will be required for their eyes to shut automatically. Yet they will not be asleep. They will be in a state of light hypnosis. When I begin to lecture in a slow even tone, I shall try to evoke vision after vision in the students' minds."

8TH SIDNEY NEWS ITEMS

MR. EDWIN ADAMS CONDUCTS SERVICE

3rd Sidney—On account of illness, Rev. Plant the pastor of Centenary Church was unable to attend on Sunday morning and Mr. Edwin Adams took charge of the service.

Rev. H. B. Johnston had dinner on Sunday, with Mr. and Mrs. Oden Fenn, after preaching at Aiken's Church. The warmer weather and the beautiful sunshine on Sunday morning, brought out a larger attendance than usual.

Mrs. Harley Hubble received word on Monday of the death of her brother, Richard Bowers of Consecon.

Mr. and Mrs. George Parry and Russell and Mr. and Mrs. Everett Cooke and children, were Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. John Cooke.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Hazard of Plainfield, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Hinchcliffe.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Grills entertained Mr. and Mrs. Roy Finkle, Mr. and Mrs. W. Bailey and Mrs. Green and Mr. and Mrs. S. Westover on Friday evening in honor of Mrs. Green of Peterboro, who is visiting her sister, Mrs. Bailey.

The men on this line are kept busy with snowplows in an attempt to keep the roads clear of snow, so that it is possible for cars to make their way.

The observance of the World's Day of Prayer was held at the home of Mrs. Frank Grills on Friday last. Those who braved the cold and attended this meeting, felt amply repaid for their efforts, for it was a most helpful afternoon's program.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Aikens and family, Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Harti and Mr. and Mrs. S. Westover, spent Sunday evening at the home of Mr. Harley Hubble.

CONDUCT REVIVAL SERVICE AT MOIRA

Moira—Mr. Ed. Welsh is confined to his home through a serious illness and is under the care of Dr. Welsh. We wish him a speedy return to better health.

Mr. W. Leslie of the Leslie Shoe Store, Belleville, was a week end visitor at the home of Mr. J. F. Herity.

The Standard Church at Moira is holding Revival Services with the Rev. Slingerland conducting these services. Large crowds are in attendance every night despite the extremely cold weather.

Mr. Burton Foster who has been spending a few weeks with his grandfather Mr. Winsor Foster of Bloomfield has returned home.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Vanderwater on the birth of a fine baby boy.

The condition of the roads is bad, however old Dobbin is being brought back into play. With the numerous snow falls of late and high winds, the roads are comparatively blocked and travelling with automobiles at the present time is out of the question, and sorry indeed are all that harbingers of spring are yet unseen and unknown.

Mr. Blake Ketcheson has purchased the property known as the Milkes property in Moira village.

The Executive Board of Management consisting of Mrs. Blake Ketcheson, Mrs. John Morton, Mr. Chas. Ketcheson, Mr. Matt English, Mr. Clayton Vanderwater, Mr. Anthony Herity met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Ketcheson to start arrangements for the coming Old Boys' Re-union which is to be held at Moira.

Hold World Day of Prayer Service at Mrs. Badgley's

Melrose, Feb. 22—The Women's Missionary Society held their World Day of Prayer service at the home of the president, Mrs. E. Badgley on Friday afternoon with a good attendance.

Mr. F. D. Pringle who has been confined to his home for several days with a severe attack of lumbago is somewhat improved.

Mrs. C. A. Cameron, Pittsburgh, is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. C Macfarlane.

Mrs. F. Davis is visiting relatives at Peterboro.

The many friends of Mrs. C. English are sorry to hear of her illness and wish her a speedy recovery.

Mrs. E. Badgley has returned home after spending a few days with relatives at Napanee.

A large number from here heard the Southern Carolina Jubilee Singers at Shannonville on Saturday evening, which was greatly enjoyed.

Sawing wood is the order of the day.

Centre Hastings Ministerial Association Has Meeting

Rev. J. R. Trumpour is Guest Speaker at Gathering

Madoc—The Ministerial Association of Centre Hastings met at the United Church Parsonage on Monday last, February 19th at 2.30 p.m. Rev. J. R. Trumpour, as guest speaker gave as the address "To Mesopotamia during the world war" Among those present were: Rev. and Mrs. Humber, St. Peter's Presbyterian Church, Madoc; Rev. and Mrs. Foley of Springbrook, Rev's Koffend; Joblin and MacConnell of Stirling and Rev. and Mrs. Trumpour of Eldorado.

A vote of appreciation was passed to Rev. and Mrs. Rivers for their hospitality and the Rev. Mr. Trumpour for his interesting address. The next meeting will be held at Springbrook on March 19th.

The Maple Leaf Mission Band of Trinity United Church met on Monday afternoon at 4.30 in the Sunday School rooms. The meeting was opened by singing hymn No. 405, followed by the Lord's Prayer repeated in unison. The Scripture lesson was read by Margaret White. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Roll call was followed by a short work period. The Mission Band Benediction brought the meeting to a close.

FORTY-TWO AT DINNER

Forty-two members were in attendance at the February meeting of the Madoc Community Club held in Blue's dining room this week. The President, Mr. Jack Rutherford was the chairman of the evening. Following a sumptuous chicken dinner, those present were entertained by three interesting addresses. Dr. Grant Fraser in a few well-chosen words outlined the benefits to be gained from the proper care of the teeth. Mr. Dan Barry gave an interesting resume of world-wide current events and Mr. E. E. Downs, the guest speaker spoke on the great strides made in engineering and instructively outlined the principal inventions and achievements made from the days of the first printing press down to the great mechanical devices of the present day. An excellent solo by Mr. Chas. Anderson was enjoyed by all the members. The meeting was adjourned to meet again in March.

MADOC CREAMERY RE-OPENS

The Madoc Creamery which has been closed since last spring will be re-opened in March under new management. Mr. Charles G. Spencer, until this year, the cheesemaker at the Madoc cheese factory and during the previous year secretary of Cheesemaker's Association of the Madoc district has purchased the property of the former Madoc Creamery and intends to re-open by the 1st of March.

SHORTAGE OF WATER FOR NEW YORK DEER

All Lakes Frozen And Little Open Water in Small Streams

Tupper Lake, N.Y., Feb. 22.—(CP)— Deer are suffering greatly from the acute shortage of water in the woods, according to reports reaching Tupper Lake from all sections of the Adirondacks. Some of the smaller lakes and ponds are reported frozen to a depth of four feet, and there is little open water to be found in any of the wood's streams.

Even the natural timidity of the animals and their normal fear of man are overcome by the desire to assuage the pangs of thirst.

When a Tupper Lake plumber and pipefitter was called to repair a frozen water main at Whitney Park Headquarters, 73 miles south of here, about 20 deer gathered around the place where he was working to drink from the pool that formed when the water flowed from the thawed-out main.

NITRATE SHIPMENTS TO EUROPE GROW

Colon, Feb. 22—Chilean nitrate shipments to Europe so far this year are shown in official figures today to be 700 per cent. greater than those during a like period in 1933.

Canal Zone shippers remarked about the increase particularly in view of the troubled European situation, and the opinion was advanced that nitrates may be used in making munitions, although Chilean officials declared the shipments were for agricultural purposes.

Only 20,238 tons of nitrate were shipped through the Panama Canal in January, 1933, to Europe, compared to 146,167 tons in January, 1934. Last February 33,259 tons were shipped.

TAKEN INTO CUSTODY

HAMILTON, Ont., Feb. 22—(CP) —Police today had Elgin Gratton, London, Ont., and Percy Martin, of Belleville, Ontario, 17-year-old youths in custody. They said the pair had escaped from the Industrial School at Mimico, outside Toronto. They will be returned to the school later.

No More Piles

You Can End Your Awful Misery Quick Without Cutting or Salves

Thousands of Pile sufferers do not know that the cause of Piles is internal—bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel.

That is the scientific truth about Piles—the real reason why salves and suppositories do not give permanent relief, why cutting does not remove the cause.

Your itching bleeding or protruding Piles will only go when you actually remove the cause—and not one minute before. External treatments can't do this—an internal medicine should be used. HEM-ROID, the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, sold by good druggists everywhere, succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, drives out congested blood, heals and restores the almost dead parts.

Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID has an almost unbelievable record of success right in this city. So why waste time on external remedies or worry about an operation when J. S. McKeown invites every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID with guarantee of money back if it does not end their Piles, no matter how stubborn the case?

SEA SERPENT BENT ABOUT BOAT STERN

Captain in Dark Sees Huge Ceature Which Falls Into Sea

New York, Feb. 22—A sea serpent, perhaps the twin of the monster reported from Victoria, B.C., was listed as having been rammed by a freighter in the Gulf of Mexico.

Capt. L. Baker of the Clyde Mallory freighter, Pecos, which arrived yesterday, stated to the owners of the vessel: "The third officer reported that we had struck some wreckage, and that it was still hanging across the ship's stem," he said. "I investigated and his report appeared to be correct, so I slowed ship to see if it would drop off and then came astern to keep it from fouling the propeller.

"When the ship lost headway, we saw that instead of wreckage, it was some sea animal and we had apparently struck it amidships and it had bent around the stem and stayed there. From what we could see the thing appeared to be 30 or 40 feet long and the part that showed out of the water was five or six feet broad and dark, being a grayish brown spotted color.

"It was a dark night and with flashlights we did not get as good a view of the thing as I should like to have done. We tried to observe more, but as the ship reversed the thing fell into the sea."

INTERESTING PROGRAM AT MISSION CIRCLE

The "Here Am I" Mission Circle meeting was held last evening, at the home of Miss Laura Dougherty, 65 Geddes street. There were twenty-four present. The opening hymn "From Greenland's Icy Mountains" was followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison. Two delegates were appointed to attend the convention in Napanee. Hymn, "Jesus Calls us O'er the Tumult" was sung. Myra Irvine gave the devotional topic on "Saul a Foe af the Church". Bessie Wright contributed a piano solo "Il Trovatore".

A synopsis of the Third Chapter of the Study Book was discussed by Merle Derry.

Mrs. Colclough sang a delightful solo "Little Old Irish Mother O' Mine".

Margaret Mason delighted with a reading on the Life and Work of St. Patrick. The story of St. Valentine was read by Rachel Fox.

A contest was then held and the drawing for the quilt, the lucky ticket being held by Mr. Chas. Dracup.

The closing hymn was followed by the Benediction.

A dainty lunch was served and a vote of thanks was moved to the hostess and her mother for their hospitality.

ARE HOSTS AT JOLLY PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Barker Entertain Carrying Place Friends

Carrying Place—A very jolly party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Barker of Murray Canal on Friday evening last. Some forty guests were entertained on this occasion and all are unanimous in naming it as one of the most enjoyable events of the season. The evening was passed all too soon with cards, games and dancing the chief amusements, while refreshments were served at a late hour. Several other parties have been given this winter by Mr. and Mrs. Barker at their home, but this one has been voted the best of the lot. Practically the entire younger population of this community was in attendance as well as a dozen or more from Trenton.

Work on the repairing project at the Murray Canal is progressing, but slowly since the full sweep of the north wind makes itself felt. A small frame workshop has been erected on the bridge rest where the blacksmith work is done, but even this shelter is slight.

Mrs. Ernest Hennessey and Mrs. A. H. Norrington spent Friday evening and part of Saturday in Trenton last week, making the trip over by train since the roads were uncertain. Mrs. Hennessey spent the night with her son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Ewart Hennessey, returning with Mr. Hennessey to Carrying Place on Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Norrington visited Mrs. H. Murray and Mrs. Vosbourgh.

The snow plow made a trip from Bloomfield here on Tuesday.

The holiday hockey game which has become a matter of custom with boys this winter changed its location this week and was played on Corrigan's Pond. Formerly the ice surface of the Consecon Road gravel pit was kept in shape as a rink; but the game of a week ago proved a little more than it could stand without flooding again, so a small party of boys cleaned off the other pond on Saturday. Some wild scrambles and mix-ups are to be seen at these encounters. Friend and foe alike go piling up on the top of one another with reckless abandon. Fortunately there have been no serious casualties thus far, although Gordon Hanthorn sustained a cut over his left eye at the last game which looked bad. It is hoped that no reader will ask any of the scores of these games. We doubt if our numbers go up high enough.

Mr. Vernon Westfall brought thru a heavy load of baled straw last week from the vicinity of Frankford to the Harbor Stables here, overcoming the difficulties of transportation on drifted roads by removing the outer set of wheels from his truck. Straw is at a premium just now owing to the great demand, and the farmers who have it to sell are considering themselves fortunate.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill La Tour spent last Friday with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Miller of Trenton, Mrs. La Tour remaining in town until Saturday.

Hockey fans of this locality watched with interest the series between Belleville Dohertys and Campbellford Maroons fought out last week. Ken Davis, Maroon centre, is well known locally, having been at one time a resident of Trenton. At present Davis is employed at the H.E.P.C. power house at Healey Falls.

Miss Helen MacDougall returned from Belleville on Sunday after spending several weeks at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Vandervoort and Mr. and Mrs. James Doig. Mrs. Doig has been critically ill with influenza, but is at present much improved.

A toboggan and several pairs of skis were called into play over the week end by members of the younger set. Taking advantage of more than sufficient supply of snow, a number of local young people made a trip to Dug Hill where they enjoyed a very pleasant afternoon's sport.

Mr. E. Hennessey is working on the construction job at the canal once again after a week of holidays.

Kicked severely in the ribs and back by a horse while moving about his stables last Wednesday afternoon, Mr. John Buchanan has been kept from his regular work, and has remained within doors for most of the time. The horse, an old one, who apparently had youthful ideas, struck without warning, and Mr. Buchanan was fortunate to escape more serious injury.

Dr. E. A. McQuade, Medical Officer of Health for Murray township visited the local school on Wednesday of this week to administer the second "shot" of diphtheria toxoid to local children. Dr. McQuade is accompanied on these visits by Miss Maureen Coulter, Reg. N. Miss Coulter is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Coulter of York Road, and is a graduate of the Kingston General Hospital.

Mr. Fred Hennessey spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hennessey and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Alec Campbell spent Saturday evening last with Mr. and Mrs. Bill La Tour while Mr. and Mrs. A. Norrington and Barry called on Sunday.

Marooned in Trenton by the snow blockade, several local men were unable to reach their homes here from Monday until Thursday last weeks. Messrs. Eddie Quackenbush, Clifford Baker and Alec Campbell of the Trent Cottons boarded in town until the opening of the roads on Thursday.

Mrs. George Kemp called on Mrs. A. Norrington on Friday afternoon.

Mail and bus service have been regular despite snow drifts for the past several days. Local carriers are still experiencing their difficulties however, most of the deliveries are being made with horse and cutter.

Remarkable Picture of Leap to Death from Aeroplane

GUESTS COMPLETE QUILT FOR BRIDE

Rawdon, Feb. 22.—On Friday evening about 11 p.m. a beautiful display of Aurora Borealis was seen in the sky and residents wonder if this is an omen of more cold weather.

Miss Elvo Andrews spent a few days last week with her sister, Mrs. Everett Sine at Harold.

St. Paul's W.M.S. have invited the Mount Pleasant W.M.S. and Mission Band to attend a special meeting on March 2 when the guest speaker will be Miss Isobel Griffiths, Toronto, travelling secretary.

Mrs. George Weaver entertained several relatives on Thursday and the women quilted a quilt for her niece, Mrs. A. F. Bishop (nee Doris Bailey), Lockport, N.Y. The quilt was pieced by the bride's grandmother. In the evening the husbands gathered and spent a social time together.

On Wednesday, February 14, the pupils of the Allan School enjoyed a post office from 3 to 4 p.m. and various delightful valentines were exchanged.

Mrs. Thomas McKeown spent the tea hour on Friday evening with Mrs. Blake Sharp.

Mr. and Mrs. George Montgomery and Douglas, Mr. Harry Montgomery and friend of Frankford were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Montgomery.

One evening last week a very lively butterfly flitted about the house of Percy MacMullen and whether it was asleep in the wood and the warmth of the house made it think of spring or whether warmer weather is in the offing remains to be seen.

Mr. Gordon Linn who arrived home last Tuesday, February 13, is steadily gaining and will soon be able to be about as usual.

The fourth line road has been very busy for several days as the bulk of the traffic switched across from the Iroquois Train via the side road and fourth line to Highway No. 14. The Campbellford and Trenton bus went this route, also a large number of cars journeyed this path Friday evening to attend the hockey match at Campbellford between that town and Belleville.

Miss Anna Sharp was a supper guest Friday evening of Miss Helen McCoy at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond McConnell.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bailey and Morley were recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Sine, Salem.

The Misses Edna Thrasher and Lela Johnson are spending a few days this week with Mr. and Mrs. Melville Donnan at West Huntingdon.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen spent the tea hour Friday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Edward Montgomery and Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Montgomery.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sharp, Mrs. Herbert Miller and Douglas spent a few days last week with Mr. and Mrs. Ray Seeley at Chatterton.

Mr. and Mrs. James Sharp entertained Mrs. Cyrus Summers and Gladys, Mrs. Roy Thrasher and Edna and Miss Lela Johnson on Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Montgomery spent Friday in Campbellford with friends.

Miss Mildred Sharp entertained Miss Eileen MacMullen for tea on Friday evening.

Mr. Herbert Miller is employed at Picton and began his work on Monday last.

A large number of Rawdon folk attended a miscellaneous shower on Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Barlow in honor of their daughter, Emma, and her husband, Mr. James Barber. The newly weds were read an appropriate address and presented with a large display of useful gifts.

Mr. E. Warren spent the weekend in Toronto and attended a hockey match.

Mrs. Ernest Irwin entertained Rylestone Women's Institute for their February meeting. Mrs. S. G. Meiklejohn gave a splendid topic on the subject, "How to make the most of rural opportunities". Several humorous readings were given and then all exchanged home-made Valentines. At the close Mrs. Harry Barnum demonstrated the making of candy.

Mr. W. M. Hamilton of Sidney spent last week with his sister, Mrs. John Snarr of Wellman's.

Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Hoover entertained Mr. and Mrs. John Heagle, Mr. John Rainnie, Miss Emma Rainnie and Miss Lily Barnes to tea on Thursday evening.

Carmel Women's Association enjoyed a jolly social evening on Feb. 15 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hagerman. Despite the cold weather a goodly number were in attendance.

Owing to the illness of Rev. E. W. Rowland, there was no service at Carmel on Sunday. Rawdon folks were sorry to hear that the doctor has advised Rev. Rowland to take a month's rest.

Mrs. John McKeown is very ill at her home in Rawdon with little hope held out for her recovery. Her sister, Mrs. McDonald, arrived from the west on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Shillicorn and family were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Warren.

Current Attractions at Local Theatres

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL
"By Candlelight" and "Broken Dreams"

When a butler and a maid masquerade under the names of their titled employers, almost anything can happen, especially if the real Prince is a notorious philanderer and the Countess is at the moment one of the objects of his wandering affections.

"By Candlelight," Universal's Continental comedy by Siegfried Geyer, which will open an engagement on Thursday at the Capitol theatre, presents just such a situation with Elissa Landi and Paul Lukas costarring in the roles of maid and butler.

In the story, the pair strike up an acquaintance aboard a train travelling from Vienna to Monte Carlo. Circumstances cause each to believe that the other is a member of the nobility, and each servant is correspondingly thrilled at the prospect of a romance with a person of noble rank.

In Monte Carlo, during the Prince's absence from his luxurious apartment the masquerading butler entertains the attractive maid who calls at the apartment dressed in a beautiful evening gown belonging to her royal mistress. The evening is proceeding nicely when the Prince unexpectedly returns, entering the room wearing the butler's coat and bearing champagne and an elaborate candelabra by the light of which he himself always carries on his lovemaking.

"Broken Dreams"

For feature number two on this program we offer "Broken Dreams."

When a physician faces a prospective father with the momentous question—"Which shall I save— the mother or the child?"—nine times out of ten the unhappy man will plead for his wife's life. The woman known to him and loved by him, is more precious in his eyes than even his own baby. However the doctor, despite his efforts, sometimes finds it impossible to carry out the husband's wishes.

In that case the mother dies, and frequently the father, unmoved by his offspring's helplessness, hates the infant whose right to live has cost him such a tragic sacrifice.

It is just such a tense situation as this that supplies the opening sequence to "Broken Dreams," Monogram's new feature, which comes to the Capitol Theatre on Thursday. And the tragedy of the incident is augmented by the fact that Robert Morley, the father in the case, is preparing to become a physician, himself. Nervously unstrung by grief at his young wife's death, Morley sails for Vienna, for a stay of six years, without once looking at the baby who had been the unwitting cause of his mother's death. How Morley eventually learns to love his son, and readjust his life so as to include him, forms the basis for a most absorbing drama.

AT THE BELLE
"Counsellor at Law"

"A Perfect gem in a Perfect Setting" best describes the flawless "Counsellor at Law", Universal's gripping and at the same time humorous picturization of the three-day crisis in the life of the greatest criminal lawyer in New York City, featuring John Barrymore, Bebe Daniels and Doris Kenyon.

With Barrymore, Bebe Daniels and Doris Kenyon, is an excellent supporting cast including Onslow Stevens, Melvyn Douglas, Isabel Jewell and Mayo Methot of the screen, and ten players who originated their roles in the sensational Elmer Rice stage play which was presented for two years on Broadway.

The story concerns a successful lawyer who came to America as an immigrant. At the height of his career, he is faced with disbarment and the loss of his selfish socialist wife, whom he loves dearly. How he manages to solve his problems must remain with the reader who undoubtedly will want to see the splendid performance.

Excellent Shorts

"Twin Screws" is the title of a very funny All-Star comedy to be presented on the same program with a very interesting Screen Oddities with its gist of interesting and amusing freaks of nature, and an entertaining Vaudefilm round out a varied program of screen entertainment.

Ten major gifts of beautiful lamps will be given away tonight at 9 p.m.

"My Lips Betray" Next

After captivating the hearts of Belleville screen fans in "My Weakness" Lilian Harvey returns to the Belle Saturday in the delightful musical romance "My Lips Betray" featuring John Boles and El Brendel. A new story of the old west is "Frontier Marshal", featuring George O'Brien and Irene Bentley on the same program.

VANISHED ISLAND SOUGHT

Cape Town, South Africa, Feb. 22—A famous British naval hero and explorer was southward bound in quest of a "vanishing island" on the bottom of the world, after his naval sloop had ridden through a 70-mile gale. The expedition, merely a routine one for the Royal Navy's African station, was a new entry in the adventurous saga of Vice-Admiral E. R. G. Evans.

Stirling and District

By Our Own Correspondent

Stirling.—The Monday evening meeting of St. Paul's Y.P.S. was conducted by the Missionary Department with the President, Mr. Harry Hulin, in the chair. Following the devotional period, the main feature, of the evening, a splendid address on the missionary topic "Orientals In Canada" was delivered by Miss Dorothea Thompson. The penetration of these coloured races into the commercial, industrial and agricultural sphere of our Dominion has developed into a real menace. British Columbia is most endangered, 46,500 of the 65,000 Orientals now living there. The mere fact that one-quarter of the licensed business places of Vancouver are operated by these coloured people is a real indication of the headway that they have made. As a Christian we should not adopt this attitude for the Oriental is an industrious, intelligent, and honourable enterprising person. The church has not made any pronouncement regarding the problem in an economic sense, but has shown an active interest in the social and religious situation.

A quartette composed of the Misses Pearl Stapley, Evelyn Davidson, Hilma Matheson and Geneva Wright sang sweetly "Star of the East." The contest was staged by Miss Pearl Stapley with the blue side taking the honours. The Mispah Benediction closed the meeting.

St. Andrew's Guild on Monday evening was conducted under the direction of the Pathfinders' Club with Roy Juby in the chair. After the preliminary devotional period with prayer led by Rev. J. A. Koffend, the business of the evening was considered. The programme opened with a chorus, "Life's Railway To Heaven" rendered by the members of the boys' club. The topic "Temptation" which was dealt with in sections by the members, was prefaced by a few reflections on the subject given by Rev. Koffend. The topic was opened by Gerald Ward who cited Scriptural passages relative to it. James Johnston began the discussion on the subject to be followed by a suitable reading "Playing the Game," given by Ross Scott. Jack Ormiston took up the thread of the discourse after which a hymn was sung. James Ward as a prelude to the concluding thoughts given by Harold Baker, read the piece, "How To Master Temptation." The meeting closed with a hymn and Mispah Benediction.

Messrs. Eric Gilmour, John Parker, Jack Weir and Dawson Corbett, all of Queen's University, Kingston, accompanied Mr. Ivan Martin home for the week-end where they were guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Martin.

TO MANUFACTURE BARRELS NEAR BANNOCKBURN

Bannockburn, Feb. 22—Mr. C. C. French and J. J. French of Consecon, Prince Edward County, have rented the old cement engine house situated at Bannockburn on the Bay of Quinte Railway. The location should be good as there is lots of timber in the surrounding district and shipping facilities are good, as a siding runs right by the building. Men are now busy installing the machinery necessary for the sawing of the stave bolts, hoop elm is to be made later into barrels. It is the intention to have the barrels completed here. Later on custom sawing will be done. A considerable quantity of logs, stave bolts and hoop elm are now in the yard. The firm will be run under the name of French Bros. with C. C. French as manager. Mr. French states that his father J. R. French was one of the first to make barrels in Hastings county at Point Anne. Should this prove successful it will mean employment for several men.

ADULT BIBLE CLASS ELECTS YEAR'S OFFICERS

A. P. Williams, Bonarlaw, Suffers Paralytic Stroke

Bonarlaw—On Thursday evening of last week the Adult Bible Class of St. Marks' Church held their annual meeting and election of officers in the basement of the church. Canon W. G. Swayne was elected as teacher of the class with Mrs. Allan McComb and Mrs. Jason Baker as assistants. Other officers elected were as follows:

President—Mrs. Isaac Brown.

Immediate Past President—Mrs G. S. Eastwood.

Vice President—Mrs. Thos. H. Prest.

Sec.-Treas.—Mrs. Roy Brown.

Various committees were appointed to carry out the program of the class throughout the coming year. A strong membership committee hope to double their membership during the next few weeks and the prospects are that they will succeed. Canon Swayne's ability as a teacher is well known and all persons in the community are cordially invited to join this class.

At the banquet following the business session Mr. J. F. Baker acted as Toastmaster. The toasts were as follows: The King (God Save The King) The New Officers, responded to by Rev. Canon Swayne and Mrs. Isaac Brown. The Ladies, responded to by Mesdames T. H. Prest, G. S. Eastwood, Roy Brown, A. B. McComb and Jason Baker.

The class is in good financial condition. Week night meetings will be held frequently throughout the year.

On Thursday of last week Mr. A. P. Williams had a stroke and is in a very serious condition. He was noticed by Mr. Herbert Bateman lying a short distance from the house in the snow. Apparently Mr. Williams, who had gone to the bush only a couple of hours previously, had felt the attack coming on and had almost made home when he was overcome and was noticed by Mr. Bateman who was driving past with a load of wood, and immediately advised the family and helped get him in the house.

Doctor Wellman of Marmora was soon in attendance and found him unconscious and paralysed on one side. There is every reason to believe that he will improve from now on and ultimately be able to be around however.

Canon W. G. Swayne, Rector of St. Mark's Church assisted at the induction and Confirmation service in Stirling on Sunday last when the Lord Bishop of Ontario, Rt. Rev. John Lyons, inducted Rev. A. S. McConnell as Rector of St. John's Church and confirmed a number of candidates from Stirling and Frankford congregations. Quite a few of Mr. Swayne's parishioners were also present.

The Worlds Day of Prayer was observed here on Friday of last week, afternoon service in St. Mark's Church, conducted by Rev. Canon Swayne, Rector and Rev. H. W. Foley, Pastor of Springbrook United Church.

The prayers were taken by Mesdames T. H. Webb, H. W. Foley, Geo. Mumby, A. V. Brown and J. F. Baker.

Mrs. John McKeown who has been seriously ill for some days, died Monday afternoon. The funeral will take place Wednesday afternoon leaving the house at two p.m. Service in St. Mark's Church and interment in 12th line cemetery.

NEWS FROM RAWDON DISTRICT

Rawdon, Feb. 22—The annual World Day of Prayer for Rawdon Circuit was held this year at Mount Pleasant United Church with about twenty-five in attendance, on Friday afternoon Feb. 16th. The call to prayer was prepared by Mrs. Robert Forgan of Edinburgh, Scotland. The program "Pray for the Peace of Jerusalem", was prepared by Mrs. Louis Hoffmeyer of Cape Town, South Africa, she being one of the delegates to the International missionary council meeting at Jerusalem in 1928.

It was regretted that no one was present from Bethel or Wellman's appointments owing to road conditions.

Mrs. Ross Hoard, President of Mount Pleasant W.M.S., presided and drew the attention of those present that this prayer service was held the first Friday in Lent. After suitable introductory remarks the opening hymn was sung with Miss Frances McKeown presiding at the piano.

The call to worship followed and then the Misses Olive McConnell and Edna Thrasher sang a duet—"For You I Am Praying."

The worship period "Peace in the church of Christ" and a new hymn "Lord of Our Life."

Mrs. Allan Bailey offered prayer for peace in the heart and home, and all joined in a hymn.

Rev. F. G. Joblin offered prayer for "Peace within the Nation." Mrs. James Sharp for industrial conditions and relief of unemployment, and Mrs. Thomas McKeown that the righteous cause of temperance may prevail.

The offering was gathered by Mrs. Roy Thrasher and Mrs. Blake Sharp amounting to one dollar and sixty-five cents and will be used for translating and printing Christian literature in many lands.

All sang a hymn and the fourth part of the program "Peace through the Extension of Christ's Kingdom," was given with the request that all have as the prayer of their hearts, that our missionaries everywhere be kept in health and safety.

Mr. George Weaver offered prayer for the League of Nations and after rendering a missionary hymn, the dismissal prayer of peace was pronounced and the solem hour of uplift came to a close. The women of Bethel have asked to have the prayer service at their church next year.

The marriage is announced of Miss Adelaide B. Kirk, B.A., of Niagara, North Dakota, to Mr. P. C. Foley, son of Rev. W and Mrs. Foley of Springbrook, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Kirk on January 31st, 1934.

Mrs. Bert Bedford was a recent guest at the home of her sister, Mrs. J. H. Belshaw.

Rev. M. Coon of Havelock, was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Reid on Friday.

Miss Ruby Cotton of Belleville, is holidaying with her parents.

Mr. L. Hueston of Toronto is visiting Rawdon friends this week.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Brady and Marjorie spent Sunday with her parents.

Mrs. Gummer entertained Bethel C.G.I.T. and the president, Miss J. Donald presided. The group continued their study of "The Young Revolutionist."

Miss Helen Carleton has returned to her home in Plainfield, having spent the past few week's with her cousin here.

Rev. MacTavish was called to Ripley owing to the serious illness of his brother.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Mason visited Trenton friends on Friday.

Y.P.S.

Mr. Clifford Holmes opened Mt. Pleasant Y.P.S. Friday evening, and Mrs. James Sharp offered prayer. Rev. Joblin gave a splendid devotional talk on "Beginning the Lenton Season," and emphasized this motto "Oh what a tangled web we weave, when first we practice to deceive." Plans were made to invite Carmel Y.P.S. to visit Mount Pleasant.

Mr. H. Higgs convener of Christian citizenship opened the program. Miss Gladys Summers delighted with a pretty solo "God sees the Little Sparrow Fall." Mr. Harold White read the Bible lesson and Miss Mildred Sharp gave "Tommies Prayer."

Miss Muriel Milligan read the Topic which had been previously prepared by Mrs. Blake Sharp on the subject "What can we do about Poverty and Wealth." Miss Helen Spencer sang a pleasing solo "The Heart that was Broken for Me." Mrs. C. Summers staged an interesting menu contest.

Mr. and Mrs. James Thornton entertained Mr. and Mrs. Edward Montgomery one Sunday recently.

Miss Mildred Elliott spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. R. Coombes, at River Valley.

Mr. Fred Rutherford spent a few days recently in Toronto.

Rylestone League met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Meiklejohn and the most interesting feature was a debate: "Resolved that the young people of fifty years ago enjoyed themselves better than the young people of today," and the negative side won.

"Just that," Billie said grimly. Then she sprung her trump card. "There's something I think you should know."

Charity nodded for her to go ahead. Billie watched her face closely while she dropped the bomb.

"The girls know how you and Doug are living. Some of them took turns watching your room last night to see if he came to see you."

A slow red stained Charity's face. Then she turned white. Billie was delighted when she saw the gray eyes slant with an anger that lent her a wild beauty. If Charity got furious enough it was the best thing that could happen to her. She could have shouted for joy when Charity said slowly, "The— little— unspeakably common cats! And I was afraid of them."

"They call you the farmer's daughter behind your back," Billie added, watching Charity slyly.

"Billie—" Charity choked then, "can you get a day off to go out with me to buy some decent clothes? I know I have terrible taste."

Billie grinned broadly. "Can I? I'll take a week!"

Charity looked toward her clothes closet, clinching her hands miserably. "I haven't a decent evening gown to my name."

Billie jumped up. "I bought a green one yesterday that'll look like a million on you. If you like it, I'll sell it to you."

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

Billie danced back into the room, the new green evening gown in a box under her arm. Charity called from the shower, "I'll be out in a minute."

Billie's cheeks were pink with excitement. Her talk with Charity had turned out so much better than she had expected. It seemed too good to be true. And to have made Charity angry enough to show fight was the greatest triumph of all. To have talked her into such a mood that she held Doug's friends in contempt was a stroke of genius. It was going to be a grand fight.

Charity came out of the shower her eyes still sparkling with angry lights, her cheeks pink as two poppies with indignation that Doug's friends had stooped to call her the "farmer's daughter" behind her back. It made her even more furious that Yanner Vandergriff had been the cause of her being tagged that. It had started that night at the penthouse when she sang the vulgar little song about the country girl."

Billie shook the dress out and held it up. "I knew it! It's a perfect color for you. Try it on."

She waxed thoughtful while Charity searched through her lingerie. "You must never wear anything that isn't strictly tailored. Even in evening clothes. And you must stick to gay colors. Rose, green, yellow—henna would be okay on you too, if you'd be careful of the shade.

"You're a real type, with your oval face and black hair—and those bangs make you look like an odd little Indian doll. Except, of course, for your white skin. You're the fairest skinned gal I ever set eyes on. You have the sort of eyes that colors will do things to. That's one advantage with gray eyes—they reflect, and change like chameleons."

Charity listened with deepest interest. She stood meekly while Billie slipped the dress over her head. When she slipped into black satin evening pumps and stepped over to the mirror she gave a glad gasp of surprise. Her hand went to her heart in a little gesture of happiness.

The gown fitted her like a glove. The front was straight, in a princess effect. There was no back from the waist up. But the ivory of her skin gleamed so sparkingly against the soft spring green that Charity felt pride rather than embarrassment. It was as plain as any gown could possibly be. But the cut and the workmanship were a work of art. Billie watched Charity excitedly, waiting for her verdict. Charity turned slowly several times before she spoke wonderingly:

"Am I—I?"

Billie hugged her rapturously. "You—am. Oh, darling, you're gorgeous! I'll make you up so carefully—and use a little green eye shadow over your eyes. When you get under the dining room lights you'll be ravishing."

"Oh—" Charity suddenly remembered, "what will you put on?"

"Poof!" Billie snapped her fingers. "I don't care if I go down in an old gingham wrapper. I'll just wear the same dress I had on last night.—I should worry."

"You're sweet," Charity gave her new found friend a tender little smile of gratefulness. "I didn't know there were any girls like you. You are—so unselfish."

Billie wrinkled her little nose in her typical grin. "I'm just trying to burn some of these tabby cats up. And—oh, are they going to sizzle when they see you walk into the dining room?"

Billie had put the finishing touches to Charity's make-up and brushed her black hair until it lay shining against her head, when a knock came on the door. It was Batch asking if he could see Charity. Billie closed the door to push the protesting Charity into a corner and whisper demandingly:

"You'll see him—and see him here in your boudoir! It's quite proper! And I have a very definite reason for telling you to."

Billie opened the door to a nervous Batch in evening clothes, his heavy red curly hair still damp from his ducking in the Sound. Charity sat down on the chaise lounge, her knees suddenly weakening under her. But Batch had scarcely crossed the room when he realized from his uneasy manner that she had the advantage. All fear and embarrassment left her. She leaned back easily. "Good evening, doctor."

He stopped dead still. A look of utter unbelief crossed his face. Surely—the lovely, smartly gowned creature lying back so haughtily on the chaise lounge was not the same Charity. It could not be the same girl he had kissed in his apartment just a week before. Charity saw his amazement and felt a little glow of secret triumph. She knew then that she did look different—she had caught that illusive something, it took to make men look at her. This knowledge gave her a sense of power.

Batch stared, then grinned—uneasily. "Say—what in the devil have you done to yourself?"

Charity raised her newly arched brows questioningly. "All I did was take a little bath in salt water. Do I look different?"

Batch sat down near her, feeling more foolish than he had ever felt in his life in the presence of a woman.

"You're —beautiful."

"Thank you, sir." Charity dipped her head in a mock little bow. "Is that all you came here to tell me?"

Batch flushed; he squirmed uneasily.

"First—I want to thank you for saving my worthless hide."

"I didn't know who it was," Charity shrugged, impudently. "I'd have done as much for a drowning puppy."

"That doesn't lessen my gratitude to you," Dr. Batchelor said gravely. "And second—I want to apologize, more humbly than I've ever apologized to anyone in my life before, for what happened last Sunday afternoon."

Charity pretended deep thought. "Did something happen last Sunday afternoon?"

"I don't blame you for razzing me." Batch dropped his head penitently. "It was beastly of me to kiss you against your will."

"Oh—that!" Charity said indifferently. "Do you usually apologize for kissing women who go to your apartment?"

Batch leaned toward her, his eyes searching hers seriously.

"You're not fooling me—Charity Temple. You haven't changed that much. You—look different. But you're the same girl underneath. You're mad and that's the way you should be. But don't lose your head."

Charity's mood changed in a flash. She felt a little like the old Charity again, and for a minute she was tongue-tied. Batch had seen through the disguise. He understood. She sat up and faced him squarely.

"Yes, I'm mad. I'm fit to be tied. I've let a bunch of cheap Broadway and Park avenue chiselers bulldoze me and I'm not proud of it. I'm just waking up—that's all."

For a moment Batch studied her flushed face, admiring the slow fires of anger smouldering in her eyes. Then she reached over and took her hand. She did not pull it away, but waited while he said slowly, "I'm glad you're going to show some fight. But don't get yourself burned in the meantime. I —think I like you better the old way."

Charity's chin set stubbornly. "The old Charity is dead."

Batch shook his head and smiled. "Girls like Charity Jones don't die so easily. I'm glad you've decided to be one of us. But I don't want you to lose your balance."

Charity laughed—suddenly bitter. "Don't tell me you're going to preach, doctor. You've forgotten you told me I had enough money to do anything in the world I pleased."

"With reservations." Batch put his hand over the other that still held hers in a firm grasp. "The old Reverend Dr. Batchelor will pull you back if you try to step too far."

"Men are peculiar animals," Charity decided, airing a new philosophy of which she was going to be even more firmly convinced in the days to come.

Batch smiled. "But women need us as a balance when they go off keel."

Charity laughed—and they both started when the door opened suddenly. She flushed guiltily when she saw that it was Doug. Batch still held her hand. She took it away to say with surprise, "Hello, Doug."

"I was just thanking Charity for saving my worthless hide,' Batch stood up to say uneasily.

"So I see." Doug said shortly. "Come Charity, let's go downstairs."

She got up to follow him obediently, too surprised to protest. Batch went to his room.

Down the hall Billie leaned against her door to laugh weakly at the sight of Doug piloting Charity down the steps, a masterly light in his eyes. Charity would have been even more amazed if she could have heard Billie at Doug's door a few minutes before, laying the foundation for his suspicion of the handsome Dr. Batchelor.

In a few seconds she had convinced Doug that Charity needed protection from the red-headed designing physician, who was at that moment paying court to her in her room.

Billie sat on her bed counting the minutes until it was time to go to the dining room. She wanted particularly to see Chickie Belle's face when the queenly Mrs. Temple walked into the dining room, changed from a drab little moth into a golden butterfly.

It would be a grand show. She felt like a director on the opening night of his Broadway production.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

Billie had expected drama at the dinner table. And she was disappointed, in a way.

It was the quietest dinner party she had ever seen. Whether Charity had floored her guests with the green evening gown, the new hair cut, and her haughty changed expression she did not know. Except for the puzzled, slightly poisonous expression she caught in the slant green eyes of Chickie Belle when they fell on Charity, there wasn't much excitement.

Charity took her place as hostess almost with defiance. Doug made a weak attempt to bring gayety into the party, and occasionally Batch would try to help him out. But it was of little use. Most of the crowd seemed anxious to eat and get back to town. Only a few of the girls were to remain to be taken back the next morning. Charity had asked Billie to stay and take her shopping for clothes the next day.

She was astonished to see how much easier it was to sit at her place as hostess than the evening before. Then she had burned with humiliation that she could think of nothing to say, knowing that she was ill gowned and unattractive. A sparrow among the birds of paradise of Broadway.

Only twenty-four hours had passed. And in that short time she had come to feel superior to Doug's friends. At first she had a desire to say things that would make them realize what she thought of them. But that soon passed away and left her feeling strangely detached—yet with a rankling anger that was pleasantly sustaining.

She held that feeling all through dinner and through the good-byes. By eleven everyone who was leaving had gone, and the others decided it would be a good idea to get some sleep. Billie went to her room feeling a little disappointed that things had gone so smoothly—burning with curiosity to find out whether Doug had told Charity how well she looked.

She wanted to go to Charity's room and have a talk before she went to sleep. But her intuition told her that Doug would find some excuse to pay a call on his wife. She did not want to be in the way.

Billie was a good prophet. Charity had not undressed, and was sitting by the window gazing with a tired melancholy at the moon when a knock came on her door. Thinking it was Billie, she switched on a light and called "Come in".

But it was Doug, in pajamas and robe—and she recalled that the girls had spied on her the evening before to see whether her husband went to her—and she hoped desperately they were still keeping watch. Somehow—she must manage to keep Doug.

In all these last two months of effort Tarzan had found not the slightest further evidence that she he sought had entered this beautiful but forbidding land. Yet he was convinced from his former questionings among the cannibals that if she still lived, it was here that she must be sought. But this unknown, untraversed wild was of vast extent. Grim mountains blocked his path and tumbling torrents impeded his way.

At every turn the ape-man was forced to match wits and muscles with the great carnivora that he might procure sustenance. Seldom now did he go hungry, so rich was the land in game, animals, fish and fruit. After days of searching he had finally succeeded in discovering a pass through the mountains. Beside a water hole, Bara, the deer, fell an easy victim to the ape-man's cunning. It was just at dusk when he shouldered the carcass of the deer and started downward onto the plain.

At its opposite side rose lofty trees that suggested to his practiced eye a mighty jungle. He started toward this but midway of the plain he discovered standing alone such a tree as best suited him for a night's abode. Lightly he swung into its branches after eating of the deer meat and soon was sound asleep, lulled by the roars of the lions and lesser cats, which fell like music on the ape-man's ears.

These noises disturbed him not a bit. It was only the unusual sound, however faint to civilized man's ears, that always brought Tarzan to quick consciousness, no matter how deep his slumber. And so it was that when the moon was high, a sudden rush of across the grassy carpet in the vicinity of his tree brought him to alert and ready activity. Like all creatures of the wild, his eyes snapped open, clear and bright, and his brain instantly registered the perceptions of his senses.

CAN'T SLEEP?

You may feel nervous, irritable and depressed, you may suffer from indigestion and headaches; but the most marked symptom is sleeplessness. The treatment indicated is Dr. Chase's Nerve Food because it restores health and vigor to the nervous system.

"Mom's Gone, Dad, and I Need You! Won't You Give a Fellow a Break?"

Baby Appeals to Father He Never Has Known

By BABY EVANS
As Told To
NED A. BUSH
Central Press Canadian Correspondent

Nursery, Epworth Hospital, South Bend, Ind., Feb. 22—Dad, wherever you are, I hope you'll read this and get in touch with me at once! I'm a little fellow only 10 days old and I'm in a jam already.

The folks here at the hospital have been pretty fine to me, but what I really need is a dad, a real dad who'll look after me and take care of me.

The whole trouble, dad, is simply this. You probably don't even know that you've got a fine, big boy like me. I realize that it's a little soon for a youngster like me to be talkin' to reporters and having pieces put in the paper, but when a fellow is in as bad a pickle as I'm in, you've just got to do something, and do it right now.

Benefit of a Doubt

The folks here at the hospital don't think you're such a great shakes of a guy. Maybe you are and maybe you aren't. I'm giving you the benefit of the doubt. I've heard them talking about you. They say if you were very much of a man, you wouldn't have gone off and left my mother like you did two days before Christmas, at Louisville, Ky. Of course that was before I was born, so I really don't know much about that. All I know about that is what mom told the folks here at the hospital, at South Bend—before she died!

I understand that your novelty glass blowin' work takes you to all parts of the country. I know that you had a hard time making a living for yourself and mom before I came. I overheard Nurse Hilliard telling some of the folks that's been here to see me that you gave mom all the money that you could spare just before you left for God knows where, and that you promised to send more just as soon as you got some.

Mom, so I overheard them say, waited in Louisville several days. The mailman kept passing right by each day and there was no letter from you.

Tired and sick as mom was, dad, she took a bus to Indianapolis, looking for you. But you weren't there. She stayed there a day or two and then took a bus for Fort Wayne. But you weren't there. Mom was feelin' pretty bad then. But she took a bus to Detroit and spent several days looking for you there. But you weren't there, either. And then she started for Chicago, but she only got as far as South Bend. She was sick.

Tired, Heartbroken

They took her to the hospital here. Mom told the folks your name and what you did. She was awfully sick. I was born then on a Saturday afternoon. Mom died just an hour after I came into this world. She didn't even wake up to see me—she was so tired and heartbroken.

They tried to find some of mom's folks. But they couldn't. So they buried her in some place the folks call Potter's field. So you see, dad, I'm in a terrible pickle. I have no mommy any more and the folks here say I might just as well not have a dad!

There have been a lot of nice people here to see me. Lots of kind-looking ladies have been here. They've held me in their arms, and one nice woman actually cried over me! Said I looked just like her baby boy who died a few weeks ago. Then there's been others. And they all want to take me home with them.

But you know, folks are folks. What a fellow wants who has no mom is his dad not just any dad, but his very own dad!

Folks at the hospital they are nice, but there's no dad to walk the floor with me nights when I cry. I just get awful lonesome at times. There are so darn many other babies here. And they all got dads and moms too.

He Needs His Dad

So dad, if you're still alive—though there are some folks here who think maybe you got killed by an automobile or something—come and get me! You see I'll get by all right 'cause somebody is going to take care of me even if you don't. But I need you and, even if you don't think so now, you'll see the day that you'll need me, too.

I'm not always going to stay little. I'm going to grow up to be a big man.

Take a good look at me in the picture. Nurse Hilliard is holding me. I shut my eyes when the photographer took my picture, but I really do have pretty eyes. So dad, wherever you are, tell the folks here at the hospital that you'll soon come and get me.

It's time for me to take a nap now, dad, so I'll tell this reporter to scram. Oh-h-h-h! I'm so sleepy! G'night, dad!

FINAL LEAGUE GAMES PLAYED

West Huntingdon And Cannifton Finish in Tie For First

STIRLING, Feb. 22.—(Special)—In the final double header in the Centre loop staged in the local arena on Tuesday evening, Cannifton took the tilt from Zion Hill by a 3-1 count to climb from the third rung of the ladder and share the first place honours with West Huntingdon, who has been sitting pretty on top of the heap for the entire season. The other game, that of Bethel vs Minto was a much slower fixture than the Zion-Huntingdon affair and was played to decide who should hold the cellar position in the league. The resulting score was a 1 all tie.

Cannifton opened the scoring shortly after the gong sounded when Jack Empson went through the Zion defense, and unassisted, beat the Zion Hill goalie, flat on his stomach to attempt to effect a save, on a beautiful clean shot from directly in front of the net. Zion looked as if they would tally at different times and Parks missed two beautiful opportunities to score in this frame when, over-anxious, he shot wide of an open net. Before the close of the frame, Townsend evened the count 1-1, when he stick-handled his way through the Cannifton phalanx to tally on the defenseless Sharpe who hadn't a chance to make a save. McQuigge and Hanna of Cannifton drew the only penalties. The play on the whole, was fast, clean and fairly even.

The second verse saw Cannifton take the aggressive and speeding up the play, add two well earned counters to their previous one-goal lead. The first was notched by Empson who picked up the puck carried to the defense by Johnston and slipped it by Seeley for his second tally of the evening. The other goal was chalked up by Bill Hanna, left wingman of the second Cannifton line on a beautiful long shot from back of the blue line. Zion Hill was decidedly outclassed in this period and although Caverley and Townsend harassed Sharpe continually, no further score was chalked up in the Zion Hill column.

No score was recorded by either team in the final canto, Cannifton taking the defensive and resorting to shooting the puck up the ice to protect their goal lead, which practice drew loud boohs from the spectators. Townsend and Hayes gave Sharpe of the Cannifton nets a few healthy scares but that boy stood the test and the frame wound up 3-1. Only the stellar work of Seeley in the Zion nets kept Cannifton from adding to their previous margin. Penalties were meted out to Parks, McQuigge, and Townsend.

Cannifton Looked Good

Cannifton played a great game in their Tuesday night performance looked like league winners. Zion Hill scions were not up to their usual standard and did not give half as good a performance as in their Friday night appearance when they tied Huntingdon with a 3 all count. Parks in particular was off-colour and Townsend and Caverley copped the honours for the tilt. To pick a star from the Cannifton aggregation is a difficult task as that team is a particularly well-organized one, each man playing his particular place in a capable manner. The second line of Jarrell, Carmichael and Hanna is a worthy successor to the first line of Johnston, Jarrell and Empson while Sharpe in the nets displays real ability as a keeper of the twine.

The first game of the play downs in all probabilities will be staged in the arena on Friday evening and a record crowd is expected to be on hand to witness the conflict, incidentally a sudden death game, deciding which teams of the three-leaders shall meet in the finals.

Th Minto-Bethel game was a slow affair, no scoring being recorded in the first stanza. In the second period Fargey of Bethel poked in the lone counter which was made up for in the final canto when Hagerman garnered in Robinson's rebound to tally for Minto. The play wound up with a 1 all count.

Line-ups:

Cannifton—Sharpe, goal; McQuigge and Bleekman, defense; Johnston, centre; J. Jarrell and J. Empson, wings; subs—Ed. Jarrell, Williams, Carmichael, Hanna.

Zion Hill—Seeley, goal; Denyes and Sills, defense; Caverley, centre; Parks and Townsend, wings; subs—Pat Hayes.

Bethel—Sills, goal; E. Hudgins, and D. Cranston, defense; R. Dickey, centre; E. Dickey and J. Fargey, wings; subs—B. Brough, O. May, Cronkwright, G. Kennedy.

Referee—James Hulin.

At the conclusion of the Centre League schedule the teams' standing is as follows:

	P.	W.	T.	L.	Pts.
West Huntingdon	10	6	3	1	15
Cannifton	10	6	3	1	15
Zion Hill	10	6	2	2	14
Evergreen	10	2	3	5	7
Bethel	10	1	3	6	5
Minto	10	1	2	7	4

Picton and Prince Edward County

BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT

Picton and Prince Edward County

Picton, Ont., Feb. 22 (Special) —On Monday evening the weekly card party of the L.O.L. and L.O.B.A. was held in the club rooms on Elizabeth Street. Eleven tables of euchre were in play, with the prizes going to Miss Clara Millman and Mr. Quinn. Delicious refreshments were served at the close of the game. The success of the evening was due largely to the committee in charge consisting of, Robert Welsh, C. Culmer, Sr., Thomas Caimpney, Mrs. Roy Covert, Mrs. S. Welsh and Mrs. George Ovens.

Mr. John Heffernan and Miss Mary Heffernan motored to Belleville and had a short visit with Mr. Jeremiah Heffernan, K.C., of Edmonton, as he passed through Belleville en route to Texas.

On Tuesday night at Picton Arena Bloomfield and the Bankers played with the score 3-1 in favor of the Bankers. This puts Bloomfield in third place in the play-offs. Durnford scored the only goal for Bloomfield on a pass from Hudgin, after only eighteen seconds of play. Bert Burns scored one goal in the first period and one in the last for the Bankers. Kelson scored the third goal for the Bankers while Green helped that team considerably with his splendid defense work. Only two penalties were meted out—one to Durnford and the other to Harold Herrington.

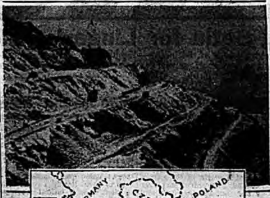
Messrs. Fred Juby and Adrian Hicks of Trenton, spent the week end at their homes here.

Mr. Cecil Bongard entered Prince Edward County Hospital on Sunday for treatment, and will undergo a major operation in the near future.

Mrs. Will Hicks spent Tuesday afternoon and evening the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Adams.

Another large party at Bayside Park on Tuesday evening, was sponsored by Mrs. Eddie Caton and her mother, Mrs. Robinson of Royal Street. All report a good time.

MOUNTAIN OF ORE LURES GERMANY



Here is a view of Erzberg mountani, so-called "mountian of ore", in southern Austria, which foreign-observers assert may become a potential cause of war in Europe. To bring Erzberg within Geman boders is declared to be a reason why Germany would like to gain possession of Austria. The mountain, which contains 300,000,000 tons of iron ore, would keep Germany supplied with all the ore she now needs. As a result of the Treaty of Versailles, Germany lost three-fourths of its iron ore in Alsace-Lorraine, Luxembourg and the Saar. Location of the mountain is shown on the map.

LATE MISS MARGARET WILLIAMS

Following a few days' illness Margaret Williams, daughter of the late James and Mary (Hastings) Williams, passed away Tuesday evening last, at the residence of her nephew, J. J. Murphy, Lonsdale. Born in Tyendinaga Township, 84 years ago, Miss Williams spent most of her life there, though she had resided at Belleville and Deseronto. She was a devout member of St. Mary's Church, Marysville, and mass for the repose of her soul was sung there this (Thursday) morning and interment made in St. Mary's Cemetery.

BOILER CASE IS COMPLETED

Following the submission of the evidence in the last case entered for trial at the local sittings of the Spring Assizes, His Lordship, Mr. Justice Armour, directed that the solicitors concerned forward their final arguments in the matter to him, in writing, after which he will give judgment in the case. The case entered was Cook and Reid vs. The Benson and Williams Canning Company.

The action was entered by George Cook and Alf. Reid of Prince Edward County against the Benson and Williams Canning Company of Bloomfield for the recovery of certain machinery, a boiler and attachments, which had been sold by the executive of the Wellington Marbelite Brick Company to Messrs. Benson and Williams, while the plaintiffs in the above mentioned case held a mortgage against the Brick Company's holdings. The plaintiffs were represented by Chas. A. Payne K.C., with Robt. Nourse of Picton acting as the defendant's counsel.

The plaintiffs endeavoured to establish, that the boiler was a permanent fixture and belonged to the chattels of the Wellington Brick Co., when they foreclosed their mortgage early last spring. The defence endeavoured to establish, that the boilers and attachments sold to them, Messrs. Benson and Williams, by the Brick Co. were not fixtures and even if they were the transaction was legitimate owing to the fact, that the mortgagees held but a mortgage on the lands and buildings of the Brick Co., and not the machinery.

Mr. W. Ingram, previous secretary-treasurer of the Wellington Marbelite Brick Company, was the first witness called and testified as to the origin and placing of the boiler. He swore the boiler was a permanent fixture but later admitted it had never been used and might be termed as surplus equipment.

In Building at Foreclosure

Geo. F. Cook, one of the mortgagees on the property when it was known as the J. G. Sheppard Brick Co., stated he was under the impression, that no machinery could be moved from the building while the mortgage was in force. He told of foreclosing the mortgage and placing a lock on the building. Mr. Cook, swore, that the boiler was in the building, when he and Mr. Reid foreclosed. He did not think the plant equal to the mortgage held, although he later admitted knowing that the machinery was not paid for nor did he realize it was not properly set up. It having been previously established, that the boiler in question was not in a stationary position but, merely suspended temporarily within a few inches of its permanent place, if it was ever to be used. Neither Mr. Cook nor Mr. Reid who corroborated his statements, knew that the Brick Company had a capacity of 40,000 bricks per day when operating.

Mr. Williams and Mr. Benson told of purchasing the boiler and attachments in good faith, the purchase being made through the firm of Young and Nourse, their solicitors at Picton. Harold Ralston, Wellington wrecker, told of moving the boiler. He did not think it could be termed as a permanent fixture.

Mr. J. G. Sheppard, president of the Brick Co., stated there were no liens on the machinery, when he sold it. The only money being owed against it was to its original owners. The boiler had never been permanently placed in the building as another working boiler carried sufficient power to operate the plant, said the witness. He valued the machinery in the plant at $50,000, and the buildings at $20,000. He was of the opinion, that the disposed of boiler was but surplus machinery and did not belong to the plant. The question of whether the boiler was permanently fixed was argued at length by Mr. Payne and Mr. Nourse. Questions of the removal of eye-beams and the position of the uprights holding the boiler in place also entered considerably into the case.

Due to the lengthy discussion, that would be necessary by the two solicitors, Mr. Justice Armour asked them to place their final arguments before him in writing and he would hand down judgment. This being the final case on the docket the local Spring Assizes was completed.

Variations in Temperatures Explained by Meteorologist

Professor of McGill Says Cheap Thermometer Unreliable

During these days of extreme and overnight wide variations in temperatures, many arguments and conjectures are heard as to the cause of wide differences in reading in localities in the city and suburban points. For example taking one record cold day at the beginning of this month temperature readings which ranged twelve and fifteen degrees higher than in this city were simultaneously reported from Cannifton, Corbyville, Rossmore and other nearby points. The north country, in the vicinity of Bancroft, Oce Hill and other sections lagged in with readings which were almost paralytic, but in this case the difference may have been due solely to the weather. However, it is not to be imagined that such a variation in degrees could be recorded between Belleville and Cannifton or Rossmore.

Prof. A. J. Kelly, meteorologist to McGill University, Montreal, explains the why and wherefore of thermometers and the variation, that is often recorded even in cities He explains, also, how correct readings are obtained, but can offer little help to the average man with a cheap thermometer.

The temperature of the air depends on the place where the instrument is placed, he stated, and if the temperature of one site is to be compared with another they should have the same exposure. The ideal location is a plot of level ground, with the instruments placed at twice the height of the nearest object and sheltered from rain, snow and sun. Instruments placed on a steep slope or hill are subjected to unusual conditions, it was explained and they should face the north.

Cheap thermometers can't give true readings, said the weatherman, because the graduations are placed on the base and the tube is put on afterwards, leaving to a wide margin of error. Even official precision instruments are not made absolutely true, due to the difficulty in getting the fine bore exactly the same diameter throughout the travel of the mercury But these errors are determined before the instruments are placed, and are corrected according to the prescribed factor.

The recommendation for the average man who wants a temperature reading between about two degrees of accuracy is that he should place the instrument facing the north, protected from snow, rain and sun, and not exposed to heat radiation from windows, doorways or roofs. Readings could then be checked with official readings, and the margin of error inscribed.

It is not possible for one to get accurate readings with a cheap thermometer, and it is these instruments, which are probably responsible for readings varying from the truth by as much sometimes as 15 degrees.

Chicago, Feb. 23—(CP)—"I'm homesick," 14-year-old Joseph Moore of Sandwich, Ont., told Capt. Michael Foran of the Summit police after the lad was stopped while trudging through this Chicago suburb.

'I'm going back home,' Joseph added.

Captain Foran informed the boy that the way he was walking led to the Gulf of Mexico instead of Sandwich. The officer then began a search for Joseph's caretaker, a woman known to him only as "Elsie". An aunt left Joseph with the caretaker three days ago, promising to return in two weeks.

Toronto, Feb. 23—(CP)— Three separate plans for the return of Ontario citizens to the land are being submitted to municipalities under the relief land settlement scheme. The colonization committee of the legislature was told today by William Magladery, secretary of the Land Settlement Board. The plans provide for establishing families on crown lands in New Ontario. Establishing them on small holdings on market gardens. Establishing them on vacant farms in the old parts of the province.

DIDN'T PAY HOMAGE

FORMER KAISER WILHELM

Because the Hohenzollerns never have forgiven King Albert I of Belgium for blocking the path of the German army through Belgium at the start of the world war, the house of Hohenzollern was the only royal or former royal house in Europe which did not pay homage to the dead King of the Belgians. Former Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany, above is said to have made the decision, despite the fact that King Albert's mother was a Hohenzollern princess.

99 YEARS FOR 3 'SNATCHERS'

Chicago, Feb. 23—(AP)—The law after three trials has put the finger on Roger Touhy, one of the last and most notorious of the dry era desperadoes.

A jury convicted Touhy and two others early today for the abduction of John (Jake the Barber) Factor, and fixed the prison sentences of all three at 99 years. Those convicted with him were Albert Kator and Gustav Schaefer—lesser fellows in a once mighty combine against law and order.

With today's verdict, authorities said, the last of the gangs which during prohibition gave Chicago an unwelcome reputation as a capital of crime, has been destroyed. Only remnants of the "big shot" gangs remain, and their trail is kept constantly hot.

Al Capone, the original "number one public enemy," is serving a 10-year federal prison sentence for tax law violation. Others of the considerable company of crime lords are either in prison or dead by the hands of gangsters—William (three-fingered Jack) White, killer and racketeer, dead; James (Fur) Sammons, serving a life term as an habitual criminal; and Gus Winkler who aspired to gang leadership on the north side. Murray Humphreys the present "number one" public enemy is a fugitive from justice

Jury Unanimous

Touhy, Kator and Schaefer in shackles, heard the "bad news" shortly after mid-night today when a criminal court jury, after six hours deliberation, returned its verdict. A previous trial ended in a jury disagreement. Before that in St. Paul, Minn., Touhy was acquitted of a federal charge of kidnapping William Hamm. Jr.

The conviction of the Touhy gangsters came after a seven-day trial. The first ballot resulted in a unanimous verdict of guilty. The second was taken after arguments between jurors as to what the sentence would be. One half of them were reported to have held out for the death penalty. A second vote, however, resulted in a unanimous verdict of 99 years in prison

The state had asked for the death penalty "or at least 99 years" and unless the sentence is made invalid by a new trial or a reversal by the supreme court the Touhy men will go to prison to remain for at least 33 years—the required time before they would be eligible for parole.

ELGAR DEAD COMPOSER OF KING'S MUSICK

Protracted Illness After Operation Last October

SON OF ORGANIST

Died Without Completing Long Awaited "Third Symphony"

Worcester, Feb. 23 (AP)—Sir Edward Elgar, distinguished composer and Master of the King's Musick since 1924, died today at the age of 77 years after a protracted illness which followed an operation last October.

Death came to him quietly at his home here at about 7.45 a.m. He had grown steadily weaker for days.

Sir Edward, son of an organist and music shop keeper, who tried law and then gave it up for his first love, died without completing his long-awaited work, "The Third Symphony."

His most popular composition was the world-renowned march "Pomp and Circumstance." It was written on the occasion of the coronation of King Edward VII. His death came on the day of another coronation—that of Leopold III. of Belgium.

Following the operation, Sir Edward made fair progress for a time, but suffered a relapse. Before growing worse however, he was removed to his home last month.

There, from his sick bed, he assisted by telephone in recording for the phonograph one of his earlier compositions. Listening through an amplifier at his bedside, he relayed his criticisms and suggestions to the leader who actually was directing the orchestra.

Although his "Third Symphony" was almost completed at the time he underwent the operation, illness prevented his piecing it together.

Sir Edward was born at Broadheath, Worcestershire, June 2, 1857. In 1889 he married Caroline Alice Roberts, daughter of the late General Sir Henry Gee Roberts, she died in 1920.

Relief Workers Who Dodge Rents Will Lose Jobs, Says Mayor Tice

A final note of warning was sounded today by Mayor George O. Tice to men on relief work in the city who have been ignoring the payment of rents on houses in which they reside, or, in the case of homeowners, have neglected to make payments on taxes for homes, which are in arrears. Three extra days on each shift, above the number of hours' work needed for actual living expenses had been added this winter for the men for the specific purpose of paying this rent or tax money.

It is said by Mayor Tice that several of the men have persistently refused or neglected to pay this money over, and have spent their whole pay on other things. To these men the warning by Mayor Tice was particularly addressed.

"It simply means that if we get any more complaints from landlords or the tax office, we will have to lay these men off relief altogether," stated Mayor Tice this morning. "The first complaint we get after this final warning will mean immediate action. They have been warned before and this is the last one."

Belgian Crown Prince Enthroned at Brussels

Simple Service as Leopold Assumes Rule Over Belgians

OATH IS TAKEN

(By Albert W. Wilson, Associated Press Foreign Staff)

Brussels, Feb. 23 (AP)—A new King of the Belgians, Leopold III, was enthroned today when the former Crown Prince took the oath to defend the constitution before both Houses of Parliament.

He officially became King, succeeding his father the late Albert I, at the conclusion of the reciting of the oath at 11 o'clock this morning.

The 32-year-old monarch spoke the brief oath in French and repeated it in Flemish before the legislators and assembled dignitaries.

A splendid array of foreign representatives and diplomats in the lavishly decorated Chamber of Deputies, cheered the new ruler with the same enthusiasm as did thousands of people who watched him on his ride to parliament from the royal castle at suburban Laeken.

Thousands of Belgian ecstatically shouting "Vive Le Roi" and waving flags and handkerchiefs, hailed Leopold III. on his triumphant ride.

Some sections along the route showed less enthusiasm than others but there were no organized counter manifestations. Scattered anti-Royalist elements among the crowds which pressed in a solid, cheering, pushing throng along the streets were drowned out in the roar of acclaim.

In Merry Mood

For the most part Brussels was in a merry mood.

Overnight the populace seemed to have cast off its sorrows for the departed King. Well wishes for the son were the order of the day.

Leopold, himself, was serious and even grim as he saluted his subjects. Dressed for the first time in the full regalia of a lieutenant general, and wearing white gloves, he rode a brown horse.

He was a striking figure as he dismounted to be greeted by a special delegation and escorted to the throne erected in the chamber.

After the swearing-in ceremony, the accession of Leopold III. to the throne was announced to the waiting thousands outside by trumpeters. They sounded a fanfare from the steps of the parliament building.

A great cheer went up from the multitudes when the King emerged.

Amid shouts of acclamation, he remounted his horse and headed the procession which moved through the streets to Brussels to the royal palace in the same order as it had come from Laeken.

Queen Not in Procession

Queen Astrid did not participate in the procession from the royal castle. She was borne by motor car directly to the parliament building. There she had been escorted to her throne when Leopold entered the chamber.

The new Queen, clasping both her children by the hands, entered the royal carriage after Leopold had taken his place in the procession.

Then the mother, the little three-year-old Crown Prince Baudoin and his six year old sister, Princess Josephine Charlotte, followed the procession back to the palace.

The scene within the chamber as the King took the oath was deeply impressive.

As he concluded the whole assemblage rose.

Mingled with outbursts of cheering were shouts of "Vive Le Roi" and "Vive La Reine."

The Queen Mother, the widowed Queen Elizabeth was not present at the ceremony.

Manhattan Shepherd Loses Sheep Due to Edict of New York Municipality

For 26 years Frank Hoey tended the flock which grazed on the pastures of Central Park, giving a pleasant pastoral to a distracted city—like the tinkle of a cow-bell in the Grand Central Railroad Terminal.

Now the sheep are gone and Hoey is very sad.

"And look where they went," he snorted "To Brooklyn!"

The other day the Park Commission decided that municipally-owned sheep were not-essential to civic progress. So the sheep were disposed of and the sheep cote, in which Hoey has lived for more than a quarter of a century, will be turned into a cafe—lamb chops at attractive prices.

Hoey paused awhile in his housebreaking activities today.

"Tak! Tak!" he said. "I hate to think of a New York without any sheep. I hate to lose the sheep. I hate to move from here.

"Why, they were the park's biggest attraction. They were educational. For years, school children and their parents have come here to see them. It was their only chance to get an idea of farm life."

FORMER MAID HELD BY JURY FOR 2 DEATHS

Inquest Into Deaths of Children by Poisoned Candy, Sensation

SOON ARRESTED

Evidence Given Mrs. Aurore Dagenais Asked Father to Marry Her

Lachute, Que., Feb. 23 (CP)—The woman who formerly cared for their wants in her position as nursemaid, Mrs. Aurore Dagenais today was in police custody held criminally responsible by a coroner's jury last night for the deaths of Jacques and Philippe Raymond, found dead in bed after eating poisoned candy.

The jury required only 15 minutes to render its verdict and Mrs. Dagenais, formerly Aurore Lavigne, widow of Aristide Dagenais, was immediately arrested on verbal order from Dr. Pierre Hebert, Deputy Coroner of Montreal.

A crowded court room heard Alderman Gregoire Raymond, father of the children, aged five and three, respectively, testify Mrs. Dagenais lived at his home in the interval between the death of his second wife and his marriage to his third. She had often urged him to marry her, he declared, and while Mrs. Dagenais lived in the house their relations were as husband and wife.

Intended for Another

The Crown alleges the children were poisoned by candy intended for their stepmother. Raymond told the court he believed the writing on the parcel in which the candies were sent was that of Mrs. Dagenais. In the past he had received chocolates from Mrs. Dagenais but on the last time, Saturday, Feb. 10 the inclosed card was not signed. The message read: "My poor Gregoire, better late than never. There are two candies for Jacques and two for Philippe. The big one is for Madame. You do not eat chocolate," he said.

On Sunday the children ate the smaller chocolates and suffered no ill effects but when they went to bed the large candy was cut in half and given them. In the morning they were dead, Raymond testified. Dr. Rosaire Fontaine, medico-legal expert of Montreal, stated the autopsy showed there was enough poison in the bodies of the children to kill eight children of their ages.

RIDERLESS HORSE FOUND INDIAN THOUGHT NEAR

Believe Man Wanted for Shooting Hiding in Wilderness

Kamloops, B.C., Feb. 23 (CP) — A riderless horse, saddled and bridled, believed to be that on which the wanted Indian, "Niche" Seymour, escaped into the wilderness, has been found by Inspector John Shirras, leading the British Columbia Provincial Police search for Seymour.

Persons who attended the alleged "home brew" party at which Mrs. Johnny Baptiste was shot on Feb 11 reported Seymour did the shooting. They said Seymour mounted his horse and galloped away immediately afterwards. He was followed by another native who declared Seymour warned him back at gun-point and announced his intention of committing suicide.

The body of Mrs. Baptiste has been taken to Hanceville, B.C. where an inquest will be held.

Gold Holdings in Canada Taken Over by New Bank Proposed in House Bill

Bank of Canada Notes Replace 75 Per Cent of Old Currency

LIMIT INTEREST

Nine Point Program Outlined by Hon. E. N. Rhodes

OTTAWA, Feb. 23.—(CP)—Important changes in Canada's banking laws are before Parliament today in the form of two pieces of legislation, one to establish "the Bank of Canada" and the other the periodical revision of the Bank Act, which governs the Charters of the Commercial Banks.

The measures are regarded by the government, as a step in the evolution of the Canadian Banking System which has been hailed in other countries as one of the most efficient and stable in the world. In no sense, both Prime Minister R. B. Bennett and Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance, emphasized yesterday, do the changes imply failure or defects on the part of the banking system to date. They are designed to make it still more useful and to bring it into line with recent developments most of them in the international sphere.

The Bank of Canada, as the new Central Bank is called in the Bill follows closely the suggestions outlined in the report of the Royal Commission on banking. Its functions are those of the central banks of other countries and it will consequently take over some of the functions now performed by the Finance Department and some of the functions of the chartered banks.

GOLD MINERS UNCONCERNED

Newly-mined Gold Under Bank Bill Brings High Price

Toronto, Feb. 23—(CP)— The Canadian gold mining companies feel no concern over the details of the Canadian bank bill which provides for the turning over of all gold stocks in the Dominion to the new institution. The bill is clear, they say, that only gold reserves will be taken at the old standard price of $20.67 an ounce and that all newly-mined gold will continue to command the world price which at present is around $35 an ounce.

An official of McIntyre Porcupine Mines Ltd., discussing the matter today, said the mining companies would not be barred, under the provisions of the bill, from accumulating stocks of yellow metal for reasonable periods if they desired. Any accumulation now is in federal possession he said, and not at the mines.

Toronto, Feb. 23—(CP)— Strong disapproval of certain aspects of the proposed Central Bank Act was voiced today by Capt. Elmore Philpott, Co-operative Commonwealth Federation organizer.

The key to the whole banking situation is that hitherto we have had private control of public credit, with exploitation by private interest, he said. The new banking law has certainly failed to erect adequate safeguards against the extension and perpetuation of that system.

W.H. Ireland Had Adventures Afoot After Stopping Train Out of Agincourt

Toronto, Feb. 23—W. H. Ireland, whip of the Ontario Conservative party, has discovered that this business of stolen slumber is not what it's cracked up to be.

Friend Bill started for Trenton the other night via a train which, after leaving the city had suddenly to be re-routed because of a traffic tie-up ahead.

"Well, I'll get off at Agincourt," said Bill to himself "and come back to Toronto". But when he straightened with a jerk from the peaceful and contented doze into which he'd permitted himself to slip he was a good three miles beyond Agincourt with the sturdy locomotive pounding away downhill as fast as she could travel.

Three savage yanks on the engine cord—action which brought him into immediate wordy conflict with the brass-buttoned conductor —and "our hero" was off the car platform, at the bottom of a gravel bank, and in almost impenetrable dark.

There were no Hastings County brush wolves yapping. It wasn't fifty below zero. He didn't feel like suiciding or anything so violent But the walking was awfully tough and uncertain, and to make matters worse, at the very first lamplit farmhouse door of which he politely inquired directions he drew a woman's high-pitched, business-like "Get out of here, you big tramp I'm not going to feed you again this week."

FIRE TRAPS TWO CHILDREN

Two Make Their Escape From Burning Inferno

St. Joseph, N.B., Feb. 23—(CP)— Two little boys, Albert Cormier, four, and his brother Robert, two, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Albert S. Cormier, were burned to death, when fire broke out in the kitchen of their home yesterday and gained such headway within a few minutes that the youngsters were trapped. Two other children, Annette, three, and Gerrard, six made their escape. Four more of the family of nine were safe at school.

The mother, Anthony Belliveau and Elliott R. Webb made gallant efforts to reach the trapped children—Mrs. Cormier carrying out her three-month-old baby—but they were unable to save the other two due to the dense smoke and intense heat.

Mrs. Cormier, had left Albert, Robert, Gerard and Annette playing in the kitchen when she went to the clothes line to hang out washing.

While she was doing this, Belliveau came to the house, selling fish. Mrs. Cormier, after making a purchase, went toward the kitchen to get the money to pay him She found the interior a blazing furnace.

Although the actual cause of the fire was not known, it was thought that the four children had been playing around the kitchen stove, which had a fire burning in it and in some manner caused the stove to tip or ignite some portion of the kitchen.

"DUKE" McCURRY TO HANDLE GAME

Manager Eddie Thomas of the Belleville juniors announced this morning that Dr. Frank (Duke) McCurry of Toronto, has been appointed by the O.H.A. to officiate at tonight's Queen's at Belleville junior playoff fixture at the Arena. Dr. McCurry is recognized as one of the best referees in the O.H.A. as well as being a regular member of the National Hockey League's referee staff. The game should be excellently handled with him ringing the bell. It will be remembered that Duke handled with satisfaction the Peterboro-Belleville intermediate series last season.

"Y" BOYS ENJOY SLEIGH RIDE

The "Junior School" group, boys 12 to 14 years of age, of the local Y.M.C.A. held a sleighing party last evening. Full of energy and enthusiasm the boys assembled at the "Y" at 7 o'clock and after enjoying a 2 hour sleigh ride returned to the building where they enjoyed an abundance of hot cocoa, sandwiches and cake. With a rousing three cheers the boys declared the night a big success.

SOUTH END EUCHRE MUCH ENJOYED

Members of the South End A.C. and their friends enjoyed a euchre in the Club rooms on Thursday night, the following being prize winners—Ladies, Mrs. Luscombe, Mrs. Vic Hannah, Mrs. W. H. McEwen and men's John McEwen, Gene Doyle and William Ralls.

COMRADE CLUB PRODUCE PLAY

Last evening the members of the Comrade Club of Tabernacle Church presented their comedy success "The Strike of the Ladies' Aid" in the Salvation Army Citadel. A good crowd attended and thoroughly enjoyed the amusing play.

SAME MARKERS AGAIN ISSUED

A perennial issue of two distinctive motor vehicle license plates of the same number to each resident of this city has again been made from the Toronto office of Mr. J. F. Bickle, Registrar of Motor Vehicles, it was revealed by the office of the local issuer, Mr. Geo. E. Ketcheson, today.

Both numbers, which have been issued annually for the past several years have been received in the city. Col. W. N. Ponton K.C. enjoys the distinction of driving a car bearing license plate number P-100. The car of the late Judge J. F. Wills is equipped with license plate number JP-1. Through the courtesy of Mr. Bickle, the same plates have been issued each year without application being made.

A WANT-AD will FIND IT!

DEADLINE SET FOR MARCH 31

Motor Owners Must Have 1934 Licence Plates by That Time

A period of grace until the end of March, given motor car owners of the Province before 1934 plates are needed, has put a crimp in the activities of the office of issuers throughout the section, with a period of extreme quietness just now being reported at the office of the local issuer, Mr. George E. Ketcheson.

"But when they do start applying for them, some time about the middle of March, it will come with a rush," stated Mr. Ketcheson today. "Just now it's the quietest I've seen it in years."

Altho' the dead line for motorists has been set by the Department of Highways for the end of March, it is not expected that business in new plates will commence until dust begins to blow on the streets. This will place the first rush period at about March 15 when the spring rush and the annual rush for new plates will coincide.

"We expect to sell just as many licenses this year as in any year previous," stated the office. "In fact we may even sell more. There have been a lot of new cars sold this year and last year."

56 motorcycle licenses were sold last year in the city. The plates were secured for these smaller vehicles just as a favor for a local cycle club. This year's total may exceed this number and return a small profit to the office.

Motorists, who are a little fussy about getting quick service and lots of help on the application blanks can secure lots of co-operation now. Clerks in the office with lots of time on their hands can spare the time necessary to assist them in making out forms for applicants who apply now during the quiet period.

BRASS SLUGS USED FOR PHONE CHARGES

Nine Found in One Pay Box in the City on Thursday

Brass slugs used for money have recently been discovered in local pay telephone boxes. In one local box yesterday nine such coins were removed by the Bell Telephone Company's collector in the presence of the local police. The slugs used in these pay telephone stations are made of brass and each in duplicate size with a twenty five cent piece and a five cent piece. They also weigh approximately the same as a silver coin of the denominations, being but very little lighter in weight.

According to local police theory these slugs were originally manufactured for slot machine use, as each one is stamped 25c or 5c as the case may be, but, are not perforated along the edges as is a Canadian quarter of a dollar. Reports of a similar appearance of such slugs have been received locally from other parts of the province.

The police department are not satisfied with their findings in the matter as no check-up regarding whether the slugs were all used at one time or at intervals, could be ascertained. The telephone authorities are endeavouring to trace long distance calls made from the pay station, where the brass slugs were found in order to ascertain whether or not the coins were all used at one time or at various intervals.

WEATHER

Toronto, Feb. 23— Considerably below zero temperatures are general this morning from Northern Quebec westward to the Rockies while over the Maritime Provinces and Eastern Quebec the weather has been mild.

Northern Ontario — Northwest winds; fair and decidedly cold tonight and Saturday.

Ottawa and Upper St. Lawrence Valley—Fresh northwest winds; fair and colder tonight and Saturday.

Kenora and Rainy River— Moderate northwest winds; fair and decidedly cold.

Alberta—Fair, not much change in temperature.

WEEKLY LIVESTOCK REVIEW

Toronto, Feb. 23 (CP)—Hogs, despite a heavier run, registered the only gain in prices on the Toronto Livestock Market during the week, closing 50 cents per hundredweight higher than the previous week's closing level. Other classes of livestock dropped sharply from 25c on cattle to 50c on calves and lambs.

Receipts generally showed a considerable increase compared with last week's supply. The cattle run was too heavy for market requirements, and though prices dropped, there were still 250 head left at the close.

LEG BROKEN IN ACCIDENT

George N. Phillips, Cannifton, Struck by Truck Crossing Road

George N. Phillips, 77, Cannifton sustained a broken left leg and general shaking up, when struck by the Belleville Hydro Electric Commission truck, driven northward by Harold Arnott of this city, in Cannifton about 10.30 a.m. today. Mr. Phillips was taken to the Belleville General Hospital in the city ambulance.

According to the statements given by Mr. Arnott to Highway Traffic Officer Byles, who investigated, Mr. Phillips apparently became frightened as the Hydro truck endeavoured to pass him, as he stepped directly in front of the vehicle. The truck was being driven in a northerly direction, while Mr. Phillips was walking on the right hand side of the road in the same direction. Mr. Arnott claims to have sounded his horn as he was about to pass Mr. Phillips, but owing to the heavy blizzard, that was at that time in progress, the man started across the road as the truck was endeavouring to pass him. Mr. Arnott claims to have stopped his truck within a few feet after the left side of the front bumper struck Mr. Phillips above the knee on the left leg. He was knocked down. There were no eye witnesses it is believed, although a number of the villagers were soon at the scene giving aid.

Mr. Arnott was proceeding towards Tweed, where he was to have repaired the refrigeration plant in the local Dominion store. Mr. Arnott assured the police he had done everything humanly possible to avert the accident. He believed Mr. Phillips had either suddenly decided to cross the road or had become mixed in his directions owing to the heavy blizzard raging at that time.

Mr. Phillips has resided in Cannifton for the past four years moving to that place from his farm on the Third Concession of Thurlow, where he had resided all his life. Mr. Phillips is well known about this community.

TEN PENSIONS UNDER REVIEW

Day And Half Taken up By Applicants At Belleville

The first session of the new quorum of the Canadian Pension Commission concluded in the city at noon today. One and one-half days were necessary to review the ten applicants from throughout this district who presented themselves. The quorum was composed of Dr. D. W. Gray, Stephen Jones and Mr. J. A. MacIsaac, Pensions Advocate.

The procedure, under the recent amendment to the Pension Act, effective October 1st, 1933, varied from previous hearings under the former Pension Tribunal. Evidence was presented in affidavit form and the cumbersome system of verbatim reports by the court stenographer has been dispensed with.

The following ten applicants' cases were reviewed in the open hearing which was held in council chamber of the city hall. Applicants will be notified in due course whether their claims have been passed on successfully:

636580—A. Bierwerth.
7833—E. Bradley.
343965—C. R. Brown.
221128—G. W. Burdette.
636465—A. Danford.
838931—A. E. Lowry.
638355—A. Potter.
261415—A. Sprague.
113438—G. McKie.
60094—J. A. Wood.

Department Issues a Memorandum on 1934 Exams

Dates of Departmental Examinations for 1934 have been announced. A memorandum from the Department of Education states that the dates "have been carefully selected with a view to the best interests of the pupils, and in accordance with the generally expressed wishes of school boards throughout the province. Some years ago the examinations were begun on earlier dates, and the practice was continued during the War to allow students to assist as much as possible in industry and on the farm. Then, in response to insistent demands, the examinations were begun later, as late as June 30th in 1919. The earlier part of July that year was unusually hot, and vigorous protests were received. The dates were then set back, but complaints were received this time on the ground that the schools and equipment were not being used as fully as they ought to be, and that teachers were being paid for the month of June during which they were teaching only part of the time. The examination dates are now somewhat later, and the plea of extreme heat is being used by some as an argument for earlier dates. As a matter of fact the difference in the mean temperature between the last week of June and the first week of July is very slight. The Meteorological Office furnishes the following statistics:

	Degrees
Mean temperature for the 3rd week in June	64.1
Mean temperature for the 4th week in June	66.3
Mean temperature for the 1st week in July	66.8
Mean temperature for the 2nd week in July	68.1

"Many do not realize how short the school year is. In the present year there are only 199 legal school days. Few who understand all the conditions under which school programmes are carried out are in favour of any curtailment of the year's work, but in order to have the results of the examinations published in sufficient time for students to get ready for the opening of the universities and school in the fall term it is necessary to encroach somewhat upon the legal school year. By beginning this year's examinations on June 25th, more than 71 per cent of all the Middle and Upper School papers will be written by June 29th and every candidate but the very few who take Upper School German, Spanish or Greek will finish by July 6th. Every factor connected with school work and examination requirements has been carefully reviewed, and the present selection of dates for examinations is believed to be the best possible."

High School Entrance Examinations extend from Thursday June 28 to Thursday July 5; Model Entrance from Wednesday, June 27 to Wednesday, July 4; Lower School from June 28 to July 6; Middle School from June 25 to July 6; Upper School June 25 to July 11.

POLICE NEWS

Joseph Labreque, St. Johns, Que., failed to put in an appearance in Friday morning's police court as was fully expected by the officials. The morning previous he had pleaded guilty to a charge of vagrancy, sentence being enlarged for 24 hours. Accused was allowed his freedom at that time on his own bail being warned if he was not out of the province with 24 hours a severe sentence would be passed. He lost little time in beating a hasty retreat.

A 17 year old girl who accompanied Labreque on this journey westward from Montreal a week ago, appeared this morning and pleaded guilty to vagrancy. The case was enlarged until some means of transportation could be arranged for the girl to Quebec. It is thought the girl will leave today.

DISTRICT BUTTERMAKERS NAME OFFICERS FOR YEAR

John H. Scott, Chief Instructor Directs Competition

Bay of Quinte District buttermakers met in the Y.M.C.A. parlours, Thursday evening, for the second time this year, and held election of officers for 1934. Some twenty representatives from throughout the district were in attendance and besides the selection of officers, carried through a rigidly contested butter and cream grading competition. Mr. John H. Scott, chief instructor of the Dairy Branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture was present from Toronto and directed the competition, assisted by J. L. Baker, instructor of the Belleville group of buttermakers. Mr. Roy Jose of the Belleville Creameries, president of the Association, occupied the chair during the evening.

A team from this district composed of Thos. Mallette of the Swift Canadian Co., Ltd., Roy Jose of the Belleville Creameries Ltd., and N. C. Lade of Havelock, was a competitor in the provincial competition at Toronto, last fall, and its members were debarred as prize winners Thursday evening. Mr. Jose made highest score in the grading of both butter and cream, last night, but the ruling eliminated him from the local grand championship.

The grand championship (for both butter and cream grading), went to Arthur McCarey of the Tweed Creamery; 2nd, Fred McGuin of the Citizen's Dairy, Belleville; 3rd, Roy Thomlinson of the Stirling Creamery.

Awards for butter grading: Fred McGuin, Roy Thomlinson and Arthur McCarey. While prizes for cream grading went to Harry Bailey and Arthur McCarey, with six members tied for fourth place.

The meeting was most interesting throughout, and Mr. Scott's brief but knowledgeable remarks were greatly appreciated by the buttermakers of the district in attendance.

As the result of the election Thursday evening, the following will direct the affairs of the Association for the next twelve months —President—Thomas Mallette of the local Swift Canadian Co.; Vice-President,— Arthur Coukell of the Trenton Dairy; Secretary-Treasurer —Fred McGuin of the Citizen's Dairy (re-elected). Executive Committee—H. Bailey, Picton Creamery; Roy Jose, Belleville Creameries; and S. O. Graham, Riverside Dairy, Trenton.

OBITUARY

MISS MARGARET WILLIAMS

Largely attended by former friends and neighbors, the funeral of the late Miss Margaret Williams, was held Thursday morning from the residence of her nephew, J. J. Murphy, of Lonsdale to St. Mary's Church, Marysville. There at 11 o'clock the Rev. Father Whalen of Kingston celebrated mass, and also officiated at the place of interment in St. Mary's cemetery.

Acting bearers were Messrs. John and Patrick Farrell, Frank McAuley, Frank Brennan, Patrick Roche and Thomas Walsh.

LATE MRS. JOHN McKEOWN

Rawdon, Feb. 23 (Special)—A large concourse of mourners and friends attended the funeral on Wednesday afternoon, February 21, in St. Mark's New Anglican Church, Bonarlaw, of the late Mrs. Margaret (Stewart) McKeown, of the 12th. concession of Rawdon. Her pastor, Rev. Hope Swayne delivered a comforting message and paid tribute to her useful life in church and community.

The bearers were all nephews, Messrs. Billie and Reginald Burkitt, Lorne and Clarence Anderson, Thos. McKeown and Ray Stewart.

Interment was made in the 12th. line cemetery, near her late home.

Her adopted daughter, Mrs. McDonnel (nee Florence Sanders McKeown) and her own daughter Mrs. (Dr.) Archie MacDonald of Seylon, Sask., both arrived a few days previous to her death and are remaining for a short time.

Beautiful floral tributes covered the casket and were:

Pillow—Husband, Kenneth, Cyril, Ralph, Garland, Marion and Florence. Pillow—Her mother, Brother John, Sister Effie, Jessie and Grace. Sheaf, Mrs. Lily Anderson and four sons. Sheaf of Daffodils, Springbrook Women's Institute.

MRS. JAMES JESSOP

Born in Sidney Township 90 years ago, the death occurred early this (Friday) morning of Mrs. Mary Catherine Jessop, widow of James Jessop. Mrs. Jessop had been ill for some time and she passed away quietly at her late residence, 86 West Moira St. The deceased was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Rose and had been a resident of Belleville for the past 9 years, previous to which her home had been in Brighton. Mrs. Jessop was a member of the Holloway St. United Church. One sister, Mrs. Victoria L. Maybee of Brighton is the only immediate surviving relative.

Funeral notice will appear later.

BELGIAN PRINCE IS ENTHRONED

Their best efforts were drowned in the ovation, which lasted a full five to six minutes. The Communists were not heard except by those who were nearest them.

Queen Astrid was seated upon the platform with the two small children. She wore deep black, relieved only by a beautiful necklace of pearls. The children were dressed in white.

The King, in taking the oath, said:

"I swear to observe the constitution and the laws of the Belgian people and to maintain the national independence and integrity of the Belgian people and the integrity of the territory."

The King read the traditional address, sitting on the throne behind which—lettered in gold—was the phrase:

"Union makes force."

His address was interrupted frequently by enthusiastic cheering especially when he said:

"Our constitution is wide and supple enough to adapt itself to the varying necessities of the present with respect to order and legality."

When he alluded to the Queen Mother, associating her with his own consort, the former Princess Astrid of Sweden, the whole assembly rose cheering several minutes for Elizabeth.

ELGAR DEAD

"Pomp and Circumstance"

Actually, there is not one "pomp and circumstance," but four. The first two were composed on the occasion of Edward VII's Coronation, and were first heard at a concert, Oct. 22, 1901, in London.

Two more were added to the set later, and although all four are occasionally heard, the one in D Major has captured the popular fancy, and comes to light more often than the other three combined. The great popularity of the favorite is due to the extraordinary vigor and swing of the trio, which symbolises "Pomp and Circumstance" to a remarkable degree.

Elgar also had his "Humoresque" it is his "salut D'Amour" for violin and piano, which has appeared among the trifles at the end of the violinists' programmes for decades, and has been played to accompany innumerable movie kisses.

Major Orchestral Works

Among his major orchestral works, the ingenious "enigma" variations are most popular. Instead of propounding the tune first, and varying it later, Elgar set the variations first, gradually leading up to the melody itself. In addition, he started a guessing game that still continues, inasmuch as each variation presumably pictures one of his friends or acquaintances, the identity of whom is indicated only by initials. Some have been determined —some others still are not definitely known.

Among choral works, the great Englishman's "Dream of Gerontius" is best known. It is a setting of Newman's poem, and first was heard in 1900 at a festival in Birmingham. But it might have fallen into the discard but for Richard Strauss.

The work was performed in 1902 at the Niederrheinische Fest, and at the close Strauss made a speech in which he complimented Elgar so highly that, as Sir George Grove puts it "Even the English musical public was moved."

Parent Industry Here, Branch in Toronto

President Isaiah Makes Statement to Press

Reports have been forthcoming from Toronto to the effect that a plant of the Individual Mausoleums of Ontario was to be established in that city. From Mr. Joseph Isaiah, president of the company, it was ascertained today, that a branch plant of the concern is to be located in Toronto, but the parent plant of the company with headquarters will remain in the city. The establishment of a Toronto branch, it is felt, will be advantageous from an economic standpoint and also from the viewpoint of the expansion of the industry.

TRANSIENTS SHOW DECLINE

290 Fewer Men Given Shelter at Police Station

Judging from recent statistics issued by the local police department there is a marked decrease this year in the number of transients to require a night's lodging in Belleville, that is in comparison with the same period last year. As was pointed out by Chief Kidd this morning there has been a falling off of exactly 290 transients for the first 53 days of 1934 compared with the figures of the same period in 1933.

Last evening (Wednesday) saw the largest number of transients to be afforded a warm night's lodging at the local police station this month, eighteen. During the first 21 nights this month there have been exactly 205 "weary travellers" put up at the police station while during the same period in 1933 there were 378. In January 1933, 520 transients were afforded a night's lodging at the police station, but in January 1934 401 were registered, showing a decrease of 119 for the respective months of January.

The absence of a local "soup kitchen" and the opening of road camps and relief projects are credited with the diminishing numbers of transients locally.

A. W. MALLORY DIES LEADING DAIRYMAN

Mallorytown Farmer and Liberal Dies at Age of 66

Brockville, Ont., Feb. 23 (CP) — Amasa W. Mallory, widely known throughout Leeds County as a successful farmer, dairyman and live stock buyer, died at his home at Mallorytown last night, aged 66, after an illness of three months.

He was the unsuccessful Liberal candidate for election to the House of Commons from Leeds riding in 1921 and associated with numerous undertakings in the Mallorytown district, where he is survived by his widow, formerly Miss Cassie Purvis, of Yonge Mills, and by two sisters, Mrs. J. M. Shaw, Lansdowne, and Miss Hilda Mallory, Mallorytown.

PORT CREDIT MAN INSTANTLY KILLED

Had Just Driven His Wife of Three Months to Station

Port Credit, Ont., Feb. 23 (CP)—A bridegroom of three months, Fileno Pompeo, 27, was instantly killed here when the car in which he had driven his wife to the station was struck by a freight train.

The young man made the trip to the Port Credit Radial with his bride every morning and apparently felt sure of the train times, for he crossed the tracks without looking carefully enough to see C. F. Randerson, crossing attendant, wave a red lantern at him as he approached.

RECOGNITION FOR DRUGLESS

Toronto, Feb. 23 (CP)—The fight of the drugless practitioner in Ontario for recognition such as is accorded medical doctors will be brought to the Legislature when Earl Hutchinson, Labor member for Kenora, gives notice of motion he will introduce five bills asking increased privileges for Chiropractors and other drugless practitioners.

Fun Reigns at Stirling Welfare Club Dinner

Visitors From R. C. A. F. Provide Evening's Entertainment

Stirling—Fun and frolic night was observed by the Stirling Community Welfare Club at their monthly dinner held in the Community Hall on Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock The form of entertainment provided by the programme committee for the evening was a departure from the usual type and a humorous hour of wit and song given by Sergeant Major Wibberly and his troop was substituted for the customary guest speaker. This proved to be a splendid antidote to counteract the blues, so apt to be prevalent at this season of the year, and sent the members homeward bound with countenances wreathed in smiles.

The Women's Institute who catered for the dinner provided an appetizing and delectable meal. During the luncheon, President Geo. Luery who was chairman for the evening announced, following a period of community singing, that a new song was being introduced with the compliments of Harold Martin which is being adopted officially as the club song. Following the toast to His Majesty, The King, the business was dealt with and the secretary instructed to send letters of sympathy accompanied by a potted flower to the members who are at present ill, Rev. E. W. Rowland, Mr. Roy. B. Duffin, Mr. Charles Vance and Mr. Geo. E. Reynolds.

An interesting feature of the meeting was a number of speeches on current topics of the day given by local speakers. Five speakers in all were heard and were Joe Wilson on "The cheese industry in Hastings County"; A. S. Murdoff, "The History of Hastings County"; Jack Butler chose for his talk "Mussolini"; Clarence Rollins whose speech failed him and who put in his three minutes term performing acrobatic stunts; A. E. Dobbie, a humorous recital dealing with his wife's orders concerning the disposal of his liquor. Bill Jones when called upon for his remarks was absent.

Then followed the main feature of the evening when Sergeant Major Wibberly and his troop of the R.C.A.F., Trenton, entertained the members in a rollicking hour of song, dancing and witty sayings. At its conclusion, Dr. E. A. Carleton on behalf of the club extended a vote of thanks and appreciation to Sergeant Major Wibberly and his fellow entertainers.

Friends of Mr. Roy B. Duffin are pleased to learn that he is able to be about again following his recent serious illness of the past three weeks.

Miss Frances McKeown of Mount Pleasant is the guest this week of Miss Dorothy Eggleton.

BRUNETTE OR BLONDE THAT IS QUESTION

Toronto, Feb. 23 (CP)—Gentlemen may marry brunettes; Toronto seems to think a blonde-shortage has something to do with it. University of Western Ontario boys at London started it all when they voted a preference for black-haired girls, in curt negation of the gospel laid down by Anita Loos.

Toronto doesn't agree. Many were asked, but few could understand the London Collegians' attitude. Results of the verbal questionnaire:

Miss Esme Barter, photographer's model: "I'll match 50 Toronto blondes with 50 London brunettes any day." (Miss Barter is a blonde).

Sidney Day, hairdresser: "I doubt whether there are three natural blondes in Toronto over the age of 30 years. Girls find their hair grows darker—the girl with fair hair and light eyes is often washed-out looking. I'm for blondes; I like them."

Charles Aylett, photographer: — "For sheer beauty, a genuine blonde with brown eyes and fair hair—"

Miss Deed Ingram, blonde: — "Don't be silly, blondes get married too. Boys don't stick to rules; they sometimes like the most amazing people."

University of Toronto student No. 1: "It wouldn't matter what color your girl's hair was. It's all a matter of electricity."

U. of T. student No. 2: "Blondes are dumb, but brunettes are dummer."

Nobody thought to ask a brunette about it.

CLOTHES AID GREATLY THE PERSONALITY

State of Mind Affected by a Change of Attire

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology
(Copyright 1934 King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

It is said that clothes make the man, the implication being, of course, that clothes enhance the personality value of a man, that the finer his clothes the more acceptable and better liked he will be.

There is a whole lot in that old saying.

Women certainly realise the truth of it. They know how much clothes mean in getting their own personalities across to others.

However, what I want to stress today is not so much the effect of clothes upon others as the effect of clothes upon the wearer himself. Every man knows how different he feels when he wears a dress suit as compared to a pair of overalls. Note also how out-of-place one feels when wearing a business suit or street dress, as the case may be, in a gathering where the boiled shirt and the decollete are the order of the day. Then observe yourself when you get into an old suit, patched or perhaps torn at the knees! Or when you don flannels or golf togs, or get into a bathing suit?

Isn't it true that not only do you feel "out of it" if your clothes do not match the occasion, but that actually you try to live up to your clothes? The man in evening dress feels impelled to act formally and display all the polished manner he can muster. The man in flannels is inclined to be active and athletic in his manner. Put on dungarees and immediately you want to mess around with the car and get dirty.

When a woman ties on a kitchen apron she feels domestic. High-heeled shoes put a woman in an entirely different humor than do low-heeled ones. When silk stockings were not worn as commonly as now, what a difference it made to a girl to wear a pair!

And hats! I know a man who whenever he expects to meet anyone prominent, wears his derby. This is not because he thinks he looks more dignified. He actually feels more dignified.

Undoubtedly the stimulating effect of clothes upon the wearer has had much to do with the rules of style for various occasions. Many women can and do change their moods with a change of dress.

The man who wears the same suit every day, or the same pair of shoes, and does not change to another until either wears out, is really making a mistake. Two suits last about twice as long as one, so there is no economy in the former method.

What a difference clothes make to the individual's spirit! The same may be said about colors.

Wear dark colors and your feelings are likely to be subdued and even depressed. Wear bright colors and you feel gay.

Remember Mark Twain and his white flannels even in winter? Well, old Mark knew a lot about human nature.

INDIAN KNOWS BIRD BY FROZEN WATTLES

Interesting Case Before the Court London

London, Ont., Feb. 22 (CP) — Patterson Cornelius, Oneida Indian, claims to be able to identify the head of a dead rooster as his property because the bird froze his wattles during the cold spell.

As a result he has laid a charge of chicken stealing against his neighbor, Henry Antone. Henry was remanded until March 1 when he appeared before County Magistrate C. A. Hawkshaw today.

Not long ago, the complainant explains, the rooster had its wattles frozen and he applied some "white liniment" to them. They turned black after that, Cornelius says. He said he found the head in his neighbor's home.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was sewing on her sewing machine and I said, Hay ma, did you know your fountain pen was out of ink?

I can think of more serious things than that, I'd be quite sattisfied if that's all I had to worry me, ma said.

Well it's not, ma, I mean I think there's proberly something a matter with the gold pen part too, I said, and ma said, Now Benny you've been writing with my fountain pen after all my explicit specifications to the contrary.

No I haven't ma, I didn't write a werd with it, I said, and ma said, Then it's highly sispicious that you know so much about it, where is my fountain pen?

Do you meen where is it now, ma? I said, and she said, Yes, I'm tawking in the present dimensions, I bleeve, and I said, It's diffrent places.

Now I want a plane statement of fact in plane Inglish, ma said, and I said, Yes mam. Well, I was tawking to Shorty Judge and all of a sudden your fountain pen axxidently dropped out of my fingers.

What, you had my good fountain pen out in the street? ma said, and I said, No mam, G Shorty was down on the payment but I was leening out of the 3rd story window and I hadn't axually started to use the pen yet, and that's what made it brake in so many peces on account of dropping so far on the bricks, and that's why it's in diffrent places because I couldn't even find some of the peeces, and that's why I think there's proberly something a matter with the gold pen part because that's one of the peeces I couldn't find, and it's out of ink all rite, I guess you can imagine, I said.

And I guess you can imagine something elts, ma said.

Wich I could, imagining it rite.

BURIED TOWNS ARE DUG OUT

Drifts in New England as Deep as Twenty Feet

New York, Feb. 23 (AP)— Road crews redoubled their efforts to reach communities still isolated following the Eastern United States worst storm of the winter.

On the eastern shore of Maryland conditions were the worst since 1900. Many schools were closed and most of the Chesapeake Bay was still ice locked. The fourth cold wave of the month was expected.

In Massachusetts many small towns were cut off by snowdrifts as deep as 20 feet. Stalled snow plows and automobiles dotted the roads.

TURNIP JUICE FAD IS JUST AHEAD

Brantford, Ont., Feb. 23 (CP)—Drinking a glass of turnip juice before breakfast may soon replace the fruit-juice fad if the advice of Dr. W. L. Hutton, Medical Officer of Health, takes effect. Dr. Hutton in a bulletin issued here, pointed out that the juice of the turnip contained the valuable vitamin C in as substantial quantities as the tomato or orange.

"The juice is sweet and not unpalatable," the doctor pointed out, "and if desired its flavor may be improved by the addition of salt. For infants, however, the pure juice should be used." An ordinary turnip would give 15 ounces of juice.

"Professor" Runs Fish And Chip Shop

Stratford, Ont., Feb. 23 (CP) — Theodore Martyne is in custody of local police, wanted in Woodstock allegedly for beating a board bill. In Stratford he went under the name of Professor St. John Martyne, eminent British psychologist, and expert in reading of handwriting and character. He made his headquarters at a local fish and chip shop and had given a few readings. When it came to telling what was on the mind of Detective Cecil Wright, who made the arrest, the Professor wasn't so good.

The Professor is said to have operated a fish and chip shop in London.

TREE FALLS ON HEAD FARMER IS KILLED

St. Thomas, Ont., Feb. 23 (CP)—Struck on the head by a falling tree, which he was cutting down on his farm, Morley Tribe, 42, a prominent farmer of Malahide township was instantly killed. His body was found by his son, Fred, who had been helping his father in the woods, but who was at the house when the accident occurred.

"CRY HAVOC" IN SCHOOLS

Fifty thousand copies of "Cry Havoc" by Beverley Nichols are to be placed by the Ontario Department of Education in the schools of Ontario.

The book's theme is the ideal of the peace-loving and the uselessness of war and there is a bitter attack on the agencies which are at work to disrupt the peace of nations.

In the schools the book will find itself exerting an influence on the impressionable minds of the young, who are those who will feel any disruption of the peace of the world as much as, if not more than, their elders.

The creation of the ideal of peace among the young is a worthy effort. That it will spread among all nations is the earnest prayer of those who have some realization of what war meant nearly two decades ago and what it still means in broken individuals and wrecked society.

The young may be carried away by ideals of glory and the pomp of war, which are illusory.

The young in the schools are those who do not know war as the generations of old age, of middle age, and those past their early youth knew it. Therefore it is important to have peace ideals inculcated or at least the bare facts of war and peace are presented.

These ideals must, of course, be sane and reasonable, in consent with the ideals of the great statesmen of the Empire and of other countries who are today working in the hope of making unnecessary resort to armed determination of disputes.

Parents look upon their children with anxiety in these days of talk of war, hoping and praying that their sons may never have to respond to a call of duty which means war—that the times may never again bring it about that men shall "cry havoc and let loose the dogs of war" upon the earth.

THE AGE AND THE STRAIN

Some persons who have reached middle age feel themselves so fit that they take unnecessary chances with their physical resources, participating in sports which tax the heart too greatly. Hon. Dr. Robb, Minister of Health, has told people to "act their age." The same is true of the man of over thirty who cannot quite do the things he could do in the early twenties.

The tragic thing today is that men and women when they should be reserving some of the forces of their physique find themselves under strains which they can hardly avoid, such as those of the business world. There are worries and there are moments of great importance which undoubtedly use up a great deal of the physical resources. But there must be a relaxing.

The burden falls on the heart and the nerves. It is reported that heart disease is increasing. Of course many men and women who in other times might have died of other diseases now have to wait until they die of heart failure or some other malady because some of the diseases that used to snatch men and women away in younger life are now under control.

The tendency in this speed age is for the older to exert themselves unduly for another reason. It is so easy to take the chance—business makes it possible and everything seems to conspire to keep the older folk acting as if young because of the rapidity and "youngness" of this present world.

GEORGE WASHINGTON

George Washington, whose birthday was celebrated this week in the United States, is the one to whom the Republic owes its very existence. Washington was one of the greatest of military leaders and his genius ended the war of 1776. He was unselfish, he took no pay as commander-in-chief of the army and as president.

The times were such as required as man or iron will and that George Washington possessed as he proved when he put the down the Whisky Insurrection, a political intrigue, with such strength and force that people began to fear he had become a military despot.

Washington's greatness was in his character and in his deep political insight. No one of his time but he fully realized what the Revolution meant.

To Great Britain the loss of the American Colonies was a severe blow but it has turned out to be probably the most potent agency for the dissemination of ideals of the English-speaking race throughout the world from the two viewpoints of the English and the Americans.

Washington's last years were marred with enmity from former political friends. But in the course of years these marks have all disappeared and the people of his country can appreciate the vision of a man who foresaw one of the most potent nations of the earth in the large but thinly populated colonies of 1776.

Though he fought against the British and was a native of Virginia he was in every sense an English gentleman, with the characteristics of that class.

AFRAID OF FEAR

Of many things he was afraid,
Of poverty and pain,
From toil and care he shrank in dread,
From prouder men's disdain.

He was afraid of lonely ways,
The deeps of solitude,
And all his nights and all his days
Found him in fearful mood.

Uneasy, restless, discontent,
Through life he wandered on;
Fear dogged his footsteps as he went,
Dread shadowed every dawn.

How blessed his lot, how brimmed with cheer
Through every wind or tide,
Who learns to be afraid of fear
And of naught else beside.

DO WE APPRECIATE the wonders of the age we are living in? Thursday morning citizens of Belleville and other places all over the world listened in at a radio broadcast of the funeral ceremonies for King Albert of Belgium. Friday morning the coronation ceremony of the new monarch, King Leopold, was broadcast and heard in the remotest corners of the earth.

IN THIS PAPER WEDNESDAY appeared a picture of Jacobus Jonker, Jr., who lives near Pretoria, South Africa, who achieved fame and fortune recently by finding a diamond on his farm which he sold for approximately $350,000. Under the ocean and over the land cables and telegraph wires brought the news of the finding of the diamond and later the news of the sale. Following closely came the picture printed in yesterday's paper, showing Jonker and the diamond. In this wonderful age news photographs can be telegraphed, another contribution to the speed god which has accelerated the tempo of this weary old world so materially of late years that folks have not only to "keep up with the Jones" but keep away ahead of them.

HOCKEY IS PLAYED in New York City to large crowds and big prices, many thousands of excited fans being accommodated in spacious Madison Square Garden. It is said that professional hockey is not a paying proposition in the great metropolis for the hockey moguls. Perhaps the principal reason for lack of profit for the hockey men is the fact that the rental of Madison Square Garden for one night is $4,500. It's generally the overhead which puts the crimp into profits.

WHAT TYPE OF EGO ARE YOU FOSTERING?

Keep Your Eye Going in The Right Direction

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

(Copyright 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Most persons will tell you that to be egotistic is anything but a complimentary trait of character. For the word "ego" itself has received a bad name. Always does it seem to be associated with inordinate pride that is selfish and self-seeking and that does not hesitate to lord it over the other fellow.

But let us examine the matter more closely. Is there only one type of ego? Does no unselfish variety exist?

If ego means inordinate pride, vanity, a sense of superiority based upon nothing that is exceptional, a childish desire to lord it over others, then the quicker you get rid of your ego the better.

But if your ego means what it has meant to so many great humanitarians—a will to achieve for the benefit of fellow man—then your ego comes close to being "a gift of the gods."

Peary was a man like that. After repeated attempts, but with a grim determination in the pursuit of an ideal, he finally planted the American flag at the North Pole. Amundsen is another. He conquered the South Pole. And we all know with what splendid courage and magnanimity he set out to rescue the Italians marooned in the frozen wastes of the Arctic and gave his life in the attempt.

Men such as these possess strong egos. But their ego strivings are directed toward ends, not personal or selfish, but directly remunerative to society as a whole.

In another field there is Dr. Trudeau. Himself a sufferer of what was then one of the most dreaded and usually hopeless of diseases—tuberculosis—he established in the Adirondack Mountains what has become a world-famous sanitarium. When he cured himself he virtually snatched victory from the very jaws of death. At one and the same time he demonstrated to the world the healing effects of rest and fresh air.

Trudeau's ego had a lot to do with his fame and success. He believed in himself. Despite obstacles, criticism and sometimes ridicule, he went straight ahead and thus finally brought help and healing to his fellow sufferers.

It is true that men built of this kind of ego stuff have gained for themselves personal fame. But we may assume without a moment's hesitation that they discounted the whole of it in comparison with the joy and satisfaction of their achievements.

Benjamin Disraeli is an example of another type of worthwhile ego. One that conquers prejudices which to the average, would seem insurmountable. Being a Jew, he had to fight down what was then, in England, a strongly entrenched opposition to persons of his race holding high office. Yet he finally became Prime Minister despite everything and left behind a most brilliant record of statesmanship and international diplomacy.

Strangely enough, the greatest ego characters do not appear egotistic. Inside, the ego may be surging to express itself. From the outside they seem the most simple of men.

Don't be ashamed of your ego nor of being egotistic if you are shunting your ego forces into useful channels. Keep your ego going in the right direction. Then you will never grow conceited. You will be so absorbed with only the finest and best that your broad humanitarianism will scorn what is petty and base.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

Persons with a "dropped" or distended stomach usually suffer from the fact that the stomach does not empty itself well and that food remainders ferment and stagnate. Therefore frequent but small meals are best and only foods should be eaten which are nourishing and which digest readily. Among these may be mentioned milk, cream, cereals, eggs, milk toast, mashed potatoes, lean fish, and very finely chopped and tender lean meats.

SAVINGS TAX ADVOCATED

Senator Meighen Says 3 P. C. Interest is Highest

Toronto, Feb. 23—Personal advocacy by Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, the Conservative leader in the Senate, of the principle of taxation of savings and investments was expressed last night at the annual banquet of the Ontario Good Roads Association at the Royal York Hotel.

Senator Meighen told the gathering: "What we have to accomplish is the fluidity of earning—the mobility of currency. We must direct money into the channels where it will do the most good. I don't believe that we can continue to encourage the use of money in savings and investment on the rate of increase which has prevailed in the past. The money bucket of the world will not hold an investment rate of more than 3 per cent."

Amid an audible murmur from the gathering, the Conservative leader in the Senate proceeded: "What I am trying to bring home to you is the need to discourage superfluous investment. Suppose that, instead of the principle of the sales tax, we were to direct the hand of taxation toward the expenditure which stimulates industry and commerce.

"I don't know what is in the mind of the government, but I believe income taxes are here to stay, and I hope we will in future direct taxation so as to contract the area of savings and investment, and to enlarge the area of commerce."

Mr. Meighen made clear that he was not turning his eyes toward "the semi-barbarism of communism, by whatever name it may be called." In that direction, he was sure, lay disaster.

With reservations, he commended some phases of the Roosevelt reforms, and said in conclusion: "Three hundred million people have overthrown democratic institutions because they failed to bring about political security and economic stability. We must see that those things are better secured in our own country, or we will see the failure of democratic institutions even in this Anglo-Saxon land."

ampbellford Eliminated y Queens, Losing Game -4 and the Round by 8-7

st Period Rally By Students Enough to Win

SMART GAME

ed Ingram Standout Performer For Either Team

Having a distinct edge in the play ing both ways in the first two mes, Campbellford Maroons, ded badly in the last period and re eliminated by Queens, the dents winning the game on ursday night 5-4 and the round 8-7. Going into the last period Maroons were leading Queens one goal and instead of carrying play further dropped back to a ensive game and Queen's swarm- ed the count and midway the frame, Brydon put the on ice for the Students by ing Murphy's pass and from on, their experience counted although Maroons carried the forcing James to make many saves, they could not organize successful foray.

In defeat, they were not dis- ed and only for a little hard , before more than 900 fans, the might have put the Tri- taken away for this winter at . The tying goal was a soft and Morton can be directly ed for it. Arthurs made a pass to Peterson, who was camped in front of the twine and he handed the rubber after being ed by Whitton but the "boot " slipped into the twine without ing the ice. Previous to this , the Maroons had the students bottled on the small ice sur- and looked all over winners Students had a little more ition, than the Maroons and was quite apparent in the last t of the last frame.

rting even from their game in ngston, Hendy put the homesters ad on a sweet pass from Whit- made as that player was coming to the defence and James was given little chance. Peterson put his team back in the running with a lone counter, when he was allowed to get started in centre ice and Patterson put the Students one in the lead just before the end of the frame, when he took Peterson's pass. The Maroons opened on high in the second frame and Fred Ingram scored the smartest goal of the night, when he rifled Whitton's pass into the unprotected corner of the hemp. James has not seen that one yet.

Harry Ingram was camped in the right spot to take Whitton's pass out and then Hendy scored another, which was disallowed owing to a player being in the goal crease. It was a close call and McCurry received a ride from the fans on that one. Johnny Wing came into the picture with a nice goal, although it appeared that Morton played the shot rather careless. Harry Ingram put his team ahead again when he batted in a loose puck from a scramble in front of James.

The fans had visions of a win as the teams trotted out for the last period but Peterson was allowed to roam in unmolested and when Arthurs batted out a pass from the back, he dribbled one across the line. Brydon made it sure a few minutes later, when the Maroons were caught up the ice and Murphy carrying the play laid over a perfect pass, when meeting the lone defenceman and Brydon made it sure. Fred Ingram was the standout performer of either team with Buster Whitton a close second. Ingram was always dangerous on the offensive and his heady work on the defence relieved many ticklish situations. Harry Ingram played a sound game and was on his best behaviour. Whitton carried the bulk of the work on the front line but Davis could have been used more to an advantage. Peterson and Earl McDonald were the best for Queens with James playing a stellar game in goal.

The line-ups:

Campbellford—Goal, Morton, defence Fred and Harry Ingram, centre Whitton, wings, Hendy and Bush, subs, Davis, McWilliams McArthurs and Shannon.

Queens— Goal, James, defence, McDonald and Murphy, centre, Wing, wings Peterson and Patterson, subs, Brydon, Arthurs, Gibson, and Kostuik.

Dandurand, rts said, threw a hockey stick the ice three times to draw ree Mike Rodden's attention. mith evidently resented the Can- n manager's actions and the two ed punches at each other over boards. Newsy Lalonde was said ave struck at Smith's head with ick, Rodden saving the Maroon pushing him out of danger.

aroon supporters attempted to wsy Lalonde, Canadien coach, as h left the rink but Newsy was where to be found. League action o discipline participations in the brawl is expected.

Maroons Firmly Entrenched

The win firmly entrenched Maroons in the Canadian division's second place, five points ahead of Canadiens and New York Americans, who tied the Habitants by playing a scoreless draw at Chicago last night.

New York Rangers seemingly are not as hesitant about moving to the front in the American section as was thought. They beat Detroit Red Wings 3-1 last night in New York, moving into a tie for second place with Chicago, three points behind the Wings. Ottawa defeated Boston 3-1 in the other game played.

Twelve thousand fans saw the hectic affair at Montreal, the same number attended the Detroit-Ranger game, there were 9,000 in Boston and 7,000 in Chicago a grand total of 40,000 for the night.

Smith richly deserved the goal, that won for Maroons. He made the play himself, passing to Herb Cain at the blue line and racing in to take the return and snap it past Lorne Chabot. Although the game was a bruising affair, Rodden had it well in hand and imposed but two penalties until Morenz and Wentworth tangled. They got majors. Smith was not penalized.

Winning Streak Broken

Lester Patrick's New Yorkers ended Detroit's run of 13 games without a defeat, when they slapped in two goals in the first period and added another in the third. Frank Boucher scored first on Bun Cook's pass and Cecil Dillon banged home another. Frank Carson scored Detroit's goal in the first and Murray Murdock got the third Ranger counter.

Lionel Hitchman, now coach of Boston Cubs, was honored at the Boston game with a "Hitchman night." Senators, the only team he played pro hockey for besides Bruins, did everything they could to make it an enjoyable evening for him but insisting on winning in overtime.

Nick Wasnie scored for the Ottawans in the first period and Dit Clapper evened it up half way through the second. Young Syd Howe got the winning goal for Ottawa in overtime and then passed to Bushey Hollet for another.

The American-Chicago scoreless draw was a listless affair. The New Yorkers, hailed as the most improved team in the league backchecked continually and refused to give Tommy Gorman's team an opening.

CURRENT SPORT

(Day By Day)

According to post-game reports from Kingston on Wednesday the local juniors, after they returned to form in the final period, completely outplayed their Queen's rivals, repeatedly missing scoring chances. Undoubtedly overanxiousness on their part after having the round all tied up predominated and entered into the picture resulting in an air of fear of elimination entered into their hearts. Juniors as a rule are not as level headed as intermedites and naturally cannot be expected to be as steady. The Cubs have now experienced their first defeat of the season and should be seen travelling at top form tonight against the sturdy Queen's outfit.

x x x x x

Naturally Manager Thomas was disappointed in having the round tied up, especially after enjoying a five goal advantage. What hurt him most was the fact that the Cubs failed to score. As has been pointed out the kids should have pulled the game out of the fire in the dying moments, but they didn't and therein lies the story. Hearing a remark on the street today relating to the playing of another round between Queen's and Belleville possibly leaving a bad taste in the fans' mouths, is all the bunk. For the information of such persons we might say that a suggested sudden death game was proposed but it was decided such a game would be a financial failure, therefore the O.H.A. stepped in and instructed the two clubs to play the two games again. Junior clubs do not play for gates as their desire to win is far above anything else, so dismiss any suggestions of "playing for gates" from your mind, Mr. Fan. The Cubs expect to carry as large a lead to Kingston on Monday as they enjoyed after their last home game. Judging from the added interest in junior hockey circles the largest crowd of the season will at the Belleville Arena tonight.

Many new records were established in the major baseball leagues last season, for instance the hitting of a cycle (a single, double, triple and home run) was accomplished in one league game by four major leaguers—Foxx, Cochrane, Averill and Higgins. Sam West tied the world's record when he hit safely six times consecutively on April 13th. last. Jimmy Foxx established a new American League record when he drove in nine runs in a single game. Bob Grove blanked the Yankees on August 3rd., the first time Ruth and Company had gone scoreless for exactly two straight seasons. Bob Johnson equalled the junior loop record when he scored five runs in one contest. Tom Bridges of the Tigers, hurled two one-hit games in 1933. Bob Grove appeared in eight games in 11 days. Willie Kamm lead the American league infielders for the seventh consecutive time with a fielding average of .984. Lou Gehrig's breaking of consecutive game record when he played 1,350 games of major league ball, eclipsing Everett Scott's previous record of 1,308. Many other fielding and batting records were equalled and broken 'tis believed.

Completing their schedule without sustaining a single loss the B.C.I. and V.S. hockey team, winners of the Bay of Quinte C.O.S.S.A. group, now clash with the sturdy Marmora club, who eliminated them last season. Coach Shiels apparently has a better collection of players this year as was demonstrated yesterday afternoon when they downed Trenton 5-3 in a game that proved rather uninteresting owing to the lack of adequate competition.

x x x x x

Coach Shiels' charges are far from being heavyweights but on the contrary are rather slight in stature. What they lack in size however, they more than make up in speed, stamina and combination. Following the winning of the local group yesterday the coach announced that the Marmora-Belleville series would open early next week.

x x x x x

Over at the Arena last evening the Black Hawks pulled a surprise and downed the group leading Rough Riders, in the Juvenile series, with the Rangers coming down in front of the O.S.D. kids by a 2 to 1 score in the second game of a twin bill played in the Ki-Y league.

"The Campbellford Maroons are out." Last night at the Hydro Town Wally Elmer's Queen's intermediates stepped right into the Miller's home rink and defeated them 5 to 4 in one mighty fine hockey game, according to reports this morning from the seat of action. Those who saw the game say the students enjoyed a slight edge on the homesters; altho' a different story might have been told if the Millers had not scored on their own goalie while clearing.

x x x x

It was a case of too much Peterson, Patterson and Earl McDonald on the part of Queen's, as these three lads were in rare form. Fred Ingram again led the Maroons, both ways, while Ken Davis and Whitton played well. The home team scored enough goals to win but seemingly could not keep the Kingston team off the score sheet and now can realize just how the Belleville intermediates felt one week ago tonight when eliminated by them. Reports say the game was quite clean with plenty of good orthodox hockey being played all evening. Exit Maroons.

The coming Queen's-Oshawa series will be watched with interest by all hockey fans in Eastern Ontario. Now that the Oshawa juniors are out of competition their intermediate club can have the services of their cream of their crack junior team that St. Michael's made such short work of recently.

Interscholastic Hockey Loop Won by B.C.I. Without Loss

Score 5-3 Over Trenton And Winners to Meet Marmora

The B.C.I. & V.S. senior interscholastic hockey team finished their regular schedule in the Bay of Quinte C.O.S.S.A. hockey loop without sustaining a single loss by defeating the Trenton High School pucksters 5 to 3 at the Belleville Arena yesterday afternoon. The local team having won their respective group, now meet the winners of the Trent Valley section, Marmora High School, in the interscholastic play-downs.

Although the black and gold clad lads from Trenton gave their all to keep in the group running, they lacked sadly the speed and experience of the Shiels-coached aggregation. Previous to the opening of hostilities the visitors had sustained but a single loss in the group, that being at the hands of the local tricolor in Trenton. A win for the Trenton team yesterday would have tied up the group.

The local squad, boasting of four members of the local junior O.H.A. team, carried altogether too much speed and hockey experience for their rivals and literally coasted home to victory. Coach Shiels introduced a new goalkeeper to the fans in a lad named Sharpe, his cool manner under fire stamps him a likely looking prospect. "Stewie" McElrath looked the best of the local defencemen, with the combination plays of Don Lee and Geo. High featuring on the offensive. Of the alternates Johnson looked the best with Ling and McCreary teaming nicely at times.

For the losing Trenton club Jack Kidd, ex-Trenton O.H.A. star, looked the best, while Thompson and H. Newton played good hockey throughout. Thompson's spectacular rushes proved dangerous whenever the hefty Trenton defenceman penetrated the local defence. Davis and Staples played mediocre hockey.

The locals scored twice in the initial frame when McElrath opened by bulging the twine after a solo effort. After unsuccessfully testing Gray three times in succession, Don Lee was rewarded for his efforts, when he back-handed the rubber past the Trenton goalie. Kidd on a solo rush scored Trenton's only counter this frame. In the middle period Geo. High stick-handled passed all for a goal, while McElrath raced through to make the count 4 to 1 in Belleville's favor when the last period opened. Hanna rifled a high one at Gray, that dribbled into the net three minutes after the last canto opened to end the locals scoring. Coach Stickwood's charges then assumed the offensive and ran in two goals in quick succession. Thompson soloed and during a scramble in front of the local net Mitchell batted in Staple's rebound to end hostilities. The B.C.I. & V.S. seniors are now champions of the Bay of Quinte group in C.O.S.S.A. hockey circles.

The line-ups:

B.C.I. — Goal Sharpe, defence, L'Heureux and McElrath, centre, Lee, wings Hanna and High, subs. Johnson, Ling, McCreary and Kobesh.

Trenton H.S.—Goal Grey, defense Mitchell and Thompson, centre, Kidd, wings Davis and H. Newton. subs. R. Newton, Heaney and Staples.

The game which was clean throughout, was handled by Leo Barrett of Belleville.

THE BIG SEVEN

(By the Canadian Press)

Frank Boucher, peerless centre of New York Rangers, was alone in second place in the Big Seven today. He broke his second place tie with Joe Primeau of Toronto, when Rangers defeated Detroit 3-1 last night, getting a goal and an assist to climb within four points of the big seven leader, Charlie Conacher, Toronto. "Bun" Cook for Rangers collected two assists to enter the select circle, while Cecil Dillon of Rangers obtained a goal to move into fifth place.

Mr. Tim Sullivan, President of the local branch of the Registered Hair Dressers' and Barbers' Association of Ontario, has returned to the city after attending a meeting of the executive committee of that association held in the Royal York Hotel, Toronto. Included in the number of those present from this city were:—Mrs. Cole, Miss Bernice Sherman, Mrs. Anderson, Mrs. Ramsay, Miss Violet Lewis and Mr. and Mrs. Art Share.

The Alert Bible Class of Holloway Street United Church Sunday School held their February meeting on Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. Denyes, Catherine street. The meeting opened by singing "What a Friend we Have in Jesus". Prayer was offered by Rev. Knox. The minutes of the last meeting read and approved. Mrs. Sweetman gave a reading. Rev. Mr. Knox gave a very interesting talk. Meeting closed with prayer. A social hour was spent in games and refreshments served. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Denyes and sister for their kind hospitality.

An afternoon tea was held in the Church Parlours of Holloway Street United Church on Thursday under the auspices of the Women's Auxiliary. It was well attended. The guests were welcomed by Mrs. Walters, Mrs. Wickett and Mrs. Waddell. Dainty green and yellow decorations gave the parlours a very attractive air. A silver basket of yellow daffodils and tall green tapers in silver candlesticks carried out the gay colour scheme. Tea was poured by Mrs. Ross and Mrs. Wootten and served by several members of the W. A. An excellent program was given with Mrs. Waddell, the president, in the chair. The opening hymn was "What a Friend We have in Jesus" and prayer by Miss Sweetnam. The numbers included a pianoforte solo, Mrs. Hubbs, reading Miss Smith, "My Little Wild White Rose; vocal solo, Miss Gwendolyn Huffman, reading, Miss Brown, "The Mother's Best Witness", vocal solo, Mrs. J. Adams, piano duet, Misses Ada and Kathleen Groves; readings, Miss Smith, "Friday Afternoon" in the Kindergarten class "The Usual Way".

Mrs. Waddell moved a vote of thanks to those who assisted in the program, seconded by Mrs. McMurray.

Heavy Drifts Make Travelling Difficult

Rawdon, Feb. 23—Mr and Mrs. Harry Fanning spent Sunday with the latter's mother, Mrs. Ed. Bennett at Hoard's.

A large number of Rawdon young people attended the skating carnival in Stirling on Wednesday evening and report a successful entertainment.

The heavy snow and wind filled the roads up worse than ever on Monday and on Wednesday the men were busy shovelling to allow the cars to travel. Several cars were hung up on the Iroquois trail and the Fourth line and required a team to pull them out of the drifts or a gang of men to shovel. Some motorists are carrying shovels with them to meet emergencies. The warmer weather of Tuesday and Wednesday was surely appreciated but the radio predicts more cold weather.

Messrs. Arthur Burkitt and E. Brown served on the petit jury at Belleville this week.

Rawdon friends have been visiting Mr. Alf. Hay of Campbellford, a former resident, and Mr. Wm. Petterick of Petterick's Corners in Belleville hospital where both are convalescing.

Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Hoover, Lulu and Stewart spent Wednesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Archie Haslett.

Mr. John Coggins is visiting his sister in Toronto this week.

Mrs. Dave Wellman underwent an operation in Belleville hospital on Saturday and is recuperating nicely. A few of her neighbor ladies sent her a bouquet of spring blooms on Tuesday, which she greatly appreciated.

Correct Manners
By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Arms and the Man

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. We are a group of High School girls. The question has come up concerning the placing of the salad plate at a formal dinner. It it is at the right, where does the coffee cup go? If it is at the top, where does the bread and butter plate go? Is it used at the same time?

2. When out walking with a boy, does he offer you his arm to take if you like, or does he take your arm, and put it through his, when crossing the street?

Fourteen Year Olds

1. When the salad is served with the main course, the plate may be placed either at the right of the dinner plate or at the left. It doesn't make any difference. It just depends on convenience. Usually it is placed on the left of the dinner plate, but I take sides with the people who like to have it placed on the right. It is never placed above the dinner plate, for, with the bread and butter plate above the forks on the left and the glass or glasses on the right, there wouldn't be any room, and too, it would be inconvenient to the guest. Since a separate fork should be placed for the salad, and since the salad is eaten with th's fork on the right hand, the right-of-the-plate position seems to me the more convenient side. However, if the coffee cup is on the right (and it wouldn't be, at a formal dinner), then of course the salad plate would have to be placed on the left.

2. A man should never take a woman's arm. When he wishes to offer her help in crossing the street or on any other occasion, he may either offer her his arm, or may gu'de and help her by placing his hand under her elbow, "gently but firmly".

Note of Appreciation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My father has been very ill for several weeks and his office has been very kind. The employees have all come out one by one to visit him. Two girls from his office came and brought him a beautiful plant, so I would like to write them a nice little note to tell them how very much he appreciated their kindness.

Will you please be so glad as to help me write a note of appreciation?

L.

Indeed I'd like to help you with this note and I am delighted that you so rightly realize that such kindness should be acknowledged with a note of thanks. Your note to each girl might read rather like this:

Dear Miss Robinson,

I do want to tell you how very happy and delighted my father was with your kind thought of him and with the beautiful plant that you brought him. Your goodness and your generosity touched him very deeply and brought him a great joy and comfort. He would write you himself, but he yet isn't strong enough to do this, and so has asked me to tell you his thanks and appreciation.

The plant is blossoming with great beauty, and he watches it all day.

My father and mother thank you again, and send you all good wishes.

Very sincerely yours.

SALEM Y. P. S.

Salem Y.P.S. met at the church on Friday evening with a fair attendance. The meeting opened by Miss Vera Wright, President after which Miss Edna McMaster took charge of the programme. The Scripture was read by Miss Annis Johnston taken from Matthew 6, 19-21st; Luke 12:17-34. Norma Sarles gave a reading and the topic which was given by Mrs. B Reid proved to be very interesting. This was followed with a duet by the Misses Vera and Laura Wright "A Word of Kindness". A reading by Miss Ethel Hagerman and Mrs. S. Hagerman favored with a solo. Benediction closed the meeting.

GILEAD W.M.S.

The ladies of Gilead W.M.S. Society met at the home of Mrs. Walter Treverton of the 6th. concession on February 16 for the World's Day of Prayer. Owing to the severe cold weather and deep snow there were only 14 ladies present.

Following the regular programme which had been sent out especially for that day Mrs. Balcanquel favored with a beautiful solo after which Mrs. Wilfred Clare read the devotional leaflet, "The Multitudes."

During the business part of the meeting a delegate was chosen for the convention at Napanee. Mrs. Fred Yorke, the president, being appointed.

A letter was read from the supply secretary asking for a quilt and children's stockings. The ladies decided to make quilt blocks now as they were not so busy as will be the case a little later on.

The collection amounted to $1.40 besides envelopes and dues.

Mrs. Treverton, the hostess, served a delicious lunch and a social time was spent.

Mrs. George Brown Dies, Five Months After Husband's Death

The recent snow storm has again made the roads almost impassable. A great deal of ploughing and shovelling will have to be done.

In spite of bad roads and cold weather a great many attended the funeral of the late Mr. George Waddingham on Saturday last. Sympathy is extended to the brother and friends.

Word was received in this vicinity on Wednesday of the death of Mrs. George Brown, Ebenezer, who died on Tuesday morning, following her husband who predeceased just five months ago in the motor accident at Port Hope. The family have sincere sympathy in their sad bereavement.

Service which was held in Lonsdale church on Sunday was well attended. Rev. W. H. Clarke minister.

Mr. and Mrs Charlie Hawley visited Mr. and Mrs. Charles Melburn on Sunday also Mr. and Mrs. Mowers and family.

Mr. H. M. McCullough spent one day recently in Deseronto.

Mr. Norman Whiteman and Mr. J. M. McCullough were in Trenton one day this week and called on Mr. J. W. McCullough of Belleville, also.

Mr. and Mrs. R. McFarland, of Shannonville, spent Sunday afternoon with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Waddingham.

Mr. Ralph Hawley has returned home after spending a week with his cousin, Mr. Ralph Melburne.

A number of young people enjoyed a very pleasant evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dowle on Friday evening.

MRS. E. A. THOMAS ELECTED REGENT ST. JULIEN I.O.D.E.

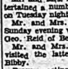
At the annual meeting of the St. Julien Chapter I.O.D.E. the following officers were elected:—Hon. Regent, Mrs. E. G. MacColl; Regent, Mrs. E. A. Thomas; 1st Vice Regent, Mrs. Geo. Watkins; 2nd Vice Regent, Mrs. R. E. Arnott; Secretary, Mrs. Wm. Gilbert; Cor.-Secretary, Mrs. A. R. Symons; Standard Bearer, Mrs. H. D. Row; Auditors, Mrs. R. A. Backus; Mrs. H. A. Singer.

At the conclusion of the business meeting, social hours were spent, the chapter entertaining at Bridge, the members of their families. Prizes were awarded for the highest scores to Mrs. Thomas and Mr. Row.

Refreshments were served by the members, this bringing to a close a most enjoyable evening.

This organization is very active in their work, during the last year, they have assisted the Navy League, prizes for educational advancement, Belleville Home for the Aged, local relief work and many smaller acts, which gave assistance in cases of illness and where immediate help was needed.

This chapter feels worthy of the assistance of the public in any attempt they may make to secure funds for the worthy objects that they are working for.



WHEN YOU'RE HEALTHY YOU'RE HAPPY!

The blame for "blue" days can be laid often to common constipation. It may bring loss of appetite and energy, sallow and pimply skins, even serious illness. Correct it by eating a delicious cereal.

Research shows Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" and vitamin B to relieve common constipation. Also iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in leafy vegetables. Isn't this better than taking patent medicines—so often harmful?

Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily, relieve most types of constipation. With each meal, in chronic cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor. Get the red - and - green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

Backache or Headache?

FOR those who suffer from pains across kidneys, heavy dull feelings, and sometimes swollen ankles or feet, Dr. Pierce's newer medicine, called "Anuric" brings relief. Read what Mrs. T. Roberts of 31 Eagle Ave., Brantford, Ont., said: "My mother advised me to take Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets during expectancy as I was suffering with headache, backache and felt tired and drowsy all the time. Soon after I started taking 'Anuric' I seemed to brighten up, had more ambition, and rested better at night. Dr. Pierce's remedies are all so reliable."

Anuric can be procured at any drug store. Send 10c to Dr. Pierce's Laboratory, Fort Erie N., Ont., for a trial package.

JANUARY BUTTER PRODUCTION

Ottawa, Feb. 23—An increase of more than 200,000 pounds was shown in the production of creamery butter in January, when 8,540,621 pounds were produced, as compared with 8,336,496 in the corresponding month last year, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics says in a recent report.

Ontario was the largest producer with 3,991,006 pounds, Alberta next with 1,200,000 pounds, and Manitoba third, with a prduction of 821,399 pounds. Quebec produced 850,000 pounds; Saskatchewan, 784,030 pounds; Nova Scotia, 409.93 pounds; British Columbia 300.500 pounds; New Brunswick, 55,000 and Prince Edward Island 68,090 pounds.

Cheese Exports Increase

Ottawa, Feb. 23—An increase of more than 800,000 pounds was shown in cheese exported in January, when the amount was 1,234,100 pounds, valued at $140,405 as compared with 363,100 pounds at $46,677 in the same month last year, says a report issued Thursday by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. For the twelve months ending January the export was 85,039,600 pounds, at $8,170,348, compared with 86,551,400 pounds at $8,865,554 in the previous twelve months.

Total value of milk products in January was valued at $246,311 compared with $286,879 in the corresponding month of 1933, while for the twelve months ending Jan. 31 the value was $11,000,000, as against $11,846,000 in the preceding twelve months.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Feb. 23— (CP) — The secondary group of gold producers continued their advance today in the mining section of the Toronto Stock Exchange, under heavy trading, while the big golds firmed on small volume and the silver and base metal issues held moderately steady.

Wayside had a splurge today, advancing 5 cents to 47 and holding at 46 at noon. San Antonio at 2.60 was up 3 cents, Howey gained 2 to 1.24.

In the senior gold group Dome held unchanged at 35.50, Hollinger was steady at 13.90, Lake Shore was off 15 cents to 45.60, McIntyre gained 95 to 41.95, Pioneer 10 to 12.10 and Wright Hargreaves 5 to 7.20. Bralorne was off 20 cents to 71.05.

Mining shares lumbered along rather heavily today, showing only unimportant net results up till mid-afternoon. Secondary gold shares had a nice splurge upward in the first hour but the move invited profit-taking and later in the session they dropped the gains.

Senior gold shares were sluggish but prices held narrowly to the upside and base metal issues were quiet and firm. In the silver group Eldorado and Bear Exploration registered net gains while Mining Corporation and Castle worked a little lower. Premier was a heavy trader at steady prices.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Feb. 23 (CP)— Bank stocks boarded four gains and no recessions in the morning trading on the Toronto Exchange Industrial Board, demonstrating no disturbance as a result of publication of the details of the Central Bank Bill. Toronto gained 2 and Dominion and Montreal a point each. The general market tone was steady.

Interlisted issues firmed narrowly with the New York Board. Nickel adding 20 cents and Ford A and Brazilian 1-8 to 3-8 each. Smelters was down about a point. Walkers Common was the only weak issue. Walkers fell back to 45 1-2, off 1 1-4 apparently as a result of the postponement by the company of a dividend on the common.

A sinking spell on the New York Board gave Toronto Exchange Industrial listings an unsteady tone around mid-day. Prices for distillery, utility and construction shares showing some shrinkage from Thursday's closing level. Bank shares were strong and food issues narrowly irregular.

Decision of the Hiram Walkers directors yesterday to take no action for the present regarding a dividend on the common, tilted that issue downward today, the price going back to 45 1-4 for a loss of 1 1-2. Canadian Industrial Alcohol dropped 3-8 and Distillers Seagrams 3-8 and Brewers and Distillers held strong.

WALL STREET

New York, Feb. 23—(AP)—Stocks exhibited a post-holiday lethargy today that restricted trading to intermittent flutters in which most prices had a soggy appearance.

Liggett and Myers B got up about 2 points on a moderate turnover and American Tobacco B was a bit higher. Packard again was 1 nlarge volume, but it was only up slightly. United Aircraft firmed a point. Seaboard Oil rallied 2 points and some of the other oils improved.

Among Canadian stocks International Nickel improved slightly. Shares of Dome, McIntyre and Canadian Pacific were about steady. On the curb Hiram Walker eased around a point. The Canadian dollar was 1-8 of a cent lower at 99.37 1-2 cents.

KING LEOPOLD IS SCHOOLED

Fourth King Since 1830 is Fine Fisherman

Brussels, Feb. 23—(AP)— The new King of the Belgians comes to the throne at the age of 32, with years of preparation for his tremendous responsibility behind him.

Since early childhood he was schooled for the job which one day was to be his. As a result, he is a proficient student of government—two former premiers were his tutors.

Serious by nature, Leopold was anything but a "playboy Prince". He rarely figured in the headlines except for his romantic 'love marriage' to Princess Astrid of Sweden.

Like his father he is fond of outdoor sports, is a good mechanic and a pilot. Probably, he prefers trout fishing to court functions. He is a member of the Rotary Club and, possibly, his fellow Rotarians obey the rules and call him by his first name.

Brussels, Feb. 23—(AP)—In her 104 years of independence, Belgium had had four Kings, including Leopold III, enthroned today, all of them of the same line.

The country seceded from the Netherlands in 1830. A national congress the following year elected Prince Leopold of Saxe-Cobourg King of the Belgians.

On his death in 1865 he was succeeded by his son, Leopold II, who reigned until 1909. His nephew, Albert, then came to the throne.

FRIGID WINDS BLOW IN WEST

Winnipeg, Feb. 23 (CP)—A chilly display of minus signs before thermometer readings greeted the populace of Western Canada today.

Frigid winds, sweeping out of the north country spread a wave of cold over the Prairies, extending from the head of the lakes to the Alberta foothills.

Manitoba bore the brunt of the icy blast. At the Pas the mercury dipped to 42 degrees below zero, Winnipeg had a minimum of 30 below and Minnedosa minus 30.

Four Are Shaken up In Rockton Crash

Rocton, Ont., Feb. 23 (CP)— A truck driven by Harold Thoms of Hamilton collided today with a car driven by Percy Ruby, Kitchener, in which there were four other occupants, all residents of Kitchener, Edward Strouse, Clarke Heffernen, Gordon Smith and James Quinn.

All the people in the accident were shaken up and two were rushed to hospital for attention. The truck was damaged and the car demolished. The former carried $500 worth of fruit.

STEVE BOHUN IS REPRIEVED

Prince Albert Youth Has Stay of Execution For Murder

Prince Albert, Sask., Feb. 23 (CP)—Steve Bohun, 19-year-old Krydor district farm boy, accepted his new lease of life today with a stoical calm. Scarcely 18 hours before he was to have paid with his life for the murder of Peter Pommeruel, aged Redeberry (Sask.) postmaster, a reprieve was flashed which brought stay of execution.

Meanwhile preparations for the execution today of William Bahrey, 29-year-old Whitkow farmer, were completed. Bahrey was convicted of the murder of his brother, Alex, in April, 1933. The case was a triangle affair, involving Alex' wife. The charred body of Alex Bahrey was found buried under a partially burned strawstack on a neighbor's farm. William Bahrey had been under sentence of death since May, 1933, when he was convicted after a lengthy trial at North Battleford.

Steps through which the young farmer sought to gain remittance of his sentence proved unavailing. An appeal against the death penalty was refused by the Saskatchewan Court of Appeal which reviewed the case.

Bahrey also was indicted for the murder of his brother-in-law Nester Tereszcauk but for this crime he was never tried.

"SIN" RIDING IN TRAIN WITHOUT FARE

Ride Recalled 37 Years After Under Oxford Group Influence

Toronto, Feb. 23—Back in the "gay nineties" a young lady made a trip on the old Grand Trunk Railway. She had no ticket and paid the conductor no fare. The years passed and the matter was entirely forgotten. Then the Oxford Group Movement flowered and she was eventually attracted by it. Old omissions were remembered. In the morning's mail H. C. Bourlier, General Passenger Agent of the Canadian National System, received a Canadian National Express order for $15. The young lady of the nineties, now a grandmother, explained that she had suddenly recalled what she was pleased to term "a sin" and she sent the remittance, covering interest for more than 37 years upon the original sum involved by the railway purchase. She wanted to stand "right" in the eyes of her grandchildren.

DESERONTO

The annual Commencement Exercises of the Deseronto High School was put on in the White Hall recently. The program was quite lengthy but exceedingly interesting. It opened with the entire school singing the opening chorus "Our Old High".

Then the following presentations were made: Lower School certificates by P. M. Stover; Middle School certificates by A. J. Rendell; Marksmanship Medal to Wm. Hetherington by J. Hough. Roy Asselstine was presented with three small cups which represented in three events won at district athletic meet and was also presented with the trophy for school winning most number of points in three events. They were presented by the Rev. E. M. Lacey.

Promotion awards from Form I to II. (1) Donald Dies, (2) Helen O'Ray; Form II to III. (1) Mary Hawley, (2) Lee Rowsom; Form III to IV. (1) Matilda Laverture, (2) Edna Platt.

Rev. A. D. Waite read the roll of honor and two minutes silence was observed in memory of their supreme sacrifice.

Rev. C. E. S. Radcliffe donated and presented a cup to Roy Asseltine as runner-up for the Memorial Scholarship, which was presented to Maurice Harrold, who then gave the valedictory in a splendid manner.

Pyramids by boys in colored sweaters and khaki trousers reflected great credit on their instructor. This was followed by a chorus, "The Winning Ways of Grandma's Days", in which the girls were dressed in old-fashioned costumes, Doris Aylsworth singing the verses.

Then the two-act comedy was enacted which brought screams of laughter as the plot unfolded itself, due to the mistaken identity of Mr. Bob who really turns out to be a girl, Marion Bryant. Robert Brown is taken for Mr. Bob and further complicates the affair and he was never given a chance to explain his real identity. Each character in the cast was well played and there was little to choose among the acting of any of the characters, which were as follows:

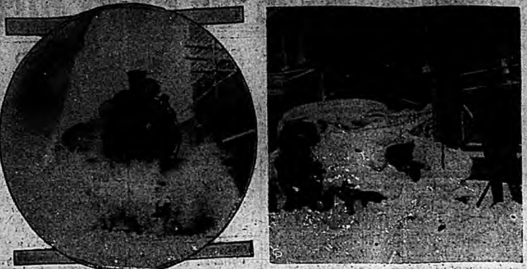
Between the first and second act of the play Miss Isabel Sharpe gave a violin solo and Miss June Thomas recited in an interesting manner.

It was the feeling of the large audience which crowded the hall that the same high standard of commencement exercises was equal with those of former years. Each succeeding year sees new faces appearing on the stage and acting their parts equally as well as those of previous years.

AS WORST BLIZZARD IN YEARS GRIPPED EASTERN STATES



Snow ranging from six inches to one foot in depth blanketed New York City as the east suffered its worst winter weather in years. Crippling ocean and land transportation, the blizzard left 10,000,000 New Yorkers without a means of travel. LEFT shows a train attempting to push through snowdrifts on the tracks near Rockville Centre L.I. Sixty-mile-an-hour winds accompanied the snow and cold, causing a score of deaths, suffering and hardships. Hundreds of automobiles were buried under the drifts, similar to the plight of this car, snapped at Rockville Center.

DO THESE FIVE MEN SHAPE THE DESTINY OF EUROPE?

WILL AID NEW KING OF BELGIUM

Where Ten Aged Women Burned to Death

The ruins of the Infirmary, a frame building, of the Pennsylvania Memorial Home, of Brookville, Pa., an institution in which ten aged and feeble women folk of American Civil War veterans, perished in a burst of flames that levelled the building in little more than an hour. Some of the inmates were blind and most of them perished in their beds, and others while groping through smoky corridors. Only five of the fifteen inmates in the building escaped into the zero temperature out of doors.

KING ALBERT ON LAST REVIEW

Flanked by a guard of honor, the body of Albert, King of the Belgians, lying in state at the palace in Brussels as thousands of his subjects file past the bier to pay their last tribute. This picture was flown from Brussels to London and sent to this continent by radio.

He grinned and asked a little self-consciously, "Aren't you going to invite me to sit down?"

Charity motioned to the chaise lounge, imbued again with the courage of anger. "Stretch out and make yourself comfortable. You must be tired after all the entertaining."

Doug piled pillows up and leaned back. "I am. Old age, I guess."

Charity curled up in the big chair, her heart beating a tattoo. She wondered why he had come. He looked over at her a moment in silence, then smiled.

"I like your hair cut. It takes about ten years off you."

Charity blushed, but tried to say flippantly, "And my eyebrows? They have been barbered too."

"You look—much different". Doug seemed to be studying her features. "Your gown is stunning. I didn't know a hair cut and a dress could make so much difference in a gal."

"[illegible]—didn't know me this afternoon on the beach, did you?"

It was Doug's turn to squirm. "I certainly didn't. But nobody got wise—thank goodness. Or thanks to Billie, I should say."

"Billie is sweet," Charity said. "She cut my hair and fixed me up. I bought this gown from her."

It was said so naively that Doug felt a stab of pity for Charity. He smiled, almost tenderly. "So you're vain too, just like every other woman?"

Charity winced. "I—suppose I am—human. Billie and I are going shopping tomorrow and I'm going to buy out the town."

"Good." Doug was really glad. "I will expect to see you modeling in the society fashion shows, after this."

Charity looked at Doug for signs of sarcasm, believing he might be making fun of her. But she saw only a wholesome grin, and a friendly look in his eyes that she had never seen before. She'd never liked him half so well. It gave her the courage to say boldly, "And to what may I ask, sir, do I owe this midnight call? Do you walk in your sleep?"

Doug grinned again. Then he squirmed uncomfortably. "Darn it, Charity! You're keeping me busy apologizing to you. It's a new sensation to me, and I don't like it."

"Then don't do it," Charity said seriously. "You don't need to. I don't expect it."

"But you rate it." Doug sat up [illegible] chin in his hands. He looked [illegible]y young, and penitent. "Saturday evening I forget all about you and chase out and leave you all to yourself. And Sunday afternoon you show up just in time to rescue Doc from drowning. You were the only sober person on the ranch—besides Billie. If it hadn't been for you there would have been a tragedy that would have filled the papers."

"Oh," Charity tried to turn it off, "you would have made it."

"You know damn well I would not!" Doug said defiantly. "I was all shot when you passed me in the water. I was lucky to get back to shore without folding up."

"I'd much rather you'd forget it." Charity smiled a crooked little smile of embarrassment.

"Never," Doug shook his head soberly. "You've saved my face two times now—the night when the gang came to the penthouse, and this week end. I wish there were some way I could pay you back."

BILIOUS HEADACHE
QUICKLY REMEDIED

TAKE DR HAMILTON'S PILLS
To-Night—
YOU'LL BE QUITE WELL
In The Morning

"My food soured after meals—I had acute acid-pains and gas rose from my stomach. My head ached, and I felt depressed, tired, nervous.

Hidden constipation caused my trouble but I corrected it with Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Today I am "regular"—full of pep—digest well, feel like a new man."

Dr. Hamilton's Pills is probably just what you need—they are smooth—don't gripe—no inconvenience and a "sure-starter" for better health.

DR HAMILTON'S PILLS
TONE the SYSTEM

A bold idea hit Charity. It was so bold that she almost lost her speech. But she managed to say shakily, "You can—do me a favor. Then I'll be eternally grateful to you."

Doug looked scared. For a second he was sure she was going to ask him not to see Yanner Vandergriff again. It would be like a woman—to take advantage of a man like that.

"What would you like to have me do?" he said fearfully.

If a bomb had suddenly exploded in the room Doug could not have been more amazed when Charity, her face whitening at her boldness, asked timidly, "Wo—would you stay here with me tonight?"

His jaw dropped. Of course, he thought, it was a trap. Charity saw the white set of his mouth, the amazed cynical look in his eyes, and suddenly the light dawned upon her. Doug thought she was trying to force herself upon him. First, she could have died with humiliation as he stared at her. Then she felt herself growing burningly angry.

"Don't—misunderstand me," she said icily. "I have some pride too."

"Then I don't understand," Doug halted in confusion. "Why do you want me to stay here?"

Charity stood up—shaking with fury in every fiber. He was astonished at the fire in her eyes, the blazing anger in her cheeks. And for the first time in her life Charity Jones Temple was truly beautiful. She stood, regal as a queen her head thrown back defiantly, her lips curling scornfully, and gazed at him:

"I asked you only to keep you out of a scandal. These lovely friends you hold so clever and so entertaining, watched the room of the farmer's daughter all last night to see whether the handsome Temple heir came here. I only thought it was much wiser to let them think it might be a real marriage. It might make them think you're a little more of a man if they think you married me for some other reason than to get your father's money."

It was Doug's turn to be furious. "They couldn't do such a thing!"

"Oh, yes they could." Charity was so spent with anger that she sat down weakly. "They can do a lot of things that ladies and gentlemen wouldn't do."

"I'll stay." Doug sat down on the lounge heavily. "I can sleep here."

Charity laughed bitterly. "You'll stay—to save your face again. Well, don't stay on my account. I'm sure I don't care now."

Doug threw himself face down and groaned miserably. "I—I suppose I'll spend the rest of my life misunderstanding you—apologizing to you—"

"Don't trouble to apologize to me." Charity turned coldly to turn out the light. "I'll go in the bathroom to undress."

In a few minutes she came back to crawl into her bed timidly, her anger cooled. Now she felt only embarrassment at the idea of Doug on the lounge.

Doug's mind was a turmoil of uncertainty. What manner of creature was this woman his father had sold him into marrying? For the first time he really began to think of her as a woman. And as a woman who was not without attraction. But she was hating him with a white fury.

How would it all end?

CHAPTER 16

Charity awakened the next morning to find that her husband's makeshift couch on the chaise lounge was empty. She wondered at what time he had sneaked out of the room to his own quarters. And she hoped the "night watch" had seen him go—if they were watching.

All through breakfast and the ride back to town Billie was burning with curiosity. But she knew that if Charity wanted to confide in her she would. They rode back to New York in Billie's roadster and stopped at the penthouse just long enough to get Charity's check book.

"Now where to?" Charity smiled. "My fate's in your hands."

Billie studied. "Sport things first. And of course that means to Madame Tailleur's on Fifth avenue. Oh, Charity, do you realize how lucky you are to be able to spend all the money you want to on clothes?"

"I suppose I am lucky." Charity said a little doubtfully. "But I can not get as enthusiastic about clothes as most girls."

"Oh, but you will. Think what clothes can do for you. Don't let anyone tell you they aren't ninety-nine per cent of the battle. Because they are. You wait and see if you don't have every man you want eating out of your hand."

"But I don't want anybody to eat out of my hand."

Billie grinned. "And that's a lot of bunk too, Mrs. Temple."

"Men are all alike," Charity declared, not originally, and Billie laughed heartily. "How clever of you," she said, "to have discovered that and you so young and innocent and unspoiled."

Charity stuck her tongue out inelegantly. Billie looked cross-eyed and asked suddenly, "Do you think you could ever fall in love with Doug?"

Charity was taken aback. But she said truthfully, "I—I never thought of it. I hope not. Because it would not do me any good. He loves some one else. I know he could never love anyone like me."

"Why couldn't he?" Billie demanded. "What's the matter with you, I'd like to know?"

"Oh—lots of things. I'm only a poor farmer's daughter from the sticks of Iowa, for one thing. I haven't blue blood and I've never had any of the social advantages."

Billie sniffed. "You're more refined than any of Doug Temple's friends. I hope you don't fall in love with him, though, because you're too good for him. But I hope to live to see the day when he's on his knees begging you to love him—and I hope you kick him until he bounces. It would serve him right—after what he's put you through."

"I'm getting well paid for it," Charity said mildly. "We wouldn't even be going shopping today if it weren't for Doug. Don't be too hard on him. Besides, he came to my room last night and apologized so sweetly for his sins."

Billie jumped. "Did he?"

Charity looked at her with round innocent eyes in which mischief danced. "Don't tell a soul. My husband stayed all night."

Billie looked incredulous.

Suddenly Charity flushed painfully. "He slept on the chaise longue. I—I asked him to—because of what you told me. I told him about some of the girls spying on us".

"You didn't!" Billie giggled. "Oh—I've got to find out whether there was anybody on watch last night. It'll just about kill Chickie Belle if she finds out about it. I think she's after a few of Doug's millions."

"I'd about as soon see that dancer get them as Yanner Vandergriff." Charity looked grim. "But something tells me both of them are going to get cheated."

"Atta girl!" Billie slapped her on the back. "Here's our first stop."

They found a parking space around the corner from the shop. Charity felt her knees shaking again as a uniformed door man swung open the little red door of the smartest establishment on Fifth Avenue.

"Good morning, Alfonse." Billie gave him her friendliest grin. "I've a lot of business for this morning. Could we have Madame Bordeaux?"

"Certainement," the Frenchman bowed again and disappeared.

"I used to model here regularly," Billie volunteered, "still do when they have a fashion show. But business isn't so good now."

Alfonse appeared in a few seconds, to bow again and motion for them to follow him back to where Mme. Bordeaux, the owner of the shop, sat in her office. Charity was amazed at the plain, little gray-haired woman, in the simplest gray dress, who sat behind her desk smiling at them from behind horn-rimmed glasses.

"And—so, Billie dear, you have brought me a customer?"

"This is Mrs. Douglas Temple." Billie took Charity's arm for she could see how nervous Charity seemed to be. "We'll need your advice. Can you spare a little time?"

The magic name of Temple brought a glow of pleasure to the dark brown eyes of Mme. Bordeaux. She jumped with alacrity. "For sure— I can spare the whole day! What is madame looking for?"

"Everything." Billie grinned.

"I'll leave it entirely up to you and Miss Miller." Charity smiled nervously. "I really know almost nothing about clothes."

Madame was surprised. Billie explained, smiling. "Charity has been one of those business gals with too many brains to worry about the fads and fancies of fashion."

Mme. Bordeaux's eyes twinkled. She leaned toward Charity to whisper companionably, "So have I—for myself I look worse than the maid that cleans up the shop most of the time. And there is no one who knows what a woman should wear better than Bordeaux—but—it wearies me to try to keep up with it all. I'm getting old. Fashion is for the young—and beautiful. I have never been beautiful"

Before the girls had a chance to contradict her she stepped back, her head to one side, and studied Charity. "You are a most interesting type, Madame Temple. I love to dress a tall, slender girl with a perfect figure like yours. You shall be the most perfectly tailored woman in town. Come, I will show you what I have There are some things in stock just made for you Anything else you need we shall make."

For the next three hours Charity stood patiently while Mme. Bordeaux and Billie tried clothes on her. Sport suits, dresses, hats. Wound materials about her slender body. She took their advice blindly, standing quietly as a fashion dummy while they made her "the most perfectly tailored woman in New York."

It was after two in the afternoon and Charity ached in every bone with fatigue. Madame looked at her watch, to jump with surprise. "You poor lamb, you must be starved." She turned to an assistant who held a bolt of material in her hands. "Marie! Tell Gaston to bring a menu from Gaston's. You must lunch with me. I'm so sorry—

TARZAN AT THE EARTH'S CORE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

REX MAXON

© 1933, by Edgar Rice Burroughs, Inc. All rights reserved.

Almost beneath Tarzan, racing toward his tree was what at first glance appeared to be an almost naked white man. Yet even at the instant of discovery the long, white tail projecting rearward did not escape the ape-man's eyes. Behind the fleeing figure and now so close as to preclude the possibility of its quarry escaping came Numa, the lion, in full charge. Both beast and man-thing moved in silent swiftness—strangely enough, neither the killer nor its prey uttering a cry.

Even in that brief second, as his eyes opened and took in the scene beneath him, Tarzan was in mid-air! He had seen a white-skinned creature, not unlike his own race, pursued by Tarzan's hereditary enemy. That was enough! So close was the lion to the fleeing man-thing that Tarzan had no time to choose the method of his attack. As a diver leaps from a springboard head foremost, so Tarzan of the Apes dove straight for Numa.

Naked in his right hand was the blade of his father that so many times had tasted the blood of lions. A raking talon caught Tarzan on the side, inflicting a long, deep wound, and then the ape-man was on Numa's back and the blade was sinking again and again into the savage side. Nor was the man-thing tither longer fleeing or idle. He too, creature of the wild, had immediately sensed the miracle of his saving and turning in his tracks, had leaped forward with raised bludgeon to Tarzan's assistance.

A single, terrific blow up on the lion's skull laid him insensible and then as Tarzan's knife found the wild h'art, a few convulsive shudders and a sudden relaxation marked the lion's passing. Leaping to his feet the ape-man placed his foot upon the carcass of his kill. Raising his face to Goro, the moon, he voced the savage victory cry that had so often awakened the echoes of his native jungle. As the hideous scream burst from the ape-man's lips the man-thing stepped quickly back in sudden awe.

GOLD HOLDINGS IN CANADA

Take Over Note Issue

One of its first jobs will be to take over the entire Dominion Note Issue and to gradually take over from the chartered banks their currency-issuing privileges. The banks will be required to retire their notes from circulation gradually and turn over this function to the Bank of Canada.

The Bank will be privately owned and this feature is likely to be the most contentious provision in the Act for all parties in Parliament are committed to the principle of a Central Bank. Liberals and Farmer-Laborites, served notice, however, they would object to this and hold out for a publicly owned Central Bank.

Restrictions are placed on the ownership of the stock of the Bank designed to remove the dangers of private ownership while preserving its advantages and at the same time prevent any single group from gaining control.

The capitalization is to be $5,000,000 in shares of $100 par value.

Banks Cannot Purchase Shares

The chartered banks will be barred from purchasing the shares and no individual will be allowed to acquire more than 50 shares.

All gold now held by the chartered banks as reserves against their note issues as well as gold and silver held by the Finance Department against the Dominion note issue will be taken over by the Bank of Canada at the present statutory gold price of $20.67 per fine ounce. Thus in the event of the price of gold being raised the Central Bank will derive the profit. Any profits arising from a re-valuation of gold will be paid to the Dominion Government.

As yet Canada has not moved to reduce the metallic banking of its currency to 25 per cent. in accord with the resolution approved at the World Economic Conference. The present statutory metallic backing is 40 per cent. A considerably larger currency issue would be possible if the smaller backing were used.

Mr. Rhodes told the House of Commons yesterday the measures marked "an advanced stage in our economic and financial development as a nation." The Government Mr. Bennett stated, would welcome amendments designed to improve the Legislation although he indicated it would hold firmly to its intention to make the institution privately owned.

A more extended debate on the measures will take place Tuesday and after they will then go to the House Committee on Banking and Commerce for prolonged and detailed study.

The second measure, to revise the Bank Act, comes periodically every ten years. The bank charters are issued for a ten-year period. Last year was regular year for review but owing to the pending banking inquiry a one-year extension was granted.

Head office of the Bank of Canada will be in Ottawa and it will be empowered to establish branches and agencies throughout the Dominion and in other countries.

Not Redeemable in Gold Bar

Possibility of the government taking over all the gold in the country is envisioned in the legislation. The Governor-in-council is empowered to require all gold privately held in Canada to be transferred to the Bank of Canada.

The bank's note issue will be redeemable in gold bars but not in gold coin.

While the new Central Bank will have control over the volume of credit in the country it will not be responsible for the general price level in the country, Mr. Rhodes told the House. Certainly, he stated, it would not make the prices of particularly commodities its direct concern.

Definite restrictions are provided to assure the stability of the bank and keep it to its allotted sphere of a Central Bank.

It will not be permitted to accept deposits from the public, to lend money on land, to engage in commercial activities, to deal in its own shares or in those of the chartered banks. It will be permitted to invest in certain high grade securities, to deal in bills of exchange and to make loans to the Dominion Government and to Provincial Governments, as recommended in the report of the Royal Commission.

In the revised Bank Act teeth are placed in the provision of a maximum interest rate. The present act makes seven per cent. the highest rate a bank may charge on loans but provides no penalty for an infraction of the rule. The new act makes any bank charging more than seven per cent. liable to a fine not exceeding $500 and any officer of a bank doing so liable to a fine not exceeding $100.

The Bank of Canada will be operated by a governor, a deputy governor and seven directors, chosen in the first instance by the government.

Retire in Rotation

The directors will retire in rotation and new appointments will be made by the shareholders subject to the approval of the government.

One of the government's main objects in making the bank a privately owned institution, the Minister of Finance stated, was to avoid political interference or pressure. At the same time it plans to avoid the dangers of private ownership by a limitation of the profits and a wide distribution of the shares. The maximum dividend the bank may pay will be six per cent. Profits over and above that amount will be turned over to the government. The bank itself will not be subject to income tax but its shareholders will be liable to income tax on their dividends.

In the Senate yesterday a financial measure of another sort was under consideration. Senator G. H. Barnard pressed for approval of a bill to legalize sweepstakes. It will be debated again at another sitting. The Upper House adjourned until Tuesday.

The House of Commons today reverts to the estimates.

WIFE'S INDIGESTION BANISHED

By Scientific Formula of London Specialist

"My wife," writes the grateful husband of a woman who had suffered continuously from indigestion for two or three years, "has been taking your powder exactly a week. After the first two days all pain vanished and she has not had the slightest suggestion of indigestion since."

After a lifetime spent in the study and treatment of stomach troubles, a famous London, England, Specialist developed a formula which is having remarkable results in the relief of pain and distress in severe cases of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Flatulence, Gastritis, Acidity and Heartburn.

Under the name, Maclean Brand Stomach Powder, this scientific formula is giving relief to thousands. It is widely used in English hospitals. Current Attractions at Local Theatres

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE
"MY LIPS BETRAY" AND "FRONTIER MARSHAL"

Lilian Harvey, internationally known screen star, comes to the Belle Theatre, tomorrow (Saturday) and Monday, in "My Lips Betray," her new production under the Fox banner.

Miss Harvey is no stranger to Belle screen fans, she captivated the hearts of local screen fans last November in "My Weakness" one of the most popular films presented here this season.

In "My Lips Betray" the diminitive star is said to have her ideal role. She is known throughout the world for her versatility as an actress of note, and a dancer and singer of unique ability.

Her leading man is John Boles, who was personally selected by her. She has seen him in some of his roles and was attracted by his fine voice and his attractive personality.

"Frontier Marshal"

George O'Brien, long known for his western characterizations is appearing in the second feature attraction on the same program his latest film is "Frontier Marshal."

Tombstone, Arizona, known in the days of the old West as a roaring, politically corrupt mining town where lawlessness and death were the order of the day, forms the background of this Western epic. The film was taken from incidents in the life of Wyatt Earp, the West's most widely known peace officer and the fearless leader of the law and order forces who tamed the elements that had made Tombstone known the world over.

The Belle Current News will be exhibited on the same program. The further adventures of "The Three Musketeers" adventure story will be exhibited on the same program.

"Counsellor at Law" featuring John Barrymore, Bebe Daniels and Doris Kenyon will be presented for the last times tonight.

AT THE CAPITOL
"BROKEN DREAMS" AND "BY CANDLELIGHT"

How would you feel if you were the butler of an Austrian prince and were entertaining a lady in your master's luxurious apartment during his absence, only to have him suddenly walk into the room bearing champaigne for your entertainment and wearing the servant's coat which you had previously removed in favor of the prince's smoking jacket?

Elissa Landi, the lady in the case was not at all flustered, since the rascally servant had led her to think that he himself was the prince—and it was a long time before she learned otherwise.

This is a part of "By Candlelight," Universal's gay Continental comedy now showing at the Capitol Theatre with Miss Landi, and Lukas in starring roles. The picture tells a delightfully sophisticated story.

"BROKEN DREAMS"

Feature number two on this program is a screen play without a "menace". That is the distinctive thing about "Broken Dreams", which opened at the Capitol Theatre last night, and at once puts it in a class by itself. Tenderly and truthfully told, it is a heart interest drama that touches upon one of the most vital situations of life. Punctuated with moments of humor, of strong drama and tragedy, it depends upon none of these things exclusively to "put it over". Minus thrilling climaxes, it makes no appeal for noisy demonstration on the part of the audience, but sends the spectator from the theatre with a mist in his eyes and something to think about.

While the story deals with "grown-ups" the central figure is a child—Billy. Brought into the world at the price of his mother's life, he is hated by his father, Robert Morley.

Buster Phelps—an amazingly clever juvenile actor—invests the role of Billy with an appeal it will be hard to forget. Randolph Scott and charming Martha Sleeper score as the boy's father and mother, and Joseph Cawthorn and Beryl Mercer contribute excellent characterizations of Pop and Mom Miller.

LIVE DECOYS ARE DECRIED BY MEMBERS

Ask Practice Be Made Offence Under Game Laws

GAME INCREASING

Argument Over Use of Dogs Waxes Long And Warm

Toronto, Feb. 23 (CP)—Baiting of ducks and geese for purposes of slaughter was strongly opposed by members of the Ontario Hunters Game Protective Association before the Legislative Court on Fish and Game today. It was asked that the practice be made an offence under the game laws.

Wm. R. Griner, Aldershot, and Jack Griffith, Burlington, pointed to conditions existing in Hamilton Bay where they contended baiting as blinds results in slaughter of ducks and geese chiefly for commercial purposes. One blind was said to have cost $125 and its owner baited and killed ducks and geese for commercial uses. The committee generally felt the abuse should be brought under law.

Glen Hughes, North Bay, urged that the duck license for non-residents should be reduced from the present $21. charge. In the States he said, Americans can shoot ducks and geese without cost of license.

H. W. Hunsberry, Jordan, asked for another open season on partridge for the deer hunters urging that the five day allowance granted last year be increased to fifteen.

Hon. G. H. Challies, Minister of Game and Fisheries, reported the propagation of game birds is increasing, there being a greater number of parents birds in game farms than ever before.

The huntsmen were asked to express their views on the shooting of bear. It was agreed that a license fee of $10 for non-residents should be charged and it was pointed out by Donald McDonald, Deputy Minister of Game and Fisheries that there is no closed season on bear.

T. P. Murray, Liberal, South Renfrew, stated that he knew of bear having killed men but he never knew of a wolf killing a man.

On the question of use of dogs in hunting deer, Wm. Castle, president of the Association, said he would never get over the position of being without the dogs.

Col. Harry Cameron of Toronto opposed the use of dogs, and urged that the law remain as it is.

Jas. Craig, Conservative, Lanark, state that members of his constituency, who were against abolishing use of dogs are now convinced they should not be returned.

A petition bearing names of 300 huntsmen of Middlesex County was presented by W. K. Robinson of London, which urged return of the dogs. At a meeting of Western Ontario hunters, he said, the entire feeling was for return of the dogs.

Harry I. Price, Cons., West York urged return of use of dogs, even in interests of conservation, pointing out it was his experience many wounded deer are lost without use of dogs.

OTTAWA SCHOOLBOY CRASHES TO DEATH

Playing Hockey Hits Boards And Stick Jammed Into Abdomen

Ottawa, Feb. 23 (CP)—Hockey's death roll had its second addition of the season today. William Riopelle, 17-year-old schoolboy, died last night from injuries received six days previously while playing on an outdoor rink.

The youth crashed into the boards the butt-end of his stick being jammed into his abdomen. Peritonitis, which set in following an operation, proved fatal.

It was the sixth known death caused by hockey. A former Toronto junior, Andy Ritchie, died last Jan. 23 from injuries received at Atlantic City, N.J. when he fell on his own skate. He was a member of the Atlantic City Sea Gulls, United States amateur champions.

MANY LEADERS NOW IN EXILE

Political Situation in Austria is Most Distressing

By WADE WERNER

By The Associated Press

Vienna, Feb. 23—Almost every political faction in Austria has a leader in exile today.

Loyal monarchists sigh for Archduke Ott. He still lives with his mother, ex-Empress Zita, in banishment.

Austrian Nazis find most of their leaders in exile or in prison—not to mention the Austrian-born Adolf Hitler, who rules as Chancellor of Germany in Berlin.

And since last week, Austrian Socialists have become an orphaned outlawed party. Most of the Socialist leaders have been killed in battle, hanged as rebels or have fled to foreign soil.

The Monarchists make up part of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss' following. The undersecretary of defence, Prince Schoenburg-Hartenstein, for example, participated in a recent appeal to the Dollfuss government to "rectify the injustices done to the Hapsburg."

The exile situation is considered hardly likely to last. Most Austrians are expected vital decision to be made within the next few days and weeks. It is not generally expected, of course, that the fugitive Socialists will be invited to return.

The lifting of the ban on the Hapsburg or the Nazis, however, is considered highy probable. Chancellor Dollfuss said yesterday that the question of a return to a monarch "has not yet been discussed by the cabinet."

KING LEOPOLD TO VISIT ALL POSSESSIONS

Privacy of King and Queen Enjoyed so Long Now Broken

Royal Couple Blessed And Will be Crowned in Six Months

(By Albert W. Wilson)

(Copyright, 1934, by Associated Press)

Brussels, Feb 24.—Leopold III and Queen Astrid faced together today the historic responsibility of all Belgian rulers—the task of keeping two nationalities under one flag.

Their first important duty as the new King and Queen of the compact little country is to make an appearance in every town and village in Belgium.

His nationwide tour may require several months, but three times before in the 100 years of Belgian Independence, it has been required of the new sovereigns. They alone symbolize the unity of the Flemings and the Walloons.

The comparative privacy Leopold and Queen Astrid, former Princess of Sweden, have known during the few years of their married life, was over forever today as a result of their enthronement.

Now they will take up residence in the Royal Castle at Suburban Laeken, quitting their cosier Chateau nearby.

Their simple and direct way of meeting people in yesterday's inaugural celebration already has won them the devotion of their subjects. Also political groups of all hues are talking enthusiastically today of the surprising revelation in the enthronement ceremonies, that young Leopold speaks Flemish as perfectly as he does French—the Walloon tongue. He was required to use both languages in taking the oath.

This fact may aid Leopold. Flemish Separatists, although they now hold only seven seats in Parliament, were reported to have encouraged two communist deputies who created a disturbance in parliament Thursday.

The Royal couple was blessed this morning at a Te Deum Mass in St. Gudule Cathedral where funeral services were held Thursday for Albert.

The coronation of King Leopold and Queen Astrid is expected to be held in six months at the end of the period of court mourning for the late monarch.

RUMOR WALKS THRU VIENNA

Scores of Unfounded Stories Are Denied

(By Wade Werner, Associated Press Foreign Staff).

Vienna, Feb. 24 (CP)—The Austrian capital, which last week trembled under military fire, was enlived today by rapid-fire rumors—some old and some new. but as fast and persistent as machine-gun fire.

There were rumors that President Miklas had resigned; rumors that Prince Von Starhemberg, leader of the Fascist Heimwehr, was seeking a conference with the exiled former Empress Zita; rumors that Dr. Karl Buresch, Minister of Finance was about to be thrown out of the cabinet.

But these were not all rumors. There were others, such as rumors that the Nazis were marching on Vienna or massing on the Austro-German frontier; rumors that Fulvio Suvich, Italian Under-Secretary of State, and Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss were holding a conference to determine a military-economic alliance between Austria, Hungary and Italy. The difficulty with most of the rumors is that they are rumors and, as far as definite proof is concerned, nothing more.

Miklas and Von Starhemberg rumors were officially denied as also were the Nazi rumors.

As King Albert Was Carried on Last Journey

Through streets crowded with saddened subjects and most of the crowned heads of Europe, the late King Albert of Belgium in a stately funeral carriage was carried on his last journey. The above photograph, telephoned to London and radioed to New York, shows the funeral cortege as it passed through the streets of Brussels as thousands looked on.

Trent Canal Used Only by Pleasure Craft Says Manion

Pushed Out of Transportation Picture by Rails And Highways

Ottawa, Feb. 24. — Anyone who wants a perfectly good canal can obtain one from Hon. R. J. Manion cheap. In fact he might get it for nothing. Dr. Manion, who is minister of railways and canals intimated as much in the House of Commons last night and he referred to the Trent Valley Canal, that picturesque and historic waterway, which connects Lake Ontario with Lake Simcoe and Georgian Bay.

A busy thoroughfare in early days this canal through the heart of Ontario has been pushed out of the transportation picture by the building of railways and highways, the coming of the motor truck and the use of huge freighters on the Great Lakes. Now it is scarcely used except by pleasure craft but it costs the government of Canada money to maintain it.

An attack on Ontario's old waterway was launched by A. E. Munn, Liberal member for Vancouver North, when a vote of $39,500 came before the House to provide for repairs and alterations to the upper end of the canal. Dr. Manion said the government was bound to maintain the canal under a contract with the Ontario Hydro Commission and Mr. Munn said if this involved the spending of money they should give the canal to the commission.

"Maybe they wouldn't take it," said Dr. Manion, who added the government had other possessions it would like to give away.

Wide Range of Debate.

A wide range of estimates came before the House yesterday and good progress was made with voting money for the railways and canals and trade and commerce departments.

In answer to further questions Dr. Manion said the Hudson Bay Railway and terminal was practically completed. The government planned to spend some money on cattle pens this year. It had been a difficult business, he said, getting traffic for the Hudson Bay route but it was increasing each year.

Hon. H. H. Stevens, minister of trade and commerce, was called upon to answer many questions as discussion on his estimates ranged over a wide field. He said the government had once considered making a gift of wheat to China but had decided against it as there was no assurance the wheat would reach the famine-stricken areas of the interior. The prospect was it would be taken over by the well-organized grain trade at the seaboard which would otherwise buy its wheat.

TRIBESMEN HOLD HILLS

French Foreign Legion Will Clean up in Morocco

RABAT, Morocco, Feb. 24—(AP)—France's fighting Foreign Legion and two desert armies began today an active campaign to conquer and occupy the remainder of the vast Moroccan Territory.

General Antoine Hurre, Commander-in-Chief, sent the two forces into the Western Half of the lower Atlas Mountains. There, 200,000 natives hold 4,000 square miles.

General Giraud is going into South Tiznit while General Catroux, who is already operating west of the village of Akka, will head a movement eastward to clean out the foothills

In these hills live fierce tribesmen who raid the fertile valleys below periodically and cut the sketchy French communication lines there.

PATRICK BARRY SAYS "NOT QUITE SOBER"

Usual Fine Imposed but Man Takes Required Time on Hill

"You were drunk last night, Pat?" shouted Chief Kidd in question to Pat Barry, Prince Edward County, who is rather deaf, when he appeared in Saturday morning's police court charged with intoxication.

"Well, I wasn't very sober, I guess," came back Patrick with a nod of the head.

"Then you're guilty?" asked the Magistrate. "Yes, sir," said Pat

"The usual fine of $15 and costs or in default of payment 10 days in the common jail," came back and police court terminated rather quickly as Patrick did not have the money to pay the fine.

The accused is well known about the district being an axe and hatchet handle manufacturer.

Dangerous Shoals in Lake Superior Result of Quakes, Says Captain

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Feb. 24—(CP)—Dangerous shoals have recently appeared in Lake Superior near Michipicoten Island, doubtless as the result of earthquakes, Captain James McCannell of the Canadian Pacific fleet told members of the Engineering Institute at a meeting of the local branch here.

If the shoals had been there for any length of time they would have been washed hard by the waves, the Captain said. He reported having had a narrow escape there once during a storm and said the bottom at that point was covered with clay which would not be the case if the shoal had been washed by the waters of the lake for any length of time.

WINS DIVORCE THEN BECOMES ILL AT PARTY

Mrs. Massie, Won Attention, When Victim of Assault in Honolulu

RENO, Nevada, Feb. 24.—(CP)—Stricken ill, while attending dinner party with three friends at a Reno night club last night, Mrs. Thalia Fortescue Massie is under a physician's care in a Reno hospital today.

The physician, Dr. Vinton A. Muller, said her condition is not serious and that "she will be all right in a day or so."

Mrs. Massie, who won world-wide attention in 1932 when she was the victim of an assault in Honolulu, divorced Lieut. Thomas H. Massie in charges of extreme mental cruelty here yesterday.

In the company of Mrs. Vida Claywell, "Woddie" Volner and Gail Parsons of Reno, she went to the dinner party last night.

During the dinner, friends said she became ill and Dr. Muller and her attorney, George Springmeyer, were summoned to the resort. They took her to St. Mary's Hospital, where attendants said she would rest for a few days.

Mrs. Massie won her divorce at a private trial before District Judge Benjamin F. Curler. After it was granted, she told friends she would "celebrate" by attending the dinner

VICTOR ROSS OILMAN, DIES

Former Newspaperman and Prominent Sportsman Dies of Pneumonia

Toronto, Feb. 24—(CP)—Preparations were launched today for the funeral of Victor Ross, senior vice president of the Imperial Oil Company and vice-president of the International Petroleum Company. Mr. Ross died last night of pneumonia at the age of 55.

Mr. Ross, former newspaperman, earned himself an international reputation in business and was noted for his interest in sport and the theatre. Born at Walkerton, where his father at one time was crown attorney, he came to Toronto in his early youth and joined the staff of the Toronto Star as a reporter. In his many years of newspaper experience Mr. Ross worked for the Mail and Empire and the Globe, resigning as financial editor of the later paper in 1918 to become assistant to Walter C. Teagle, President of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and former President of the Imperial Oil Company.

More than 20 years ago Mr Ross suffered a broken leg in an automobile accident and the limb failed to heal normally so that he was forced to undergo several operations, which rendered him a cripple.

In 1919 Mr. Ross was elected a director of the Imperial Oil Company and later replaced the late Hon. W. J. Hanna on the Board of the International Petroleum Company.

SIX KILLED BUS SLIDES FROM ROAD

35 Mormon Passengers in Wreck on Slippery Hill

THIRTY INJURED

Crash Confusion Leaves The Police Puzzled

Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 24 (AP) — The Sheriff's office reported information had been received from Wickenburg that six persons were killed and at least 30 injured in the wreck of a stage carrying Mormon church members near Aguila early today. The fatalities included five women and an infant, the authorities said.

Wickenburg, Ariz., Feb. 24 (AP)—Six persons were killed and 10 were injured when a large passenger bus carrying 35 Mormon church workers slid from a rain-drenched highway and overturned one mile east of Aguila early today.

Sheriff's Deputities said the dead were, Mrs. Chester D. McArthur, Mrs. Frank Riggs, a Mrs. Crawford, a Mrs. Gowers and a child of Mrs. Pearl Hawes.

Two hours after the accident, confusion still prevailed to such an extent, that authorities were unable to obtain a comprehensive report of what occurred.

The only means of communication with Aguila was a railway telegraph line, and it was over this wire from the State dispatcher there the news of the accident first was sent.

G. N. PHILLIPS PASSES AWAY

Inquest Opens Into Death Following Accident

George N. Phillips, 77, Cannifton, died in the Belleville General Hospital early today. On Friday, the deceased was a victim of a motor accident in Cannifton, when he was struck by a Belleville Hydro Commission truck driven by Harold Arnott of this city and sustained a fractured left leg. Coroner Dr. R. W. Tennent ordered an inquest in this death and the same was convened today and after preliminary evidence was given by William Reynolds of Cannifton, who identified the deceased, and Sergeant Arthur Booth, who assembled the jury, the hearing was adjourned until Monday evening at the police court room. The jury empanelled were W. J. Barlow, T. G. Hammett Thomas Thorne, Samuel Wedden; George Dawkins; S. A. Lockwood and Alfred Luscombe was elected foreman.

George N. Phillips was born in Thurlow Township seventy-seven years ago, and followed farming on the third concession for many years Three years ago he removed to Cannifton where he has since resided. He was a son of the late Nicholas Phillips.

He leaves his widow, one son Palmer, at home and an adopted son, Arnold, also at home, three sisters, Mrs. Annie Lanxon of Chicago, Mrs. Grace Townsend, Cobourg and Mrs. J. Kent of Campbellford. He was a member of the Cannifton United Church.

The funeral will be held on Monday.

ONE ICICLE SAVES, ANOTHER KILLS

Philadelphia, Feb. 24—An icicle saved the life of George W. Zibbell. Repairing a leak on the roof of a club, he slipped and slid over the edge, only to grab a huge icicle then he pulled himself up.

Hanging like the sword of Damocles, a 20-pound icicle in a coal mine at Tower City dropped on the head of Mark W. Lenker. The miner was dead when friends picked him up.

Lost Bouvet Isle Re-discovered British Naval Hero Successful

Cape Town, South Africa, Feb. 24 (CP Cable)—A laconic wireless message today announced that Vice-Admiral E. R. G. Evans, British naval hero and explorer, had reached Bouvet Island in the small sloop Milford after an adventurous voyage southwards from Cape Town.

Evans, who made two Antarctic expeditions and gained fame in the war for his exploits in a destroyer in the English Channel, was bent on definitely locating the mysterious isle, found in 1739 and later 'lost,' and still for many years not definitely placed on the maps.

When he started out he also intended to visit the Antarctic continent at points hitherto unsurveyed but he was held up by a 70 mile gale for some time and as his fuel supplies were reduced considerably by the storms it was doubtful whether he would continue further south.

Private Armies Trend is Smashed by Simon as Un-British, Unneeded

Popularity of "Shirts" is Concern to British Government

SIMON FOR "HOUSE"

Police Take Place of Private Forces as in Old Days

London, Feb. 24 (CP Cable)— A striking speech by Sir John Simon in which the Foreign Minister in his deliberate fashion dealt a smashing blow at the tendency to "private armies" becoming more prominent in England led to suggestions today that Sir John might be transferred to the Home Secretaryship.

Speaking at Glasgow Sir John declared: "I do not believe British citizens have anything to learn about political liberty from any other people. It is the essence of British political liberty that order should be kept by responsible authorities. When we reflect on recent events abroad I do not think it is untimely to declare that we do not want any private organization for keeping order in this country."

The government has recently become seriously concerned about the popularity of blackshirts and brown shirts, notably the Fascists under Sir Oswald Mosley, who recently took it on themselves to "defend" property of farmers from being attacked for failure to pay church tithes. The government has intimated legislation may be brought down banning the wearing of such political uniforms.

Sir John's Attitude Praised

The Times today remarked Sir John's "deliberate and lucid handling of the problem of private forces" had been welcomed without party distinction by members who believe in the British capacity for democracy.

"It has also given them some idea that in the future reorganization of the National Cabinet, regarded as inevitable but not imminent, Sir John may return to his old position in the Home Office in order to deal directly with this great problem. A considerable reshuffle would give new life to the ministry.

"Meanwhile," added The Times: "Thanks to Sir John, Stanley Baldwin and other sane speakers, there appears a definite decline in enthusiasm for private forces."

Britain Safe for Democracy

"Britain at least can be made safe for democracy," Sir John said in his Glasgow speech. "The use of private forces was a feature in England in the War of the Roses, but nowadays if there is a threat of trouble or disturbance sensible citizens send for the police and rely on them to do their duty. "They will preserve order, or restore it, much better than any amateurs, and do it in the general public interest, too. The existence of one private army inevitably calls another into existence."

FIRE LOSSES AT QUARTER MILLION

Toronto, Feb. 24.—Fire losses in Canada during the week ended Feb. 21 were estimated by the Monetary Times at $256,950, as compared with $426,250 during the preceding week and with $507,700 during the corresponding week of last year.

Fire losses since Jan. 1 to Feb. 21 1934, totalled $2,650,200, as compared with $2,902,475 for the corresponding period of last year.

FISHING VESSEL IN DISTRESS

Boston, Feb. 24.—S.O.S. calls from the steam trawler Loon, operated by the Portland Trawling Company at Groton, Conn., said that the fishing vessel was in serious distress today, 200 miles east southeast of Boston as a result of having struck a leak. Immediate aid was asked.

SIX TONS TOBACCO ALLEGEDLY STOLEN

Kalman Durdon Will Be Brought To City

Simcoe, Ont., Feb. 24 (CP) — Kalman Durdon, arrested in Montreal yesterday on a charge involving the theft of six tons of tobacco from Mrs. Mable Saoke of Middleton, will be brought here for trial at once, it was learned today. Provincial Police Officer R. J. Taggard left for Montreal to bring him here for trial this morning.

According to the complaint, Durdon moved out in the night a week ago, taking with him in two trucks his wife and children, household goods and the season's tobacco crop which he had grown on a "shares" basis with Mrs. Saoke.

CENTRAL BANK IS APPROVED

Sir Henry Drayton Hopes it Will Act as Agent of Municipalities

Lethbridge, Feb. 24.—Satisfaction with the terms of the bill to create a central bank was voiced by Sir Henry Drayton here today. Chairman of the committee of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, Sir Henry is touring the west in the interests of government economy.

It is unfortunate the bank could not be set up as the fiscal agent of every municipality and every province in the Dominion as well as Canada itself, he told members of the Board of Trade here last night.

He hoped there would be such a determined demand for such an arrangement from the people of Canada that constitutional difficulties would be swept aside and the way paved for bank of Canada experts to act for taxpayers in all matters of public financing. In this way, he said, public financing would no longer weigh heavily upon the taxpayers.

Sir Henry paid a tribute to the chartered banks of Canada which, throughout the depression period, he said, protected the $1,800,000,000 in deposits of more than 4,000,000 people. "The central bank can and should do much for us," he concluded. The bill recently introduced into parliament met with his approval.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Feb. 24 (CP)—Gales with rain and snow have prevailed over the Maritime Provinces and Eastern Quebec while in nearly all other parts of the Dominion the weather has been fair...Temperatures are considerably below zero this morning from the Rocky Mountains eastward to New Brunswick. .. ..

Northern Ontario: Fair and continued cold today and Sunday.

Ottawa, Upper and Lower St. Lawrence Valley: Fresh west and northwest winds; fair and continuing cold tonight and Sunday.

Kenora and Rainy River: Fair and decidedly cold.

Manitoba: Fair and decidedly cold.

Should Enlarge Cut Say Residents

A store manager, whose place of business is near the intersection of Victoria Avenue and Front street, glanced at the front page of Friday's issue of the Daily Ontario Intelligencer. Facing him, in a study of black and white was a graphic diagram of how not to round a corner into a busy street with a motor vehicle.

"That," he stated with emphasis, as he pointed to the cut, "that picture should be enlarged about fifty times and put on a pole facing Victoria Avenue for some of our local motorists to see."

Downdraft of Smoke Causes Fire Call

Black smoke which rolled through the house at 55 Queen street, caused, said firemen, by a downdraft of air through the pipes, gave members of the local fire department a run to that address at two-thirty o'clock on Friday afternoon. No damage was done. There was no fire.

BAR WELCOME TO JUSTICE ARMOUR

In welcome to Mr. Justice Armour of the Supreme Court, presiding judge at the spring assize, a banquet was given by the members of the Hastings Bar Association. Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, president occupied the chair. Sheriff Belford of Northumberland and Durham, was one of the speakers of the evening. Col. W. N. Ponton, K.C., proposed the health of the Hon. Mr. Justice Eric Armour and addresses were made by Magistrate W. C. Mikel, A. B. Collins, K.C., and Mr. Skeans of Cobourg. A tribute of condolence in the death of the late Judge J. F. Wills was passed by the Assembly.

SALVATION BAND TO VISIT MARMORA

An offer to entertain Marmora residents by a band concert in the village on Sunday afternoon as soon as weather conditions permit has been made Capt. Percy Gray, president of the Marmora Post of the Canadian Legion by secretary George Wardle of the Belleville Salvation Army band. The offer has been accepted, with thanks.

NOT ALLOWED TO DUMP GARBAGE

A halt was called to the dumping of garbage on the old Carlaw Mill property, East Moira Street, on orders of Mayor Geo. O. Tice today. Orders to investigate the source of the dumping had been given by Mayor Tice to City Engineer Mott, while a similar order to the city sanitary inspector, Hope McGinnis, was also relayed by the Mayor.

Music—Love's Invention Says Bing Crosby

"Are we less musical, and have we lost our love for sentimental ballads?" asks Bing Crosby, and he answers his question with an emphatic "No." And Bing should know, for like the troubadors of old, he travels north, south, east and west singing sentimental ballads. "No matter how sophisticated the audience," he says, "the people open up their hearts to a good sentimental song. For, after all, music is said to have been invented to tell of love; and I don't think folks have changed much since Garden of Eden days. For example, "One Minute to One" a creation of super-saccharine lyrics and melodies, is the type of ballad that audiences love to hear and sentimentalise over, and hum until some later ballad or waltz song catches their fickle fancy.

ISLAND WORKERS RESUME LABORS

City relief workers on the Zwick's Island project, chased from the job yesterday at noon by the biting winds and swirls of snow, resumed work today with the exception of putting in the allotted work hours. Work has been proceeding fairly rapidly in spite of the record breaking cold weather and low temperatures experienced on that spot, called the city's windiest.

EGGS ADVANCE 5 CENTS DOZ.

Local Market Sparsely Attended Due to Blocked Roads

Blocked, snow filled roads throughout the district made Belleville's Saturday market one of the smallest week-end gatherings of rural vendors in months, and bitterly cold weather together with anticipation of a small offering from the farms of Hastings and Prince Edward kept the housewives of the city making their purchases from local grocers and butchers.

A few loads of wood and hay selling at prices which have prevailed recently and a number of meat vendors made up the outside market. The inside market was thinly attended and prices reflected the advance made during the week in Toronto and Montreal. Butter sold at 30, 32½ and 35 cents a pound. Eggs rose in price from 36, 37 and 38 cents a dozen paid a week ago to 40, 42, 43 and 45 cents a dozen today. Chickens sold at 60, 70, 75 cents and $1.00 each; fowl from 75 cents to $1.25 each; and ducks of good quality were vendored at 90 cents, $1.00 and $1.25 a piece. ....

GENUINE POCAHONTAS SMOKELESS STOVE COAL, also SOLVAY NUT AND STOVE COKE, on hand at all times despite their great scarcity. No change in our prices. The Schuster Co., Limited, W. N. Belair, President.

OBITUARY

LATE MRS. W. H. HOWARD

With many sympathizing friends in attendance, the funeral of the late Mrs. Florence Jane Howard was held Friday afternoon from her late residence, 25 Lime street, to the Thomasburg United Church. The Rev. J. W. Johnston, pastor of the local Standard Church conducted the service at the home, at the church in Thomasburg, and at the graveside in the Thomasburg Cemetery.

Acting as bearers were Messrs. John Barker, John Wellman, George Stapley, Percy Kerr, James Sproule and Harry Croffen.

LOUDSPEAKER NEEDED FOR 3-WAY RADIO

Belleville Boy in Road Camp Makes Suggestion.

A three-way system of radio entertainment at one of the highway construction camps in the north would be possible, states a Belleville resident in a letter to the local office of the Central Relief Bureau if some kind hearted resident of this city would furnish a loud speaker for a set which has already been secured. The radio has been donated to the camp by a Toronto citizen, and batteries have been given the boys by a Hamilton resident. To complete the set a loud speaker is needed from Belleville. This would put the Belleville boys on par with the remainder of the camp, stated Mr. S. Opie, writer of the letter, now stationed at the Rutherglen Camp. He does not state how many local boys are stationed there. Local boys who have returned from the Eagle Hill Camp near Denbigh do not know the name of the writer of the letter, and are not acquainted with the Rutherglen camp. It is suggested that Mr. Opie has been transferred from some other camp.

TRENTON TALENT PRESENTS PLAY

Under the auspices of the Foursquare Club of Tabernacle Church the three-act farce "The Cat Comes Back" was presented in the church hall last evening by Grace Church Dramatic Club. Between acts music was supplied by Miss Muriel Wardner.

Those taking part in the play, the scene of which was the interior of a garage at the Gardner home were: Gerald Gardner (the groom), Glen Alyea; Tim Gallagher (the groom's friend), William Chambers; Mrs. Bridget Maloney (the housekeeper), Dora Ketcheson; Leona Gardner (the bride), Margaret Ranton; Tanaka (Japanese butler from next door), F. Partridge; Mrs. Letitia Peters (the bride's mother), Thelma Hall; Peter Peters (the bride's father), V. P. Carswell; Lily (the maid), Laura Robson; Doris Kelly (the substitute bride), Hilda MacMillan; Alonzo Jackson (friend of the groom), Wilbert Campbell; Billy Scanlon (the grocer boy), Darwin Sager; Mrs. Ober Kamp (the next door neighbour), Maud Munn.

DOG GUARDIAN STOPS TEAM

Barks Warning to His Owner Who is in Store

Pat was just a shaggy collie dog, more at home collecting the cows at milking time of a summer evening from the back fifty acres than dodging speeding motor cars on a city street. So when he entered Belleville Friday afternoon, trotting sedately ahead of the steaming team and sleigh as it entered from the north end, he seemed a bit bewildered by the noise and turmoil. In all his four years' existence he had only been to the city twice before.

But he ignored the challenging barks of the city dogs who lined the sidewalks here and there to see him pass. Pat had brains. His job was to convoy that team, composed of an excitable rough-haired colt, and an older horse, into town, while his master, Mr. Harold Vanalstine, Latta, made the week's purchase at the grocery.

The team pulled up to an unwilling halt at Elvin's grocery store on upper Front Street. Their ears were perked up, and they snorted for trouble. Pat, watching for orders at the boss's signal, stationed himself in front of the horses and prepared to wait. Restive in the cold, the team stamped and twisted, and then swung dangerously close out into the traffic lane. Pat herded them back. But when a car motor burst into a roar just behind the nervous team, and startled it into action, Pat was in a dilemma.

He barked "Whoa!" once to the horses who had snapped into their collars and evidenced their intention of running away, and then he streaked to the door of the grocery, stood up against the plate glass and barked as loudly as a collie in trouble can bark. Then he sped swiftly back to the plunging team and unmindful of the stamping feet, barked savagely at it until an aroused master could run from the store, catch up to the sleigh and avert a possible runaway.

"Good boy, Pat", said the boss as the team settled down.

"Wooof" returned Pat in doggy language. "Let's go before we really do get into trouble."

Pat will bear to his dying day the long jagged scars of barbed wire on one side of his body. Two summers ago, cornered in a field by an angry bull, a hired man on the Vanalstine farm might have been gored to death by the sharp horns but for the promptness of the dog. Pat streaked to the rescue, held the bull by the nose until he was flung high in the air to land against the wire fence with a number of broken ribs and other cuts. The hired man meanwhile escaped.

Liberals Forced To Postpone Meeting

Condition of Roads Responsible for Cancellation at This Time

Owing to the terrible condition of country roads, Friday evening, the annual meeting of the Sidney township Liberal Association had to be cancelled at the last moment last night when it was found impossible for the electorate of that portion of the county to be in attendance at the Sidney Town Hall, Wallbridge. The new leader of the Legislature, Dr. George McQuibban, was to have addressed the gathering, and it was with regret that Liberal leaders of the district had to postpone the meeting.

TO BE FREED SOON

RALPH CAPONE

Nearing the end of his term for income tax evasion, Ralph Capone, above, brother of "Scarface" Al Capone, former Chicago gang lord, soon will walk out of McNeil Island federal prison, Washington, a free man. Ralph described by penitentiary officials as a model prisoner, will be released Feb. 27 if he is able to pay his fine of $10,000. Capone has agreed to pay it.

FRANKFORD LOSES TO STIRLING

Frankford Congregation Attend Induction of New Minister

Frankford—Stirling High School defeated Frankford Continuation School 2-1 in a fast game here on Friday night. With hard ice and both teams out to win, the game was alive from the face-off to the final gong. Stirling's stellar goalie, Sprentall turned away countless shots with his usual coolheadedness to save the game for Stirling. Lockwood, Dafoe and Bonisteel were the shining lights in the local team. Robinson and Munro scored Stirling's counters while Bonisteel tallied once for Frankford. Seventeen penalties were handed out for minor offences.

The line-up:

Stirling—Goal, Sprentall; defence, Joblin and Jones; forwards, Munro, Robinson and Brookes; subs, D. Rogers, A Rogers and W Sutherland.

Frankford—Goal, Lawrence; defence, V. Loney and Bonisteel; forwards, Lockwood, Dafoe, McGillvray; subs, F. Loney, Corrigan, A. Foster and Conley.

M. O'Malley refereed the game in an efficient and impartial manner. Wooler Continuation School have dropped out of the league thus permitting Stirling and Frankford to play their first game of the play-offs on Friday night.

Many of the choir and congregation of Frankford Church of England joined the Stirling congregation at the Confirmation and Induction services at St. John's Church Stirling, on Sunday evening when the popular new rector, Rev. A. S. McConnell was inducted to the parish of Stirling and Frankford. Bishop John Lyons conducted the service and preached the sermon, and was assisted by Revs. Swayne and Caldwell. Mr. A. Caskey, Church Warden, and Mr. E E. Ketcheson, People's Warden, officiated on behalf of the Frankford congregation. Miss B. Ostrom rendered a beautiful solo during the service.

A delicious tea was served by the members of the Mission Circle of the United Church in the Oddfellows' Hall last Saturday evening. On Tuesday evening the ladies of the Church of England served another of Frankford's delicious teas in the Parish Hall.

Dr. Jack Simmons of Elmira, spent a recent week-end at the home of his mother here. Mr. George Arnott returned with him as far as Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Grant of Campbellford, visited at the home of Mr. Arthur Smith over the week end

Frankford school raised their flag to half-staff on Thursday in respect for Belgium's deceased King.

Frankford Library are in receipt of a $75 grant from the Hastings County Council which will be applied for the use of school pupils of this district. Reeve J. Ford was instrumental in procuring this for Frankford.

The Young People's meeting was held in Frankford United Church on February 19th. It was opened by singing Hymn 34, followed by responsive reading of the 19th. Psalm. The topic for the evening "What we can do on Poverty and Wealth" was given by Gertrude Ferguson. The scripture lesson from the 6th. chapter of Matthew and 12th. of Luke was read by Dorothy Foster and an explanation of the Scripture reading by Doreen Loney. Following the singing of Hymn 397 and the recital of the Lord's Prayer the meeting closed with the Mispah Benediction.

A group meeting of the United Church was held at the home of Mrs. Lane on Wednesday night, with a large attendance of ladies of the congregation present. Mrs. Dickson presided when the following program was given: Solos, Mrs. G. Johnson, Mrs. Dickson and Ruby Snider; instrumental numbers by Ruby Snider and Mrs. Shortt; readings by Mrs. M. Williams Miss Stewart and Mrs. Powell. Three entertaining contests were also put on by Mr. and Mrs. Lane, the winners were Mrs. Best, Mrs. Williams and Miss Stewart, and Mrs. Powell and Mrs. Best. Lunch was served at the conclusion of the program.

KNIGHTS OF ROAD TAKE ICY BATH

Rawdon Residents Amazed as Visitors Nonchalantly Bathe in Creek

Stirling—Spring is in the offing! So thought nearby residents who, on Wednesday of this week, witnessed three knights of the road bathing in Rawdon Creek. It was just following the dinner hour that these three hearties strolled to the banks of the stream and began to divest themselves first of collar and ties, coats, vests and finally, with sleeves rolled high and open shirt fronts they made for the only opening in the icy surface of the Creek where the current is strongest, and with soap and the freshest of water proceeded to take a thorough bath. Following the performance of these rites, one of the transients called at a nearby house and asked for a little warm water for a shave. Asked to come inside to finish their toilet, the chap replied that they were accustomed to work outside and didn't mind the weather. Returning to the Creek, one of his companions shaved him and vice versa. Donning their clothes they once again hit the trail invigorated from their recent bath in the frigid ice water.

Due to the continued illness of Rev. E. W. Rowland, pastor of St. Paul's United Church, joint services for the congregations of St. Paul's and and St. Andrew's churches will be held on Sunday. The morning service is being held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church while the evening devotions will be conducted in St. Paul's United Church with Rev. J. A. Koffend of St. Andrew's conducting both of the periods of worship.

The Rawdon League schedule has been completed and the first and second place teams, Bethel and Glen Ross go into the final playdowns on Monday night when they will engage in the first tilt in the Stirling arena. A good game is assured as the Bethel team features such players as Jack Ackers and Earl Wallace while the outstanding scoring aces of the Glen Ross aggregation are the Fraser Brothers, Armstrong and Brookes.

By virtue of the fact that Wooler, third place tender in the South Hastings Interscholastic loop has defaulted its two final games in the schedule, one to Frankford and one to Stirling, the playdowns open on Friday evening. Stirling first place holder meets Frankford just two points behind, in the first fixture in the paper town on Friday night while the Stirling game is being played in the arena on Wednesday night of next week.

A large and enthusiastic following of hockey fans attended the tilt between Queen's and Campbellford intermediates on Thursday night when the Mill town favorites were defeated by a score of 5-4.

A minor accident occurred in front of the local postoffice on Tuesday morning when Mr. Fred McDonald, mail carrier driving a horse and cutter in some manner collided with Mr. Hiram Rodgers of Rawdon who was driving his Chevrolet car westward and drew in to stop in front of the post office. The shafts were broken and one was driven through the left front glass into where the driver was sitting. The rear door handle was broken while a deep wound was inflicted in the horse's breast.

Friday saw a decided drop in the thermometer readings and although it was not as cold as on many days this winter the strong north wind exerted a chilling influence. The wind played havoc with the roads, particularly the side roads which hitherto were very heavy but, are now quite impassable for cars. The highways, too, are heavy, but it is expected that the snow plough will go through opening them to traffic.

Strickland—At East General Hospital, Toronto, on Friday, Feb. 16th, 1934, to Mr. and Mrs. Alfred E. Strickland (nee Mary Fitchett, formerly of Stirling), a son, Roy William.

Mrs. E. C. Moynes of Trenton, is the guest for a few days this week of Mrs. Earl Luery.

The Stirling Horticultural Society convened on Wednesday afternoon in the Agricultural rooms. The main feature of the meeting was the submitting of the president's report by Mr. J. B. Belshaw, president of the local society and delegate to the recent twenty-eighth annual convention held in Toronto last week.

Of interest to her many Stirling friends is the re-election of Mrs. C. E. McWilliams of Toronto, and formerly Miss Edna Archer at one time branch manager of the local Bell Telephone office, as Regent of the Ellen Ferguson Chapter, I.O.D.E., Toronto. Mrs. G. Howard Ferguson is Honorary Regent and Mrs. W. R. Jackson and Mrs. T. B. Greer are Honorary Vice-Regents of the Chpater.

An important business transaction was consummated on Wednesday when Dr. J. S. Demorest purchased the house and property of Mr. Thomas Montgomery, Sr., on North Street. Dr Demorest will not take possession until June 1st. and will continue his practice in the apartments over the F. N. McKee store which he has occupied since his arrival in Stirling some two years ago.

Mr. J. H. Wiley of the Bank of Montreal staff, is spending the week end in Toronto.

Miss Nora Fowler has returned home after visiting friends in Toronto and Cooksville for the past two months.

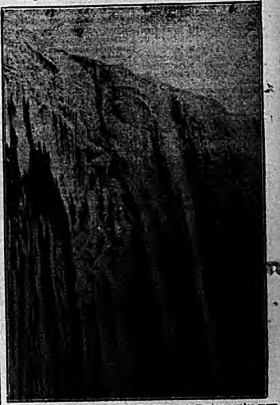
Mighty Niagara Stopped "Cold"



Here is proof conclusive that Old Man Jack Frost generates more power than mighty Niagara. The picture shows the famous Falls "knocked" cold and brought to a standstill by King Winter. No longer does the huge cataract roar its defiance to the world. Zero has reduced it to a mere whisper.

Mr. G. M. James Describes Scenes During Vacation Tour of the United States

(From Our Special Travelling Representative, MR. G. M. JAMES)

ARTICLE VII

The writer ate two slices of Canadian bacon for breakfast this morning. The largest and most fashionable restaurant here (Miami, Florida) advertises daily on its breakfast menu "Canadian bacon" and many ask for it. American bacon, mostly fat, is from hogs of two hundred pounds and is so thin that it looks like shavings. Canadian bacon, mostly lean, is from hogs of about one hundred pounds with a decidedly superior flavour like our bread and tea biscuits. The places where we ate in England and Scotland knew nothing about Canadian bacon. Cheese is rarely eaten here.

Rice takes the place of potatoes in many dishes here although we prefer and eat potatoes in the good old way.

"You have meals to suit every purse?"

"That's right, big boy," said a saucy waitress.

"What do you offer when the purse is empty?"

"A cold shoulder," was the reply, at the same time elevating her right shoulder with a winsome smile.

Hotels, restaurants, stores, taxis and all places of amusement are very busy just now, in fact you spend half your time waiting your turn in big crowds. The Chamber of Commerce here reports that the two cities combined (Miami proper and Miami Beach) have one hundred and seventy-five thousand visitors (a record) at this moment. Supposing that each transient spent one hundred dollars a month on the average, it would mean cash business of seventeen and a half million dollars per month for at least three months and in many cases longer. Beyond a doubt money helps to put the smiles in Miami.

Most of the automobiles seen here are beautiful and the latest models. Sixty-five thousand of these cars pass through Biscayne Boulevard (part of Bayfront Park) daily as compared with forty thousand last year. There are no signs of hard times here in any way, even the buildings are going up especially among the millionaires. Ten million dollars have been spent in homes in the two cities during the past year. It is so clean everywhere that your laundry bill is amazingly low. The temperature throughout the year varies between about 60 and 86 degrees. There is much sunshine and too little rain for bananas to mature properly. So many tropical and sub-tropical trees, plants, vines, shrubs and flowers have been imported and thrive here that the entire district has become a real earthly paradise. These conditions have reacted on the people and made them optimists who radiate good cheer and smiles wherever they go, a strange contrast to what we saw on the other side of the Atlantic. Within a week they call you "Dearie, Honey or Darling" with all the heart glow that should go with it. But the Lord has not granted them everything because few of these warm-hearted Southerners or even their moneyed visitors are physically beautiful. Not more than one in a thousand are really beautiful in features or complexion. Luxury has long been known to obliterate beauty as well as intelligence. Belleville has more handsome young men and women per square yard than we have ever seen in any other place. They would make a great sensation here where lovers meet today, wed tomorrow and then let nature take its course with the result that 24 out of 25 seek an early divorce but the love making and the honeymoon were 100 per cent. perfect.

About a hundred large motor boats leave their piers here every morning at 9.30 for the Gulf Stream well out in the Atlantic Ocean and return at five in the afternoon well loaded with big fish and happy fishermen like the writer. Visitors are given the thrill of their lives when they try to reel in a sailfish which weighs from 50 to 100 pounds or a loggerhead shark weighing half a ton. With the aid and advice of skilful guides such fish are rarely lost and is the victor proud? It is the fisherman's paradise and as a result the fisherman's prayer as recited in England is unknown here—"Lord grant that I may catch so large a fish that even I will not need to lie". The writer is taking some pictures with his camera which may be more or less convincing to those interested in Belleville.

We have already explained about Bayfront Park here which consists of forty acres reclaimed from the Bay. In the centre of this park stands a theatre consisting of stage and platform with a open air auditorium of five thousand comfortable seats. A program of some kind (usually very good) may be heard there every night without charge except for about a thousand reserved seats at ten cents each. In this way we have heard the Miami Municipal Band, about fifty musicians, three times and some of the best local vocalists. All revealed skill and artistic training but we never hear anywhere as good vocalists as we have so plentifully in Belleville. Some months ago President Roosevelt's automobile drew up near this band stand and he was about to leave his car to make a speech on the stage platform. Just at this point Mayor Cermak of Chicago and other personal friends drew near to greet the President and then a shot rang out intended for Mr. Roosevelt but finding its fatal mark in the body of the Mayor of Chicago. Mr. Roosevelt, though spared as by a miracle, realised that he had nearly gone the way of three of his illustrious predecessors, Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley. Undaunted and apparently unalarmed, the President had the wounded man placed in his car and rushed him to the hospital doing what he could to relieve his pain. Arriving at the hospital unannounced, the usual dumb attendant came out to bring the patient in. He opened the car door and, believing it to be the result of another drunken brawl, shouted rudely:

"If you will get out perhaps I can handle this fellow."

"I'm sorry but I can't," came the quiet, courteous reply of the President of the United States.

The attendant took a more careful look at the speaker and, realizing who he was and what he had done, fled in shame. This little incident reveals a pathetic feature of Mr. Roosevelt's childhood, when he was stricken with infantile paralysis and forever after had little use of his legs. He moves about slowly with two canes and cannot ascend steps or enter a car unaided. While in Jacksonville and since coming to Miami, we have heard much about the President's birthday which has just been commemorated all over the Union by birthday celebrations to raise funds for Warm Springs Foundation, Georgia, where the President long ago established a convalescent rest cure home and swimming pool of mineral waters for thousands of children afflicted like himself. Needless to say the parties were a great success in more ways than one and Mr. President declared it to be, for that reason, his happiest birthday. Here is a man handicapped for life and a target for an assassin's bullet, yet with such faith, courage and perseverance that he is greater than Elijah of old for without a murmur and without a single hesitation he fulfils the mission for which he was born. His people proclaim him their greatest President and they even believe he is the greatest human leader the world has ever known. We cannot help but join them in their enthusiasm.

Miamians often express their philosophy of life in the following words: "If you give the best that you have, the best will return to you". There is much evidence that testifies that they live up to their doctrine and that it is true.

Miami is 300 miles farther south than Cairo, Egypt, and 500 miles farther south than Los Angeles, California. Miami has four hours more sunshine daily in winter than a northern city and four hours more of cooling darkness each day in summer. The name "Miami" is Spanish for "my home, a place of contentment". "Florida" is Spanish for "Land of Flowers".

Very few dogs are seen here and none running at large. There is so little smoking that we are much surprised. Garbage cans are put out at dark on the curb and collection takes place during the night. The unsightly cans (very large here) are never seen in the day time.

There are many eighteen hole golf courses connected with both Miami and Miami Beach and hence the game is very popular here. We overhear conversations where men have come from Chicago and New York expressly for a few days' golfing.

Miami River, nine miles long, is the shortest in the world yet it carries large ocean vessels. It flows through the city and has been dredged to 150 feet wide and 20 feet deep. During this dredging and other excavations vast quantities of white coral rock were removed and crushed. This crushed coral rock is very hard and resists weather perfectly. When mixed with white sand so abundant everywhere in Florida and cement, the result is the most beautiful and abiding white stucco obtainable. This explains why nearly all buildings here consist of these ingredients; they are the best; most beautiful and cheapest.

The Miami River is connected with a canal 72 miles long and 90 feet wide which runs north through the middle of Florida and which with smaller branch canals drains over a quarter of a million acres of the best land in the world. This vast region until recently was called the Everglades, which meant long coarse grass, matted trees, vines and other tropical growths, the secure abode of alligators, rattlesnakes, black bears, wild cats and other undesirable companions. At certain seasons some sections were under water. For ages tropical vegetation grew and decayed forming a thick layer of the richest black soil in the world. The state government has already sold two-thirds of this reclaimed land. It is alleged that vegetables planted in this soil are ready for consumption in six weeks and just think how often this can happen in a year here. The delicious fresh strawberries we are eating daily come from the same source. The writer has seen many of our common vegetables growing here and he believes that the above reports are correct. The seventy-two mile main artery canal is used for navigation also thus making Miami a large and important seaport like Jacksonville. Thus from every angle (except pretty faces) this is a highly favored land with infinite possibilities and a boom with its slump now and again is quite natural and excusable. Ultimately in fifty or one hundred years Miami is sure to be a flourishing centre. The people are kind, sincere and courageous, so nothing else matters.

It requires four days for a letter to come here from Belleville and the same length of time for our reply. Why? We are nearly two thousand miles from home and, when we think of it, we get a little homesick sometimes. Our readers have not had time to send us a two cent postcard stating what they wish us to write most about since our hint in the last letter sent three days ago but it will be in time if you write at once to

259 North East Second Street
Miami, Florida, U.S.A.

The schools everywhere from Detroit to Miami are always the best buildings to be seen in their locality and invariably they are magnificent, far above our average in Ontario but of course rarely finer than the Belleville schools.

On a tour to a botanical garden here we were much amused to learn that there are several varieties of the hibiscus shrub which grows about like our lilac bushes but bears single, separate flowers like our wild rose but more funnel form and that one of these (the most common called "Turk's Cap" and which grows profusely under our bedroom windows) never opens but remains at its best a blood red bud two inches long and because of this peculiarity has been nicknamed "The Scotchman's Purse". There is little evidence of the various nationalities here. The various hibiscus plants with their showy flowers are perhaps the most common here next to the various palms. The parts of most of the flowers here are in fives or multiples of five.

The city hall here is twenty-eight stories high and the jail for county and city prisoners is in the top stories. "Even living for prisoners is high in Miami".

Black Caesar, a bad pirate, and his gang made the vicinity of Miami their headquarters many years ago. Their favorite pastime was to kill the keepers of a lighthouse near by, allow vessels to be wrecked on the rocks and then to plunder as they pleased. Not long ago while excavating for a home on the outskirts of Miami, workers found a chest which contained seven thousand dollars in gold. This completed home is now called "Treasure Trove" and it is believed that much more pirate gold lies buried in this district. The writer has been well over the ground and believes more discoveries will be made soon.

We recently had the great pleasure of being shown through the "American Clipper", the largest passenger air craft. It carries forty-eight people and cost two hundred and fifty thousand dollars. There are two rows of cushioned seats, with two passengers per seat. The Clipper runs on schedule to Nassau, Havanna, and other nearby ports. A return trip to Havanna is $35.00 and takes two and a half hours each way. They never have an accident.

Citrus fruit (proper name) is also called grape fruit because unlike oranges it grows in clusters like grapes. We have seen it growing in this way. At various fruit markets in the city and on the highways average grade oranges sell at 39 cents a bushel with abundant supplies.

The water for Miami is obtained near by from wells two thousand feet deep. It is excellent for all purposes.

About one-third of the population in Miami consists of negroes. They live together in a designated part of the city and have their own schools, churches and places of amusement. They are not allowed downtown after eight in the evening except on Saturday or except they work there.

A band of about six hundred Seminole Indians live within a short distance of Miami and are the only Indians who have never surrendered to the government nor have received state aid. They are proud of their independence and in various ways provide for themselves.

The young astrologer referred to in our last letter recently addressed a gathering of a thousand young men. "How many of you men are perfectly satisfied with what you are now doing?" Only one solemn chap held up his hand. "What do you do, young man?"

"Nothing," came the prompt reply amid much laughter.

SMELLS ODOR OF GAS, SAVES NINE LIVES

Policeman Investigates and Finds Unconscious Family

Montreal, Feb. 24 (CP)— Quick action of a police constable probably saved the lives of nine persons here Friday.

Constable J. Perrault was patrolling his beat early Friday when he noticed a strong odor of gas. Investigating, he found Adelard Girioux, 47, his wife Marie, 43, and their five children, all under 16 years of age, unconscious from inhaling illuminating gas.

Meanwhile police, who were trying to locate the origin of the gas fumes, found Alexander Cincinnati and his wife, next door neighbors of Grioux, unconscious from the effects of the gas. All were quickly revived.

It was later discovered the gas had been escaping from a broken pipe leading from the street.

Postal Revenue Up, First Time in 18 Months

Ottawa, Feb. 24 (CP)—For the first time in 18 months, postal revenue showed an increase in January. It was reported by Hon. Maurice Dupre, Acting Postmaster-General. The increase over Jan. 1933 was $200,000.

January is considered a poor revenue month for the postoffice, coming right after the Christmas rush. One feature of the increased revenue was the jump in money order business which usually precedes heavy postage sales.

CELLAR BLAST FATAL TO TWO

Eleven Persons Injured at Yonkers in Empty Theatre

Yonkers, N.Y., Feb. 23 (AP)—An explosion in the cellar of the Proctor Theatre shortly before noon today killed two men and injured 11 persons, several of the latter so seriously they are expected to die.

One of the dead is Patrick Whalin, a motorcycle patrolman, who was burned to death attempting to rescue electrical engineers working in the basement. The other is Carl Gruber, one of the electrical workers. No show was on at the time.

The explosion was so severe that it ripped out the lobby of the theatre, blew out the front of both the theatre and an adjoining dress shop, wrecked an automobile parked at the curbing and shattered the pavement of sidewalk and street before the building.

The theatre is directly across from the Yonkers city hall and on a busy thoroughfare.

When the blast occurred, witnesses said, it hurled passers-by to the pavement and showered them with concrete and debris.

Gloria D'Addio, 10, suffered shock and severe burns when she was caught by the explosion while passing. James Frazier, another passerby, was burned so seriously it was feared he would die.

At the same time of the blast electricians were working on transformers in a vault under the theatre and it was thought an electrical sparks may have touched off the gas or ignited oil burner tanks.

Stirling Scout Troop Presents Mammoth Carnival at Arena

Belleville Skating Club Delights With Program

STIRLING— The First Stirling Troop of the Boy Scouts staged a mammoth Ice Carnival at the Stirling Arena on Wednesday evening, when approximately five hundred spectators enjoyed an interesting programme of figure skating provided by popular members of the Belleville Figure Skating Club, races and the judging of the various costume divisions, band selections, general skating, clown acts and the concluding number, a hockey match.

The programme was officially opened at 8.15 p.m. when Scout Master Tom Ward as Master of Ceremonies called upon Rev. J. A Koffend to extend, on behalf of the Scout Troop, a hearty welcome to the assembled guests, following which the Stirling Citizen's Band under the capable direction of Mr. Ned Potts as leader making its second public appearance since reorganizing, rendered the National Anthem.

The opening feature was a half-hour exhibition of figure skating by the guest artists during which time the locals enjoyed a rare treat as this is an unknown art except in the urban centres. With skill and poise, the performers executed a series of graceful figures the complete mastery of which comes only as the result of zealous practice and a natural and inherent-born grace of movement. The swaying rhythmic motions of the six couples who so artfully executed the waltz numbers to the strains of such old favourites in the waltz tempo as "Blue Danube", "Merry Widow Waltz", "Three O'Clock in the Morning" and a number of others captivated the audience with their perfect uniformity in the execution of such difficult measures as twirling, the half turn, stroking and the many other figures which are always attendant in figure skating. The lady skaters were particularly attractive in their colorful costumes in many cases with fur trim, and looked, as they afterwards proved to be, veritable queens of the winter sport. The splendid performances of the two youthful skaters, Masters Clare Ridley and Elmer Finnigan were most creditable ones and these little fellows certainly incited a feeling of envy in many an adult's heart. But lastly, the clown acts should not be ignored for those awkward fellows had the audience in kinks of laughter long before their act was accomplished and that laughter did not subside until their disappearance with the ill-fated suitcase and its manifold contents. The demonstration of barrel jumping staged by Mr. Jack Murphy was no mean feat and that lad showed all sorts of ability as an ice performer when he with all the nimbleness and agility of a professional, took the three successive barrel jumps as a glorious finale to his previous performances. The programme given by the Belleville Skating Club was divided into two sections and was arranged as follows:

Waltz—Miss Lillian Sprackett, Mr Stanley Wilbur, Miss Olivia Davies and Mr. Blake Weese, Mrs. Smith and Mr. Machold; Mrs. Lewis and Mr. James Ling; Miss Phyllis Ranson and Mr. Gordon Davies; Mr. Clare Ridley and Mr. Elmer Finnigan. (Time—five minutes.)

Ten Step—(four minute time) — Mrs. Lewis and Mr. James Ling; Miss Olivia Davies and Mr. Blake Weese.

Specialty—(three minute time) — Master Clare Ridley and Master Elmer Finnigan.

Solo— Mr. Gordon Davies (three minutes).

Waltz—(five minutes)—Miss Lillian Sprackett, Mr. Machold; Miss Olivia Davies and Mr. Gordon Davies; Mrs. Smith and Mr. James Ling; Mrs. Lewis and Mr. Blake Weese; Miss Phyllis Rawson and Mr. Stanley Wilbur.

Duet—(two minutes)—Miss Olivia Davies and Mr. Gordon Davies.

Clown Act—(five minutes)— Mr. Bill Holway and Mr. Elwood Bruce.

Barrel Jump—Those in the preceding act along with Mr. Jack Murphy.

Bally Hoo—Special Act by eight members of the Club. (Time eight minutes.)

Came the grand parade! And what a pageant was unfolded before the eyes of the dazed crowd! One would have thought that a veritable bedlam had broken loose when everything from the old red rooster to the veiled mystery sheik of Araby took the ice. Every species of clown from the smallest kiddies to the grey-haired daddies and every nationality imaginable was cleverly portrayed by the gay bevy of revellers Every colour from the deeper winter shades to the delicate hue of the old-fashioned lady in lavender and laces met the eye. Finally after the spectators had been given ample time in which to feast upon the sight, the judging was held resulting in the following awards:

Comic Lady—Betty McGee impersonating the old fiddler—awarded a cushion by R. B. Duffin.

Comic Girl—Lenora Ward, as a young stripling of tender years—silk stockings by G. H. Luery & Son.

Best dressed man — Clifford Holmes in white suit and cane, awarded shirt and tie by News-Argus.

Best dressed boy—Bob Luery as dashing young Mexican —sweater donated by W. J. Whitty.

Best dressed couple—Mrs. Thelma Tulloch and Miss Marion Jones as the old-fashioned lady and the dashing young Spaniard—awards were bath salts by J. G. Butler and muffler by F. T. Ward.

Original costume — Douglas Patterson as a species of clown—award of pastry flour sack by Cecil Macklin.

Comic couple—Marion Bailey and Pauline Jackman as the red hen and rooster, prizes being a set of dishes from W. Wright and a box of chocolate bars from N. E. Eggleton.

The races were particularly keen and aroused a good deal of interest in the audience. The results were:

The public school race open to all children of the district—1. A Lawrence, windbreaker donated by R. A. Patterson; 2. J. Potter, two haircuts by H. Potter; 3. M. Reid flashlight by F. N. McKee.

Scout Race—1, P.L. John Munro windbreaker by F. T. Ward; 2. Scout Morley Reid, knife by McGee and Lagrow; 3. P. L. Fred Joblin, tie by R. T. Dunlop.

Obstacle Race—1. Bill Morton, dog by Harry Francis; 2. Morley Reid, mitts by J. Searles; 3. J. Deline, hair cut by C. B. Rollins.

Best lady skater—1. Ruby Bray, picture by J. C. Beacock; 2. Margaret Craig, hair cut by C. B. Rollins.

The concluding feature was a hockey tilt between the Stirling High School students and ex-students. The game was a trifle one-sided demonstrating the infirmities which overtake the students in their advancing years and the local S.H.S. squad took the decision by a 3-1 score. The S.H.S. counters were notched by Munro, Rodgers and Robinson while the ex-students added their lone counter in the second half. The game was capably handled by Earl Wallace as official bell-ringer. The line-ups were:—

Ex-students—Bibby, goal; Gordon Bailey and Gordon Bailey defense; J. Hulin, centre; Friday and Gerald Fraser, wings; Subs—Ned Potts, Alton Hadley, Jack Goodwin Heath.

The evening's entertainment was brought to a successful conclusion at 11.45 p.m. The words of praise and admiration spoken about the Scouts and their Scoutmaster were many and all sorts of credit is due them in their splendid efforts in putting the affair across and making it the huge success it was.

Following the rink performances the Belleville performers along with the Troop Committee of Messrs. Belshaw, West, Dobbie, Martin, Bastedo and Dr. Walt accompanied by their wives and the officials, were entertained at lunch in the Scout Rooms by the Court of Honour of the First Stirling Troop. An enjoyable hour was spent when, with the tables arranged in artistic horseshoe formation in front of the glowing grate, a dainty lunch was served to the guests.

The officials for the evening were Master of Ceremonies—S.M. Tom Ward; Band Leader, Ned Potts; Referee of Hockey Match, Earl Wallace; Official Starter, A. E. Dobbie; Clerk, P.L. Fred Joblin; Assistants, Rev. J. A. Koffend, E. Luery; Tickets, Gerald Craven; Doormen, H. Wickett and S. Eggleton; Gallery, P.L. Arthur Gouff; Booth, T.L. Reg. Clarke.

The judges were for the most part, from out of town and were—Mr. Stanley Wilbur, Miss Lillian Sprackett, Miss M. Sprague all of Belleville, assisted by Rev. J. A. Koffend and Rev. A. S. McConnell.

TAX COLLECTOR SENT TO PRISON

Pembroke, Ont., Feb. 24 (CP)—A sentence of 18 months in the Ontario reformatory at Guelph was imposed on W. E. Kossatz, tax collector for the United Townships of Rolph, Buchanan and Wylie, when he pleaded guilty to the theft of $2,287 of the municipality funds.

The shortages were over a period of three years, since Kossatz was appointed in 1931.

CASEY STENGEL DODGER PILOT

Given Two Year Contract To Manage Brooklyn Team

New York, Feb. 23 (AP)—Chas. D. (Casey) Stengel, former Brooklyn Dodgers' outfielder and a coach since 1932, today was named manager of the team for 1934 and 1935, succeeding Max Carey.

Stengel was called east from his Glendale, Calif., home Sunday to discuss terms with the directors when it was definitely decided to let Carey go.

He was present, smiling broadly, when general manager J. A. Robert Quinn, made the announcement of his appointment. The only surprise was the two year contract, as Wilbert Robinson worked under only a one-year agreement preceding his dismissal in 1931 and Carey also was given only one-year contracts, the last of which the Dodgers broke the day before yesterday.

Played with Team

Stengel was a Brooklyn outfielder from 1913 to 1918 and played with the Dodgers in the World Series of 1916. Later he was with the Pittsburgh and Philadelphia clubs before going to New York Giants in 1922 where he helped John McGraw win two pennants. He finished his big league career with Boston in 1924 and from then until he was brought back to Brooklyn as a coach served as a promoter and manager of minor league teams. He was manager of the Toledo Mud Hens of the American Association while that team was a Giant farm and led them to a pennant in 1927.

He is 43 years old and a favorite with Dodger fans, who love his antics along the third base coaching lines.

Despite his clownish actions he is credited with being a shrewd baseball leader and a good developer of young talent. One of his most famous stunts was to catch a sparrow, place it in his cap and when he came to bat, release it as he doffed the headpiece, giving the umpires "the bird" in a manner to which they were not accustomed.

JERSEY CITY BALL CLUB MOVED TO SYRACUSE

New Stadium to Seat 12,000 Will be Built

Jersey City, N.J., Feb. 24 (AP)—Jack Corbett, President of the Jersey City Baseball Club of the International League, said the league will be asked to approve transfer of the local franchise to Syracuse, N.Y.

A meeting of the league has been called by President Charles Knapp of Baltimore, for Sunday to consider the situation. It will be held in New York at 11 a.m.

Corbett said he will acquaint the Jersey City Club's directors with the facts at a meeting tomorrow morning, but contemplated no opposition from that source.

"It isn't that we want to leave Jersey City," he said. "It's merely that we have no place to play ball here and Syracuse has offered a mighty fine proposition."

The city of Syracuse, formerly in the International League but without professional baseball for the past five years, has offered to build a municipal stadium with a seating capacity of 12,000. Corbett said the stadium would have room to expand to 17,500.

MRS. MASSIE FYLES SUIT FOR DIVORCE

Reno, Nev. Feb. 24 (AP)— Mrs. Thalia Massie, central figure in the sensational Honolulu attack case of 1932, fyled suit for divorce from Lieut. Thomas Hedges Massie, young naval officer, in district court here.

Her complaint charged "extreme cruelty, entirely mental in character," and alleged that "said cruelty destroyed the purpose of the marriage and injured and impaired" her general health .

Young Belgian Crown Prince Enjoys Scene

Brussels, Feb. 24 (AP)—The somewhat boisterous little Prince Baudoin Albert Axel Marie Gustave, 3 1-2 years old, who himself is destined to wear the Crown some day, enjoyed his father's enthronement in his own way.

His mother, the new Queen Astrid and his six-year-old sister, Princess Josephine Charlotte, sat with him on the tribune at the left of Leopold's Throne.

But the baby Crown Prince did not contribute to the solemnity of the occasion.

He laughed continually, pointing to the splendid uniforms of the guests and was especially interested in the Archbishop of Malines and other bishops in their scarlet robes.

He was a handful for his mother, for there were no nurse-maids at the enthronement. The Queen often had to caution him to keep quiet and, several times, took him on her lap.

What Prince Baudoin enjoyed most of all was the demonstration which followed his father's speech with its declaration "the dynasty is at the service of the nation."

He may not have known what it meant but he was as excited as anyone when the dignitaries cheered and flourished their white gloves.

At the conclusion of the enthronement, Queen Astrid stumbled and almost fell as she started down the great stairway when leaving parliament. The Queen, who is expecting her third child, suddenly turned pale and almost dropped to her knees. A nearby aide-de-camp steadied her.

The Countess Des Lampsbeere, a lady-in-waiting, immediately took Prince Baudoin from his mother's hand carried him to an awaiting horse-drawn carriage.

Queen Astrid recovered quickly and walked to the carriage in which the party was driven to Laeken castle.

NERVILINE TO THE RESCUE

Here is Good Advice to All Rheumatic Sufferers

Eat meat sparingly, and take but little sugar. Avoid intoxicants. Keep away from dampness. Drink water abundantly, and rely upon Nerviline as quick relief for pain.

North Head, N.B., . . —Rev. Joseph T. Hutton speaks well of Nerviline. He has used this powerful liniment and knows just how pain-relieving it is. "It gives me much pleasure," writes Mr. Hutton, "to write of the merits of Nerviline for external and internal use. Nerviline never fails, no matter to what purpose I put it. It is my indispensable friend."

Use Nerviline for strains, sore muscles, neuralgia, rheumatism. Try it for lumbago, earache, toothache. Wherever there is pain in the muscles—rub on Nerviline—the effect is almost magical.

SIR EDWARD ELGAR

Sir Edward Elgar, "master of the King's musick" is dead at the age of 77.

Elgar has been one of the popular figures in his time, more popular than the average run of great musicians.

Some of his work has been intensely taken up as his "Pomp and Circumstance," his "Salut d'Amour," and many other compositions.

Elgar has raised the status of British music and in his work as court musician he has composed a great number of works which ought to live. His ultimate placing, of course, in the living compositions of the world remains to be settled by generations yet to be.

Many great composers have passed to their graves almost without fame, which has only come after death. Fortunately for Elgar this was not true.

It is happy to think of musicians who have given the world song and rhythm and yet have been happy in the knowledge that their efforts have been understood.

A YOUNG KING'S TASK

Kings and Princes perforce perform many actions even when their heart is elsewhere. Today the sympathy of the world goes out to the young King Leopold III. of Belgium who through the accidental death of his father was forced on the day after the solemn occasion of the burial of his father to take his seat on the throne which his father had honored in past years, four or five of them the greatest in Belgian history. The ceremony of enthronement was not long, the oath of office was brief and the new monarch after a devious ride about the city of Brussels and its environs returned to the palace. Fortunately the coronation of the king is deferred to a later date when some of the poignancy of the young king's feelings has been assuaged in the press of business associated with his assumption of the kingship.

In republics where the kingship is unknown the task of successor is not so difficult as in the case of princes. The lives of the latter are governed by their future —they are trained for the kingship. Herein the world could take a sample from the lives of such monarchs as those of Britain and Belgium.

Trained for the high post when fate should call his father hence the young ruler of Belgium is a proof of the importance of the kingship's continuity. "The King is dead! Lond live the King!" This principle is one of the most important features in the regal system.

In these trying days for young Leopold, who scarcely yet realizes what has fallen to his task, and who strives to do his duty while he mourns his beloved parent, the people of the world join in sympathy for him with the hope that his rule may advance his country's welfare.

THINKS NO WAR LIKELY

There are rumors of wars in these days: with Russians likely against Russians, Jugoslavs against Jugoslavs; Chinese against Chinese: Germany against Austria; Japan against Russia; France against Germany, Italy against Jugoslavia; Hungary aginst Rumania, and Poland against Germany.

Yet while rumored wars are possible and while all these are possible, because of economic stress and conomic war, yet asks Bernard Fay in the March issue of Esquire, "When is the next war going to take place and when is it going to come—the real big war which will look like the war of 1914-1918 but which will be much larger and much more horrible and which scares even scientists and the most cold-blooded generals?" He answers himself:

"My answer is 'Not before a good many years.' And this simply because there are too many hatreds to make a good war. A certain amount of hatred is the necessary background for a war but too much hatred is of no avail. It leads nowhere. It even creates good feeling accidentally. By making a mess of all the international relations, the League of Nations has made impossible, at least temporarily, a great big conflict such as the one which raged from 1914 to 1918. War is everywhere, but it is diluted war and as long as people hate each other so generally and so clumsily, I am betting that there won't be any immense well-organized efficient war like the last one . . . But let us beware of the time when there will be a beginning of order and some clarity of purpose."

It is clear that the world war was feared for years before it broke out—that the nations feared it, knowing it would happen sooner or later, though they did not realize its awfulness in advance. They had to learn that in the awful death lists and the post-war havoc of ideals. Indeed the world does not seem calm and orderly enough to be ready for war. Who would aid whom in this age of mutual distrust? Who would be allies or would it be like a dog-fight, every nation biting at every other nation? As Mr. Fay says, that would not mean a great war with regularly drawn lines, like a chessboard battle as in 1914-1918. Let us hope the writer in Esquire predicts well.

SIDELIGHTS

GRAVE and GAY (Supervised by The Lamplighter)

IN PROMISE

Not in fulfillment but in promise lies
The ultimate of bliss;
As when the starry pageant of the skies
Speaks fairer worlds than this.

Full-vestured spring can never thrill the heart
Like the first violet
Which lifts its purple petals wide apart
While winter lingers yet.

The crescent moon, the budding rose of dawn
Are symbols old as time;
Yet never is the spell of them withdrawn;
They hint of things sublime.

Not in fulfillment but in promise still
Joys dwell and hopes conspire;
The prospect from atop the furthest hill
Is every heart's desire.

HE WOULDN'T CHOP ANY WOOD. He would trade his axe in on an automobile. Being a Republican he would vote the Democratic ticket. Being in sympathy with the underdog he would be classed as a radical progressive. Having sense of humor he would be called eccentric. That's Will Rogers' answer to the pertinent query, apropos of Abraham Lincoln's birthday, recently commemorated in the United States, of what the Great Emancipator would do were he living today.

LIFE IS GETTING SOFT, especially for town folks. When Dad and Grandad used to boast of how many cords of wood they could saw, split and pile in a day, men certainly were men of muscle— and what appetites—and if there wasn't a big dinner of fat pork and boiled potatoes 'n fixings, with a couple of helpings of pie or pudding, there was something radically wrong with the domestic economy.

ONE OF THE FAMOUS FORTY-NINERS who crossed the plains in the great California gold rush of 1849, celebrated his 113th. birthday at St. Paul, Nebraska, on February 16, and is a living example of the saying that "men were men in those days." He is just recuperating from a fall in which he sustained two broken ribs when he tripped over a log while chopping wood. He was too old to enlist in the Civil War in the Sixties. Solomon Rickner was born near Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, in 1821, and has had a continuous struggle with the earth for life. With the pioneers of his age he helped to blaze the trails into the wilderness of Michigan, and grubbed out trees to clear a patch of ground on which to eke out a living. Later he joined the gold rush to California and won through all the perils of hostile Indians, thirst and hunger, on the long trek. A few years later he was trying to wrest a living from the soil of Nebraska. "You people, nowadays, don't know what hard times are," said the hundred and thirteen year old youngster. "When I had to grind up a few ears of corn in an iron pot to get something to feed the kids—well that was hard times."

FEW PEOPLE ESCAPE SOME ABNORMALITY

Many Physical Defects Present No Significance Whatever

(By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph. D.) Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

(Copyright 1934, King Features Syndicates, Inc.)

It is not an uncommon experience for the general practitioner to have a man or woman call at his office eager to learn whether or not some physical peculiarity, which he or she has, is a sign of degeneracy or impending insanity or some other dreadful thing. Many quite normal persons present such defects which often have no known significance whatsoever.

Take the ears, for example. Many abnormalities of form and size may occur. The ear may be unusually large or small. The lobe may be attached closely to the head. There may be extra lobules.

The nose may vary markedly in shape.

The mouth may be unusually large, with thick, protruding lips.

The palate may be very high, narrow and arched or it may be broad and saddle-shaped.

Sometimes a jaw is very small and receding. The opposite condition may also exist, namely marked protrusion.

So far as the teeth go, there are numerous anomalies. There are irregularities of position, of size, of number, of form and of condition.

Often a tongue shows grooves and fissures. Indeed, there is a tongue pattern that looks for all the world like a map. It is called a "geographical tongue". Now and then one sees a tongue where the papillae are raised like small pimples.

So far as the eyes go, various peculiarities are common. The fissures of the eyes—that is, the space between upper and lower lids—may be very narrow and both slanted downwards or inwards like the eyes of the Chinese. Strabismus, a cross-eyed condition, may exist either in one or both eyes. Early cataract is another physical eye deformity.

As regards the limbs, there are unusually long limbs and unusually short ones. There may be bow-leggedness or a knock-kneed condition.

Sometimes a child is born with more or less than the usual number of fingers or toes.

On the skin many anomalies are to be found. Such are moles, unusually profuse hair growth particularly on the faces of women, absence of hair on parts usually covered with hair, etc.

Then there are deformities of body organs which are not visible, but which may be discovered, often during a physical medical examination. The heart on the right side is such a peculiarity.

I daresay this enumeration of possible physical defects is sufficiently comprehensive to show that there are really few people who do not possess one or more of them.

But do not worry about it if you are one of these persons. Such a deformity is a hereditary defect, to be sure, but why and how it happened nobody knows. None of them signifies that you are doomed to mental or physical disaster. Often, too, they can be corrected through skillful plastic surgery. Try to make yourself more beautiful physically if you want to, but, whatever you do, don't become alarmed.

The only really safe milk to drink is pasteurized milk. This is a wise precaution even in cases where the milk is certified. Pasteurization that is properly carried out means heating the milk to from 142 to 145 degrees Fahrenheit and keeping it there for 30 minutes. This insures the killing of all germs that produce disease. When milk is given to a baby it should also be boiled.

SALARIES ARE AGAIN DEBATED

Harry Nixon Moves For The Tabling of Salaries in House

Toronto, Feb. 24 (CP)—Members of the Ontario Legislature rested today in preparation for a busy week with committees and debates. The House does not sit on Saturdays, many of the members going home for the week end.

Next week will see the ending of the first major debate of the session, on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne, and barring eventualities the budget will be brought down on Thursday, thus paving the way for another lengthy discussion.

There were few features in yesterday's brief session. Practically the outstanding action was that of Harry C. Nixon, Progressive leader, who served notice he would again reopen the question of salaries paid to officials of the Ontario Hydro system. This action last year created one of the hottest debates of the session, ending with the refusal of Hon. J. R. Cooke, Chairman of the Hydro Commission, to divulge the salaries to the Legislature.

Ultimately they were presented to the Ontario Municipal Electric Association, whom Mr. Cook said owned the Hydro. However, Mr. Nixon was not satisfied with this action, and claims since the Hydro Commission is government-appointed they should obey the rulings of the House.

SALIENT FACTS—Form of government, constituent republic of Union of Cnion of Soviet Socialist Republics; area, 19,757,953 square kilometres; population, 100,858,000; capital, Moscow (Soviet Russia proper).

HISTORY—The Russian Socialist Federated Soviet Republic, or that part of Russia in Asia, was established by the Treaty of Union in 1923, six years after the start of the revolution which destroyed czardom. It includes forty former provinces of European Russia, three provinces of the north caucasus, the greater part of Siberia and the far east.

COMMERCE—Principal Soviet exports in 1931 included grain, oil products, lumber and furs. Industrial machinery and parts, ferrous metals, iron and steel products and electrical machinery constitute the chief imports.

INDUSTRY—It has been said of Russia that areas of the Soviet comprehend nearly every material natural resource of modern civilization —minerals of all kinds, all varieties of timber except tropical, all cereals, vegetable and fruit lands, and is nearly self-contained. These resources form the leading industries, chief of which is agriculture. Nearly 80 per cent. of the people are engaged in agricultural pursuits. Trade unions play an important role in Russian industrial life, their membership totalling about 16,500,000 in 1932.

GOVERNMENT—Supreme authority of Soviet Russia is vested in a congress of Soviets, composed of town and provincial Soviets. This congress elects a central executive committee of two bodies—the Council of the Union, composed of the united republics according to population, and the Council of Nationalities, composed of five delegates from each autonomous region. The Russian Socialist Federated Soviet Republic is composed of 11 autonomous republics and 12 autonomous areas.

BELLEVILLE JUNIORS SHOW SPEED IN DOWNING QUEENS 7-4 IN SECOND ROUND OF PLAYDOWNS

Second Game Will Be Played in Kingston On Monday

SMART GAME

Locals Had Better of Second And Third Periods

"Class will tell—"

And last evening, when the Belleville juniors defeated the Queen's kids 7 to 4 it surely proved the above statement as the locals swept through to a clean-cut victory, after being two goals down early in the initial frame. The game, which was the third in the play-off series for the championship of O.H.A. junior group No. 1 with goals to count, now sees the Thomas-led aggregation enjoy a three goal lead for the return and final game at Kingston on Monday night.

Uncorking bursts of speed, that all but left the 1,000 odd fans present literally breathless, the local Cubs twice came back to show their superiority and assure themselves of victory. The game was undoubtedly the speediest of the season and saw both teams travelling at a dizzy pace throughout. Although the visitors ofttimes carried a slight edge in the speed they failed to capitalize, while the locals applied the pressure to an advantage, when it proved most profitabe. The ice was in excellent condition and lightning fast hockey was the result.

No individual stars gleamed on the local horizon last evening as the Belleville pucksters threw their all into the fracus and battled back to the last ditch and were rewarded for their efforts with a clean cut win. Sinfield in the nets turned in a good account of his night's endeavors, while Bob Greer led McElrath, his rear-guard team mate, throughout. The first line of Barriage, McGuire and Harvey saw the diminutive local centreman return to form in the last frame and repeatedly carry the play into the Queen's territory. The second line of Ridley, Semark and Hammett again saw the pivot man stand out, with Semark following in order. Don Lee, the extra alternate used, filled in excellently along the left boards and at centre. Twice he was literally robbed by Marshall in the Queen's nets. Marshall incidentally, proved a tower of strength to the 'students' and was ably defended by McGinnis and Gibson. Davis and Christie out-shone and out-played their team mates with Avery at centre repeatedly making the plays for the losing squad. Brackenbury showed plenty of speed in the centre ice zones.

THE PLAY

The actual play opened fast and incidentally continued to remain a thriller throughout. Wally Elmer's charges crossed the locals by opening on the offensive and saw McGinnis coast in to score an easy counter on a solo effort after two minutes of play. The locals seemed disorganized and when caught napping behind the Queen's blue line repeatedly were left behind the play. McElrath and McGuire were beaten by Marshall from close in, while Davis was thwarted by Sinfield. Lewis sallied up the centre alley, passed to Brackenbury at the blue line and the latter rifled a fast one from the corner past Sinfield to put the 'Students' two up. The local second line swung into action and scored in less than one minute later, when Ridley banged home Semark's pass-out after a scramble around the Queen's net and the stanza ended 2 to 1 for Queen's.

Belleville opened the middle frame purely on the offensive and were rewarded for their tactics, when Barriage lifted home the rubber after a face-off at the Queen's blue line. Hammett rifled home Semark's nicely timed pass to put the locals in the lead just three minutes later. Both clubs showed plenty of speed and combination the remainder of the period but it remained for Don Ridley to put the locals two up, when he poked the rubber past Marshall on a pass from Cy Barriage. The frame ended 4 to 2 for Belleville.

Even to open the last period both teams were still travelling at a dizzy pace and Lee had the first shot on net from Barriage's pass. Sinfield rose to dizzy heights to beat Christie and Davis and again beat McGinnis and Avery, both plays seeing the local net minder come out to save. On the nicest display of stick-handling of the evening, Semark weaved through to beat the entire Queen's team for a well-earned goal. In quick succession Queen's ran in two goals, when Bob Greer was decorating the penalty bench. Christie got a rather easy counter when he camped alongside the local goal and batted in Gibson's pass. Barriage was credited with the next counter, when he passed out in front of the Queen's net and in clearing McGinnis batted the puck into his own net. With 15 seconds left to play McElrath weaved his way through all encountering opposition to register a nice goal by picking the upper left hand corner of the net. Marshall, the Queen's goalie sustained an injured back during the play as he threw his all to avert the local score. After receiving first aid, Marshall returned under a shower of applause from the local fans. He injured his spinal column. Each and every Cub gave his all towards victory. A duplication of last night's endeavours by the locals is the only assurance of winning the round.

The line-ups:

Belleville—Goal, Sinfield; defence, Greer and McElrath; centre, Barriage; wings, McGuire and Harvey; subs, Lee, Ridley, Semark and Hammett.

Referee—Duke McCurry, Toronto.

Referee—Dr. F. McCurry, Toronto.

PRE-GAME PREDICTIONS

Battling for a share of the money that comes the way of Stanley Cup playoff teams, Montreal Canadiens and New York Americans take on opponents this week end who are just as anxious as they are to improve their positions in the standings.

The Habitants, defeated by the Maroons Thursday in a game that meant a lot to them play in the Montreal Forum again tonight but this time against Chicago Black Hawks. Americans get into action Sunday night at Detroit against the Red Wings.

Chicago, only three points behind Detroit now and seemingly intent on winning the American section title and meeting Toronto Maple Leafs for the N.H.L. crown, are counting on the two points at stake tonight to edge them up closer to the Wings.

Americans can go into undisputed possession of third place in the Canadian section if Canadiens lose tonight and they turn back Detroit Sunday and they are determined to see their end is taken care of.

Toronto Leafs and New York Rangers meet at Toronto tonight and a win for the Patrickmen, now tied with Chicago, would help them if they intend going all out for the section championship The Boston Bruins play at Ottawa in the fourth week-end game.

CURLING

Toronto, Feb. 24 (CP) — Two trophies of Toronto's seventh annual bonspiel were bound for Northern Ontario today in the arms of George Robinson, doughty skip of the Penetang rink. The grand aggregate honors rested in Toronto with the Royal Canadians, skipped by Andy Grant who came through with only a slim margin over the Penetang curlers. Grant still has an opportunity to win two trophies also as he meets J. F. Robinson of Milton in the final for the Seiberling trophy this morning. Grant carried off the main event of the 'spiel by winning the Royal York trophy. He defeated the Toronto rink skipped by W. R. Macdonald in the final 13-5, bringing his wins to 12.

The Penetang aggregation won the North American Life and the Seagram trophies. Robinson's curlers had little difficulty beating Geo. Stronach's Granite rink in the final of the North American Life, coming out on top 17-8. Penetang then accounted for Judge L. V. O'Connor's Cobourg rink in the Seagram final by a 10-9 score.

The Birks-Ellis-Ryrie trophy went to Chatsworth with Basil Ritz leading his curlers to a 11-9 triumph over C. E. McConkey's Strathconas in the final game.

Another Toronto victory was marked up when C. E. Robin's men curled their way to a 17-6 win over the Barrie rink, skipped by W. H. Kennedy, in the finals of the Wrigley event.

SASKATOON, Feb. 24.—(CP)—Prince Albert Mintos, potential contenders for Allan Cup Honors, today held the lead in the race for the Northern Saskatchewan Hockey championship. They nosed out Saskatoon Elites 3-2 in the first of a three-of-five series here Friday night.

Second and third games are scheduled for Prince Albert Tuesday and Thursday with the fourth game if necessary on March 5.

Deacon, two, and Besler scored for the Mintos. Cunningham scored both goals for the Elites.

"Three up and one to go". The local juniors only enjoy a three goal lead to take to Kingston after downing the Queen's kids 7 to 4 last evening, whereas they garnered a five goal advantage last Monday. But, they muffed one opportunity to come down in front on Wednesday and it's safe to say they won't repeat that mistake again.

Twice last evening when the local situation looked anything but bright the Cubs applied the pressure and demonstrated their superiority by turning what looked like defeat into a well-earned victory. The "students" opened with a splurge but it was short-lived. Again in the last period they threw their all into the game as a last resort but Ed. Thomas' pets again came back to master the situation and give the fans thrill upon thrill. At that the game was a demonstration of speed personified. Both clubs "turned it on" (as the players term it) when hostilities opened and never once did they slow up during the entire sixty minutes. Repeatedly we have been asked today—"are three goals enough to win the round?" Our guess is as good as yours, but we'll say "yes", providing the locals play HOCKEY.

Charlie Curtis of Peterboro had his junior charges down for the game and they tell us—"why there's nothing to it, we'll take either team in a walk". Well, maybe, but they'll have to travel faster than a walk to come down in front of either Queen's or Belleville, if either club play the same brand of hockey against Peterboro in the next round as they did last night. Mr. Curtis may have a smart aggregation of puck chasers, but so have Queen's and Belleville.

One last word, the local kids failed to cover their man in front of their own net last night with the ultimate result that two goals of a rather soft nature were registered against them. When the local kids learn to cover up their man and break faster on the attack, they will be a tough junior "B" team to beat.

.... Up at the Trenton Airport they had a rare old time during Thursday night's boxing card, 'tis rumored. None of the bouts impressed the fans to any great degree of excitement until the final "go" of the evening when Cole of Trenton and Wright of Kingston tangled. It seems Cole was much too good for the Limestone City leather pusher and therein lies the tale. Cole slapped Wright down a couple of times with the result that Wright took to modern wrestling tactics and tossed Cole for a ten yard loss. The gladiators rolled out of the ring, wrestled on the floor and started anew swinging the mitts at random. Assisted by a few fans and officials, the referee parted the fighters, Cole climbed back into the squared circle and was declared the "winnah". The fracas saved the day as far as the patrons were concerned. A little spice like Thursday night's only adds to the interest of the affair, that is if no person is injured.

As we were plugging away at this column about 12:30 a.m. Friday a local fight fan called us relating the result of the Carnera-Loughran world's title bout. Naturally we informed the interested one of the postponement of the fight. At present the bout is scheduled to be held next Wednesday night, although all definite arrangements as to the final procedure are still somewhat of a deep dark mystery. Once a title bout is postponed it seems to lose its original prestige. All of which reminds us of the opening boxing bout of the season to be presented at the City Hall by the South End A. C. with ten all-star bouts being on the card. Matchmaker Joe Samaine has combed this immediate district with a fine-tooth comb to sign the best mitt slingers procurable. The return match between Gordie Morris and Howard Wheeler at 118 pounds and the return of Freddie Parry to the amateur ranks are but two of the feature attractions. Parry meets Andy Cusack (the Vancouver Kid). Need anything more be said?

The club officials have five trophies and four flags to be awarded the various winners throughout the season. The punt races sponsored by the South End A. C. proved a marked success last summer and finds new classes being added to their numbers for 1934 competition. The punt races are to be staged over the same course next summer as was used in 1933.

Next Tuesday evening the "house basketball league" at the Y.M.C.A. resumes activities after the winter lay-off. Instructor Ralph Morden has six teams—Deacon A. C., St. Michael's, R.C.A.F., "Y" Purples, "Y" Golds, and Judeans lined up to face the season's barrier. The club coming down in front of the spring league will meet the Deacon A. C. kids in the finals, they having won the fall loop. Of course if the Deacons win the spring loop they will be city champions. Mr. Morden will also introduce four-man basketball teams, a feature that should speed up the game and add to the scoring qualities of each club.

While on the subject of basketball we understand that the local Deacon A. C. juniors have been crowned champions of the junior series of E.O.A.B.A. following the retirement of the Napanee Gibbards, junior winners in group No. 2 of E.O.A.B.A. Queen's won "B" section with the Deacons coming down in second place. The "students" found they could not continue in the O.A.B.A. finals and dropped out, leaving the honors to the local kids. Napanee won the other group section but deemed themselves inadequate to meet the local kids in the group finals and defaulted to George Laughlin's charges. The Deacon A. C junior cagers are now Eastern Ontario title holders, an honor they annexed without much effort on their part. The local junior basketball squad will now continue in quest of the Ontario Amateur Basketball championship in the junior series. The majority of the local juniors are members of the group champion B.C.I.V.S. senior interscholastic squad of cagers as well and will naturally see plenty of competition on the basketball floor during the next six weeks, as both provincial play-downs will soon get under way. Incidentally St. Mike's cagers trimmed the Deacons 34 to 19 in an exhibition game last evening.

CROWD STORMS RING AS BOXERS CONTINUE SCRAP OUTSIDE ROPES

Ten Good Bouts Given Fans at Trenton Airport

Ten Bouts Attract Large Crowd At Relief Project Camp

TRENTON, Feb. 24—(Special)—Some real excitement was served the eight hundred fans who attended the second boxing tournament of the 1934 season, sponsored by Relief Project No. 28 by permission of Wing Commander L. S. Breadner, D.S.C. Ten bouts were served the customers with the Cole-Wright bout ending in a melee with the crowd storming the ring after the boxers continued their scrap along the outside of the squared circle. Cole returned to the ring and was awarded the fight. Everything went fine for two rounds. Wright was down just before the bell sounded in first round. In the second Wright kept away from Cole's deadly right and ducked low in a clinch while Cole missed many upper cuts as Wright ducked. In the third Cole repeatedly coaxed Wright to wade in and this sort of got under his skin. In a clinch Wright turned to wrestling and took Cole by the legs and dumped him in the corner and wouldn't let go. Wright rolled under the ropes and Cole after him but the referee with some assistance staved him off. He later got down and wanted to continue outside the ring. Wright was taken to the dressing room and Cole returned to the ring and was awarded the decision. Wright hails from the Canadian Locomotive Athletic Club of Kingston.

Joe Vido reversed the decision of the last meeting when he outpointed George Smith in the final bout of the evening. Vido the big Polish lad from Relief Project No. 42 at Kingston, has improved considerably. The fight went pretty even for three rounds when Vido began to bear down to outpoint Smith after both took some hard knocks.

George Fisher, the elongated mitt artist of Belleville, knocked out Bill Waugh of Kingston, in the fourth round of their five round bout.

Both fighters boxed a little in the first with no damage being done to either. The next two went fairly even but the fourth Fisher let two hard drives connect with Waugh's head and he went down for a four count and later a five before Fisher finally put him away.

Al Barry of Trenton, was no match for Bill Crawford. The bell saved Barry on the seventh count in the first and eighth in the second. Barry was taking a severe beating when Referee Coggins awarded the decision to Crawford.

Ray Crawford and Gordon Wood put up a real slugging bee for the fans for four rounds. Crawford was given the decision.

The Battle of Midgets received rounds of applause from all sides when little Joe Semain and Tommy De Cote mixed it up for four rounds. Their cleverness 'n ducking, swinging and their foot work attracted the eye of the crowd who cheered the decision which was called a draw.

Harold "Dynamite" Wheeler almost found his match in Gordon Gorman. These lads stole the show with their battering especially in the clinches. The cash customers cheered this pair all through the four rounds Wheeler was given a close decision.

Earl Potts and Len Maracle were booed continually when they both stood for four rounds and wrestled danced and clinched. No damage was done by either party and a draw resulted amid the boos and hisses.

Bob Schroder of Belleville, gained a decision over Cecil Kelly after four rounds of real fighting. Both boys were cheered as they left the ring.

Lorne Childerhose gained a decision over his shorter, less conditioned Gordon Wheeler in the opening bout of the evening.

The judges of the night were—Messrs. Harry Moore and Mark Tripp of Trenton and Jack McFee of Belleville; Sergt.-Major Coggins of the R.M.C. Kingston, capably refereed while Sergt. O'Neil of the R.C.A.F. handled the bell.

Sergt.-Major J. Wilberty announced the fights. Bill Adams of Oshawa, trainer of the Camp matched the fighters.

Fight Summary

Bob Schroder, Belleville, decision over Cecil Kelly, Madoc, at 135 lbs.

Earl Potts, Trenton, drew with Len Maracle of Point Anne at 126 pounds.

J. Semain, Belleville, drew with Tommy De Cote in the Battle of the Midgets at catch weights.

Hill Crawford, technical knock out over Al Barry, Trenton, at 135 pounds.

George Fisher, Belleville, knocked out Bill Waugh, Kingston at 147 pounds.

Joe Vido Kingston, over George Smith, Campbellford, at 160 pounds.

TIGERS EARN DRAW IN GAME

Hold Torontos to 3-3 Tie While Falls Defeat Nationals 2-1

(By The Canadian Press)

There was little to choose today between the four teams battling it out for the Senior Ontario Hockey Association honors. Hamilton Tigers, league leaders, could only come through with a 3-3 draw against Torontos at Toronto last night and Niagara Falls Cataracts obtained a one-goal margin when they defeated West Toronto Nationals 2-1 in their home town.

With total goals counting in the semi-final round the second games Tuesday night promise to produce some of the best hockey witnessed in the league this season. Tigers were behind three goals in the middle of the second period but clawed through to a tie by some sparkling attacks. The Falls jumped into the lead in the first session, Nationals tied it up at the start of the second but Cataracts tallied another before the period ended and held the visitors scoreless in the last.

Torontos started out against Hamilton like a winning team. When Tigers launched their offensive, however, Torontos were on the verge of tumbling to defeat. The game wasn't a minute old when Jack Shill, the best of Toronto's wingers, broke the Hamilton defence open and sneaked through to score.

Bruce Paul, another classy forward, was responsible for two of Toronto's goals. On a three-man combination with Normie Mann and Don Hodges, Paul closed in on goaler Marsh in Tigers' net and scored the second goal in the middle period. Four minutes later he romped through alone to score.

Tigers Rally

Three goals down the Tigers started their clawing and scratched up three goals. Before the middle frame had ended the Blake-Conick-Bennett line had started to work. besieging goaler Goldie in Toronto's net "Toe" Blake took Conick's pass to open the Hamilton scoring and then Cliff Chisholm played a lone hand to score another.

The Tiger attack became stronger in the final session, the bombardment continuing until a Conick-Bennett combination got through with the former recording the tying counter.

The battle at the Falls was one of the closest this season. Falls jumped ahead when George Hastie, the class of the night, slipped down his right wing and scored. Garney Larke, tricky forward of Nationals, tied it up in the middle session on a lone play but Brenchley gave the Falls the jump again on a solo goal and the final session went scoreless.

Hastie was the best man on the ice, his stick-handling brilliant and his continual rushes keeping the visitors guessing. Goaler Stein was the peer of the Nationals with Garney Large's play a feature.

LADOGAN WINS—Leading from the start, Ladogan wins thrilling Hialeah (Miami, Fla.) race from Fire Mask.

Hook Pass Hard to Block, So Practice This Play

Written for Central Press Canadian and the Ontario Intelligencer

By JACK LIPPERT

There are a number of passes designed especially for passing the ball when closely guarded, just as there are a number of shots for caging the ball under similar pressure. The hook is used as either a pass or a shot, but much more frequently as a pass than as a shot.

The hook is very difficult to block. The best the defensive player can hope to do is to raise one arm up high and extend the other out to the side in event the passer happens to be only faking a hook and actually intending another type of pass.

The defensive player in the accompanying moving picture sequence of the hook pass (or shot, because the technique is practically the same for both) is doing the best any guard could under the circumstances and still be within the law.

The guard could, of course, go in and get a little rough with the passer, and frequently he does, but such rough stuff is not only illegal but is contrary to the spirit of the game. Tackling the passer while he has possession of the ball is permitted in football, but not in basketball.

Observe that in executing the hook pass the passer (if he is right handed) turns so that his left shoulder is forward. This gives protection to the passing (the right) arm. The passer could obtain still additional protection, in event the guard crowds too close, by raising his left arm as the guards press closer.

This raising of the arm must be done before the guard is up against the passer, for if it were done after the guard has closed in and the arm is used to wedge him away, the passer is liable to a penalty for a personal-contact foul.

For want of a better name we will call this the jump-up shot.

This shot differs considerably from the high-jump shot, which will be the subject of another article. The jump-up shot, as you see, is taken from a standing position.

The moving picture sequence here shows none of the preliminary feints that might very well accompany the jump-up shot. The player with the ball might have feinted a pivot or a pass in order to disconcert the guard so that the guard would not be set so well to block the jump-up shot. The jump-up shot, however is quite difficult to block even without the preliminary disguise of feints.

The jump-up must not be attempted very far from the basket. It ought to be confined for close-range work—within 15 feet of the basket.

The shooter should do nothing to give away his intentions. He should suddenly spring from the floor off both feet at the same time, and should not raise the ball above his head until he has actually left the floor. If he holds the ball out in front before jumping the guard can clinch it for a held ball.

The shooter should raise the ball pretty high above his head so that he can see the basket. The ball should actually leave his hands while he is at the highest point of the jump, and should be aimed directly at the loop, not at the backboard if the shot is taken from directly in front. If it is taken from the side, the bankboard would be used as it is in all side shots.

The guard's work in this situation here illustrated is very good. He does not leave his feet until after the shooter leaves his, and he is keeping his arms and hands well spread. One criticism which could be made of the guard's work is that he does not press close enough to the shooter. Of course, had he pressed too close the shooter might have pivoted around him and dribbled in for a shot.

However, if the offensive player did not have a dribble coming to him (having already dribbled before coming to this position) the guard would be justified in pressing close to the shooter.

HUMAN TRAGEDY BEHIND SHOOTING

Husband Shoots Self as Detectives Wait For Him

Toronto, Feb. 24.—A woman who had spent the last three years supporting her husband with the aid of a young son prepared today for his funeral because her plans to have him cured of acute nervousness failed.

The man, George E. Neville, 58, unemployed since 1930, shot and killed himself last night, while two detectives were escorting him from his home after arresting him for threatening death to his wife. The night before, they said, he had beaten the woman severely and told her: "Well, I might as well finish you now".

Mrs. Neville told police that after her husband beat her, an occurrence not infrequent, she persuaded him it would be best if she had him arrested suggested a court might send him to a psychoapthic hospital where he could be cured of his nervous ailment.

She said Neville agreed and she laid a complaint against him. When the police came to get him he appeared cheerful, donned extra clothing in case his cell should be cold and asked his wife to make him some sandwiches. He picked up his tobacco as the detectives helped him into his overcoat and walked towards the door. As he passed the door to his own bedroom, he halted and said: "Just a minute, boys, I'll be right with you." Before they could stop him he whipped a pistol from his pocket and shot himself through the head, falling at their feet.

FOUR INJURED WHEN CAR STRUCK BY TRAIN

Victims Rushed to Hospital all Being in Critical Condition

Edmonton, Feb. 24.—(CP)—Four persons were in the hospital here today, critically injured, when their automobile was struck by a passenger train at a level crossing here Friday night.

Mrs. W. J. Scraba, Lamont, Alta., is in a critical condition with a lung puncture and fractures of all left ribs, while her husband, daughter, Ellen, 18, and Fred Intoniuk, Chipman, Alta., escaped with lesser injuries. All are in the hospital.

The car was carried on the engine pilot for 125 yards before the train was stopped.

Eighteen hundred sixty-four—
Steamboats running till September
All along Prince Edward shore.

Down to Picton and beyond the Lighthouse at the Point, where old
Lake Ontario's storms were on the Wane, by narrowing banks controlled?

On the packet's side I read it,
"Bay of Quinte."—Do you know
How to say it as they said it
In the days of long ago?

No, not "Canty." Qwinty—Bay of Quinte—bay and boat the same.
Let the linguists have their day of Disputation. That's the name.

I a minature edition
Of my father, we two stept
Down the stairway to envision
Where Bay-going travellers slept.

Time has not effaced that etching,
Early made. Still on my sight
One long row of berths is stretching
Round the hold, all painted white.

And the trip. That sweet-sidewheeler
Picked her own deliberate way
Round the bends and curves, and under Cliffs that half shut out the day.

Yes, and that most marvellous pilot
Let me take the wheel in hand—
Me, a ten-year-old, to guide the

Now how different! Yet to me
This delightful memory
Opens up the Bay once more
To navigators, as of yore.

PARLOR MEETING OF W. C. T. U.

Frances Willard day was fittingly observed at a meeting held in Bridge Street Church parlours on Wednesday under the direction of Mrs. Farley and her group. Mrs. Farley read the story of Deborah, who in the time of the nation's great need rose "a leader in Israel" and showed that from time to time some woman stood out for the right in times when leaderrhip was needed. Frances Willard was one of these and as a tribute to her and her great work in the interests of temperance a monument was erected in Washington Square.

Featuring the program was a splendid address on the training of 'teen age girls by Miss Robina Templeton.

Mrs. Coulson, who has been engaged in social service work in Montreal for a number of years gave a talk on her work there, which was both interesting and educational.

Mrs. C. Ellis accompanied at the piano by Miss Doris Houston, rendered a pleasing solo "Face to Face".

Mrs. Moore moved a vote of thanks to the speakers and soloist and Mrs. O'Flynn closed with prayer after which lunch was served. Mrs. A. Campbell, Mrs. O. Ragsdale, Mrs. C. Dickens, Miss Doris Williams and Miss Mary Merrick.

LIBRARY CORNER

This is the season when garden enthusiasts are poring over volumes about annuals and perennials, conjuring up visions of roses, larkspur and delphinium. The library has arranged an attractive display of all those books dear to the gardener's heart, seed catalogues from many parts of Canada and the United States, the Home Garden 'Handbooks, books about gardens in general or one species of flower in particular. Taking for granted that your flower garden will be a successful one with an abundance of flowers for cutting, the library has added the volume "The Arrangement of Flowers" by Mrs. Walter Hine. This book is intended mainly for those who want flowers in the house and wish to arrange them to display them to advantage but have neither the time nor the inclination to go deeply into the subject. Mrs. Hine is an authority on floral arrangements, having won many prizes at the International Flower Show in New York and has lectured frequently on her subject. Throughout the book are numerous photographic illustrations of groups described in the book, many of them prize arrangements. This volume will prove a welcome addition to the "garden's" display.

"Men of the Trees" by Richard St. Barbe Baker is a book about forestry as its title would suggest but not forestry as we know it but as it is practised by the natives in the mahogany forests of Kenya and Nigeria. Captain Richard St. Barbe Baker who has devoted his life to forest conservation and reforestation methods, has during his sojourn as forest officer in the Highlands of East Africa, discovered tribes of natives who lived as nomadic farmers, leaving a trail of destruction in their wake, which would eventually result in barren land. Captain Baker organized a movement whereby the forests would be preserved and trees would be planted to replace those destroyed. The story of these "men of the trees" is a study of folk ways as well as of the economics of the forest. Lowell Thomas has written an interesting introduction to the volume.

The memoirs of Frances, Countess of Warwick, are of more than ordinary interest since Warwick Castle is one of the great show places of England which is visited by travellers from all parts of the world. "Life's Ebb and Flow" is a volume of tales of courts and kings, of poverty and social unrest. It describes English society at the height of its brilliance in the '80's and '90's with such figures as Disraeli, Edward VII, Balfour, Asquith, Cecil Rhodes, W. H. Hudson, as visitors at Warwick Castle. The Countess of Warwick writes as one who has enjoyed every moment of a rich and varied life. She talks with charm and wit of those characters and events that have made social and political history in England during the last three decades.

A. E. Housman, poet and critic, chosen to deliver the Leslie Stephen lecture at Cambridge University on May 9, 1933, took as his topic, "The Name and Nature of Poetry", now published in book form. The author of "A Shropshire Lad" and "Last Poems" has, in this volume raised a battle-cry against those who emphasize intellect and destroy the emotion in art. "Poetry in not the thing said but the way of saying it." The New York Times refers to the volume in the following terms: "One can but thank A. E. Housman for pages so pungent, so delightful and so profound. Alas, they are so few!"

ST. ANDREW'S HELPERS

St. Andrew's Helpers was the name chosen Wednesday evening by the new young people's organization of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Roslin. This society has for its immediate objective the redecorating of the interior of the church, a work which it hopes to accomplish this coming summer.

Eighteen were present Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. White. The devotional topic was given by Mr. John White, dealing with the life of David Livingstone. Rev. Mr. Hill gave a short talk on Modern poetry. The meeting wound up with games and refreshments.

The officers of the St. Andrew's Helpers are President, Mrs. D. C. Hill; Secretary Mr. Connel Leslie; Treasurer, Mr. Laurison Montgomery; Pianist, Miss Marion Fargey.

DIES AFTER INJURY

Peterborough, Ont., Feb. 24. — (CP)—Arnold O'Connor, nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank O'Connor of this city, died in the hospital here today following a tobogganing accident last night. The boy was tobogganing with two chums on a steep incline when the toboggan upset throwing them down the incline. O'Connor was caught on a sharp stake. Coroner T. M. Young investigated but has not as yet decided on an inquest.

RESIDENTS ARE HONORED AT FAREWELL PARTY

Madoc—On Friday evening last, the friends and neighbors of Miss Way and Mr. Jack Caskey gathered at a home near Madoc to spend the evening with them before they leave this neighborhood to take up residence at their new home near Eldorado.

Jack and Miss Way have lived a good many years in this community and all are sorry to see them leave. Cards and dancing were enjoyed until about 11.30 when the young people were called to order and the following address was read by Mrs. Feeney:

Dear Miss Way and Jack:

Having learned with regret of your intended departure from our midst, we, your friends and neighbors have gathered here tonight to spend a few social hours with you.

Jack, we have been very intimately acquainted with you, watching your career through school, which was worthy of mention, then gradually growing to manhood and finally settling down as an individual farmer among us.

You have conducted yourself always as a very bright and energetic farmer. Your work was never neglected for pleasure. In all your dealings we have found you upright and honest and always willing to offer a helping hand. We feel that we are losing a good citizen well worthy of praise.

Miss Way, you have been in this community for a number of years and we have not overlooked your sterling qualities. Your cheery and kindly disposition will be a happy memory to all who have come in contact with you.

We are very glad that you will not be very far away, where we will see you often and you will always be welcome to our homes and social gatherings. As a slight token of remembrance we ask you to accept these chairs and jardiniere, hoping they will often remind you of your many friends and neighbors.

This was ably responded to by Miss Way and Jack both of whom in a brief and kindly way thanked one and all for the kind thoughts and good wishes expressed in the address and through the gifts and invited all to visit them in their new home.

After singing "For They are Jolly Good Fellows" lunch was served. The young people danced and in the small hours of the morning left for home declaring they had had a fine time and wishing Miss Way and Jack good health good luck and every happiness in their new home.

THOMASBURG W.A.

The February meeting of the Women's Association was held at the home of the President, Mrs. H. Elliott, on the 21st with 22 present. After singing a hymn the Scripture was read by Mrs. Betrice Morton followed by prayer by three ladies. The Roll Call was answered by a proverb after which the secretary and treasurer gave very encouraging reports. Several items of business was discussed.

A hymn was sung followed by a reading by Mrs. M. Adams and a duet by Mrs. Fred Porter and Mrs. H. Morton. The offering was taken and the meeting closed with prayer.

NO REPAIRS UNTIL ESTIMATES GIVEN

Repair work in the upper section of the city hall tower, where, it is stated, decay of the stringers of bell and clock supports has left the tower in a dangerous condition, will be deferred by the city council until after the year's estimates have been brought into council by the Board of Education. It is expected that tenders will then be advertised for the work.

"Polly — I just don't dare take baby out! She's been behaving terribly lately. I can't imagine why she's so cross!"

"She's sallow, Louise, just the way Bobby was when he had that whiney spell last month. She probably needs a laxative. Try Castoria."

"See how baby enjoys her ride today, Polly. I think Castoria has done perfect wonders for her!"

"Yes, I see it has, Louise. Castoria has helped thousands of children. It's especially good for acid stomach. You know, it doesn't contain any of the harmful drugs that often are in adult laxatives. Castoria is pleasant to take, too — tastes awfully good."

New Zealand.

During December cheese graded in New Zealand amounted to 15,476 tons—10,658 tons of white and 4,818 tons of colored. Butter graded was 19,314 tons salted and 882 tons unsalted.

Stocks held in that country at various grading ports as at December 31st last were, butter 18,787 tons and cheese 15,553 tons.

United Kingdom Cheese Market 1933.

Imports of cheese of the United Kingdom continue to show little variation during recent years. Imports of 340,442,704 lbs. in 1933 were larger than in 1932 and 1931 by about 1 per cent. and 5 per cent. respectively.

New Zealand as in recent years, maintained its position as chief source of imported cheese, supplying 68 per cent. of total imports as against 62 per cent. in 1932. The downward trend of Canadian supplies, which had been arrested in the two previous years, was again in evidence during 1933, when imports of cheese from Canada were 16 per cent. smaller than in 1932 and the lowest for many years. Imports from Australia increased by 26 per cent. to a new record level, but smaller quantities were received from South Africa.

Empire supplies, largely as a result of heavier imports from New Zealand, increased by 4 per cent. in 1933 and comprised 92 per cent. of the total, as against 90 per cent. in 1932.

Cheese Imports.

Imports of cheese into the United Kingdom markets from the four chief sources of supply for the year ending December 31st were as under in cwts.:

	1933	1932	1931
New Zealand	2,059,393	1,849,132	1,732,620
Canada	629,715	747,478	706,725
Netherlands	122,179	170,034	168,219
Italy	90,311	106,094	131,783
Total imports all sources	3,039,667	3,003,113	2,885,794

Butter Imports.

Imports of butter in cwts. for the same periods from the three chief countries of supply with total imports are below noted:

	1933	1932	1931
Denmark	2,519,119	2,583,364	2,466,070
New Zealand	2,512,447	2,140,280	1,925,661

FINANCIAL MARKETS

NEW YORK - TORONTO - WINNIPEG

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Feb. 24. — A mild early rally in the first hour in the industrial section of the Toronto Stock Exchange today petered out and was succeeded by renewal of Friday's last-hour selling and the close showed a slight preponderance of recessions over gains.

The distillery shares, with exception of Brewers and Distillers closed with fractional gains, Walker's common at 45¾; Industrial Alcohol at 16¼ and Distillers Seagrams at 20½. In the brewery group price changes were on the down side while the interlisted leaders registered narrow losses in Ford A, C.P.R. and Nickel. The latter was off with the New York copper issues, at $23.25 for a loss of 25 cents.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Feb. 24—(CP)—Mining shares registered a mild recovery from the late Friday sell-off with volume spotty today on the Toronto Exchange, mining section. Senior gold issues were generally firm and some gains were boarded in the Base Metal group.

None of the high-priced gold issues was active. Dome got back 75 cents, closing at $35.30, McIntyre closed unchanged and Hargreaves was up 10. Hollinger, Lake Shore, Teck Hughes and Bralorne were unchanged and Pioneer at $11.60 was down 15 cents.

The tone was better for Noranda which closed up 40 cents at $35 and Base Metals Corporation, Sudbury Basin and Sherritt were steady and Hudson Bay eased 20 cents.

NEW YORK CLOSE

New York, Feb. 24—Stocks generally pointed downward again today although the selling was orderly in the face of considerable pessimistic sentiment in Wall Street. A few scattered issues, including the Aircraft, showed resistance, but the close, on the whole, was heavy. The turnover for the brief session approximated 1,300,000 shares.

Price range May wheat to above time today: High 67 1-4; Low 66 3-4.

MILITARY CONVICTS FREED BY LEOPOLD III

New King Signs Amnesty For Large Number

Brussels, Feb. 24.—The new king of the Belgians, Leopold III., turned quickly to affairs of state today after his enthronement yesterday.

He confirmed the tenure of the present cabinet then, as his first official act, signed a bill extending amnesty to a large number of military convicts in certain categories.

An official paper instructed the courts and executive authorities to issue all sentences and decrees in the name of King Leopold III.

SEEKS RECALL OF GERMAN CONSUL

Ottawa, Feb. 24—Sam Jacobs, Liberal member for Cartier-Montreal gave notice today he will ask the Federal government if it will seek the recall of Dr. L. Kempf, German Consul General in Canada for circulating "anti-Jewish and pro-Nazi literature." The question will be asked in the House of Commons Monday.

C.G.I.T. ENJOYS TOBOGGAN PARTY

Members of Miss Bertrim's group of John Street C.G.I.T. held an enjoyable toboggan party last evening at which about fifteen were present. After a jolly time at this popular sport the members were entertained at the home of Miss Pauline Kelley, John Street. Refreshments were served and games were enjoyed.

TE-LEK-TOR-ET

Now there's a name that is a name, Te-lek-tor-et—a name like that certainly must mean something. Sounds like an Indian Chief of high degree, or some Grand Mogul sitting serene and all-powerful in his lofty mountain palace amid the clouds which ceiling Thibet the Forbidden. But this is something else again, signifying the very latest development in radio—it means for one thing, control of your radio from any part of the room, stations, volume, etc., and there are other attractive and interesting features about Te-lek-tor-et, now being shown for the first time in Belleville at Miles Radio Shop, 229 Front Street. You are invited to inspect this new radio departure—Meet TE-LEK-TOR-ET.

CATTLE PRICES TO BE HIGHER

Times Getting Better And Cost of Feed Higher

Higher prices for cattle, and a shortage next spring, will mean fewer cattle for export from this district, but more money in the farmer's pocket. There's still another reason why beefsteak will cost the average purchaser more next year, according to the statement of a well known cattle buyer and butcher.

"Times are getting better: the people are buying more meat," he explains.

A census of downtown butcher shops bears out the statement. People in the city are buying more meat. In many cases they have turned from the smal pieces of stewing beef and neck cuts to the tastier but more expensive steaks. Correspondingly, they have been buying in larger quantities. Instead of asking for a half pound of meat they've been buying a pound. Not only beef but pork products are again selling in larger quantities.

Turning to cattle, the local buyer said: "About twenty-five per cent. less winter feeder cattle have been brought into Ontario this year from the west, for fattening. Feed in Ontario this year has been scarce, owing to the dry season last summer. In some parts there was a fair crop of hay, but everywhere else there was a light crop of corn. Barley and oats were also scarce.

"The farmer can't afford to buy both grain and cattle. Therefore, he had less grain, he bought less cattle, and begrudged every bushel of grain he fed. The result was that a alrge proportion of cattle were not fattened, but are being just carried along on grass or whatever root feeds he can spare."

MAIL PILOT CRASHES

Cleveland, Feb. 24 (AP)— Another United States army plane assigned to the air mail service crashed in bad weather near Fremont, O., and the pilot, Norman Burnett, who took to his parachute, suffered a fractured leg.

Picton and Prince Edward County

BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT

PICTON, Feb. 24.—(Special) — On Wednesday evening, about two hundred and fifty guests, gathered in the Oddfellow's Hall for a delightful At Home. Progressive euchre was played during the early part of the evening, after which round and square dancing was enjoyed, to splendid music furnished by Mr. Dafoe, piano; Hubert Greenfield, violin; Jimmy Davis, saxophone; Mr. Shepard, banjo; and Glendon Minaker, traps. The orchestra was most generous with encores, and received an ovation from those present, at the end of the evening, in the form of a hearty hand-clap. Supper was served at midnight, in the dining hall, at three sittings, with over eighty seated at once, after which dancing continued till the early hours. The committee in charge of the arrangements was Richad Jenkins, Earl Hicks and Jack Vestervelt.

Mr. Norman Mein of the G. E. Fraser staff is home on three week's sick leave.

KING AND RANKIN, CANNERS, GET SECOND ORDER FROM WALES

500 Cases of Tomatoes For Immediate Delivery

TWO-WAY PLAN

Messrs. King and Rankin, Ltd., of Belleville, who took the step of shipping over to Wales a shipment of canned tomatoes in the test shipment some time ago in the two-way plan developed by Mr. W. E. Schuster aided by his Central Ontario Commerce Crusaders have just received a repeat order—this time for immediate shipment five hundred cases of tomatoes under this trade plan, the buyer being Messrs. T. T. Pascoe, Limited, Welsh coal operators. Messrs. King and Rankin who have lent hearty endorsation to the scheme for development of trade are naturally delighted with this result of their initial effort, which has proven so great a success.

The goods will be shipped direct to T. T. Pascoe, Ltd., and upon arriaal in Wales, will be turned over to established produce merahants in Wales.

Ontario cheese, apples and other farm products will find extensive trade in Wales during 1934, it is confidently predicted.

The stage has been set and the curtain raised and the driving force behind the plan and the contacts established, mean the development which the Ontario Intelligencer predicted months ago.

Messrs. King and Rankin, Ltd., is a Belleville firm and Mr. King and Mr. Rankin are both experts in the canning business.

CAR HITS TREE AND 2 BURNED TO DEATH

All Identifications Destroyed And Bodies Are Held

Fredonia, N.Y., Feb. 24 (AP) — Two unidentified men, believed residents of Michigan, were burned to death near here when their truck crashed into a tree and burned. The accident occurred about a mile and a half from Fredonia. Coroner George E. Blood said, that all the clothing had been burned and whatever indentification papers the men may have carried in their pockets were destroyed.

Authorities believed, that the driver either fell asleep or the heavily loaded vehicle skidded on the slippery pavement and crashed into the tree.

HYDRO TO DEVELOP ALBANY RIVER SITE

Announcement Expected from Commission Next Week

Toronto, Feb. 24—Establishment of a power development on the Albany River, to provide electrical energy for mines in the Crow River country of the Patricia District, will, it is expected, be formally announced by the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission within the next week.

Contracts which the commission, under Hon. J. R. Cooke, is negotiating with mine interests at the present time, and which are almost certain to be completed, it is said, will make the Albany development a feasible project. Several likely steps were surveyed last summer by Hydro engineers, the Henry Government by order-in-Council voting sufficient funds for the survey.

It is understood that the Power Commission is already planning to take in necessary construction materials this winter, and once the Spring opens will investigate marine railway possibilities on portages between Lac Seul and Lake St. Joseph, and from the latter body of water to the most likely power site of all surveyed. By the end of this year, Hydro would be in a position, it is understood to deliver the mine-operating power required of it.

As Dollfuss Led Fight Against Socialists

As Heimwehr Combat Socialists on Vienna Streets

York Twp. Doctors To Oppose Gov't.

Toronto, Feb. 24 (CP)—Revolting York Township physicians set about organizing political opposition to the Ontario government of Premier Geo. S. Henry, following what they described as failure to reach a satisfactory conclusion in their complaints against the system of payment in public relief cases.

The doctors, objecting to fees of $1.50 for treating indigent patients at their homes and $1 for treating them in their own offices, sought the right to charge additional amounts for performing minor operations in the surgeries and for setting fractures under similar conditions.

Last night they met as the York Township Medical Association, voiced unanimous objection to the government's failure to meet their complaints and disbanded to meet again as private citizens and form a committee to select an independent candidate to represent them at the next provincial election.

Dr. J. H. Nesbitt, president of the Medical Association, was named chairman of the committee which will seek the candidate and try to establish behind him the unanimous backing of all parties in opposition to the administration.

Current Attractions at Local Theatres

What Local Theatre Managers Have to S[illegible] About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL

Kay Francis in "House on 56th St."

Thirty-six changes of costume form the amazing wardrobe required by Kay Francis in the stellar role in "The House on 56th Street," her most recent Warner Bros. picture, which comes to the Capitol Theatre on Monday.

This is not only a record for Miss Francis, but is a high water-mark for the studio.

Opening in the first years of the present century, the drama comes to a climax in 1933. Thus Miss Francis' wardrobe constitutes a panoramic review of what American women have worn for three decades. In fact, a complete cycle is established, since the gowns the star wears in the final sequences of the picture bear a striking resemblance to those of thirty years before.

The story is that of a beautiful and popular chorus girl who weds a millionaire New York clubman and is idealistically happy until she innocently becomes involved in the death of her former lover. Released from prison, she becomes a blackjack dealer in the very house she has occupied as a bride. The smashing climax comes when she saves her own daughter, who doesn't know her, from a scandal similar to her own.

In "The House on 56th Street" Kay Francis has a role more real—more intense—more impassioned than "Mary Stevens, M. D.". It is a picture every woman will want every man to see. Miss Francis wears thirty-six different costumes in this picture.

A wide variety of added short subjects including a comedy complete a really fine program.

Mon. And Tues. Are Gift Nights

Dainty Lillian Harvey who de lighted Belleville screen lovers wit her role in "My Weakness" start an engagement of two days, at the Belle Theatre, today in "My Lip Betray", her second production fo Fox Films. In this picture specially adapted to her versatile talent she has John Boles as her leadin man.

The story is laid in a strange an mythical setting, and the princip characters are a romantic King an a charming cabaret entertainer.

Through an error perpetrat by the royal, if typsy, chauffeu rumors begin flying about that th young girl who is on the verge o being evicted by her landlady fo non-payment of rent is really th king's favorite. Things change wi amazing rapidity. Instead of bein a poverty-stricken entertainer, th girl becomes the centre of every one's attention. She is dined an wined and feted and decorated an entirely against her will, is force into accepting the situation. Sh must play the part if only to kee the people around her happy.

"Frontier Marshal"

The frontier town of Tombsto Arizona, makes its last stand [illegible] the onrush of civilization in [illegible] tier Marshal", the second featu attraction on the same program. Tombstone is the town that w overrun by lawlessness and bandi ry, until that famous peace offic Wyatt Earp, made his appearan on the frontier and brought it la and order. The screen play w adapted from incidents in the li of Wyatt Earp and George O'Bri plays the title part.

It is reported that "Fronti Marshal" is real, true and convin ing, its characters having stepp to the screen from life itself. T people you see, the motives th guide them and their heroic actio have all actually happened.

George O'Brien, who was l seen in "The Last Trail" has t leading masculine role.

Charity sank weakly onto a couch and closed her eyes. "This is hard work."

With her eyes closed she could see rainbows dancing everywhere. Red, green, orange, gold—everything but blue. She had ordered dozens of things and there wasn't a dash of the old inevitable blue in her new wardrobe.

From Mme. Bordeaux' they went to Cecile's for evening gowns and wraps. It was after closing time when they had finished. Charity staggered with fatigue. Billie was tired, but thrilled with joy at having had the best shopping orgy she'd ever gone through in her life.

When they climbed into the car Charity put her hand on Billie's arm. There was something she wanted to suggest. But it was very difficult. She didn't know how Billie would take it.

Billie, seeing her hesitation, grinned. "What's on your mind, darlin'? Is there something we've forgotten?"

"I can't have all these things—and not share them with you," Charity blurted then. "It isn't fair."

Billie snapped her fingers. "I'm getting a bigger kick out of this than you are."

"But it isn't fair," Charity said miserably. "I'll be broken-hearted if you don't let me take you shopping for a day. We'll buy everything you want. I—I'm not trying to pay you—I know you're not that sort. But it would make me very happy."

Billie shook her head firmly and gave Charity a quick kiss on the cheek. "You're an angel, honey, for wanting to do it. But we're too good friends to spoil it by making any sort of business arrangement. I can get my things wholesale —and I've got everything I need—really. Please don't think about it."

Tears came to Charity's eyes. "You're such a wonderful person, Billie. I hope you'll at least let me buy you something birthdays—and at Christmas. When is your birthday?"

Billie grinned. "I don't have 'em any more, darlin'. It's bad for my business. And there ain't no Santa Claus."

CHAPTER 17

Charity was lying on the balcony reading the next afternoon when she heard Doug's phone ring. She didn't realize she was sitting so near his windows, and was surprised to hear his deep, pleasant voice answering.

She was at home! They hadn't [illegible] since he slept in her room at Templehaven. For a moment she wanted to get up and walk away. But she didn't want to be conspicuous about it. So she lay quietly, and was not surprised to learn it was Yanner. She didn't really mean to eavesdrop. But she couldn't help hearing Doug say, almost coolly, "Yes—Yanner?"

There was a short silence. Then Doug's voice again, calm and unthrilled. "I was busy. Yes, I'm going to be busy this afternoon too. Chickie Belle is coming up to pose. I want to get the picture finished in time for the Junior League Exhibition."

There was another silence. Then Doug—defiantly! "Yes, Chickie was down for the week-end — and so were twenty other people....What of it?"

They were quarrelling. Charity found herself leaning on her elbow, straining so she would not miss a word. Doug said hotly, "Yes, Charity was down. She was very sweet about it. I've told you I'm going to have dinner home tonight with her. She's a good egg—and I'm not going to embarrass her any more than I can help."

Doug was defending her—and quarreling with Yanner about it! It couldn't be possible! She heard Doug say, angrily, "I won't be there!"

Then his receiver clicked viciously. Not wanting Doug to know she had heard, Charity walked back toward her windows swiftly. Then she had a sudden impulse to talk with him. Humming a little tune under her breath, her magazine under her arm, she walked back.

He was sitting by the window gazing out at Central Park. She pretended great surprise when she came abreast of him.

"Greetings!" She found she could smile gaily at him.

"Come into my igloo," he grinned and opened the door. "You've never seen my shack."

Charity was happy that she was in the gold silk sport frock she and Billie had bought at Mme. Bordeaux'. She knew she looked as well as it was possible for her to look. She looked around the handsome bachelor apartment done in black and gold, and down at her frock. "I just match," she said brightly, and Doug grinned again.

"You fit in very nicely. A new dress?"

"Mercy yes." Charity threw herself down in a big chair and made an enticing figure. "We bought out all of Fifth avenue yesterday. My check book is all worn out."

"Great! If all your duds look as well as that yallerbib, you're going to knock 'em green with envy."

She hadn't time to answer before Doug's phone rang. In a panic she started to get up. It was probably Yanner calling back. Doug motioned for her to stay.

"Hello. Yes, Chickie. Oh, that's tough. Well, nothing we can do about it. Okay. Some other time."

He hung up petulantly. Charity was surprised to find herself suddenly seized with an unreasoning fit of jealousy. That woman again! That slant-eyed dancer! But thank goodness, she wasn't coming to pose.

Doug frowned.

"It was Chickie. I wanted to finish the picture this afternoon, and she has a rehearsal. I want to enter it in the Junior League exhibit next week—for the unemployed."

Charity was hit with a bold idea —an idea which almost struck her dumb. She said nervously, "Maybe —I could help you?"

Doug looked puzzled. "Do you know some one who could pose — some one near Chickie's type?"

"She doesn't have red hair—but she's about the same height. And I dare say she's just about as shapely."

"Call her." Doug said eagerly. "I am all through with the head and face. I just wanted to put a few finishing touches to the body."

Charity got up—her knees trembling.

"She—she's here now. I'll have her on the balcony beside the palm in five minutes."

Doug grinned happily. "That's a break! Who is she?"

Charity smiled enigmatically and blew him a little farewell kiss as she walked out. Then she went to her room, to sit on her bed shakily, turning ice cold at her boldness. What had possessed her to do such a thing?

But after all, why not? He was her husband. Women like Chickie Belle were dangerous. Mercenary, heartless—hateful. Douglas Brookhart Temple had given Charity half his fortune just to keep Doug from getting entangled with women of her sort. She could ruin Doug—hopelessly—wreck his life and spoil his happiness.

It would be the most embarrassing moment of her life. But if Doug needed a model, why shouldn't she be the one to pose? Billie had assured her she was as beautiful as any of the girls on the beach for the week-end.

Hastily Charity stepped out of her clothes, and into a brilliant Chinese robe she and Billie had bought. Her breath was coming in gasps when she looked out and saw Doug standing outside her windows in his hands the large fan Chickie Belle had been posing with.

Opening the door and walking out was like a plunge into icy waters. But she forced her shaking limbs to carry her. When Doug saw Charity, the robe wrapped closely around her, and her face pink but determined, his first impulse was to laugh aloud in glee. But he stifled the desire and stood looking down at her, keen amusement in his brown eyes. Charity caught the look and knew he was laughing inside. But she said boldly, "Here's your model."

Doug shook his head wonderingly. "You—dont mean to tell me, Charity Jones, that you're going to stand out here on this balcony with nothing between you and the elements but a feather fan!"

"Give me the fan—and turn your back," Charity said firmly.

Doug handed it to her with a mocking little bow. He was glad for the opportunity to turn his back and grin. The conceit of her—thinking she had the figure of a model! In a few seconds Charity said timidly, "Okay."

He turned —and stood speechless —his eyes widening. Charity wished the penthouse would fall down upon her bold, brazen head. But she controlled the legs that had turned to water under her and stared back at him.

Doug sat down beside his easel, the hands that held his brush trembling. "What have you done—to yourself?" he said, wonderingly. There was no doubting the sincerity of Doug's amazement—the feeling in his voice. Then he said, happily, "Oh, Charity, I really can paint with a model like you. I know I can. You'd be an inspiration to any artist."

"I'm glad," she said simply, tears in her throat.

He began to paint. Then looked up to say eagerly, "I've never done anything that amounted to a row of pins. But—I could —with some one like you to pose for me."

Then he seemed to forget her. It seemed hours and hours that he painted on, his brown eyes serious and eager. Charity watched the fascinating way the wind blew little curls on the top of his head and her heart was full. Such a boy! And —such a bad boy!

But surely there were a great many nice things to be found in a boy who could look like Doug did at the moment. She had a chance to really study him for the first time. The brown face——it was really strong. The firm set of his chin. His full, half smiling lips. Life had been good to him, and he held a great deal of the gayety of it in his face.

"What's happening to me?" Charity asked herself wonderingly when she felt a sudden impulse to go over and run her hands through his brown hair. To hold her face close to his. To let him know she did not hate him.

A long time had passed before Doug stopped to lay his brushes aside and run his hands across his tired eyes. "It's finished." He looked up and smiled. "Would you like to see it?"

He turned while Charity slipped her robe on and walked over to the easel. She gave a little cry of delight when she saw the tall, straight girl against the palms ,the orange fan curling about the lovely body.

"It—it's lovely," she smiled eagerly. "I'm so glad I could help a little."

Doug reached over to lift her chin and look into the gray eyes that fall before his steady, happy gaze. "It would have won a prize if I could have had you for a model from the beginning. As it is it's just —soso. It won't even get honorable mention. But I promised it—and I'll send it in."

Charity stood petrified for fear Doug was going to try to kiss her. But in a moment he dropped his hands to grin self-consciously. "Will you dine out with me, Mrs. Temple —and go to the theatre and show off some of your glad rags?"

"I'd love it." Charity smiled back at him, happier than she had ever been in her life before.

TARZAN AT THE EARTH'S CORE

After voicing that blood-curdling victory cry, Tarzan sheathed his hunting knife and turned toward the man-thing. For a moment the two stood appraising each other. Then the man-thing spoke in a language totally unfamiliar to Tarzan. But he knew it was some sort of human speech and was convinced that though the creature had the tail and thumbs and [illegible] of a monkey, it was, in all other respects, [illegible] evidently a man.

The blood, which was now flowing down Tarzan's side, caught the creature's attention. From the pocket pouch at his side he took a small bag. Approaching Tarzan he indicated by signs that he wished the ape-man to lie down that he might treat the wound. Then he sprinkled the raw flesh with the powder from the little bag. The pain of the wound was as nothing to the torture this remedy inflicted, but the ape-man was accustomed to physical suffering and withstood it stoically.

In a few moments not only had the bleeding stopped but the pain as well. The man-thing's voice was low and pleasant. Tarzan spoke to him in the various tribal dialects of deepest Africa. Then he tried the language of the great apes but it was evident the creature understood none of them. Seeing that they could not make each other understand, the pithecanthropus advanced toward Tarzan and placing his left hand over his own heart laid the palm of his right hand over the heart of the ape-man.

Tarzan understood this action was a form of friendly greeting. So he responded in like fashion which seemed to satisfy and please his new-found acquaintance. Then, tipping back its head, the man-thing sniffed the air. Pointing suddenly to the carcass of Bara, he touched his stomach. Understanding, Tarzan waved his hand in invitation and the man-thing, leaping nimbly as a little monkey to the lower branches of the tree, made his way quickly to the deer's carcass, assisted always by his sinuous tail.

Japanese Interest in Far East Conflicts With U.S., Britain; Serious Crisis Foreseen

People of Japan Over burdened by Taxation Pa ying Cost of Huge Army and Navy—Fear Russia

By Central Press Canadian

The situation in the Far East cannot be studied without bringing in troubled Europe. Neither can Europe's tangled chaos be unravelled without reference to the Far East.

Foreign observers believe that Japan has military ambitions. They pointed to her huge army, navy and air fleet; they argue that Japan was among other things, testing out her strength in her invasion of China, Manchuria and Jehol. They claim she is acting unreasonably in her attitude toward Russia in the dispute over the Chinese Eastern Railway in Manchuria, owned jointly by China, Japan and Russia.

But on the other hand, there arises the question, why does Japan hesitate? If she is desirous of taking a slice of Eastern Siberia, all of Mongolia and part of Northern China, why has she not done so already, rather than wait until these countries have strengthened themselves to a point where they can reasonably be expected to withstand the shock of any onslaught?

Why did Japan wait for Russia to bring about a recognition of the Soviet by the United States thus forming a possible ally in event of war?

Therein does Europe enter into the picture. For Japan, although she officially declares it "nonsense" is perhaps waiting until Europe has aligned itself with the rise of Germany, to form an enemy against Russia from the European side. Russia, attacked at both ends by powerful enemies, would have little chance of survival, despite her tremendous military resources.

Has Quarrel With U. S.

Japan's alleged fortification of the islands mandated to her in the Pacific ocean has incurred the wrath of the United States; the United States establishment of naval and air bases at Manila and the Hawaiian Islands has angered Japan.

Further, the United States has extensive economic interests in China which are being seriously encroached upon by Japan who has also been accused by nearly every nation in the world of dumping her cheaply manufactured products on foreign markets to undersell home produced articles.

Thus the economic interest again enters into a situation involving the likelihood of war.

Japan must move carefully. Perhaps that is why she has hesitated. All very well to fight Russia, but to have the United States and Great Britain down on her neck at the same time is a horse of a different color. Great Britain has, up to the present, always been a staunch ally of Japan. She was careful not to enter officially into any controversy over the Japanese invasions in China and Manchuria.

But Japan can't dump products on British markets and get away with it very long. Already, Britain has clamped down on her.

U. S. Builds Up Armaments

Neither can Japan antagonize the United States without giving the army and navy officials, not to mention the steel magnates, an opportunity to frighten that nation into engaging in its greatest armament building campaign.

Internally, Japan faces another grave problem.

Millions of Japanese people, burdened down with excess taxes to pay for Japan's huge navy and army, are on the verge of starvation. In addition, 50,000,000 more have been aded to the burden in Manchuria and Korea. These people will not always remain down-trodden by the "landed nobility" of Japans fuedal system.

Already the Communists, though under cover, are strong. And there is a new Fascist tendency arising that cannot be overlooked. In addition, there is a faction in Japan that looks upon a foreign war as folly and suicide. A revolutionary feeling exists right in the ranks of the Japanese army. Indeed, Leon Trotsky, who foretold the Russian revolution and the Great War, sees a revolution in Japan at an early date.

Meanwhile, the government is doing everything in its power to work up an intense national feeling, and so far has succeeded. Particularly fortunate, recently, was the birth of a male heir to the royal family, an occasion which called for great joy and celebrations throughout the land.

Japan's Military Resources

In naval and military strength Japan is exceptionally strong. She has one of the finest submarine fleets in the world. Her navy is as great in efficiency, if not in tonnage, as any navy in the world. Her air fleet has been trained by British and American pilots, with British-built aeroplanes, the finest fighting aeroplanes in the world.

She could field an army almost equal to Russia's in number; her equipment is modern, although not up to the standard of the Red army.

In many ways, a state of unofficial war already exists between Russia and Japan. Japanese fishing vessels off the coast of Siberia are fired upon by Soviet troops; Russian aeroplanes, flying over Jehol, are fired upon by Japanese anti-aircraft guns; Russian officials of the Chinese Eastern Railway are arrested and held by the Japs; Japanese-owned property is seized by Russia and re-taken by Japanese troops after sharp battles.

When the match will finally be set to the powder barrel remains to be seen. Certainly, observers and military experts agree that if it does not happen this spring it will certainly happen before the end of 1935. International situations which appear complicated in peace time, usually straighten out with remarkable rapidity after a declaration of war.

ASH COLLECTION 30 P. C. ABOVE A NORMAL YEAR

Collectors Forced to Work Many Hours of Overtime

Ashes . . . ashes . . . ashes . . . more monotonous in repetition than Kipling's marching song of the army, "Boots," the dizzy refrain of ashes sings in the ears of the city's garbage collectors this year, long to be remembered by them not as the year of cold and snow and low temperatures, but ashes. They can't get away from them. By day they collect them in tons. By night their dreams are interrupted by nightmarish visions of long ranks of ash filled garbage cans clanking past in double file.

A fair estimate of the amount of ashes collected throughout the city so far this winter would put the figure from twenty-five to thirty per cent. above that of any normal winter.

During the peak days of leaping stove and furnace fires in city homes a few weeks ago the city collectors were compelled to work overtime in order to keep up with the ash-filled cans neatly or haphazardly deposited outside the family dwellings, as well as the business houses and other places in the city. Only the fact that many householders took the trouble to empty their own valuable piles of ashes in low spots in the backyards or gardens saved the army of weary collectors from being completely buried beneath the gritty and dusty avalanche from thousands of fires.

"It wouldn't be so bad," stated contractor Gene Wheeler today, in charge of collection "If people would out the filled cans out where the collectors could reach them, but when the cans are left in odd places sometimes behind doors in hallways and other places, it slows up the work considerably. Then they sometimes complain about the slow service."

According to city bylaw, it is pointed out, the cans must be placed in the open and in a convenient place and must be of standard size. The collectors are not obliged to dump cans which do not conform to regulations of weight and size.

Losing Money on Job

"We're losing money on the job this year," added Mr. Wheeler. "If we had a normal year, with only the regular garbage collection to make, then we'd be able to manage, but as it is, well, it's tough."

The same ashes that have been giving the tired collectors the jitters, are not so carelessly thrown away by gardeners of the city, it is reported. Alive to the value of the contents of the ash as a fertilizer for their gardens, many a resident has taken the trouble to sift and resift the product of the furnace fire and then place it in little heaps in the yard to be mixed with the soil next spring. Large gardeners have even welcomed the loads from neighbors and others for their land.

Not least of those to whom the unprecedented amount of ashes has meant something are the scavengers who haunt the dumps, and with home made sifters have been extracting the last bit of unused coal which is dumped with the ash. One dump picker has made a regular business of recovering the coal and picks on an average day from ten to twelve bags of good coal from the ash. He retails the bags at from ten to fifteen cents.

NOTED CRICKETER WILL BE WEDDED

London, Feb. 24 (CP Cable)— A noted cricketer and the eldest daughter of Stanley Baldwin, former Prime Minister, will be married shortly when the wedding takes place of George Durant Kemp-Welsh, aged 26, and Mrs. Diana Lucy Munro, aged 38. The latter obtained a divorce last June from her husband, Captain Richard Gordon Munro.

Kemp-Welch achived his double blue, in cricket and football, at Cambridge University and later gained fame with the Warwickshire county eleven.

FRED THROWER WINS SUIT

Man Refuses to Accept Colt And Will Not Deliver Papers

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 24.—(CP)—Shadows of the famous Grattan Bars— world's fastest harness horse —will appear in County Judge A. A. Ingram's County Civil Court next Wednesday when a suit involving it's owner Fred Thrower of Grattandon Farm, Kerwood, will be heard.

Thrower has been awarded judgment by default against R. J. Smith of Guelph for $400, the price of a Grattan Bar's colt and the hearing is to determine what additional damages should be given.

In January 1930, Thrower claims, he met Smith at Mitchell and there agreed to buy the mare, Martha Napoleon, from him, its Canadian registration papers to be delivered and Smith agreeing to purchase for $400 the first colt by Grattan Bars out of the mare, if it were sound at weaning time.

Although the colt was sound, Thrower alleges, Smith refused to accept it, pay the $400 and also failed to deliver Martha Napoleon's papers.

Judge Ingram granted judgment by default against Smith because the defendant failed to file a statement of defence to the action. His Honor set next Wednesday for assessment of additional damages.

FINN FREED OF MURDER

Jury Finds Urho Makinen Not Guilty of Killing Friend

Sudbury, Ont., Feb. 24 (CP) — Urho Makinen, Finnish immigrant, was a free man today after spending months in jail charged with shooting and killing his friend and neighbor, Urho Maki.

Makinen was arrested last November after telling police he had awakened from a drunken stupor in Maki's Crooked Lake cabin in Dill township to find Maki lying dead, killed by a rifle bullet. Last night an Assize Court jury acquitted him after listening to evidence for four days. It considered its verdict only an hour and a half.

The defense contend the evidence against Makinen was circumstantial and moved without success to have the case taken from the jury.

Makinen told the jury he had been drinking with Maki and a third man whom he did not know. They were distilling their own alcohol, he said, and he and Maki became drunk before the stranger.

The stranger, he maintained, was the last person in the cabin to maintain the use of his legs. Next morning, he added, he went to report Maki's death after finding his body.

The stranger whom Makinen described was never located and Gordon N. Shaver, K.C., Crown counsel, suggested he existed only in the "overheated imagination of t man, who perhaps committed t crime."

545 Men and 330 Horses Adrift on Two Ice Floes Plane Speeds to Rescue

SWEPT TO SEA

Food And Medicines Are Carried to Caspian Sea For Parties

Moscow, Feb. 26.—Facing death from drowning or exposure, 545 fishermen and 330 horses were drifting helplessly on two separate ice floes in the Caspian Sea today while an aeroplane from Moscow sped to their assistance.

A sudden rise in temperature yesterday caused the ice to break up, catching 400 men and 190 horses in the vicinity of Dolgy Island and 145 men and 140 horses near Kulali Island on ice packs which rapidly were swept out to the open sea.

Their plight was described as extremely perilous, because of a lack of good supplies and the fact that the ice upon which they were marooned was soft.

An aeroplane which left Moscow with food and medicines yesterday was due today in Astrakhan, a city at the mouth of the Volga River on the Caspian Sea. From that point it was planned to conduct rescue operations.

Meanwhile, a government rescue commission was continuing efforts to find a way of saving 101 persons, including two little children and a number of women, who took refuge on a Bering Straits ice floe after their ship, the Cheliuskin, sank Feb. 13. They were members of the Davidov (Wrangle) Island expedition of Professor Otto Schmidt, They have adequate supplies for the time being.

BANKER DIES IN 57th YEAR

Assistant General Manager of Bank of Commerce Picton Native

Death came suddenly last night to Frederick Merton Gibson, assistant general manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. Mr. Gibson succumbed to a heart attack at his home at 265 Poplar Plains Road, Toronto. He was in his 57th year.

Interment will take place on Tuesday afternoon next at Picton, his birthplace.

Mr. Gibson was the son of James Gibson, county sheriff. He entered the banking business early in life, joining the Standard Bank, with which he served for several years before accepting a position with the Canadian Bank of Commerce. He was manager of branches at Port Francis, Revelstoke, Kingston and Havana, Cuba, before he was transferred to headquarters. He opened the Havana branch for the bank.

At headquarters, Mr. Gibson was appointed assistant general manager in charge of the Maritime district.

He was a member of St. Simon's Anglican Church. He belonged to the Masonic Order.

Surviving him are: his widow, Pauline; three sons, James B. of the Bank of Nova Scotia, Maurice and Eugene; and one daughter, Mary, and his aged mother at Picton.

"He was loyal to Picton and his mother," Mr. E. V. Illsey, manager at Belleville, commented today. "Last summer he visited his old home at Picton almost every other week-end. He will be greatly missed by the Bank of Commerce and we are greatly shocked to hear of his sudden demise at this comparatively early age."

SEEKS T. BUCK AS WITNESS

Smith's Defence Counsel Makes Application at Trial

TORONTO, Feb. 27.—(CP)—Application for the appearance in the court of Tim Buck as a witness on the trial of Rev. A. E. Smith, secretary of the Canadian Labor Defence League, charged with seditious utterance, was made. Smith appeared in Assize Court before Mr. Justice A. T. Kelly today.

The case was adojurned until this afternoon to allow production of material promised by E. J. McMurray of Winnipeg, acting for the Defence League Secretary, bearing on an "investigation" Mr. McMurray said had been demanded of the Federal Government of allegations Buck had been fired on during riots in the penitentiary.

Smith was charged with seditious utterance following the allegation said to have been made by him to to the effect that Prime Minister R. B. Bennett ordered the shooting of Tim Buck, Communist prisoner in Kingston Penitentiary, during the riots there last year.

E. J. McMurray of Winnipeg, appearing for the Defence League Secretary, referred to a clause by which permission is given for appearance as a witness of any man confined to a jail or prison in Canada.

The same strictly-kept order, that prevailed during Smith's preliminary appearance in court marked the hearing today. For more than an hour before his case was scheduled to come before the court, anxious spectators and Labor supporters lined the halls. Nearly a score of uniformed constables kept the crowd back from the courtroom doors, allowing only jurymen and law students to enter.

When the case was called, few of the public were able to find seats behind the rail.

Peter White, K.C., for the Crown, asked that some reason be given for the summoning of Buck from the Penitentiary.

Mr. McMurray said the charge against Smith had to do with Buck's incarceration for belonging to an unlawful organization, and the allegation that he was fired upon during the riots. Application had been made to the Federal Government for an investigation in this connection, he added.

Mr. White objected to this statement, claiming it was made without corroboration by facts. Defence Counsel then offered to produce affidavits to back this contention. Mr. Justice Kelly agreed this material should be fyled.

The material, said Mr. McMurray could be ready by afternoon. The case was adjourned until two o'clock.

CAUSES ANSWERED

Washington, Feb. 26—(AP)—President Roosevelt learned today to his amusement that his newest dog—Winks—is a real go-getter

The setter pup got into the breakfast room of the servant's quarters this morning and cleaned up every plate of food before he was discovered.

Taking it with a laugh, the President remarked, that the only reason the dog didn't drink the coffee was because it hadn't been poured.

Mr. Roosevelt is considering what punishment to mete out.

Two other Roosevelt dogs have been banished from the White House for biting visitors.

Who Owns South Pole Ice, Snow, Notes by Britain and United States

Washington, Feb. 26.—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd and "Little America" may again be the subject of an exchange of notes between Great Britain and the United States.

Great Britain was reported today in unofficial but usually reliable quarters to be thinking of "reminding the United States again that the crown has claimed three large sectors around the South Pole, including the ice and snow of "Little America".

Indications were that Great Britain would assert her claims "by right of discovery" should Byrd "discover" and lay United States claims to any land over which the Union Jack flies.

On November 27, 1928, the British government addressed a note to the United States in which it asserted that in addition to the Ross dependency and the Falkland Island dependencies there were "certain areas in the Antarctic to which a British title already exists".

The areas were listed as: (1) the outlying parts of Coats Land (that portion not within the Falkland Islands detendencies), (2) Enderby Land, (3) Kemp Land, (4) Queen Mary Land, (5) the area which lies on the west of Adelie Land and which on its discovery by the Australian expedition in 1912 was called Wilkes Land, (6) King George V. Land, (7) Oates Land.

BRITISH WOMEN PREPARE FOR EUR OPEAN WAR

The threatening war clouds which have been gathering darkly over Europe already have the various peoples of that troubled continent resigned to the inevitability of a death struggle and a frenzy of preparedness measures is being indulged. Here, for instance, a women's organization in England, with memories of the air raids of the last war, and fear that gases will replace sharpnel in the next, is drilling in the use of the gas mask. The organization, known as the "Women's Reserve," is headed by Commander Mary Allen She played a prominent part in the Women's Auxiliary Corps of the last war, that performed yeoman service in the British Isles and in France for the British cause.

ELGAR BURIAL IS SIMPLICITY

Lack of Mourning and Tiny Bunch of Daffodils Mark Obsequies

Worcester, England, Feb. 26 (CP Cable)—In line with the expressed wishes of the great composer, there was a minimum of ceremony and barely a score of persons were on hand when Sir Edward Elgar, O.M., Master of the King's Musick, was buried today in the little churchyard of St. Wulfstan's by the side of his beloved wife who died in 1924.

The mighty Malvern Hills which Elgar, famed for his "pomp and circumstance" marches and other great works, loved so well and among which he created some of his finest compositions had barley lost their morning mist when the funeral was carried out.

The brief service was conducted by Rev. Father Alston. There were no mourning dresses, and the only flowers were a tiny bunch of daffodils. Even Mrs. Alice Blake, the composer's only child, was attired in a brown hat and fur coat.

The smoke of incense rose clear in the morning air, during the simple service. Holy water was sprinkled on the purple-covered coffin and just as the funeral party left the graveside gentle flakes of snow drifted down from the hills.

Twelve miles away however, a great congregation assembled for a requiem mass at St. George's Catholic Church, where, Elgar, like his father before him, was organist for some years. Later in the week a civic memorial service will be held in Worcester's Anglican Cathedral.

6 LIVES LOST IN APARTMENT

Four Storey Structure Destroyed at Utica, N·Y.

Utica, N.Y., Feb. 26.—Six men and possibly another burned to death today in a fire that destroyed the 26-year-old Marrone Hotel, a four-storey structure described by Fire Chief Joseph N. Sullivan as a "fire trap". Only four of the six bodies taken out of the smouldering ruins were immediately identified.

They were: Salvatore Troja, 40, marble worker; Dominick Bellilacqua a relief worker; Joseph Paladina, salesman; and Peter Gillis.

The flames had gained great headway before they were discovered by C. J. Marrone, who operated the hotel. Marrone's frantic calls brought to his side his wife and five young children, whom he led to safety down a fire escape.

The building burned like excelsior in a store box. The origin of the fire was not determined immediately.

DEPUTY WARDEN, WIFE INJURED BY CAR

George Sullivan is Well Known in This City

KINGSTON, Ont., Feb. 26.—(CP)—Deputy Warden George Sullivan, of the Kingston Penitentiary, was injured about the legs and body, and his wife suffered two fractured ribs, when they were struck by an automobile late last night.

Their injuries are not serious.

Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan were walking down Union Street, beside the wall of the new female prison, when a car came towards them at a high rate of speed. The brakes were applied when the car was about ten feet away and it skidded, knocked over Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan, who had little time to get out of the way.

FIVE MILLION FEET WANTED IN ENGLAND

Poplar Waste Material in Northern Lumber Camps

Toronto, Feb. 26.—(CP)—Representatives of Montreal lumber firms are travelling through Northern Ontario today searching for 5,000,000 board feet of poplar to be used in veneering by an English furniture firm, it was understood here today. The poplar is practically waste material in Northern Ontario from a commercial standpoint and if the supply could be obtained it would be of tremendous benefit to the lumbering industry there. Present plans call for the shipment of the available poplar through Parry Sound Harbor.

CANADA'S CHALLENGE FOR TROPHY CANCELLED

Race Could Not Have Been Held by Labor Day

Windsor, Ont., Feb. 26 (CP) — Canada's challenge for the British International (Harmsworth) trophy for 1934 was formally withdrawn this morning in a letter from Lorne Ardiel of Toronto, international representative of the Canada Power Boat Association, to J. Lee Barrett of the Yachtsmen's Association of America, Detroit.

It is understood the Windsor Syndicate building the Canadian challenger of Gar Wood has not made sufficient progress to make it probable the race could be held by Labor Day.

VOTE ON WATERWAYS

Washington, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Senator Robert M. LaFollette, Wisconsin reported to Pres. Roosevelt today he was ready to fix a time for a vote on the St. Lawrence Waterway Treaty with Canada and was "very hopeful of a favorable outcome".

BETTER GRAIN BETTER BEER

Better Class of Barley Will be Grown as Result of Campaign

Toronto, Feb. 26.—With a view to the manufacturing of better beer in Ontario, large quantities of grade number one seed barley will again be made available to farmers at cost price this year, it was learned here today.

The brewing industry, in conjunction with the provincial and federal departments of agriculture and with the endorsation of the Ontario Liquor Control Board, have carried on an extensive educational program for the purpose of encouraging the Ontario farmer to show a greater acreage and a better class of barley which would be suitable for malting purposes.

A large sum of money was expended for educational literature, awards to county fall fairs, establishment of field crop competitions, as well as for prizes to the six larger winter fairs.

Numerous meetings were held last year and will be continued in 1934, where experts address the farmers on malting barley production and relationship of the barley crop to general farming enterprise.

BROKER SLAIN IN OFFICE

Former U. S. Marshal is Held For Murder at Sequin, Texas

Seguin, Tex., Feb. 26 (AP)—Gerald W. Peck, wealthy Chicago investment broker and President of the Texas Hydro-Electric Company, was shot and fatally wounded here today while sitting in the office of A. J. Wirtz, Attorney for the company and former State Senator.

Tom Hallamon, Sr., 67, prominent Guadalupe County land owner, and a former United States Marshal, was arrested on a charge of murder.

A. C. Linne, County Attorney, said preliminary hearing for Hollamon would be held this afternoon.

Justice Armour's Judgment is Appealed by Owner of Radio Set

Windsor, Ont., Feb. 26—(CP) — Appeal on Mr. Justice Eric Armour's "compromise" judgment will be made by Archie F. Gignac in the now famous radio license case, he declared today.

For more than a year he has been fighting against payment of the $2 license fee for his radio set.

Twice he has been dismissed in county police court on charges of owning and operating a "radio telegraph station" without permit or license In a stated case, an appeal by government, Mr. Justice Armour found Magistrate Smith right in dismissing the operating charge but wrong in dismissing the "establishing" count.

Immediate steps are to be taken to place the case before the appellate division of the Supreme Court of Canada.

AGED COUPLE IN HOSPITAL

Mrs. Gibault's Brother is Accused of Hitting Them With Poker

Hull, Que., Feb. 26 (CP)—A decided improvement was noted in the condition of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Gibault, aged couple of Aylmer, Que., who are in hospital today as the result of severe injuries suffered when David Godefroy, Mrs. Gibault's brother, is alleged to have attacked them with an iron poker. Hospital authorities stated that their chances for recovery were good.

The attack, it was stated, arose from an argument over the placing of wood in the kitchen stove. Godefroy is alleged to have struck Gibault, who is 94 years of age, over the head with the poker, and when Mrs. Gibault, aged 84, came to the aid of her husband, he struck her several times about the head and arms.

Godefroy is held in jail here on a charge of assault causing grievous bodily harm.

ANNE BOLEYN IS REJECTED

London County Council Will Not Name Street For Queen

LONDON, Feb. 26.—(CP Cable)—After some worried pondering the London County Council has rejected suggestions that a new street be named after Anne Boleyn, second wife of Henry VIII and mother of Queen Elizabeth, and left it to the records committee to dig out the name of some personage entirely without blemish.

It has been the council's custom to perpetuate the memory of many historic figures by adopting their names for new streets. When it was proposed to this honor Anne Boleyn however, Dr. Emil Davies quoted a declaration that "she appealed to the less finer part of Henry's nature and her virtue was not of a character to deserve the respect of her own or subsequent ages."

If the name of this queen was to be put on the road of a respectable neighborhood, said Dr. Davies, the young ladies of today would be stimulated to ask who she was—"and who knows what consequences might ensue?"

Sir Paul Latham attempted to come to the rescue of the unhappy Anne and the Laborites then suggested the new street be named after Wat Tyler, who led the men of Kent in the rebellion. In the end the council rejected both.

VETERANS URGE PEACE

"Overwhelming Will For Disarmament" is Object

Toronto, Feb. 26—(CP)—Ontario provincial command of the Canadian Legion will place the matter of education for peace before the Legion's Dominion convention starting in Ottawa March 12, it was announced here today.

The provincial command's sub-executive committee drew up a resolution Saturday setting forth "the time has arrived for ex-service men of Canada to give leadership in the promotion of a united body of public opinion in this country in favor of disarmament, world peace and goodwill, so that the follies of 1914 to 1918 may never again be repeated." The resolution seeks an expression of approval on the part of the legion in favor of the objects and educational programme of the League of Nations Society in Canada, and calls for a plan of action whereby the whole weight of the Legion "shall be brought to bear on the creation, in Canada, of an overwhelming will for peace and disarmament'."

ROYALISTS' MARCH RUMOR GIVEN DENIAL

Sensational Story Tells of Plot to Enthrone Archduke Otto

TROOPS MOVED

Concentration of Armed Men on Border is Denied

(By Wade Werner)

(Copyright 1934, by The Associated Press).

Vienna, Feb. 26—Troops of the Fascist Heimwehr were marching to all sections of Austria today — and the increase of rumors kept pace.

The most sensational of these rumors was that they were preparing to meet Archduke Otto, claimant to the Austrian Throne, at the Swiss border and escort him triumphantly to Vienna.

Another, equally unsubstantiated said 40,000 members of the Heimwehr were concentrating along the Austro-German border.

Both foreign office and Heimwehr headquarters vigorously and indignantly denied these tales. The foreign office stated there was no concentration of armed men on either side of the Austro-German border.

A government spokesmen said all these troop movements of the Heimwehr were really propoganda marches. The Socialists have been crushed, he explained, and now the Heimwehr is following up its victory by parading its force in all provinces. He said it was hoped that this way the Heimwehr may win popular support, especially among elements which previously were sympathetic to the Nazis.

At the same time, from Heimwehr sources, came the private explanation that the Fascist militia were being shifted away from their homes "for psychological reasons."

It was said that troops from other provinces would command more respect than troops in which each member was known to the townspeople by his first name.

LAWYER HELD BACK NO PROTEST FILED

Sought Entry to Canada to Act in Sedition Trial

Ottawa, Feb. 26 (CP)—Leo Gallagher, Los Angeles lawyer, who sought entry to Canada to act as consultant at the sedition trial of A. E. Smith of Toronto, secretary of the Workers' Unity League, has filed no protest with immigration authorities here. Gallagher was denied entrance to the country yesterday under the contract labor provisions of the immigration law.

If Gallagher entered an appeal, it would be filed first with the officer who refused to let him land in Canada and later forwarded to Ottawa for review.

City and District News

WOLVES SCARCE IN NORTH DISTRICT

In spite of the deep snow and the consequent helplessness of the deer, that have been gathering in the swamps to winter, wolves are scarce this year in the back sections of the county, according to statements of residents of the section. It is believed, that the animals are wintering the farther north particularly around the district of Algonquin Park where game of all kinds is reported to be increasing. Few wolves have been seen since the heavy snow falls this winter, and bounty on only one or two pelts have been paid at the local office of the County Treasurer since the beginning of the year, it was reported today.

EXTRA MEN HIRED TO SHOVEL SNOW

Twenty extra men hired by the city works department tackled the job of removing the high billows and banks of snow on the outlying residential streets this morning, caused by the heavy drifting over the week end, while in other sections of the city horse drawn graders and motorized snow plows fought almost a losing battle with the high drifts, that had blocked several of the streets. On several of the walks in the west side of the city the drifted snow had reached a depth of almost five feet. Packed by the strong wind, however, the crust had formed sufficiently thick to allow pedestrians to walk over the surface with little discomfort.

SLEIGHS, CUTTERS IN GREAT DEMAND

Rural residents all through this section and even local blacksmiths in the city reported today that since the heavy snowfalls and miniature blizzards that have struck this city in the past week or so, the demand for sleighs and cutters has far exceeded the supply. Requests for sleighs have come from all sorts of business houses in the city, with dairies and bread companies leading the lists. Their trucks have been crippled by the heavy snow, and the steady old horse and sleigh has been pressed into service. Farmers also are up against it. A resident of Sidney township canvased the city on Saturday in an unsuccessful quest for a cutter, offering any amount within reason for one, that was in fairly good repair.

TWO GAMES PLAYED IN BANTAM SECTION

Two games of hockey were played in the bantam section of the Ki-Y League at the Arena on Saturday afternoon. The Aces bettered their league standing by downing the Canadians 4 to 3. In the play-off game for the league leadership the Maple Leaf bantams played a one-all tie with the Flyers. These two teams will meet later this week in a sudden death game for the bantam championship of the Ki-Y League.

PRESSING NEED FOR WARM CLOTHING

A pressing need for warm clothing of all sorts for men and boys on the relief lists was reported at the office of the Central Relief Bureau today by officials in charge. They pointed to the extra demands made on the bureau since the start of this season't unprecedented cold weather, and also to the fact, that donations of clothing this season have not been as numerous as in past years. Many of them are now attempting to keep warm on the badly worn clothing that had been given them over a year ago. School children particularly, it was reported, show the greatest need for the warm clothing. Donations will be called for on receipt of a phone call at 69W, or donations may be left at the city hall.

OAK LAKE SECTION LIKE LAKE PLACID

Scores of skiers and snowshoers from this city and throughout the district turned the vicinity of Oak Lake into a miniature Lake Placid on Sunday. The high hills of the district glazed with firm snow afforded wonderful recreational facilities for the throngs. Jones' woods section was another favored spot.

MOTOR ACCIDENTS MINUS QUANTITY

While patrolling his beat over the week end Highway Traffic Officer L. Byles lost one of his driving gauntlets. The officer, who stated this morning that there had been no motor accidents in this district over the week end, added that the return to the local Provincial Police office of his gauntlet would be highly appreciated. The glove of black and lined with sheep skin. No motor accidents were reported inside the city limits lately while no arrests were made by the police during the past forty-eight hours. Eleven transients were afforded a warm night's lodging in the police station on Saturday and Sunday nights. Five being taken in on Saturday and six on Sunday.

Magazines Stolen From Enclosed Porch

Sneak thieves of the lowest type visited a Boswell Street residence, yesterday afternoon and stole fifty copies of the publication known as "The Popular Mechanics". The occupants of the burglarised house spent Sunday afternoon visiting relatives in Prince Edward County. Upon their return to the city early last evening, the door leading to the enclosed verandah was found open. The fifty copies had been resting on a shelf in the verandah and were kept for reference purposes as the owner does carpenter work about his own home. The identity of those responsible for the theft is suspected and they would be well advised to return the magazines, thus assuring no further trouble in the matter.

SIDNEY EMPLOYEES BATTLE SNOWDRIFTS

With snow drifts reaching almost to the fence tops, and the Second Concession road in Thurlow Township blocked since last Thursday, a large force of township workers were still battling today to clear the drifts. Snow plows, graders and other equipment were being used About twenty-five men have been working on this section road alone since Friday, it was reported.

3,000 YDS. STONE TO BE CRUSHED

Intimation that some relief work would be provided for the residents of the district of Frankford and the township of Sidney within the next couple of weeks was given today by Mr. Simeon Fox, county road superintendent. Rock crushing operations which will start near Frankford then will require about fifteen men who will be rotated on the work. Approximately 3,000 yards of crushed stone will be crushed for the stock piles in order to have the stone ready for road work in the spring.

FOURTH OF SERIES ON "ACCOUNTING"

The fourth of the series of five business lectures for local residents arranged by the Belleville Chamber of Commerce in collaboration with Queen's University, Kingston, will be delivered at the Y.M.C.A. rooms on Tuesday evening, February 27th. "Accounting Results As An Aid to Management" will be the topic of the address given by Prof. R. G. H. Smails of Queen's. The last lecture, one week from Tuesday evening, will be delivered in the Collegiate auditorium, to which all residents of the city will be invited. The subject will be "The Roosevelt Recovery Program" delivered by Prof. F. A. Knox.

FIRST BREAK IN ZERO WEATHER

The first break in the numbing zero weather since the 22nd of the month, when the lowest temperature for that day was marked at 15 above zero, came today to a shivering city with temperatures slowly ing city with temperatures slowly just one and one half degrees above zero for the lowest point of the day. On Sunday, however, continued cold characterized the week end with a low point of 20 below registered. High for Sunday was 15 above, making it one of the characteristic days of the present abnormal winter. A stiff wind, which blew through the district, accompanied by the low temperatures, only added to the misery felt by residents driven indoors by the cold. Only the hardy skiers and tobogannists braved the outside temperatures over the weekend.

UNABLE TO ATTEND MOTOR MEETING

Confined to his home at Cedar St. through illness, Mr. T. D. Ruston, president of the Belleville branch of the Ontario Motor League, was unable to attend the annual convention of the Ontario Motor League being held in Toronto today. The Hon. Leopold Macaulay, Minister of Public Works and Highways will address the convention and will have the address broadcast from radio station CKCL, between 9.30 and 10.30 p.m. this (Monday) evening.

OBITUARY

Late Mrs. Frank Vanderwater

With many sympathizing friends of the family from throughout the district in attendance, the funeral of the late Mrs. Emma Edna Vanderwater was held Saturday afternoon from her late residence at Moira to the Standard Church of Moira. There at 2 o'clock funeral service was conducted by the Rev. George Kelly of Crookston, assisted by the Rev. L. Slinger of Toronto. At the graveside in the Vantassell cemetery, the Rev. Mr. Kelly officiated at the committal, with the Rev. B. Dorgan as his assistant.

Acting as bearers were Messrs John Morton, Charles Ketcheson, F. Emmerson, W. McInroy, W. Scott and J. Holden.

LATE JOHN W. GAY

Many residents of Prince Edward County attended Sunday afternoon, the funeral of the late John Wesley Gay which was held from his late residence in the vicinity of Mountain View to the Albury United Church. At 2.30 o'clock the funeral service was conducted there by the Rev. Mr. Fletcher of Ameliasburg, who also officiated at the place of interment in the Albury cemetery.

The bearers were Messrs J. E. Robins, F. Cunningham, M. Sills, J. W. Gibson, F. Woods and G. McMurteir.

LATE NELSON STORMS

To tender their last tribute of respect to the memory of a nearly life-long resident of Belleville, many of this community's citizens Sunday afternoon, attended the funeral of the late Nelson Storms, which was held from the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Walter Rose, 180 Station St. Bishop George Marshall, pastor of Emmanuel Church, conducted the service at the home and at the graveside in the Shannonville cemetery.

The bearers were Messrs Austin Plant, Harry Bateman, Frank Gerow, John Sweet, Walter Pallant and William Haslip.

SAMUEL BASSETT

A former resident of Collingwood, Belleville and Toronto, Samuel Bassett, passed away Saturday last at his late residence, 2180 West Thirty-First Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

WILLIAM W. STAFFORD

KINGSTON, Feb. 26.—William W. Stafford, commercial traveller, died suddenly at his home here Saturday last. He had been apparently in good health, and was stricken while standing in the kitchen. Deceased is survived by his wife and two daughters, Mrs. (Dr.) Harold Angrove, Kingston, and Mrs. Stoness of Grand Rapids, Mich.; two brothers, Russell Stafford of Hamilton and Wesley of Seely's Bay, and a sister, Mrs. J. W. Johnston of Lansdowne.

WILLIAM STRATTON

Blenheim, Feb. 26.—Attaining the age of 88, William Stratton, one of Blenheim's oldest and most respected citizens, died at his home on Sheldrick street, Thursday morning. Funeral services were held on Saturday afternoon at two o'clock. The cortege left his residence and proceeded to the Blenheim United Church, of which Mr. Stratton was a member. Rev. Sidney Davison conducted the services. Interment was made in Evergreen Cemetery here. His wife died only a few months ago.

He is survived by a niece, Mrs. (Rev.) A. Jones of Belleville, Ont., and a sister, Mrs. Nichols of Toledo, Ohio, who is now past 90 years of age.

Mr. Stratton was a native of Ireland, coming to this country with his parents 86 years ago. He lived 69 years in Ontario, and occupied his residence on Sheldrick street for the past 34 years. He was a carpenter by trade, but of late had been living retired.

20 SALVATIONISTS ATTEND MEETINGS

Delegates at Kingston for Young People's Council

A party of twenty young people of the local Corps of the Salvation Army, were delegates yesterday to Kingston where a very useful day's series of Young People's Councils were held. The special gatherings were conducted by Col. and Mrs. R. Taylor of Toronto, late of New Zealand and formerly Field Secretaries in Canada.

There were delegates from Trenton, Napanee, Belleville and Kingston present, about 125 in all. Adjutant and Mrs. A. W. Martin accompanied the local delegates.

Reports of the special meetings will be heard in the Citadel this evening where a special Young People's programme, featuring Canada's Garden Province, Prince Edward Island, will be given.

The program will be graced by a Vice-Regal message of greeting from His Honor the Lieut.-Governor, Geo. D. DeBlois, of the Province of Prince Edward Island. The story of Confederation being the important feature. An instructive program is in the offing.

ESKIMO?

ORDAINED 25 YEARS AGO

The Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne, vicar of St. Thomas' Church, yesterday celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of his ordination as a priest in the Church of England. On the second Sunday in Lent in the year 1909, the Rev. Mr. Payne, who had been made a deacon the year before, was ordained priest by the late Bishop Grisdale of Regina. At matins yesterday, the vicar referred to his anniversary and spoke on the sacred ministry of the church. Mr. Payne was born at Cowbridge, Glamorganshire, South Wales, educated at Cowbridge grammar school, Smythe's Naval College, Portsmouth, England, and St. John's College, Winnipeg. He came to Canada in the year 1900 and served for many years in the diocese of Qu'Appelle, before coming to the diocese of Ontario.

Never Dodged a Fight and He Never Won

(By Alan Gould, Associated Press Sports Editor)

Miami, Fla., Feb. 26 (AP) —Old-timers in baseball say of John Joseph McGraw that "he never dodged a fight and never won one."

From the days when he won a name for himself as one of the scrappiest of the famous old Baltimore Orioles—"Muggsy" McGraw—and on through the fiery days of his leadership of New York Giants, he was the stormy petrel of the sport. In later times, especially when ill health first beset him, McGraw's temper changed and softened but he never relaxed his aggressive tactics and he never had any patience with a ball player who would not fight for everything he could get on the field.

McGraw once chased an umpire, Jim Johnstone, right out of the old Polo Grounds as the aftermath of a furious argument but the arbiter got in the last word by forfeiting of the game.

Played to Win

McGraw always played to win, whether it was only a spring exhibition game or a contest which had no bearing on the pennant race. It was big sport news when George Foster, later a star pitcher with the Boston Red Sox, succeeded in beating the Giants one spring down in Texas.

On at least two occasions in his embattled career McGraw was knocked flat without being able to retaliate. Once, during a series with the Phillies, he was "riding" the opposition hard, especially Ad Brennan, a big pitcher. Between innings, Brennan walked over toward the Giants' bench, caught McGraw a terrific blow from the side and cut the Giant leader's face.

Another time, during spring training play at Houston, Texas, McGraw got into a hot argument with a veteran first base man, Pat Newnan. They parted that day without coming to blows but the story goes that Newnan nursed his grudge, waited for McGraw at the entrance to the field the next afternoon and caught the manager a terrific uppercut as he stuck his head through the opening. McGraw took the long count.

Good-Hearted

Characteristic of McGraw's goodheartedness, that his gruff exterior usually concealed, he later heard Newnan was in poor health, as well as financial straits, and sent his old enemy enough money to go to a resort in Arizona. McGrew never forgot a friend, either, and the times when he quietly passed out a $50 bill to some one in distress were numerous.

McGraw's one big financial splurge a venture into real estate at Sarasota, Fla., during the boom years, was a boomerang. From a peak, when it is said his paper profits approached $1,000,000 McGraw was nearly stripped clean by the collapse of the enterprise.

McGraw's top salary with the Giants was about $40,000.

MALE CHORUS HEARD AT BRIDGE ST. CHURCH

A special men's service was held in conjunction with the regular evening service at Bridge Street United Church last evening when the Rev. Dr. Jas. Semple spoke to the large gathering on the subject of "Preaching that Wins Men."

A large augmented men's choir of 50 male voices, under Professor Hunt, was in attendance and sang old time hymns, including one used extensively by Seth Parker, during his Sunday night broadcast. A male quartette also delighted the large congregation.

MINISTER'S DEATH FOUND ACCIDENT

Inquest Into Death of Rev. Dr. J. A. Seymour is Concluded

Toronto, Feb. 26—At the inquest into the death of Rev. J. A. Seymour of Belleville, who was fatally injured by a Toronto street car on Feb. 14, the jury returned the following verdict to Coroner Dr. Philp: "That he came to his death as the result of being struck by a street car on Dundas Street about 150 to 200 feet east of Spadina Avenue, and, we believe that the death resulted from an accident."

The main witness was the motorman of the street car, Norman Wynott. He swore that Mr. Seymour stood on the eastbound rails as the westbound trolley approaching the intersection of Dundas Street and Spadina Avenue. Wynott said he sounded his gong to warn the pedestrian not to proceed any further: that the man glanced up at the car and made an attempt to hurry across the track ahead of it: and that he (witness) threw on the emergency brake as soon as he saw that the man was not going to heed his warning.

All witnesses agreed that the car's headlamp struck Rev. M. Seymour on the head, and that he fell under the vestibule of the car, which came to a quick stop. The unconscious man was found resting on the "cradle" of the fender, which automatically dropped when the victim struck the protruding guard.

Civilian eyewitnesses could not recall having heard the gong, but Conductor Joan Lewis agreed with the motorman that it had been sounded. All agreed that the car was proceeding at a moderate speed. One witness, Joseph Linson, suggested that the street lighting at that spot was inadequate.

Rev. Joseph Wasson of Calvin Presbyterian Church, a friend of deceased, told the court that the victim was "very leisurely in his movements always, and very dignified." Dr. Alex. Rogow of the General Hospital and Pathologist Dr. Erb attributed death to two fractures of the skull, and brain laceration. Rev. Mr. Seymour died several hours after admittance to the hospital.

Coroner Philp, in his address, suggested that it was pertinent to remember in the verdict that the proper place to cross streets was at intersections, and not—as Mr. Seymour attempted to do—about 150 feet from an interrection.

9 STUDENTS DIE IN SLEEP FROM FUMES

Carbon Monoxide Gas Released in Fraternity House

PIPE DISCONNECTED

Unskilled Furnace Tender Blamed For Tragedy at Dartmouth

Hanover, N.H., Feb. 26 (AP)—A furnace tended by an unskilled hand was blamed today for the death of nine students, the worst tragedy in the history of Dartmouth College.

They were killed by carbon monoxide gas as they slept early yesterday at the Theta Chi Fraternity House. An explosion apparently had disconnected a chimney pipe and the deadly fumes crept through the 16-room house.

President Ernest Martin Hopkins asked the grief-stricken undergraduates today to "carry on" their activities in order not to heighten the effect of the accident. He issued a statement, saying: "The whole college sympathises with the parents of those who died."

A statement issued by Dr. R. E. Miller, medical referee, said: "The position of the shaker arm and of the check draught lever indicated that the furnace had been fixed the night before by some one who was not entirely familiar with the furnace."

The dead are:

William S. Fullerton, 20, Cleveland Heights, Ohio.

Edward F. and Alfred H. Moldenke, brothers New York City.

William M. Smith, Jr., 21, Manhasset, N.Y.

Edward M. Wentworth, Jr., 21, Mt. Dora, Fla.

Americo S. De Masi, 21, Little Neck, N.Y.

Harold B. Watson, 21, Wilton, Me.

Wilmot H. Schooley, 21, Iddletown, N.Y.

John J. Griffin, 19, Wallingford, Conn.

Week-end Saves Eight

The fact that it was a week-end probably saved the lives of eight fraternity brothers, who ordinarily occupy the house.

An incompleted investigation indicated that the students died as they slept. All were marked by the pink discoloration characteristic of carbon monoxide poisoning.

The coal gas explosion apparently blew open the furnace doors and disconnected a chimney pipe. Some one heard the rumble, it was believed, and closed the furnace door without noticing the disconnected pipe.

Fraternity brothers, who lived outside the house dropped in Saturday evening for a game of bridge. They played until about midnight, then left for their own quarters. The nine others went to bed.

Sunday morning, Janitor Merton Little fixed the fires. He smelled coal gas and adjusted the disconnected pipe. Then, he went to the rooms of the students and saw them apparently sleeping. They all were dead then, but it was not until Sunday afternoon that the deaths were discovered.

Janitor Little returned to find the youths still "asleep." It was long past lunch time and when he couldn't wake them he called help. Chief of Police Dennis J. Hallisey went to the Fraternity House with Dr. John Boardman. They found the students in bed in various rooms, fully covered and lying as if asleep.

Blood Tests at Hospital Prove It Revitalizes Run-Down People

The records of a scientific test at a leading Canadian hospital reveal a story of vital concern to all run-down, nervous people. For these records prove that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills positively restore energy and vigor by improving the blood stream.

The volunteer patients for this latest test were forty students of both sexes, who were in varying stages of nervous exhaustion induced by long hours of study. Blood tests showed that the students were in need of more haemoglobin—the oxygen-carrying element of the blood. To overcome this run-down condition, the doctor in charge of the test prescribed Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Five weeks later further blood tests showed a very marked improvement in the blood counts—in 95 per cent of the cases the haemoglobin content had been increased to an extent that greatly impressed the medical authorities."

The patients had lost that "always tired feeling" and felt correspondingly vigorous and calm-nerved.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills build strength by actually creating new supplies of rich red blood. Their power to revitalise below-normal blood streams has been proven again and again. If you—or others in your family—are run-down or tired out give this "test proven" preparation a month's trial at home. Get a supply from your Druggist—50 cents a package.

"Individual reports on these 40 patients, certified by the hospital pathologist, are on file.

Work on the magnificent new sports palace at Wembley, England, to be the largest of its kind in the world, has started and here is shown Lord Derby, famous British sporting peer, laying the corner-stone and making an impression in the soft cement of his coat of arms. The new sports palace will be ready for the British Empire games in August, and the Canadian contingent will have the honor of taking part in its first major event.

NICARAGUA IN STATE OF SIEGE

GIVES UP LUXURY FOR SAILOR'S LIFE

FLORENCE LA BAU

She left New York aboard a luxurious ocean liner with trunks full of fine clothes and a first class cabin. She came back as "fourth mate' aboard a freighter loaded with human hair from China, silk from Japan, and two bear cubs from Tibet, which she immediately appropriated. Miss Florence La Bau, university graduate, wealthy and socially prominent in Ridgewood, N.J., couldn't "take" the stiff formality of a cruising liner, left the ship in a Far East port and took passage on the "Wichita" where she picked up plenty about the life of a sailor.

MEN'S CLUB ENJOY BANQUET

Debate on Speed Limit is Feature of Meeting

Marmora, Feb. 26—On Wednesday evening a banquet was held in St. Andrew's Church Hall under the auspices of Mr. W. A. Sanderson's group of St. Andrew's Men's Association. A splendid menu had been prepared, and about 120 thoroughly enjoyed it. The ladies in charge were highly complimented on the meal. A toast to the King was proposed by Hubert Hollingsworth, followed by the National Anthem.

Following the supper a short time was spent in community singing led by Mr. J. P. Baker, who is an expert in that method of entertaining. The quartette composed of Messrs. W. A. Sanderson, W. L. Riggs, Geo. Woodhouse and J. P. Baker gave two selections in their usual pleasing manner and Mr. Baker sang a delightful solo, for the musical part of the program. Miss Flora Sanderson presided at the piano.

Dr. D. L. Curtis gave a very comprehensive review of current events for the past week or so.

Another feature of the program was a debate on the subject "Resolved there should not be any speed limit for automobiles in Ontario." The affirmative was taken by Mr. R. R. Cranston and Mr. H. W. Sabine, and the negative by Mr. F. A. Bapty and Mr. J. Hemphill. Misses E. Scully of the High School staff, Miss Morton, of Deloro Public School staff, and Miss Hudgins of Marmora Public School staff, acted as judges and Mr. D. Marett acted as timekeeper. The decision was awarded to the affirmative by a narrow margin.

Messrs. George and Norman O'Neill put on an Irish skit with many clever jokes which provided a lot of amusement.

Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth presided as chairman and the evening as a whole was a decided success.

Personals

Mrs. Frank Groat and two little daughters, Betty and Lois, left on Thursday for Toronto, where they will spent a few days before proceeding to Sault St. Marie where they will spend a few weeks visiting Mrs. Groat's parents and other relatives.

Mrs. J. T. Honeycutte of Ellensburg, Wash., is visiting her mother, Mrs. Heath, and her sister, Mrs. Thos. E. Laycock.

Miss Norman Osborne is visiting her sister Mrs. N. E. Tice of Belleville.

Mr. E. C. Prentice, Principal of the Public School, entertained the pupils of the fourth classes at his home. About half of them were entertained on Friday the 9th inst. and about 25 last Friday evening. The evening was spent playing games, etc., after which lunch was served which had been provided by the pupils. A very jolly evening was spent on both occasions.

On Friday evening about thirty-five young people from the village, along with a number from surrounding villages, gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Spry, to bid farewell to Miss Iva Phillips who is leaving next week for Nicholl's hospital, Peterboro, as a nurse-in-training.

A most delightful evening was spent in dancing and games. Music was supplied by Messrs. D. McGreggor, D. Jones, H. Heuman, B. Kouri and C. Campion.

A most appropriate address was read by Miss Mabel Blakely and a beautiful gift was presented by Miss Beatrice Lee, after which Iva made a suitable reply.

A choice lunch was served at midnight and a good time was had by all.

SNOW HEAVIEST IN E. ONTARIO

Perth, Frontenac And Peterboro Counties Hard Hit

Toronto, Feb. 26 (CP)—Scores of villages and outpost settlements in rural Ontario were virtually cut off from the outside world by high-banked snowdrifts which blocked country roads today.

Although there were no reports of food shortages or privation blamed on the blocked condition of the roads, a fuel shortage was reported from Jasper, Ont., near Kitchener, where there was a scarcity of dry wood and it was impossible to bring it in in any quantities from outside points. Rural physicians were experiencing difficulties in attending patients in outside centres near Lindsay.

The snow drifts were heaviest in Eastern Ontario in Perth, Frontenac and Peterboro counties, where whirling gales during the week end tossed snow into mountainous banks to wall in country towns and villages.

The Meteorological Service Bureau here promised a respite from recent heavy snowfalls today, affording an opportunity for marooned centres to clear the routes to the trunk roads and their contact with the outside world.

Temperatures took another dip today. While the central section of the province was experiencing near zero weather, White River was dipped in 52 below zero cold wave, Sioux Lookout was having a 36 below snap and the mercury was hovering about the 30 below mark in Port Arthur and Halleybury.

IMPROVEMENT SEEN

London, Ontario, Chamber of Commerce after a survey of the year 1933 is able to point out definite signs of the upward trend of business not only in that city but in the fourteen couties of Southwest Ontario. It is indicated that there may be variations in the upward course owing to factors of which one can have no knowledge in advance. These should not affect the progress which is invariably to be noticed in communities when the proper spirit, correct mental attitude and enlightened aggressiveness are shown by the people. Today there is indication on all sides of a healthy attitude towards trade conditions in general; urban municipalities are quickly responsive to the condition of agriculture for they know that if prices of farm products are advancing, their business may soon be expected to benefit.

In the London area are a number of plants working overtime and work was carried on through the holiday periods, food textiles, leather and allied trades being those to show increases.

These facts are brought out in the C.P.R. "Agricultural and Industrial Progress in Canada."

EARLY TAX PAYMENTS

Advance payment of taxes with discount is one of the opportunities which taxpayers of Belleville have the privilege of enjoying, should they desire to do so.

Last year, though the decision to offer this opportunity of advanced payment was reached rather late by the council no less than forty thousand dollars was paid in advance.

This is a real opportunity. It costs the city nothing as the money would have had to be loaned by a bank and the ratepayer is being allowed discounts so that both corporation and individual ratepayer are benefitted.

It is hoped by the council that the early payments this year may greatly exceed those of last year. Naturally they should because there is a longer time and opportunity for larger discount in the advance payment.

TWO YEAR TERMS

A two-year term for the aldermen of Oshawa, with half of them retiring yearly is a possibility. A bill before the Legislature is under consideration and is likely to be put through giving power to the municipality so to elect their councils. The power will thereby be delegated to the electors of Oshawa to make a trial of the system if they wish.

The Oshawa Times advocates immediate action on the bill when carried in order to have the system put into operation the first of next year. It proposes a vote in the near future instead of waiting for the opinion of the electors at the next elections.

In Belleville it has sometimes been suggested that this method of council election ought to be tried out, but it has been some time since it was discussed. Whether there is any body of thought here in favor of the scheme now is not clear. It is well know that there are some always ready for a change in the method of government but there are others of the electorate on the other side of the question. Belleville has a two year term for school trustees and finds difficulty in filling the two year posts—that is clear, but why it is so, is not so clear. Perhaps the same cause would not operate in the case of the election of council members. Continuity is one of the results believed to result from the two year terms, together with increased efficiency of administration.

Councils, of course, carry on a work in which the public is for some reason more interested than in school matters.

For whatever reason is not clear unless it be that the work the council does is so visible while that done by the board is less easily understood. Council meetings are more frequent and the people can see the results of their actions more clearly than those of a board which is concerned so much with inner matters of administration. Council have always to finance affairs, while boards requisition within bounds.

Events will prove or disprove the success of the plan in Oshawa.

Time will bring to light whatever is hidden; it will conceal and cover up what is now shining with the greatest splendor. —Horace.

The great rule of moral conduct is, next to God, to respect time.—Lavater.

The man who threatens the world is always ridiculous; for the world can easily go on without him, and, in a short time, will cease to miss him.—Johnson.

The true motives of our actions, like the real pipes of an organ, are usually concealed; but the gilded and hollow pretext is pompously placed in the front for show. —Colton.

SIDELIGHTS

TO MY MOTHER

You, who have never faltered,
Once through the changeful years,
You, who have never failed me,
Whether in joys or tears,
You, who have soothed each sorrow
Who have assuaged each ache,
What can my poor toil offer
Fit for your heart to take?

Just as your love is flawless,
Steadfast and not of earth,
It will endow my efforts
Out of its own vast worth;
So I dare bring your daily
Work of my faulty hand,
Certain your love's perfection
Ever will understand!

"THE HOSPITALS OF ONTARIO" is a hospital "Who's Who," a well printed volume just issued by the Ontario Department of Health, under Dr. J. M. Robb, Minister of Health. Photographs of all the hospitals in Ontario are shown in the book, and the names of the staff of each are given together with a brief history of the institution. Hospitals follow closely in the footprints of the pioneers, and now there are two fine hospitals in North Bay, the "Gateway to Silverland," also Sudbury and Chapleau, while in the shining silver valley of Cobalt there is a hospital, and even far to the north where the Grand Trunk Pacific starts for the Rocky Mountains and the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway opens up a steel trail to Moosenee, James Bay and Hudson Bay there is an excellent hospital at Cochrane, showing that in Ontario the art of healing follows close upon settlement, and in those remote places where regular hospitals are impossible small but efficient Red Cross hospitals are found doing a wonderful work for the wives and children of the settlers, trappers and Indians, and also the hardy adventurers, prospectors and others who have the misfortune to be injured far from the beaten paths of civilization, and are in danger of death or permanent disfigurement or maiming unless early and efficient medical treatment is available such as found in those Red Cross hospital outposts where devoted nurses battle with loneliness, ignorance and superstition to win more stars for their crowns. Ontario is well supplied with hospitals, and their standard is high, just another phase of Canadian progress to be proud of, and a book such as this just issued by the Department of Health is well worth while in showing so vividly Ontario's remarkable progress in this direction—the hospitals of Ontario constitute a wealth of assets of the greatest benefit to humanity.

A NEW FEATURE started in this newspaper Friday, to run daily, entitled "Curb the Mounting Death Rate." The first illustration shows the right and wrong way for automobiles to round a curve in the road. Incidentally the reason for the series is explained in the statement that nearly 3,000 Canadians lost their lives in automobile accidents during the past two years. Nearly 100,000 others were injured. Reason enough for a serious study of the causes of auto accidents, such as will be revealed in this series of illustrations showing the right and wrong way to drive automobiles.

Just before the big banquet began a young man with a monocle and a drawl said to another man standing near:

"Beastly nuisance, isn't it? I spoke to that chappy over there—took him for a gentleman, somebody of importance. Then I found that he had a ribbon in his coat. I suppose he's the confounded head-waiter, or something."

"Oh, no!" replied the other. "That is the guest of the evening."

"Really?" drawled the young man, taken aback. "Look here, old chap, would you mind sitting next to me at dinner and telling me who he is?"

"Can't, sir, I'm sorry," he replied. 'You see, I'm the confounded head waiter."

FANCY BEING IGNORANT OF BLOOD FLOW

That Blood Circulates Was Unknown a Few Centuries Ago

It was just about three hundred years ago that William Harvey made known his conclusions with regard to the circulation of the blood. Nowadays it seems strange that such a fact had to be discovered at all. Yet Harvey, even basing his claims upon the observations of others who had preceded him, put forth his theories with much politeness and caution. There were many at that time who, as he himself wrote, "chided and calumniated me and laid it to me as a crime that I had dared to depart from the precepts and opinions of all anatomists."

In 1934 we know a tremendous amount more about the blood. You my reader, probably studied about the blood in grammar school. I wonder how many facts you have remembered?

As the blood, circulates from the heart through the arteries and finally is distributed to all the tissues of the body by means of tiny capillaries, it carries oxygen, as well as other supplies prepared from food by the digestive organs. In other words, it supplies all the organs with nutrition, so vital to their very existence

Then on the return trip to the heart via the veins, the blood carries away various waste products absorbed from the tissues, some of these being carried to the lungs and some to the kidneys so as to be eliminated from the body.

Arterial blood is bright red; when it flows in the veins it is dark red and sometimes purple. The blood weight constitutes about one-thirteenth of the entire body weight. The reaction of the blood is alkaline. Its temperature is approximately 100 degrees Fahrenheit.

Blood is composed of three parts; the plasma and the red and white corpuscles. The plasma is a colorless liquid, in which floats the bodies known as corpuscles and of which there are the two varieties, red and the white.

Red corpuscles are circular discs and they are concave on both sides. They are microscopic, measuring in diameter 1-3500 of an inch. The red color is due to the so-called hemoglobin. Hemoglobin combines chemically with oxygen and this is how the oxygen is carried.

White corpuscles are spheroidal in shape and about 1-2500 of an inch in diameter. They possess a peculiar ability to push out one part, like a foot and so move. In this way they can pass through blood vessel walls.

The white blood corpuscles, also known as leucocytes, play a most important role in the coagulation of blood and in protecting the body from the invasion of bacteria. When such bacteria gain entrance, the leucocytes, which have been called "the policeman of the blood" increase in number and some of them actually eat up the bacteria.

It is well to review our fundamental knowledge now and again, for knowledge really begets power. Have you ever stopped to consider how much you have forgotten of your public school learning? It is interesting to look over modern school books for children. Often facts come back to you with surprising clearness and vividness.

DR. BISCH'S DAILY DIET HINT

Infants who are six months old should have cooked, strained and mashed vegetables daily. One begins by giving one teaspoonful once a day. This amount is gradually increased every other day until by the end of the month the baby is receiving a tablespoonful. During the ensuing months, increases are kept up until three tablespoonfuls are reached by the ninth month. This amount is continued during the first year.

VICTIMS NEVER KNEW WHAT HAPPENED

Giant Airliner Buried Self in the Ground up to Cabin

Salt Lake City, Feb. 26 (AP)—The wrecking of a giant United Airline transport last Friday was so swift and sudden, line officials said today, that the eight persons who died never knew what was happening.

The plane fell vertically, like a great ball of steel, and struck the ground with such force that the engine was imbedded in the ground up to the cabin.

"All the bodies were pushed forward," said Leon Cuddeback, assistant chief pilot of United Air Lines. "The ship did not move after it struck the ground. There was no evidence of fire. Death must have been instantaneous to all."

LOVELY ISLE IN CARRIBEAN

Low Cost of Living And Hospitality Are Attractions

The lovely island of Barbados is becoming more and more popular as a winter resort for those fortunate individuals who spend their winters in a warm climate, states the Canadian National Steamships. Barbados is the most easterly of the West Indian Islands lying in the Caribbean Sea, right in the track of the north-west trade winds. The island has a winter temperature of 70 degrees F. and a climate that is undoubtedly one of the finest on earth.

Barbados is often called "Little Britain" because of its unbroken connection with the British Crown for over 327 years, the English character of the scenery, and inhabitants who are very hospitable and fond of sport of all kinds. A very potent factor in the popularity of this island to the winter resident is the low cost of living and hospitality.

There is a wonderful water supply, electric light and gas, and over 480 miles of excellent motor roads. For invalids or convalescents, no finer spot can be selected. There are excellent schools and doctors, and plenty of sane, healthy, happy social life and amusements.

The island is 2,134 miles from Halifax, N.S. and the Canadian National Steamships "Lady" boats, calling at seven other islands before Barbados, also stopping at Boston en route, make the trip in 12 days.

RETURN OF SKATES WOULD BE APPRECIATED

12 Year Old Boy Spends Last Penny Saved to Buy Them

If you have ever been a 12-year-old boy, watching anxiously and a bit impatiently for the day, when the pennies you had so carefully saved and treasured for the purpose of buying a "regular pair" of hockey skates and boots, and had realized that burning ambition at the tag end of the season—only to lose the boots and skates three days after you had them, then you'll know the feeling of little Freddy Ward, Station Street, this city.

Freddy, after careful saving of nickles and dimes he had gained from odd jobs after school, managed to buy the shining skates and real hockey boots on Friday afternoon. Proudly he exhibited them to his mates on the little cleared space of ice on the Moira River above the upper bridge, where he went immediately after school. On Saturday, nearly all day, he was back again, skating and playing shinny with the gang. Sunday dawned bright and early, and Freddy was again out long before his playmates had been given their breakfast.

But, on Sunday evening there came a gap in Freddy's short life. Tired at last of skating, he removed the skates from his weary feet late in the afternoon and carefully hid them in the snow by the river bank until he was ready to go home. That was the last he saw of them. Even while he played but a few yards away, somebody sneaked up to the hiding place and spirited them away.

It wasn't as if Daddy could help in buying a new pair. So it just means that a little twelve year old boy will have to start all over again—unless the thief relents and returns them.

Great for concealing.. that so-so feeling!

Pete Lepine of Canadiens Puts Team in Third Position Scoring 3 Goals Over Hawks

Leafs Handily Defeat N. Y. Rangers With Goal Splurge

RED WINGS WIN

Out in Front And Likely to Meet Leafs For N.H.L. Title

By A. E. FULFORD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Montreal Canadiens strode ahead of New York Americans into a play-off position today thanking Pete Lepine, their tall centre for a scoring splurge that brought them three goals and an overtime victory over Chicago Black Hawks.

Pete, who was born in St. Anne De Bellevue but moved into Montreal, where hockey opportunities are greater, had scored only five goals in 39 games this season before he stepped out and beat Tommy Gorman's team almost alone Saturday night.

Working on a newly-formed line with Johnny Gagnon and George Mantha, Lepine was clicking perfectly and the whole line outshone the first string of Howie Morenz, Aurel Joliat and Wildor Larochelle.

Coupled with Detroit's 2-1 win over Americans Sunday Canadians 3-2 win from Hawks left them in undisputed possession of third place in the National Hockey League's Canadian division. They have a game in hand over both Montreal Maroons and Amerks and are only three points behind their intra-city rivals.

Red Wings 5 Points Up

Detroit's victory and the fact New York Rangers and Chicago both lost games left the Red Wings with a five-point edge over both their United States division rivals. The New Yorkers dropped a wide-open game at Toronto 8-3 Saturday night while Ottawa Senators were breaking the season's scoring record with a 9-4 win from Boston Bruins at the capital.

Johnny Gottselig's first period goal gave Chicago a good start in the Montreal game and they held it until early in the second period, when Lepine evened things up with his first counter. He gave the Habitants a lead early in the third but Paul Thompson got the goal back again, sending the tilt into overtime.

Little more than two minutes of extra time had been played when Gagnon whirled down the right boards and passed to Pete, who feinted cleverly and then snapped the puck high into the far corner of the net.

Rangers who have been reported as ever-anxious to meet Toronto for the N.H.L. title are probably less so today. The Canadian division leaders were head and shoulders over their rivals Saturday night and missed a dozen real scoring chances apart from the eight goals they got.

Leafs Win Handily

Murray Murdock gave Lester Patrick's team a lead two minutes after the game started but it lasted only a couple of minutes more and thereafter they were never even near. Joe Primeau and Buzz Boll got goals in the first period and the Leafs laid down a barrage, that brought them counters in the second before Earl Seibert scored for the New Yorkers.

Frank Boucher for the third goal for New York in the final session when Leafs picked up another two Boll, Frank Clancy and Harvey Jackson each got two of the Toronto goals and Primeau and Charlie Conacher one.

Boston were another outfit to start out well and finish up on the short end. After Nels Stewart and Marty Barry had given the Bruins a two-goal lead in the first period ended, picked up two in the middle frame and added three in the third session. Barry got another goal in the second period and Alex Smith snared Boston's other marker.

Earl Roche, Jerry Shannon and Nick Wasnie each fattened their averages with two goals and Carl Voss, Frank Finnigan and Syd Howe each had one.

Cooney Weiland, wing centre made the play for both Detroit goals against Americans. Deed Klein netted a pass from Bill Brydge in the second period for the first goal of the game and Sorrell tied it up in the third on Cooney's pass.

Herb Lewis got the winning goal from Weiland's pass in the overtime session after a five-man attack.

THE BIG SEVEN

(By The Canadian Press)

Hockey's scoring splurge over the week end altered the Big Seven with little Aurel Joliat of Canadiens and "Bun" Cook of Rangers knocked out of the select crew as the other leaders added to their totals. Harvey Jackson of Toronto Maple Leafs obtained two goals and an assist when his team walloped Rangers 8-3 and Marty Barry of Boston scored two goals as his team was humbled 9-4 by the lowly Ottawa Senators. Charlie Conacher, Leaf star, returned to the scoring wars to run his total to 45 with a goal and an assist.

Standings:

	G.	A.	P.
C. Conacher, Toronto .	28	17	45
F. Boucher, Rangers .	13	27	40
J. Primeau, Toronto ..	13	26	39

BOXING

To usher in the current boxing season in Belleville a special ten bout all-star boxing card has been arranged by the boxing committee of the South End A. C. and will be presented in the City Hall on Wednesday night of this week.

The feature bout matched by Promoter Joe Semaine is the return match between Gordie Morris, Central Ontario Bantamweight champion and Howard Wheeler the human dynamo from Oshawa. These two boys gave the boxing fans a real treat in a local ring about 10 months ago with Morris taking a hair-split decision that was severely criticised by the backers of Wheeler.

Another feature of the evening will be the return to the amateur ranks of Freddie Parry, local welterweight, who meets Andy Cusack, better known as the Vancouver Kid. Parry will be remembered as a two fisted fighter and a clever boxer, while Cusack's appearance in a local ring always brought satisfaction through his willingness to mix things and give the fans plenty of action. In the lightweight class Art Angell, the local blond mittster, meets Bill Crawford, the pride of the Trenton Airport. Crawford recently took a closely contested decision from Angell at the R.C.A.F. camp and the return match will see plenty of honest-to-goodness fighting from the drop of the hat.

Johnny O'Neil, Belleville veteran boxer, is matched with Len Maracle of Oshawa at 130 pounds, while Fisher of the S.E.A.C. has signed to meet Tommy Smith of Campbellford. Collins vs. McKenna, Knott vs. Childerhose, Storms vs. High and Samaine vs. Joslin are the preliminaries arranged. Every class and weight from 100 to 160 pounds has been included on the card to endeavour giving the fans a varied programme of boxing.

The staging of the bouts in the City Hall assures the fans of adequate and warm quarters in which to witness the bouts. Matchmaker Samaine has procured some of the best boxers in this immediate district for the opening boxing bout of the season to be staged under the colors of the South End A. C. on Wednesday night.

Cooney Weiland, Detroit, made the play for both Wing goals against Americans.

FIRST GAME ENDS IN TIE

Frankford And Stirling School Teams Battle in Playoffs

Frankford, Feb. 26—(Special) — The first play-off game between the Frankford and Stirling teams of the South Hastings school league was a tie 3-3 and gives neither team any lead for the championship of 1934. In a fast game at Frankford Friday night the Frankford fans were treated to a fine exhibition between youthful players.

The game opened at a burning pace, which was sustained throughout the first period. During the first five minutes of play Frankford had the edge, which culminated in McGillivray's goal, as a result of brilliant work at close range. This seemed to spur Stirling on for a few minutes later Robinson in a hard shot from the blue line beat Frankford's defence to tie the score. The rest of the period was, all Frankford's with repeated rushes and effective checking. Several times the forward combination closed on the Stirling goal and with a few minutes to play P. Loney passed to Bonisteel for the neatest goal of the game. Speed, brilliant stick handling and a cool head brought Dafoe past Stirling's last man in a dazzling solo effort which lacked the scoring punch.

Munro's penalty in the first period seemed to start a long series of penalties in the second frame which somewhat spoiled the game for both sides. O'Malley chased 7 players in quick succession. In a scramble after ten minutes of play, Joblin netted one off Munro to again tie the score. To put Frankford in the lead again Stirling carelessly left the puck a few inches from their goal-line which Dafoe said he just couldn't leave there and pushed it across to end the period 3-2 for Frankford.

Play ranged from end to end in the third, when both teams settled again to win the game. With a close knit defence all onslaughts were turned aside until opportunity came Stirling's way and Brookes again tied the score. Everything they had wasn't enough to put Frankford ahead again and both teams will enter the tilt at Stirling next Wednesday for the final game with no lead. Conley Ackers seemed satisfied, but——. Didn't Campbellford lose on their own ice after a 3-3 tie with Queen's and where do most of the Campbellford players hail from?

O'Malley as referee kept the game well in hand and his bell rang many times to stop rushes at the blue-line for over anxious players.

The line-ups:

Frankford — Goal Lawrence, defence V. Loney and Bonisteel, forwards, McGillivray, Dafoe and Lockwood. subs. P. Loney, Conley, Corrigan, Foster, E. Dafoe and E. Finnigan.

Stirling — Goal Sprentall, defence Joblin and Jones, forwards Brookes, Robinson and Munro, subs A. Rogers, D. Rogers, Sutherland and Morton.

UNDEFEATED RECORD IN TEN GAMES IS BROKEN

London Tecs Earn Draw and Defeat Over Week End

(By The Canadian Press)

The International Hockey League race developed into a close battle today with Detroit Olympics only one point ahead of the two second-place teams, Buffalo Bisons and Syracuse Stars. A week end of fast and hard hockey left Bisons and Syracuse with 39 points each and London Tecumsehs in third place with 37.

London went through two hectic tussles during the week end, Saturday night at Port Erie. Tecs fought to a scoreless draw with Bisons and on Sunday night their undefeated record of 10 games was broken when they journeyed to Syracuse to take a 1-0 beating from the Stars. In the other week-end game, Windsor Bulldogs defeated Cleveland Indians, cellar occupants 3-1.

JOHN McGRAW FORMER GIANT LEADER, DIES

Greatest Baseball Manager in History of Game Suffers Relapse

IN 61ST YEAR

Began Career in Home Town at Age of 17

By JACK CUDDY

New York, Feb. 26,—(UP)— John J. McGraw, greatest and most colorful of all baseball managers, died Sunday at New Rochelle Hospital after several weeks' illness.

The peppery little vice-president of the New York Giants, whose dynamic personality, astute field generalship, turbulent temperament and sweeping conquests during nearly 30 years as manager of the Giants, won him the sobriquet "Little Napoleon," died at 11.50 a. m. He was almost 61 years old.

Intestinal hemorrhage was the immediate cause of death. This resulted from uremia, carcinoma of the prostate and metastasis, from which he had been suffering several weeks.

Although the man who directed the Giants to 10 National League pennants and three world championships, an all-time record, retired as manager on June 3, 1932, because of poor health, his affliction then was not one of the causes of his death He was bothered in 1932 by a troublesome sinus condition. He gave up the managership to Bill Terry but continued as vice-president and adviser of the club.

Wife at Bedside

Mrs. McGraw, a quiet, reticent woman during the headline career of her famous husband, was at the bedside holding her husband's hand when death came

Also in the large, comfortable hospital room were a group of intimate friends, two priests and three physicians. Friends present were Charles A. Stoneham; Mrs. Stephen Van Lill of Baltimore, McGraw's sister; Frank Belcher, actor and life-long friend and Mrs. Belcher; Mrs. Peter Kreiger sister of the late Christy Mathewson, and Mrs. John O'Brien. The physicians were Dr. Louis B. Chapman, family physician, and two New York specialists, Dr. E. L. Keyes and Dr. E. L. Kellogg.

The Rev. Vincent de Paul Mulry, pastor of St Catherine's Roman Catholic Church at Pelham Manor, who administered last rites a few days ago, led the group in prayer in the hospital corridor just before McGraw died.

Outside the window of the man who usually spent his Winters in sunny Havana, snow flakes were drifting down.

George T. David, a New Rochelle undertaker, was directed to take charge of the funeral arrangements which have not been completed yet.

Death Unexpected

McGraw's relapse and death was unexpected. Until late yesterday he was believed definitely on the way to recovery, having fought a game battle against the toxic poisoning which spread through his system.

Soon after 8 p. m. Saturday he suffered the relapse and drifted into a coma from which he never revived. This followed a severe intestinal hemorrhage.

Several weeks ago, indications of uremia first appeared, but McGraw characteristically ignored them. He was more concerned with a throat complication which developed on February 2. His last public appearance was on February 6 when he attended a dinner given by Stoneham to the National League club owners. He was ill and remained only an hour.

Mrs. McGraw became worried over his condition and called in Dr. Chapman, who directed McGraw's removal to the New Rochelle Hospital a week ago Friday. It was not until a week ago today that his grave condition was made public. Always the fighter, McGraw rallied at first and by Friday he was so improved that he was transferred to another room. He sat up in bed and talked with his wife and friends

Oxygen Administered

After the hemorrhage, the physicians considered a blood transfusion, but they feared that the shock of such an operation might cause death. Instead, administration of oxygen was decided upon to prolong his life.

At 10.30 a. m. to-day, the physicians announced that their patient was sinking. Oxygen was still being administered.

As soon as news of McGraw's death spread throughout the world, messages and cablegrams of condolence began to pour into the 16-room home in Pelham Manor.

John Joseph McGraw, the "little Napoleon" of baseball, left behind a record of unprecedented and dynamic leadership when he retired from an active role in June, 1932, after 30 years as manager of New York Giants.

It was an ironic touch that McGraw left the Giants just where he had taken hold of them, as a disorganized band in July 1902—in last place, the story of the rise and fall of this remarkable sports chieftain of the old school, however, shows that he developed 10 national pennant winners from 1904 to 1924, inclusive, that rarely was his club out of a contending position and that his blunt methods helped revolutionise the showmanship of the United States national game.

McGraw was a brilliant third baseman, hard hitter and clever base-runner in his playing days. He was a major leaguer at the age of 18. He starred with a galaxy of famous old heroes, among them Hughey Jennings, Willie Keeler and Wilbert Robinson, on the Baltimore Oriole club that won National League pennants in 1894, 1895 and 1896.

Manager at 29

At the age of only 29 he quit the playing end of the sport to accept a mid-season offer to manage the Giants in 1902 and thereafter devoted his entire time to the construction of pennant-fighting outfits.

Although his championship Giant clubs won only three world series in 1905 against the Athletics and in 1921-22 against the Yankees, they were always conspicuous for their aggressiveness. McGraw felt keenest the fact that his team, with the great Christy Mathewson nearing the end of his career, was beaten by the Red Sox in a torrid series in 1912. The defeat of his last pennant-winner by Washington Senators and Walter Johnson in the dramatic 1924 series also was a bitter blow to McGraw, who waged one of his last verbal battles with Ban Johnson, then President of the American League, over the Dolan-O'Connell scandal that preceded that series. Only Connie Mack the life-time pilot of the Athletics, exceeded McGraw in length of managerial service. When he retired, the Giants' leader still held the edge over Mack in pennant wons, 10 to nine.

Ill health played a major part in McGraw's decision to turn the management of the Giants over to Bill Terry soon after the 1932 season was under way but his disappointment over failure to put together another winning combination also influenced his retirement. When he stepped out, McGraw tore up a contract which had 3 1-2 years to go at a reported salary of $40,000 but kept his job as vice-president of the Giants.

CURRENT SPORT

(Day By Day)

If Eddie Thomas' charges can come down in front of Wally Elmer's kids tonight and win the round they will be drawn against the fast skating Peterboro juniors, and, dear reader, the winner of this group should be about ready for the semi-finals in Group "B" of Junior O.H.A. hockey. At that there are not so many Class "B" clubs left in the running; they are Kingston, Belleville, Peterboro, St. Mikes' Preps., Barrie, Owen Sound, Preston, Niagara Falls, Hamilton and Windsor. The five supposed strongest teams in the junior ranks have been grouped in "A" category. There is a movement on foot at present to allow the two sectional winners to meet in a grand final series for the junior championship of the province, —that is if the winners of section "B" so desires.

o—o—o—o—o—o

It may be news to some, but at any rate here goes. Did you know that the 5 to 0 reverse suffered by the local juniors in Kingston last week was their first defeat of the season? When a club has not tasted defeat they naturally abhor the thoughts of it. Now, that they know they have to give their all tonight it is hoped they will realise their shortcomings and get into the thick of the fray at Kingston. Providing the Cubs cover their man in front of the net, check back as they have been doing, they stand better than an even chance to come down in front of the sturdy Queen's outfit. Wally Elmer's charges are no pushovers and need 60 minutes of watching.

o—o—o—o—o—o

Each year as the hockey season is practically at an end the Interscholastic teams throughout the province swing into action. For example the Belleville Collegiate squad, winners of the Bay of Quinte Senior C.O.S.S.A. group, now meet Marmora H.S., winners of the Trenton Valley section, with the ultimate winner clashing with the Lake Shore champions and that victorious club continuing in quest of the Provincial Interscholastic honors. Wouldn't the sponsors of interscholastic hockey find it more profitable to start their respective groups, say along in December with the final series being played during the Christmas holidays. They would get in ahead of the O.H.A. and enjoy a far better following throughout the entire province by adopting pre-season schedules. The majority of the games would be played after the Christmas examinations were completed and naturally would not interfere to any marked degree with the pupils' studies. Just when the present play-downs are in progress is the time when school work and studies are at their highest. A change from post-season hockey to pre-season hockey would undoubtedly elevate the standard of interscholastic hockey as well.

o—o—o—o—o—o

If by any chance the juniors are eliminated within the next two weeks, and we sincerely hope they're not, would it not be a most profitable procedure to form a local city or industrial hockey league, with two sections, senior and junior? By so doing the mentors of hockey would be able to have an opportunity to look over their prospective material for next season. About four senior and four junior clubs would make two nice sections and we understand that two excellent trophies are available for competition. By keeping the age limit of the junior series at 18, or under, there would be no less than 40 youngsters out there battling for positions on next year's junior team, while in the senior series next season's intermediate team could benefit to the extent that perhaps new faces and material would be unearthed and could be counted on for 1935. Now is the time to build for the future, not a few days before the season opens. The idea was passed along to us and surely has its merits. In years past Belleville has sponsored some real high class city leagues and providing the teams are evenly balanced the fans will flock to see them in action as city league games always interest the patrons.

o—o—o—o—o—o

While Primo Carnera is defending his world's heavyweight title against Tommy Loughran at Miami, on Wednesday night down where there is no snow and the sun shines brightly all the live-long day, the South End A.C. will assume the spotlight in Belleville when they present their first boxing card of the season. Matchmaker Joe Semaine has not only burned the midnight oil but secured the immediate territory to provide the best possible card available for the opening boxing show of the season. Many well known faces will be seen in action including a well-matched bout between Art Angell and Bill Crawford. This bout is causing no end of interest as both boys have gained a previous decision over the other. The main bout and the semi-windup are naturals while the other seven should be action personified throughout.

George Faulkner, son of Dr. J. A. Faulkner of this city, starred for the McGill senior intercollegiate basketball team when they downed Toronto Varsity in the Queen City on Friday night to clinch the intercollegiate championship. George has been one of the most consistent cagers for the Redmen's cause for the past four years and is considered one of the best baseball players in intercollegiate circles.

John J. McGraw is dead. The "Little Napoleon of Baseball" "struck out" on Sunday after a lengthy illness. There was only one John McGraw—a player, a manager, and last of all a fighter to the finish. Much of McGraw's diamond success can be attributed to his aggressiveness; he never accepted defeat, always driving his players and encouraging them. A great ballster himself McGraw in turn produced other illustrious baseball stars, who are today grieving the loss of a friend and a gentleman.

Germany plans to build the finest Olympic stadium in the world with a capacity of 100,000 spectators for the international games of 1936. The main stadium will be in the centre, providing for 65,000 seats and standing room for 5,000 more.

Hamilton's Tigers of hockey fame can take their place as one of the greatest senior amateur teams in Ontario, at least, in recent years. This, whether or not they succeed in winning the play-off for the senior O.H.A. And the main reason for their success is due to the effective forward line developed by Coach George Redding. In Toe Blake (LEFT), Steve Connick (CENTRE), and Marie Bennett (RIGHT), they have a forward line that swept all before it in Tigers' sensational winning streak in which they lost only three games in 22 played. This trio also led the league in goals, assists, points and every other department of the statistics, except, of course, penalties. With such a line, Hamilton are favored to win the O.H.A. and proceed far into Allan Cup play-offs.

SURPRISE PARTY MARKS BIRTHDAY

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Grills, Donald Street, last Thursday evening, was the scene of a pleasing event, being a surprise party to commemorate Mr. Grills' 72nd. birthday.

Sons, daughters and families composed the guests who were cordially welcomed by their father.

In the early part of the evening cards and games were indulged in after which a delicious lunch was partaken of.

In the centre of the table was displayed a flower along which sat two beautiful birthday cakes adorned with candles, one for each birth anniversary.

As the room was darkened for a few moments, the candles were lighted and Mrs. H. Townsend presented him with a gift in honor of all present.

Mr. Grills was then called upon for a speech. A little confused he thanked them all and blew out the candles with excellent skill.

It is needless to say the good things provided were much enjoyed It proved to be an evening of fellowship and merriment with all wishing Dad every happiness and many such anniversaries.

The friends and relatives of Mrs. Harry Grills will be glad to know she was able to return to her home on Sunday, February 25.

LESSON SEVEN

EGGS AND CHEESE

In this lesson we are going to make a study of both eggs and cheese, because these two very excellent foods have a great deal in common.

They are both very nutritious—they help to build up our bodies when we are young and they replace worn-out tissues at all times. They do the same work for us that milk, meat, fowl, fish, nutmeats, beans and peas do.

Another thing eggs and cheese have in common is that they both need to be cooked at low temperatures.

EGGS

Eggs are a very valuable food—they are second only to milk, and so are very important. When an egg goes into a mixture, we should not look only at the cost of it, but the actual good food it contributes. And another good point—eggs are easily digested.

We have a great many ways of cooking eggs, for serving them at every kind of meal. Then, besides real egg dishes, eggs are useful to use in these ways: for

1. Thickening sauces, custards, fillings for cakes and pies, salad dressings.
2. Leavening flour mixtures—that is, making them light (alone or along with baking powder, etc.)
3. Making other mixtures, such as omelettes, whips, souffles.
4. Making a coating, along with fine sifted crumbs, for the outside of croquettes, fish, etc., so that when we fry them in hot fat, a crisp covering is quickly formed and the fat cannot get inside to the mixture; or sometimes just for the crispness of the outer coating that is wanted—as in a breaded cutlet.
5. Binding mixtures together—such as batters and doughs; or potato cakes, meat or fish loaves, croquettes, etc.
6. Giving smoothness to frozen desserts.
7. Giving body to mayonnaise dressing, Hollandaise sauce, etc.
8. Improving the texture of batters and other mixtures, and giving them richness and flavor, too.
9. Beaten whites added to gelatine mixtures, turn them into gelatine sponges.

In short, we could never hope to do fine cooking without the help of eggs.

Standard Egg Cookery

Eggs should never be boiled—when cooked in water, they should be kept below boiling point.

SOFT COOKED EGGS—Bring water—2 cup water for first two eggs, then ½ cup for each extra egg—to boiling point—withdraw from heat, put in eggs, cover, and let stand 7 minutes in an ordinary saucepan, 5 minutes in a heavy metal pan that holds the heat.

HARD COOKED EGGS—Follow same method extending time to 25 minutes with slight heat unless pan is very close and heavy.

POACHED EGGS—Unless you have a real egg-poacher, use a shallow pan. Put in boiling water deep enough to cover egg. If several eggs are being done, greased rings or gem jar tops will help keep them in shape. Add salt—½ teaspoon to each pint of water. Break eggs in a saucer, slipping each one into a ring or into the water. Cover and cook over low heat, keeping water below boiling point. Lift out carefully with skimmer, drain and serve on hot buttered toast or on mounds of green vegetables such as spinach, or surrounded by thick tomato or other sauce.

SCRAMBLED EGGS—There are two types of scrambled eggs—one that shows a mixture of yellow and white curd, the other a soft and creamy mass, custard-like.

For the first kind beat egg only slightly with a fork, to mix yellow and white. Season with salt and pepper and add no milk or only 1 teaspoonful for each egg. Or increase the milk for a softer mixture. Melt a little butter or bacon dripping in frying pan, pour in the egg, or better, cook in double boiler (where it won't scorch); and as it thickens on bottom of pan, stir and scrape it off.

For the creamy scramble, beat eggs well and add 2 tablespoons milk for each egg. Season with pepper and salt or onion salt. Melt fat in pan, pour in mixture and stir until it is thickened but still soft and creamy. Serve at once on buttered toast.

SAVORY SCRAMBLE—Fry a little chopped bacon and onion together in frying pan, some chopped green pepper too, when available, or sliced mushrooms. When cooked, pour in either type of egg mixture and scramble as usual. Serve on buttered toast, or in split and buttered hot tea biscuits. (See Lesson 3.)

BAKED EGGS—Break eggs into individual buttered dishes or moulds, season, put a small piece of butter on each egg, set dishes in pan of hot water and cook either in the oven (at slow heat, 325° F.) or on top of the stove. When firm, slip each egg out on buttered toast.

Or fill dish to half depth with well thickened and seasoned tomato pulp or thick tomato sauce or canned tomato soup, unthinned. Drop in the eggs and bake in a slow oven.

BAKED EGGS IN SAUSAGE CASES—Line muffin pans with a thin layer of sausage meat. Cook in a hot oven. Take out, break an egg into each sausage cup, add seasoning and a dot of butter to each, and return to oven, with heat reduced to low, 300° F. Bake until eggs are set.

FLUFFY OMELETTE—Separate yolks and whites of eggs. Beat yolks very light and add 1 tablespoon milk for each egg; season with salt and pepper. Beat whites until stiff, but not dry, and fold into yolks. Melt a little butter in your frying pan or omelette pan, to grease all over. When hot, pour in the mixture, spreading evenly. Lower heat and cook over low heat until set. Fold and serve.

Before folding, an omelette may be "packed"; that is, some flavorful hot addition may be spread over half of it before the other half is folded over. For this purpose, we like chopped ham or bacon, chopped bacon and corn that have been cooked together in the frying pan, creamed chicken or ham, diced veal in tomato sauce, and so forth. Sauce may be poured around the omelette, as well.

FRENCH OMELETTE—Beat eggs slightly, without separating the yolks and whites. When yolk and white are well blended, add 1 tablespoon milk or water for each egg. Season, melt butter or bacon dripping in hot frying pan, turn in mixture and cook over low heat, carefully drawing mixture completely from bottom of pan, and folding it towards the centre as it thickens. When all is firm, raise heat to brown quickly on the bottom. Fold (packing if desired, as just described for fluffy omelette) and serve on heated platter, with or without a savory sauce.

EGGS A LA KING—Make an a la king sauce—for 6 hard-cooked eggs, melt 4 tablespoons butter in frying pan and cook in it 3 tablespoons each chopped green pepper and pimento—a little onion (about a teaspoon) if desired. Mushrooms (fresh ones, sliced and fried, or drained canned mushrooms) may also be used. When any of these have been fried till tender, drain them out of the fat and measure fat; add more butter to make 5 tablespoonfuls of fat. When melted, draw from heat, blend in 5 tablespoons flour and season with 1-2 teaspoon salt and 1-8 teaspoon paprika or pepper; slowly stir in 2 1-2 cups cream or milk and cook, stirring constantly, until sauce is smooth and thick. Into this, slice the hard-cooked eggs and add the mushrooms, green pepper, etc., and when thoroughly heated, serve on buttered toast, on toasted crackers or between and over split and buttered hot tea biscuits.

Sweet Custards

CUSTARD SAUCE—This is one of our most important sauces for serving with desserts, and we put it here because it is a good illustration of another kind of egg cookery. It may be made with either whole eggs or yolks, and may be rather thin or thicker and richer, according to how much egg yolk you put in.

Miss Ruby Nicholl Elected President of Y. P. Auxiliary

Madoc—On Thursday evening the young ladies of St. Peter's Presbyterian Church met in the basement of the church for the purpose of forming a Young People's Auxiliary of the Women's Missionary Society. It is the intention of this society to meet once a month on the first Monday in the month. The following officers were elected:

President— Ruby Nichol; Vice-President, Lamoine West; Secretary, Vera McGhee; Treasurer, Ivah Spencer.

The above executive met on Wednesday evening for the purpose of arranging a program for the March meeting.

Mr. Walter Whytock attended the Good Roads Convention in Toronto this week.

A very large number of followers of Tweed Juniors attended the Madoc-Tweed game on Wednesday evening.

The many friends of Mrs. Archie Kincaid will be very glad to learn of her return home from the Belleville General Hospital. Mrs. Kincaid underwent a very serious operation, having been confined to the hospital for nearly a month. She is resting quite comfortably at present.

SMALL VOTE EXPECTED

Brockville, Ont., Feb. 26.— (CP) —Ratepayers of the Township of Front of Leeds and Lansdowne are going to the polls today, where the State of the roads will permit, to choose a deputy reeve in succession to the late Firman Cross. The rival candidates are Thomas J. Webster and George F. Johnston, both of whom are former members of the County Council. Owing to the heavy roads, a small vote is expected.

AT THE BELLE

"ORIENT EXPRESS" AND "DAY OF RECKONING"

"Orient Express", with a cast that features seven stars, will make its appearance at the Belle tomorrow (Tuesday), to remain for an engagement of two days.

Based upon Graham Greene's best selling novel, the film is reported as being a tense, dramatic characterization of seven people who are swept together from the far corners of the earth to find the course of their lives changed through their journey aboard the Orient Express as it speeds from Ostend to Constantinople.

The story concerns itself with a dancer, hungry and looking for work; a wealthy young merchant, who falls in love with the dancer; a cockney Englishman, under the thumb of his domineering wife; a thief fleeing from justice; a beautiful girl thirsting for love; and a woman reporter, seeking to uncover the plans of a powerful communist leader. All are aboard the Orient Express, each heading for his own particular destination. As the train reaches the Jugo-Slavian border, and the communist leader is about to be arrested, he gives an incriminating letter to the dancer. This leads to her arrest. The thief, the communist leader and the dancer are removed from the train and are held as prisoners. While in prison, the thief plans an escape, sends the other two out into the night, and remains behind with the hope of securing a pardon. The film is said to end in a climax of whirlwind action and tender romance.

Heather Angel and Norman Foster play the romantic leads. The other members of the cast are Ralph Morgan, Herbert Mundin, Una O'Connor, Irene Ware, Dorothy Burgess and Roy D'Arcy.

"Day of Reckoning"

"Day of Reckoning" based on a startling story of modern prisons written by Morris Lavine, former metropolitan newspaper man, is the second feature offering on the same program, with Richard Dix and Madge Evans, starred.

The new Metro Goldwyn Mayer picture is reported to be a dramatic record of what occurs "behind [illegible] doors" of a man's home after he is sent to prison.

With Dix and Madge Evans a notable cast which includes Conway Tearle, stage and screen star, Una Merkel, last seen in "Bombshell", Stuart Erwin, 'Spanky McFarland, clever child star of Hal Roach comedies, Isobel Jewell, Raymond Hatton, Paul Hurst and Wilfred Lucas. The action of the players is blended into a dramatic structure that "builds" to breathless heights, by the masterful direction of Charles Brabin, who scored recently with "Stage Mother". The popular Belle Current News, and a clever film "Autograph Hunter" will be exhibited on the same program. The last complete show will commence nightly at 8,30 p.m.

Two Features Tonight

"My Lips Betray", featuring dainty Lilian Harvey, John Boles and El Brendel is indeed charming and a highly amusing picture. It will be presented at the Belle tonight for the last time with George O'Brien and Irene Bentley in a tense romantic western story, "Frontier Marshal".

MANAGERS AND KIRK SESSION WILL MEET

The pulpit of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, which was filled on Sunday by the Rev. W. Harold Reid who is in charge of the congregation's pastoral work for the time being was on Sunday morning formally declared vacant at the Sunday morning service, by Rev. Mr. Reid who read the statement of the Presbytery. Rev. S. M. Scott of Picton, who is moderator of the Presbytery of Kingston, has been appointed by the Presbytery as interim moderator.

On Tuesday afternoon the interim moderator will meet the managers and kirk session and decide what steps to take towards the filling of the vacancy and the choice of a new minister to succeed the late Dr. Seymour. In many cases congregations hear a number of ministers preach and then vote for their choice. This procedure of hearing a preacher is, however, not always followed, but with the congregation rests finally the choice of the new pastor.

AT THE CAPITOL

"THE HOUSE ON 56TH STREET"

Kay Francis comes to the screen of the Capitol Theatre today in her latest starring picture for Warner Bros., "The House on 56th Street," a colorful drama based on the novel by Joseph Santley.

Miss Francis plays the part of one of the most beautiful and most popular of Broadway butterfly chorus girls whose beauty and charm get her into trouble. The characterization is said to be the most dramatic role of her career, the romances and the tragedies in the life of this show girl giving Miss Francis the opportunity to run the gamut in emotional expression.

The story centres about the unusual incidents in a mansion on 56th Street, built by a millionaire New York clubman for his chorus girl bride. At the height of her happiness, the young wife is torn from husband and home and sent to prison on a charge of murdering a former lover though innocent. Later she returns to the same house now a fashionable gambling house, as mistress of a Blackjack game.

Colorful scenes take place in the famous old Casino Theatre, now only a memory, at the time when Floradora was the most popular musical show of the day; at Sherry's and Delmonico's and other rendezvous of the Broadway play boys of the early part of the century. The story then leaps across the years covered by the World War and comes down to modern times, winding up with a spectacular denouement in the 56th Street house.

Added film subjects include a comedy, a merry melodie camera adventure and a subject in miniature. Monday and Tuesday "Royal Princess Dinnerware."

PRODUCE PRICES IN MONTREAL

Butter and eggs were features of the Montreal Dairy and Produce Market during last week's trading, both rising to new top levels for the winter season to date. Continuation of cold weather, low production and light stocks strengthened the butter market on the one hand, while on the other hand supplies of distributors became short with demand good.

The butter market ended the week at 29 1-2c to 30c a pound for No. 1 grade, which compares with closing quotations of 27c to 27 1-4c at the close of the previous week. Arrivals amounted to 4,244 boxes, compared with 5,097 boxes the previous week.

Graded shipments in carlots or less of eggs brought 44c to 45c a dozen for A-large, 43c to 44c for A-medium and 42c to 43c for A-pullets, about 3c to 5c above the preceding week's close. Offerings totalled 6,889 cases, against 7,185 cases the week before.

The cheese market ended the week at 11c a pound for current make Ontarios, compared with 10 3-4c to 11c a week ago. Potatoes held about steady, prices of 80-pound bags of New Brunswick Mountains and Quebecs ranging from $1.05 to $1.10 and 90-pound bags of Prince Edward Island Mountains from $1.30 to $1.35. Cheese offerings were 1,015 boxes.

ELDORADO NEWS OF THE PAST WEEK

ELDORADO—Mr. George Sandford spent Thursday, the guest of his brother, Mr. Edwin Sandford, of Kellar's Bridge.

Rev. and Mrs. Trumpour attended the meeting of Ministerial Association which was held at the United Church parsonage, Madoc, on Monday last, February 19th. Rev. J. R. Trumpour was the guest speaker and gave the address on "To Mesopotamia during the World War".

Mrs. Geo. Palmer and children and Miss Thorpe also Mrs. L. Searles spent the tea hour at the home of Mrs. John Fitzgerald on Friday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pigden were in Belleville, this week attending the latter's brother-in-law's funeral, the late George Irvin Fraser The deceased was a former resident of Madoc Township.

Dr. F. Nickle is home again from the Belleville General Hospital and hope to soon see him around in our midst as usual.

Mr. Goerge Fox is busy hauling wood to Madoc, with the "Tanner Truck".

Messrs. Clifford Chambers and Kenneth Holmes are cutting cord wood for Mr. Fred Chambers.

We are sorry to hear that Mr. Earl McCann is ill with pneumonia at the home of his grandfather, Mr. Hugh Morrison with Nurse Cochran of Madoc in attendance.

"The Good Samaritan Class"

The Senior Girls' Class of Fox's United Church, Eldorado, held their regular weekly meeting on Thursday afternoon, February 22nd., at the home of Mrs. Albert Harvey. After the usual opening exercises in charge of the President, Miss Lela Goodchild, plans were then made and goods given out to the different members to be made into aprons and garments for bazaar.

Lunch was served by the hostess Mrs. Harvey and a social time enjoyed. Meeting closed by repeating Mizpah Benediction.

Young People's Society

On February 21st Eldorado and Union Young People's Society held their regular meeting in the basement of Fox's church. The meeting was opened with President Miss Violet McCann in charge and by singing a hymn. The Bible readings were read by Florence Walker and Reta McCann. After singing a hymn, Miss Freda McCann led in prayer. Roll call showed eighteen members present on the "Red" and fifteen present on the "White's". Minutes of last meeting were read by the Secretary, Miss Gladys Martin. Mrs. Albert Harvey was appointed assistant Librarian for the "Travelling Library".

Mr. Cecil Robinson, convenor of Christian Citizenship opened the program with hymn "Whosoever Heareth" and Miss Grace Robinson gave the devotional talk. Mr. Kenneth Martin delighted all with a solo, "Home on the Range".

Mr. Cecil Robinson, convener of Topic, the subject being "What Can We do about Poverty and Wealth" Mr. Albert Harvey then favored us with a reading given in his usual interesting way, entitled "Jimmie Murphy and the Owl", which was much enjoyed by all.

Miss Freda McCann then staged an interesting "Tree Contest," which brought a very pleasant evening to a close.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Young are moving to Cooper and shall be greatly missed from our neighborhood.

Rev. Smith of Madoc, was a visitor at the home of Charles D. McCann on Wednesday.

There has been considerable difficulty in keeping the roads passable for cars, the last part of the week. The roads had previously been opened up, but Friday's snow and cold wind, the roads are very heavy for traffic again.

Mr. Sandy Andrews of Bannockburn, spent the dinner hour on Friday with his brother Mr. Wm. Andrews.

The saw machine is getting busy in this district lately. The wood is disappearing as if by magic this weather.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Carter and two children of Newburgh, were callers at Mrs. Alex. Gordon's on Tuesday.

Mrs. Alex Finlayson and Miss M. Finlayson spent Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Andrews.

Mr. and Mrs. George Ketcheson of Hazzards, were visiting at the home of Mrs. H. MacDougall on Wednesday last.

Mrs. Wm. Goodchild and Lela, called on Wednesday at the latter's sister, Mrs. Wm. Parnell who has been confined to her bed for the past week with Nurse Johnson in attendance.

Miss Iva McCann spent Wednesday afternoon the guest of Miss Reta McCann.

Mr. and Mrs. John McClintock were the guests of their daughter, Mrs. McMurary of Queensboro, on Sunday.

Mr. John Hunter spent a few days the guest of Mr. and Mrs. James Hunter of Bannockburn.

Mr. and Mrs. John Post and Don were the Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Severin.

MARSHALL ROAD NOW IMPASSABLE

Among the roads of the district which are impassable at the present time for all but travel on foot is the Marshall Road. Residents on the road, west of the Institute lane, have been forced to journey to the city on foot when even bread delivery wagons failed to buck the fence-high drifts this week.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

NEW YORK - TORONTO - WINNIPEG

WALL ST. FINANCIAL

New York, Feb. 26 (AP)—Mild pessimism, based apparently on doubts rather than on definite developments, dominated most financial markets today and prices again pointed downward.

Equities dropped from the start, although selling was orderly and the ticker tape was never pressed by volume. There were a few issues that even moved up moderately. Declines ranged from fractions to around a point.

Shares of U. S. Smelting, American Can, Loew's, Seaboard Oil, Snyder Packing and Armour improved. Moderate losers included American Telephone, U. S. Steel, Case, Goodyear, American Smelting, U.S. Industrial Alcohol, Chrysler and General Motors.

Minor fluctuations prevailed among Canadian stocks. Canadian Pacific eased a small fraction but shares of Dome, McIntyre and International Nickel were about unchanged. On the curb Lake Shore and Hiram Walker were ⅛ to ¼ point lower. Dominion Government 4's improved slightly. The Canadian dollar was unchanged at 99.37½ cents.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Feb. 26.—(CP) —Prices for Industrial Shares drifted lower in quiet trading today on the Toronto Stock Exchange, influenced mainly by a downward slant on the New York Board. International Nickel, Ford A and Walker's Common had the heaviest turnover, all selling at lower prices. Goodyear Tire weakened to 128 down 6 1-2 points.

All the interlisted leaders sold off but losses were in fractions. Brazilian lost 1-2, C P.R. 1-4 and Ford A 1-4 to 22 3-4. International Nickel slipped 20 cents to 23.25 while the other big metal issue, Consolidated Smelters dropped 3 points to 152. Noon prices for the Beverage Stocks were all on the down side except Canada Bud and Canada Malting which held fractional gains. Walker's Common eased 1-4, Industrial Alcohol lost 3-8, Distillers Seagram 1-8 and Brewers and Distillers 5 cents.

A downward price drift persisted through the first three hours of trading but stocks were not pressed for sale and recessions were held down to fractions in the majority of cases with wider breaks in a few issues. Goodyear Tire common was weak, losing 6 1-2 to 128, the decline being attributed to the danger of a price war in the tire industry.

International Nickel fell back to 23.10 and Smelters was even weaker, losing 3 points to 152. Brazilian Ford A and C.P.R. followed the general trend.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Feb. 26 (CP)—Trading was dull in the morning session today on the Toronto Stock Exchange mining division, the senior gold and base metal issues being almost entirely neglected. Hollinger, Teck and Hargreaves had a little action and the others boarded only a sale or two in the first two hours.

Medium priced gold stocks again held the main interest with Howey a volume leader at 1.24 for a gain of a cent. Ventures was sold down to 94, off 3 cents while McVittie lost 2 and Wayside was off a half point.

In the big gold shares Hollinger dropped 5 cents, Lake Shore 25, McIntyre 25 cents, Teck 5 and Wright Hargreaves was up 5 to 7.25.

Noranda weakened a few cents, Base Metals Corporation 2, Hudson Bay 10 cents, Sudbury Basin 3 and Waite Amulet was off 3 to 1.25.

General weakness on the Industrial board spread to the mining list today and narrow losses were the rule in the gold, base metal and silver stocks. Senior gold shares traded lightly and recessions were limited to about 40 cents. A few penny stocks continued strong.

Hollinger and Wright Hargreaves made the best showing in the golds each recording gains of about 10 cents. Lake Shore, McIntyre and Pioneer weakened lightly and Noranda receded about 25 cents.

NOTICE TO WATER CONSUMERS

Owing to the extreme cold weather and the fact that it is necessary to let house taps run to keep services open, the present pumpage of water at the city plant has reached a figure never before duplicated. This demand has taxed the department to capacity. We would appreciate the co-operation of the consumers of the city in trying to keep down wastage of water by allowing as little flow from opened taps as possible to keep the service open.

Manager Waterworks Department.

COPPER PRICES DIFFER

Ottawa, Feb. 26 (CP)—The fact that Canadian copper sells cheaper in London than it does in Canada is not "commonsense," Chairman Geo. H. Sedgewick of the Tariff Board told G. F. Allan, Vice President of the Canada Metal Company of Toronto today. Mr. Allan was seeking a duty of 1 1-2 cents per pound on ingot brass, 85 percent of which was made up of copper.

Harry Vieau Injured When Jammed Between Two Cars

Taken to Hospital, And Reported in Serious Condition

Trenton, Feb. 26 Special—Harry Vieau, Bay Street, Trenton, was taken to the Belleville General Hospital Thursday night after receiving injuries when he was jammed between two motor cars.

Mr. Vieau was returning from the boxing bouts at the Airport on the rear of Flight Lt. W. L. Riddell's car, who was unaware of his presence. At the corner of Scott and Dundas Streets, the driver stopped to let out a passenger and another car, driven by Mr. O. Newton of Trenton, was following and owing to slippery condition of the road he could not stop quick enough with the result he bumped the Riddell car inflicting a severe cut in Vieau's leg.

Drs. McQuade and Driscoll attended the injured man who was later taken to the Belleville hospital. Latest reports are that Mr. Vieau is in a serious condition.

Local Council Transfer V.O.N. Equipment

The Local Council of Women held a meeting last week with the president, Mrs. E. L. Fraser, presiding.

The local council have relinquished the supervision of the Victorian Nurse in Trenton after sixteen years. A newly formed V.O.N. committee has been formed with Mr. Ken Couch as president.

The principal business of the ladies was to transfer the nurse's car and other equipement to the newly formed group and the following resolution, moved by Miss Armstrong, past president, seconded by Mrs. F. G. Burrows was passed:

"Whereas the Local Council of Women, Trenton, for many years have been responsible for the operations of the V.O.N. here, and have made them its principal activity, and in the course of such operations found it necessary to purchase and to maintain a motor car and certain other equipment for the purpose of expediting the work of the V.O.N.

"And whereas it has been decided to cease being responsible for this activity for conducing which a separate organization has been formed under the direct auspices of the V.O.N. national headquarters.

"Be it resolved—

"That in consideration of the new organization's assuming all liabilities incurred by the Local Council on V.O.N. account, all sums due the Local Council on said V.O.N. account, in excess of the sum of $25, be transferred to the new V.O.N. organization, together with the motor car and other equipment already referred to, such liabilities and current assets to be ascertained as of February 28th, 1934, after which date no further responsibility shall attach to the Local Council with respect to any of the V.O.N. activities or accounts and the said motor car and other equipment now in charge of the V. O. Nurse, shall be deemed to have been turned over to the new V.O.N. organization.

"That the secretary be and is hereby instructed to send a copy of this resolution to the proper officials of the new organization and to the latter's national headquarters and to give due notice in the Press so that all parties interested may be advised of the change in the situation."

The following report for January was given by Nurse Haslam:

Total number of visits, 374; total cases nursed, 85; total attendance at clinic, 106; births attended, 11.

Encampment Holds Installation

The Trenton Encampment No. 71 I.O.O.F. held their impressive ceremony of the installation of officers in the Oddfellows' Hall, last week, in the lodge room on Front Street.

A large number of the members of the local branch of the Encampment attended the ceremonies. The District Deputy Grand Master, Bro. Hume, of Stirling, with his installation team, carried out the ceremony in a commendable manner. The officers installed were:

Chief Patriarch, Mr. James Mackenzie; High Priest, Mr. Fred W. Smith.

Recording Scribe, Mr. Jas. Thow.

Financial Scribe, Mr. C. VanAlstine; Treasurer, Mr. J. W. Patterson.

Junior Warden, Mr. Geo Jones; Senior Warden, Mr. Cecil Garbutt.

During the evening the visiting District Deputy Grand Master gave an impressive address on the objects and ideals of the Encampment.

A delightful lunch concluded the evening's ceremony.

SNOW AS FINE AS SALT FALLS

Tie-up in Eastern States For Second Time is Expected

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—(AP)—The Eastern United States struggled frantically today to prevent a snowstorm from tying it in a knot for the second time in a week.

Snow as fine as salt, driven by a northeast gale, swirled for hours. Communities that had barely got moving after digging out of last week's big storm faltered under the new blow from the sky.

Aeroplane service was the first to go. Railroad trains were running late. Roads transportation was severely hampered. Northeast gales slashed at the coast, especially New England, imperilling shipping.

A force of 31,500 men labored throughout the night in an attempt to clear New York City's streets and keep traffic moving, if only at a snails pace. Fear of food shortage spread in Long Island towns. At Northport, L.I., many homes were reported short of milk and groceries as new snow blanketed roads, not yet cleared after last week's storm.

Island Cut Off

Fire Island, off Long Island's south shore, was still cut off from the mainland. Its 200 inhabitants have existed as best they could for ten days of isolation. Liners incoming from Europe arrived hours late at New York after fighting slashing storms.

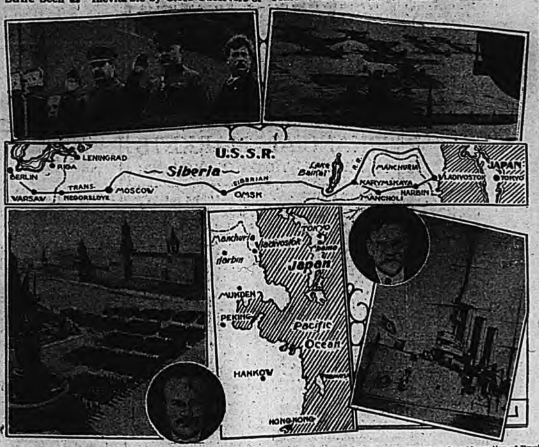
Two women froze to death in the East, one in Philadelphia and the second near Barnegat, N.J. An engineer perished near Mapleton, Me., when a train smashed against a snowbank. In New York a veteran fireman died of a heart attack induced by cold.

The snowstorm invaded the south, too, with Richmond, Va., reporting the winter's heaviest fall. Sixteen inches, a season's record, was reported in some parts of West Virginia.

In New York, the weather bureau recalled that the storm began on the anniversary of the famous snowfall of 1920, one of the coldest winters on record. A total of 45.3 inches of snow was recorded that year. More than 36 inches have fallen so far this winter.

Russia Will Depend on Air Force as Chief Weapon In War With Japan Prophesied for This Spring

Strife Seen as "Inevitable by Close Observers of Tense Situation— Soviet Has Huge Army



Foreign observers and military experts are, for once, in almost complete agreement that war between Russia and Japan is inevitable. Many of them are of the opinion that it will take place this spring, pointing out that both nations are rushing preparations. On the above layout, Russia's side of the picture is depicted: UPPER LEFT, the Soviet leaders, Stalin, dictator; Voroshiloff, commander of the air, sea and land forces of Russia, and Maxim Gorky, fiery writer and government adviser. RIGHT, Soviet planes. Russia possesses one of the most efficient air forces in the world, it is claimed. CENTRE, a map showing the vulnerable portion of Russia and the route their double-track railway will take on completion. Work is being rushed. It is vital to link Moscow, Leningrad and Vladivostok before the outbreak. LOWER LEFT, Red army in Red square, Moscow, with the Kremlin in the background. Inset, Premier of Russia, Molotoff. LOWER CENTRE, Japan's vulnerable position with respect to Russia. RIGHT, one of the few ships in the Russian navy. She depends more on submarines. Inset is Michael Kalinin, one of the nation's great leaders.

By Central Press Canadian

"We have the most highly mechanized army in the world, and we will be victorious in any war in which we are compelled to participate."

Thus speaketh high-and-mighty Soviet Russia Commissar for War Klementi E. Voroshiloff.

Says Japan's Vice-Admiral Nobumasa Suetsugu:

"No country in the world has a submarine fleet superior to that of Japan. . . . If we waged an aggressive attack our task would be most difficult, but defence would be easy. Nothing can frighten our nation if we are determined to fight to the last man."

Reports from Suez canal officials state that heavy shipments of nitrate are being sent to Russia, iron to Japan. Vancouver reports larger-than-ordinary orders of iron and nickel leaving that port for Nippon.

From Tokyo comes the information that youths of the land are being conscripted, not for military duty, but to go into the munitions factories.

In Manchuria (Manchoukuo) Japan is alleged to be building air ports in many localities. The Japanese troops are encamped along the border of Russia and Manchuria, making frequent inroads into Mongolia.

Preparing for war?

Japan is not doing this for display. They are doing it either because they fear attack, or because they plan to attack.

Russia Has Largest Army.

Foreign observers and military experts are almost unanimous in declaring that the year will see the outbreak of hostilities in the Far East, whether by undeclared war, further inroads into China by Japan, or direct attack on either Russia or Japan by the other, after official declaration.

down any threat of counter-revolution, and as a defence against attack by any foreign nation desiring extra territory and further markets.

The Soviet republic boasts of one of the largest and most efficient air forces of any nation; huge bombers designed with a view to long flights, transport air-ships of tremendous size, and smaller fighting craft for defence purposes.

Her navy is negligible. It could be bottled up and sunk as part of a day's work by a nation such as Japan. On the other hand, she has

The "immediate" cause of a war with Japan would, of course, be over the Chinese Eastern Railway in Manchuria, an interest in which Russia owns. She has offered her interest for sale to Japan, but the latter claims the price too high. Meanwhile, some fighting and confiscation of property, and wrangling over property has been going on for more than a year. Many notes have been dispatched from one capital to the other protesting "outrage".

Russia today has probably the largest standing army in the world. It serves a double purpose, keeping paid more attention to building submarines, apparently in the belief that it is folly to put millions into a battleship that one little $10,000 torpedo can send to the bottom.

In addition, Russia could probably count on Turkey as her only ally in event of strife.

Military experts agree that Japan will find an entirely different kind of opposition against Russia now than they did in 1905, or against China last year when the Japanese army was shown to be not too efficient a fighting force.

Russia's greatest drawback is her transportation system. At present she is feverishly rushing work on a double-track railway from Vladivostok to Moscow.

This finished, her great army will become mobile enough to spread itself out over a long frontier.

The vulnerable centres of the rail system would be at Lake Baikal and Vladivostok, though little would be gained for Japan by controlling the seaport, in so far as the railway is concerned.

A War in the Air.

However, Vladivostok is but six hours from Tokio by aeroplane; Tokio is a "matchwood" city, and Russia has perfected incendiary bombs a few of which would probably wipe out Tokio a few hours after declaration of war.

That is one of the few things about Russia that Japan is afraid of. She can match Russia, on paper, in every other department of military operations except in the air. And Japan is considerably more vulnerable from the air than Russia, since it is an almost impossible flight by air from any place in Manchuria to Moscow and back.

From analysis it would seem that Russia's greatest danger in event of war with Japan is from Europe.

The Soviet has signed pacts of non-aggression with almost every nation of account along her borders, but pacts are but scraps of paper in warfare.

Poland, with a huge army, has settled her quarrel for the next ten years with Germany. There must have been terms. Poland has the famous Polish Corridor; Russia has rich Ukrainia.

It may be that Poland would be willing to give back the Corridor to Germany in return for a piece of Ukrainia, where the people are more nearly Polish than in the Corridor.

Poland has outwardly stated, of course, that she will not give up her new land under any circumstances.

Added to this the rumored and many times alleged alliance between Germany and Japan, and Russia is in a "tough spot".

For Germany, fighting alongside Poland and marching into Russia at one end, and Japan marching into Russia at the other would give her a frontier that even her huge army would have difficulty in covering.

Nature aids Russia in that there are few places along her border suitable for armed attack, except by air. Swamplands are not conducive to army movement.

Has Russia Need For War?

But Japan, on the other hand, has the United States to reckon with, to say nothing of Great Britain.

There seems no logical reason why Russia should want to wage war. It would defeat the very things she has been attempting to build: her industry and culture. She needs not further territory, and her need for markets is only in proportion to the material she needs in her industrialization.

She, in accordance with her system of government, does not need a market for exploitation. She has no foreign markets which have to be protected to insure profits. Unlike Japan, her population needs no further land for expansion. She is many centuries from being even comfortably crowded.

It would seem therefore that when Russia makes use of her army it will be for defence purposes only, since the avowed policy of Stalin is that Russia can live as a Soviet within itself without forcing the rest of the world to take upon themselves the doctrines of Communism, rather preferring to wait what they believe to be the inevitable.

Marie Dressler, in States Fifty Years Says She is Good American Citizen

Hollywood, Feb. 26—(CP)—Marie Dressler, the old trouper of the stage and screen from Cobourg, Ont., wants it understood she's an American.

Hollywood's veteran actress today rapped whomever it was who brought her name before the House of Representatives Committee on immigration and naturalization, when it investigated the Dickstein Bill. This measure would require foreign thespians to obtain permission from the Department of Labor to enter the United States.

Miss Dressler's name was included with those of Elissa Landi, Greta Garbo and others of foreign birth.

"I've been in the United States ever since I came here from Canada 50 years ago," Miss Dressler said. "Thirty five years ago I married an American. His name was George Hoppert and we were married at Elizabeth, N. J. These are matters of record. My marriage made me an American citizen and I've been one ever since.

"I'm sick and tired of all these little digs at my citizenship. It has been one of my life's ambitions to be a good American citizen and I believe I have accomplished it."

EASTERN HIGHWAYS PILED HIGH WITH SNOW

From Montreal to Cornwall Highway is Nearly Impassable

The eastern portion of the province is in a bad way as far as highway travel is concerned; from Montreal to Cornwall, No. 2 highway is completely out of commission and though snow plows have been working there since the storm, transport drivers Sunday reported, there would be no travel over that portion before Monday night at least. From Prescott to Cornwall there was only a single track in operation up to Sunday evening. The Prescott Ottawa Highway is in bad shape for some 13 miles in the neighborhood of Kemptville. A driver stated that early Sunday morning he required 5 hours to make through that stretch.

THRONE SPEECH VOTE TUESDAY

Expect Premier Henry Will Bring Down Budget Thursday

Toronto, Feb. 26—(CP)—Ontario's legislature threw wide its doors today and prepared for an unusually interesting week. Barring eventualities, the first major debate of the session will conclude Tuesday night with the first division on an amendment to the address in reply to the speech from the throne. The amendment, moved by Dr. George A. McQuibban, House Liberal leader, is a virtual motion of non-confidence in the government. Much of its "sting" however, is taken away by a sub-amendment moved by Premier George S. Henry.

On Thursday, if all goes well, the government will produce the budget. It is expected at present there will be a surplus of around $1,000,000 shown. Nevertheless the opposition is preparing for a red-hot debate, claiming the government bookkeeping system fails to show large sums of money used for unemployment relief.

Committees will keep the members busy in the early hours of each day during the week, with the exception of today. Considerable interest will be aroused in the agriculture committee, for Howard Fraleigh, Cons. East Lambton, chairman of the subcommittee on livestock, will ask the main committee to adopt recommendations for reductions on commissions charged farmer at Ontario stockyards.

WATCH ROADS FOR STOLEN CAR

Activities were none too brisk in local police circles during the past twenty-four hours. Two automobiles were stolen west of Belleville last night, one at Trenton and the other at Cobourg. The local night force kept an all night vigil but no signs of the stolen automobiles were seen. Mr. T. Machold Belleville, reported to the police the loss of a rug, that had been placed over the radiator of his car during the progress of last night's hockey game. The car was parked on the market square with the rug being placed over the radiator in order to keep the engine warm. Twelve transients applied at the police station for a warm night's lodging last evening.

THEFT CHARGE LAID

Montreal, Feb. 26 (CP)—Kalman Durdon wanted in Simcoe, Ont., on a charge of having stolen 12,000 pounds of tobacco from Mrs. Mabel Snoke, Middleton, Ont., will be escorted back to Simcoe today.

A police statement alleged accused had transported the tobacco from Simcoe to Montreal by truck and had apparently decided to make his home here as he was accompanied by his wife and family. He was arrested here Friday.

GALLAGHER IS DENIED ENTRY

Resolution Passed That Defence of Smith Will Be Hampered

Toronto, Feb. 26 (CP)—A. E. Smith, General Secretary of the Workers Unity League, today appeared destined to go on trial without defense from Leo Gallagher, San Francisco champion of Tom Mooney and defendants of the Berlin Reichstag fire trial, who was to have acted for him in an advisory capacity.

Announcement of a meeting last night of the League, that Gallagher had been barred from the country by immigration officials brought a vigorous protest, that Smith's defense would be hampered

Loud boos from the audience greeted the announcement that Gallaghar had been denied admittance to Canada. Sam Scarlett, organizer in Nova Scotia mining fields, read a telegram in which Gallagher was represented as saying:

"Denied entry under contract labor clause of immigration law, although stated willing to act without compensation. Appealing to Ottawa."

Scarlett denounced the government roundly after reading the message and the meeting subsequently passed a resolution which said/in part: "We vigorously protest this vicious anti-working-class action of the immigration department in excluding Leo Gallagher from Canada. We consider this an attempt by the government to hamper the defense of A. E. Smith."

Smith will appear in court today but his trial will be postponed owing to priority on the list of the manslaughter hearing of Creighton Kirk.

37 VICTIMS FROM STORM

Death Rides on Tornado Which Sweeps Atlantic Seaboard

Death, riding a southern tornado, on Atlantic Coast blizzard and an ill-fated passenger air liner, had numbered 37 victims in the United States today.

In the deep south, authorities rushed food, clothing and medical aid to communities in three states where tornadoes ripped and tore yesterday. Thirteen were known to be dead in Alabama, eight in Mississippi, and two in Georgia. Many were injured as the storms wrecked homes.

A two-day search for a missing air liner ended last night when its five passengers and crew of three were found dead near a snowbound canyon not far from Salt Lake City. The giant craft smashed to earth in a blinding blizzard Friday.

Swirling snow enveloped a large part of the country, from New England westward to Nebraska and southward to Washington and beyond. This storm caused six deaths, including a woman found dead from exposure in Chicago and an engineer who died in a train wrecked by a snowbank near Mapleton, Me.

Large eastern cities like New York sought frantically to clear away the snow and prevent a tie-up like that of last week, which paralyzed traffic. Despite their efforts, many trains were running late and road transportation was impeded.

LABOR OUSTED FROM THE C.C.F

Charged With Conducting Subversive Activities

Toronto, Feb. 26—(CP)—The executive of the Ontario Association of Co-operative Commonwealth Federation clubs moved today to oust the entire Labor Conference of the Federation in Ontario, charging it with conducting subversive activities. Action was started Saturday when the executive passed a unanimous resolution to take the step.

The resolution was passed following receipt of a letter signed by four Labor members of the House of Commons protesting against conduct of some left wing members of the Federation in connection with the indictment on a charge of seditious utterance of A. E. Smith, General Secretary of the Canadian Labor Defence League.

The letter, signed by J. S. Woodsworth, Winnipeg North Centre member and Dominion C.C.F. leader; A. A. Heaps, member for Winnipeg North; Angus McInnis, Vancouver South; and Humphrey Mitchell, Hamilton East, accused Ontario Labor Federationists of underground conduct

It said, among other things, that "individuals who are members of the various branches of the C.C.F. organizations have co-operated with those bitterly opposed to the C. C. F. and themselves have denounced C. C. F. principles and stated they would not be bound by decisions of duly constituted C.C.F. organizations."

penthouse love

CHAPTER 18

When Charity was in seventh heaven she always felt like walking.

She rushed out of the penthouse for a long brisk walk a few minutes after Doug had asked her if she would go out with him in the evening. She was so happy she did not even realize in which direction she was going.

Suddenly she stopped stock still. She was in the heart of New York's East Side. There was a great commotion. She gathered her senses and realized she was in a crowd. Then all the brightness went out of her day.

On the sidewalk in front of her sat a man in a wheel chair. Nearby stood his wife, weeping. Four little children clung to her skirts. She held another in her thin, white arms. And out of the tenement beside them two husky men were throwing miserable sticks of furniture.

Sick with pity, Charity felt herself drawn to the side of the woman. She bent over to say tenderly, "Is—isn't there something I can do, my dear?"

The eyes that lifted to Charity's were hollow with grief The woman shook her head dazedly. "Nothing. There's nothing anybody can do. We've got to get out."

"You're—— being dispossessed?" Charity looked at the broken old furniture and back to the pinched face of the mother.

The man answered bitterly, his hand clenched savagely on the arms of his wheel chair. "Thrown out because we can't pay our rent. And after we've lived here seven years and paid very penny up to three months ago, when I busted my back".

"But — surely," Charity choked miserably, "they couldn't do that. Where will you go?"

The woman laughed hollowly. "To the river I guess—all of us."

Charity looked at the five little children, the baby whimpering hungrily—the helpless father, the bitter, disheveled mother. Something had to be done. She turned to an officer standing quietly by.

"Who is the owner of this build?ing? He—he can't put these people out like this. It—it's brutal."

The deputy marshal shrugged indifferently. "He can't, can't he? Well he's put more than a hundred families out in this block in the last week because they didn't have enough."

"Who is he?"

"Well, I don't exactly know, but old Temple, the banker, owned 'em till he kicked off a few feeks ago. And anyone that owed that old skinflint a penny paid up or got to hell out. I guess his sons owns 'em now."

For a moment Charity felt as though she were going to faint. The officer stared at her blankly when she said coldly, "Take those things back into the house. These people are not to be put out of their home."

"What have you got to do with it?" he asked, puzzled. "You can't stop 'em bein' put out."

Charity realized there was only one thing to do. She didn't want to reveal her identity. So she opened her hand bag. "How much rent do these people owe?"

"Sixty-three bucks." The officer looked at her as though she were some sort of lunatic. "You—ain't goin' to pay it?"

"I am. Tell the men to take those things back in—and give me a receipt."

"Well—I'll be—say, lady, you got a heart!" The man took the money dumbly and turned to the mother and father. "Lookit! This woman here paid your rent. Go on back in and forget it."

"I—I don't understand" the woman said. "You—don't mean—"

The officer turned a hand to help the two men who were carrying the furniture back into the flat, grinning broadly. It was a nasty job, kicking people out of their homes and sending them out to wander the streets with their kids. Especially fathers in wheel chairs. But it was his job—and had to be done.

Charity felt the arms of the mother around here neck, the mother's tears on her face where she had kissed her hysterically. Heard the cheers of the neighbors. Felt her hand gripped until it ached, by the relieved father. Her first impulse was to escape. But she couldn't leave her charges until she made sure they were all right—that they had food in the house—a doctor for the father.

She went into the little flat, surrounded by the now rioting children. The mother sat down in an old arm chair in the middle of the living room.

"You—don't even know our name," she said thickly. "Oh—lady, God will bless you for this."

Charity's own eyes were wet. "What is your name?" She tried to smile.

"Mrs. John Brown." The mother bent to put the baby on the floor. Charity saw that her face was white as death. Before she could ask what was the matter, the woman let out a low moan of pain.

"You—are ill?" Charity asked fearfully. It was hunger, she thought, with a wrench at her heart. The mother got up to stagger to a couch. "It—it's the baby, I guess." She sat down meekly.

It was some seconds before the meaning of the woman's words broke [illegible] Charity. When they did she jumped to her feet in alarm. "I'll call a doctor."

In a nearby shop was a pay telephone booth, and Charity called Dr. Thornton Batchelor's number. In a moment a woman's voice answered "This is Miss Owen, Dr. Batchelor's nurse. Yes, I'll reach the doctor at once at the hospital and send him to you. I'm sure he's there. I just talked with him."

It was such a relief to know that Batch was coming; Charity felt her jump nerves quieting. Her head cleared. She returned to the tenement and knocked on a door across the hall from the Browns. When it opened she recognized a woman who had thrown her arms around her on the street a few minutes before.

"Oh— come in," the woman beamed a welcome. Then she saw the worry in Charity's face and asked fearfuly, "Has Mr. Brown been took with one of his spells again?"

"It's Mrs. Brown." Charity tried to smile bravely. "I've called a doctor. May I bring the children in here?"

Mrs. O'Brien was all concern and action at once. "The poor dear! Sure and the little ones can stay over here. My Mamie can take care of them and give them a bite to eat. Ill comin' over and givin' you a hand."

In a few minutes the Brown children were settled in the O'Brien apartment, clean sheets were on Mrs. Brown's quickly set up bed, and water was boiling on the gas plate. Mrs. O'Brien had gone through the experience of having five children at home herself and knew all about what was to be done.

Batch rushed in a little later, alarm written all over his handsome freckled face. The message had been that Mrs. Temple wanted him at once at one of the worst addresses on Avenue A. He sighed with relief when he saw Charity, a big apron covering her golden dress, bending over Mrs. Brown. He had been afraid Charity was ill, had been hit by a car, or met with foul play.

There wasn't time for asking questions. He gave Charity a quick smile and turned to the moaning woman on the bed. Charity felt herself dismissed, and went out to stand with Mrs. O'Brien in the little kitchen, her eyes wet, aching with sympathy for Mrs. Brown.

It seemed only a few seconds until there was a wail from the bedroom. Mrs. O'Brien jumped up. "Sure, 'tis the new baby. God bless it," she said as she and Charity hurried to the bedroom to offer their services to the doctor.

A little later Charity found Mr. Brown sitting wearily in the wheel chair, his eyes closed. She spoke softly. "Mr. Brown, you have a new son."

The man opened his eyes slowly, seeming almost too tired and heart sick to expend that much effort. "It's not right—not right," he said slowly, bringing little kids into the world like this to be put out into the street, to starve to death. Me—tied to a wheel chair, with another mouth to feed."

Charity knelt beside him and said soothingly, "You haven't anything to worry about any more. I'm going to take care of your family until you're well. I'll get the best doctor in New York to look at your back."

A little of the grief and worry left his face, and Charity went again to the bedroom door. She knocked softly. "Is Mrs. Brown all right?"

Mrs. Brown answered, "Sure, I'm just fine, dear," she called weakly.

Batch opened the door, grinning tiredly. "Come in, Nursie." He sank into a chair wearily. "So this is the way you're spending your time now, young lady."

There was no mistaking the admiration, as well as the amusement in his eyes as they rested on Charity standing beside Mrs. Brown's bed smiling down at her. She had shed the big apron and was resplendent in her gay new gold dress.

Mrs. Brown reached over to take Charity's hand convulsively. "I don't even know your name. I—I guess you're an angel sent to us from heaven."

Charity shook her head, and just a little smile touched her lips. "I—I'm Miss Jones. No one ever heard of an angel named Jones."

Batch grinned, but he said almost seriously, "And the greatest of these is—Charity."

Suddenly Charity jumped. It was nine o'clock. And she'd promised Doug to go to dinner and the theatre. Their first date—and she'd completely forgotten about it! What would Doug think?

CHAPTER 19

It was after nine o'clock when Charity, breathless from hurrying back to keep her date with Doug, let herself into the penthouse.

"Sylvia," she called to the maid as she ran through the living room, "tell Mr. Temple I'll be ready in a few minutes."

"Mr. Temple has gone out." Sylvia followed her into the bedroom wondering why Charity stopped and looked so distressed. "He waited until after eight o'clock. Then a young lady called and I believe he said he was going to Long Island, madame."

"Oh," Charity sat down on her bed, feeling suddenly sick with disappointment and worry. She wanted to ask the maid if her husband had seemed angry. But of course that wouldnt' do. Naturally he would be angry. How could he understand her standing him up the first time he asked to take her out? Yanner had called again and he'd gone out to make up with her after their quarrel!

Charity had not realized how exhausted she was after her ordeal at the Browns. She dismissed Sylvia and slipped into a negligee and her old comfortable bedroom slippers. They were a blessed relief after her new high heels. Then she threw herself across the bed to think.

First her thoughts were of Doug. How could she possibly explain to him? She didn't want him to know what she had been doing. He might not like it. Or he might laugh at her—which would be worse.

Then Charity's thoughts turned to the events of the afternoon. Of her newly acquired charges —and the misery and poverty of the people from whom a great deal of the Temple money had been made. Having been the senior Temple's private secretary, she knew of course that a great deal of his money was invested in real estate. But she didn't realize he owned such a large part of New York's slums.

The building in which the Browns lived was ready to fall down. It was unbelievably unsanitary and lacking in conveniences. Little children should not live in such places. She decided she would go to see Simmons, the Temple lawyer, and have a talk with him the next day. Then, exhausted, she fell asleep.

Charity awakened to find she had slept all night lying across her bed.

It was too early to see Malcolm Simmons. He seldom appeared at his office before noon, having a great many outside things to do in connection with the Temple interests.

So Charity decided to visit the East Side tenements on a tour of inspection. To see for herself whether the building the Browns lived in was an exception, or if there were others like it owned by the Temples.

It was a morning Charity was not to forget till the longest day she lived. She spent three hours walking in and out of buildings—one more ghastly than the other. A nightmore of hungry little children, disheartened mothers, broken fathers. Stories of suicide; people too ill to move being taken from their beds and put into the street—starving, deserted babies.

By the time Charity arrived at the Browns to see the mother and the new baby so great was her compassion that she wanted to take the whole miserable little world under her wing and mother it. Before she left to go to Simmons Charity had changed the black universe of the Brown family into a place of sunshine.

Mrs. Brown and the new baby were safe in the care of a nurse. The five older children were installed in a day nursery, and the wheel-chair-ridden father was on his way to the hospital where he could receive treatment for his back.

Charity's first impulse was to scatter money from one end of the block to the other. But she was a business woman and knew a practical way would have to be worked out to help those deserving of aid and sympathy. Several families received baskets of groceries after the tall grave-eyed girl in the level gray-green gown and hat had visited them. They didn't know her name. But, like Mrs. Brown they said an angel must have been sent to them from heaven.

It was after lunch before Charity could bring herself to leave her families. She had been in and out of so many filthy hallways and ill-kept flats that she'd have to go home and bathe and dress before she went to see Mr. Simmons.

At home she learned Doug had not been back, even to sleep. She jumped into her tub and hurried into her clothes. She didn't feel like eating, but made herself take a little tea and toast. She asked Sylvia to call and make sure Mr. Simmons would be in, and was relieved to hear that the lawyer would be delighted to see her about four o'clock.

Charity smiled to herself when she found she had automatically gone to the side door of the Wall Street Trust Company building marked "Employees Only". She had gone in that way so many hundreds of times that it seemed the natural thing to do. Of course she did not have her old keys When she knocked it was old Pat, the janitor, who opened the door and barred the way with his corpulent figure.

"I'm sorry, miss," he said, without waiting to learn Charity's business. "We ain't got on jobs."

TARZAN THE TERRIBLE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

1-7

The pithecanthropus ate in silence. Tarzan from the nearby crotch of a tree watched him cut small slices of the deer's meat with his keen knife. His meal finished, the guest carefully wiped his fingers and lips with leaves from an overhanging branch. The ape-man wondered to what peculiar people or tribe his odd companion belonged.

Then he looked up at Tarzan with a pleasant smile that revealed a row of strong white teeth. He spoke a few words which the ape-man judged were a polite expression of thanks. Then he sought a comfortable place in the tree for the night . . . It was just before dawn when Tarzan was awakened by the shaking of the tree in which he had chosen to sleep.

As Tarzan opened his eyes he saw that the man-thing was also astir. Glancing around quickly to find the cause of the disturbance the ape-man was astounded at the sight that met his eyes. The dim shadow of a colossal form reared close beside the tree, and he realised that it was the scraping of this giant body against the huge tree that had awakened him.

That such a tremendous creature could have approached so closely without awakening him filled the ape-man with both wonderment and chagrin. In the gloom he thought at first the intruder was an elephant, larger than any he had ever before seen. Then in the approaching dawn, the dim outlines became clearer and Tarzan saw and heard a thing that would have sent the shivers up the spine of an ordinarily brave man.

TORONTO, Feb 26—(CP)—Football will take its intersection spectacle into the West for the first time in 1934 and operate with a couple of new-fangled scoring tricks, that are sure to cause much wrinkling of brows in October.

At its annual meeting here Saturday, the Canadian Rugby Union ordered the Senior Dominion final to be played next fall on the home grounds of the western champions and decided the classic will alternate between east and west thereafter as long as one region enters a challenge.

Ever since 1921 the West has fought vainly for the National Championship, always coming east for the finals and always losing. But the threat from the other side of the Great Lakes has been becoming more serious of late. In fact, so serious is this series now taken, that it will next be played in the West.

Dr. E. A. McCusker of Regina, elected president of the C.R.U. in succession to T. Hicks Miller of Montreal, made the stand of the Western Canada Rugby Football Union very clear at Saturday's meeting. It was a question, he said of whether the West was given the final in alternate years or United States football supplanting the Canadian game. The delegates decided it was preferable, that the West be kept within the fold.

No Junior Playoffs

At the same time, the C.R.U. put an end to Junior Canadian Championship games. In the future the Dominion organization will not sponsor intermediate or Junior play-offs between champions of the three divisions — Western, Central and Eastern. These contests have always been financed by revenue from the Senior gates and just now the C.R.U. is in a bad way financially.

Secretary R. W. Hewitson told the annual meeting that the Treasury has little to recommend it. One reason was that University of Toronto withdrew from the playdowns last fall after winning the intercollegiate title, and the C.R.U. missed collecting on the projected Varsity-Sarnia game.

There will be no further sudden withdrawals like that however, without penalty. The delegates decided that if a League champion wished not to continue in the Canadian playdowns it must notify the C.R.U. of its intention in good time or be penalized $300.

Change in Scoring

At least two of the new scoring regulations adopted by the rules committee for 1934 are likely to make a decided difference in the game. One eliminates the safety touch, which counted two points. If a ball-carrier is thrown back over his own goal-line next season, it will count as a rouge and the team scoring will earn only a single point.

The delegates also moved to curtail out-and-out long distance kicking. It will still count a point if a punter drives the ball over the opposing team's deadline in the air, but the ball will be scrimmaged on the 40-yard-line of the team scored on. In the past the scrimmage was on the 25.

So next season, punters will be shortening their shots. If the ball strikes the ground between the goal-line and the deadline, then rolls over the deadline, the scrimmage will be on the 25.

DOG DERBY IS WON BY MARTEL

Westerner Generally Wins This International Event

Quebec, Feb. 26 (CP)—A home-bred, Emile Martel, today held the coveted gold challenge cup, emblem of victory in the annual International Dog Derby, and usually won by a westerner.

Martel defeated a field of 15 in the 120-mile classic staged here Friday, Saturday and Sunday, in laps of 40 miles each day. He triumphed over Harry Wheeler, of St. Jovite in the Laurentian mountains, by 28 minutes.

Great figures of the dog-racing field such as Emile St. Godard and Leonhard Sepalla, were lacking from this year's race. Only one American, Eddie Mahoney, Philadelphia, competed while only three of the other starters were from outside the Province: J. Deffalco, Ottawa and N. Coates, Raymond Ritza, Orient Bay, Ont., who failed to finish. Thirteen crossed the finish line, two having dropped out.

Martel, winner of the laps on Friday and Sunday, completed the course in 11.17.22 compared with the record, established by Emile St. Godard in 1932, of 10.28.01.

LICENCE ALL BIKES

Not to Produce Revenue But For Checking Purposes

"Belleville may have bicycle licenses for 1934."

At any rate an extensive investigation toward such a proposed medium of licensing bicycles in this city is at present being carried out by the local police department. Chief Kidd was recipient of a bicycle marker, quite similar to those used on motorcycles throughout the province but made of a lighter metal material, from the city of Kingston, where bicycles are licensed. The same procedure holds good in Toronto and other cities throughout Western Ontario.

The idea of the police department is not to produce a revenue for the city but, mainly for the purpose of keeping a check on bicycles in the city. The licenses are sold in other cities at a figure slightly higher than the initial cost of the marker.

The increased number of bicycle thefts in Belleville during the past year prompted the police department to issue the proposed license plates. The matter was taken up with Mayor Tice and will be given a careful consideration. The licensing of bicycles in other centres has been met with approval as the marker numbers are displayed in open view, where even pedestrians may ascertain such numbers, when needed.

Reports as to the success of licensing bicycles from Western Ontario will be consulted before any action is taken. The local police department thoroughly endorse the system, as stolen and missing bicycles can be traced much easier through this method. The sample of a Kingston marker was today shown to the city executive for their approval. The cost of manufacture will be borne by the operators and owners of bicycles and will not exceed 25c, it is thought.

NAZI PARTY 14 YEARS OLD

Allegiance Sworn by Heads of Departments to Hitler

Munich, Germany, Feb. 24—(AP)—On the 14th anniversary of the founding of the Nazi Party, thousands of department heads gathered today to swear an oath of allegiance to Chancellor Adolf Hitler.

The principal ceremony of the nationwide observance was centred in Munich. Chancellor Hitler will speak tonight.

Munich became a riot of Nazi color—with brown shirts everywhere and flags adorning all buildings. Special trains brought thousands of visitors to the city each hour.

The day in party history resembles Martin Luther's reformation day when the theses were tacked upon the door of the Cathedral.

Fourteen years ago, Hitler promulgated the 25 points in the National Socialist (Nazi) policy.

THREE MEN LOST DISASTER FEARED

Digby, N.S., Feb. 26 (CP)—Three men were believed to have lost their lives on a lumber-laden motor scow, nine days overdue at Saint John.

Finding of a sternboard with the name "Corine Gotro" led to the belief the derlict washed ashore at Gulliver's Hole, Digby Neck, was the craft on which Capt. William Gotro and his two-man crew left Tynemouth Creek nine days ago with 70,000 feet of lumber for Saint John.

DOUMERGUE STUDIES PROBE OF STAVISKY

Premier of France Joins Commission Heads

Paris, Feb. 24.—Henry Cheron, minister of justice, told other members of the French cabinet gathered in a four-hour session that new arrests were planned in the Stavisky scandal.

Premier Gaston Doumergue announced that he himself would take a hand in the probe of the affairs of the self-slain Serge Stavisky and his giant Bayonne Pawnshop which collapsed and dragged down two governments with it.

M. Doumergue said he would join M. Cheron and the heads of two investigating commissions named by the Chamber of Deputies. The premier promised the investigators "the widest and most complete facilities."

IMPORTS LESS AFTER REPEAL

Washington, Feb. 24. —(AP)— Liquor imports into the United States during the first full month month after repeal were shown today by the tariff commission to have been less than during the 26 days of December, that repeal was in effect.

Revenue amounted to $4,826,000 in January as compared with $6,-273,000 in December.

Distilled spirits imports, with the United Kingdom the leading supplier and Canada a close second amounted to 620,021 proof gallons valued at $3,269,606 compared with 735,604 gallons valued at $3,864,628 in December. January duties paid were $3,071,268; in December 3,-731,139.

BELGIAN KING AT TE DEUM

Thanksgiving Mass is Celebrated at Brussels

(By Edouard Traus, Associated Press Foireign Staff)

Brussels, Feb. 26 (AP)— Bright sunshine and prolonged enthuastic cheers greeted King Leopold and Queen Astrid when they drove to the cathedral of St. Gudule to attend the Te Deum Mass of Thanksgiving for Leopold's accession to the Throne.

A slightly melancholy smile illuminated the King's face as the state carriages, each drawn by four horses, conveyed the Royal party to the cathedral. There was an escort of a squadron of the famous Belgian guides.

The band played "La Brabançonne" as their Majesties entered the mediaeval edifice, crowded with the diplomatic corps, members of parliament, and civilian and military authorities. The black and silver drapings of mourning were missing.

A few minutes later a chant, sung by Malines Cathedral's famous St. Rombaud choir, filled the air. It was a chant of joy.

Joseph Ernest Cardinal Van Roey greeted King Leopold on behalf of Belgium's catholics with the assurance of their steadfast loyalty and unlimited faithfulness.

The Cardinal expressed the hope that Belgium, under the new King's direction, would enjoy peace both domestic and foreign.

GUARD COBOURG BANKS FEARING ROBBERY

Tipoff On Robbery Came From Toronto or Hamilton

Cobourg, Ont., Feb. 26 (CP) — Police guarded all four of Cobourg's banks during banking hours Friday and Saturday, to frustrate a bank robbery, which they had been informed was planned to take place in Cobourg. The police declined to discuss the matter but it was learned that the tipoff came from Toronto or Hamilton.

Chief of Police J. C. Ruse, Provincial Constables, W. J. Carey and F. Blucher and Constable L. Denton of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police guarded the banks on Friday and Saturday but no bank robbers put in an appearance.

TRAIN PLUNGES OVER VIADUCT INTO STREET

Five Known Dead And Toll May be Doubled After Search

28 IN HOSPITAL

Discard Theory Frozen Switch Might Be Cause

Pittsburgh, Feb. 27—(AP)— With five bodies recovered and 28 persons in hospitals, fear was expressed today that the death list from last night's wreck of a New York-bound Pennsylvania train may be doubled.

The engineer and fireman of the Akron-to-New York train are missing. Railroad officials also said that three passengers, not yet accounted for, were seen in a day coach.

Crews of men worked feverishly through the night searching the tangled mass of steel, iron and brick for the additional bodies it was feared were there.

The railroad said 36 of the 70 passengers reported having been hurt, including 28 who were in hospitals. The condition of several was said to be critical, due to injuries, shock and exposure in the near-zero weather.

The train was speeding along 10 minutes behind time when it jumped the tracks at 9:32 o'cock last night. The engine and tender ploughed down a 20-foot embankment, with the five steel cars, piling up at the bottom, wrecking a two-storey signal tower and knocking down part of a three-storey brick building.

The tentatively identified dead: David A. Duchrame, 50, of Ansonia, Conn.; Clarence J. Mayer, 45, of Ingram, Pa., and Mrs. W. Miller Wardrop of Pittsburgh, wife of an assistant to the general manager of the Pennsylvania railroad.

Morgue officials said identification of two of the victims was delayed by condition of the bodies. They found a woman's handkerchief with the initials "H.D.W." and a wedding ring containing the figures "10-1607," on one body. A ring with the date "Je 29, 1907," was on a finger of the other.

Railroad officials discarded an earlier theory that a frozen switch was responsible for the wreck.

Cause a Mystery

"The cause is still a mystery" one of 10 executives who viewed the wreck said while watching a crane pulling away at the tangled mass of steel.

He pointed out that engineer W. M. Shaw of New Castle, Pa., and fireman O. C. Deuthitt of Youngstown, O., had disappeared.

"We couldn't find them in the cab," he said. "Of course they might be buried beneath the engine. We

CROOKED ADVERTISER MUST GO "ON SPOT"

Newest of Industries Must be Purified of This Class Says Peabody

Toronto, Feb. 27 (CP)—Condemning the methods of the "crooked advertiser," Stuart Peabody, director of advertising and commercial research, Washington, urged members of the Toronto Advertising and Sales Club today to use their efforts to eliminate "ballyhooing advertising."

"Advertising is one of our youngest industries," Mr. Peabody said. "Just now it is on the spot, but I believe it will come through its present crisis with the respect and confidence of all thinking people, whether they be business men, legislators or consumers."

He denounced unscrupulous advertising and suggested advertisers "clear their own house in order that advertising can take its proper place in the economic picture and in the mind of the public."

'Tollgate' Operated by L.C.A. Charges Hepburn in Address

Speaking at Liberal Rally in Ottawa When Charge Made

OTTAWA, Feb. 27. —(AP)— Charging the Ontario Liquor Control Board operates a "toll-gate", Mitchell F. Hepburn, Ontario Liberal leader, in an address here said agents of British distillers had to have the recommendation of "some Tory Ward-heeler" and contribute to party funds before they could get their wares on the shelves of the liquor stores of Ontario.

Mr. Hepburn spoke at a Liberal Rally here last night and charged the Conservative Government in Ontario with extravagance, with dissipating the natural resources of the Province, with planning a whitewash in the McCaughrin inquiry and with using a misleading system of book-keeping.

Both Attorney-General W. H. Price and Hon. William Finlayson, Minister of Lands and Forests, were involved in the offer of $2,000 to Magistrate McCaughrin of Orillia, if he would resign, said Mr. Hepburn. Yet both were sitting on the committee inquiring into the affair, constituting themselves judges, jury and accused.

Mr. Hepburn traversed the record of the Provincial Government and was especially critical of its Hydro-policy. Many months ago he had accused the Hydro Commission of having a surplus of power and this had been denied. Only a few days ago, however, Premier Henry had made an admission to that effect.

With regard to the existence of a "toll-gate" in the liquor commission, Mr. Hepburn charged that agents for British Distillers had to have the recommendation of "some Tory Ward-heeler" and contribute to the Party funds before they could sell to the Commission.

When the Liberal Party assumed power, said Mr. Hepburn, letters would be written to the British Distillery firms seeking to find out the extent to which this toll-gate had operated.

While on the matter of liquor the Liberal leader expressed surprise at having heard no more of Premier Henry's beer-and-wine policy.

"Mr. Henry's beer policy has been going stale for some time; and that is what happens when you uncork beer too soon," said Mr. Hepburn.

G. P. GRAHAM SPEAKS MIND

Senator From Brockville Thinks U. S. Should Join League

Toronto, Feb. 27 (CP)— United States membership in the League of Nations, even if qualified by reservations, would be the greatest step toward peace, that could be taken in the opinion of Senator George P. Graham of Brockville.

Speaking before the Toronto Board of Trade Club last night, Senator Graham said a satisfactory settlement between the nations of the world and the United States of war debts would go more to stabilize finance than anything else that could be done.

The Senator urged that some solution be found as soon as possible to the unemployment problem. "No right men and women," he said, "should not be humiliated by being given charity. Something must be done, and done without delay, to protect the manhood and womanhood of our citizenship against the humiliation that comes to them, when they are short of employment."

He suggested the solution might be contributory unemployment insurance, or taxation of persons possessing wealth. Some method, he said, must be found to preserve the independence of men and women, when they cannot find normal employment.

PICTON MAN IS FINED $25

Defendant Does Not Appear, Patrolman Tells of 70 Mile Speed

TORONTO, Feb. 27—(CP)—Failing to appear in York County Police Court to answer a charge of reckless driving, Lance Nethery, Picton, was fined $25 and costs by Magistrate William Keith today.

A highway patrolman told the court of chasing the accused man in zero weather for 16 miles along the Kingston Highway at 70 miles an hour, before taking him. Both motorist and officer narrowly missed colliding with a street car, he said. Nethery, the Constable said, admitted having purchased a quart of liquor in Cobourg.

Dutch South Africans Pay Homage Prince George Warmly Welcomed

Bloemfontein, South Africa, Feb. 27 (CP Cable)—Prince George came to the Orange Free State today after a 3,000 mile tour of the Cape Province, assured of a magnificent welcome from this greatest of the Dutch-speaking provinces of the Union of South Africa.

While formal receptions in the cities of the Cape were most enthusiastic, the most impressive of the welcomes tendered the Prince thus far on his tour of South Africa have come from wayside railway stations or little towns, where farmers have motored in from long distances, or ridden many miles, to congregate for a brief visit of the Royal train.

Many of these farmers fought against Britain in the Boer war, but they universally radiate good nature and have taken the Prince to their hearts.

On arrival at Bloemfontein today the Prince was given an enthusiastic welcome, although the armed guard of farmer volunteers which had arranged to escort him was forced to abandon its plan, the ravages of drought having resulted in a scarcity of horses.

80 NIGHT MEN GO ON STRIKE

Dismissal of Man And Piece-work Given as Causes

Trenton, Feb. 27 (Special)— Last night at 7.45 p.m. eighty men of the night shift of the Trenton Cottons, walked off the job on strike.

Gene Behan, superintendent of the Trenton mill stated this morning that he had no statement for the press as he was waiting word from officials at Hamilton. When asked what the demands of the strikers consisted of, Mr. Behan stated that they had not presented their wants to him as yet.

The striking night shift have called a meeting for this afternoon in the Liberal committee rooms on Dundas Street. The day shift were at work today but it is rumored that they are in sympathy with the strike.

Speaking to a band of the strikers this morning the Ontario Intelligencer reporter was told the trouble started when one of the fellow men was fired. Piece work was another cause. These men claim that the mill had increased their production and that the piece work rate would lower their present wage of 22 and 25c per hour which were already unsatisfactory. Last week nine men walked out but later returned.

It is understood that the workers ask 35c per hour which is less than the rate paid at the Hamilton branch for Union labor.

The men claim they worked 84 hours per week and were told that if they didn't like it they would be fired.

These men claim they are all experienced help and that they have been, earning the smallest wage in Ontario for this class of textile work.

Whether the remainder of the plant, which is near one hundred men and women, will follow the striking night shift, could not be found out at noon today.

Probably after this afternoon's meeting the demands will be placed before the officials of the company.

One department not working will cause a tie up of production it was learned today.

The strikers have caused no disorder as yet.

Freight Rates Are Cut To Meet Panama Rates

Washington, Feb. 27—(AP)— To permit trans-continental railroads to meet Panama canal competition on passenger automobiles, and interstate commerce commission examiner recommended today that the commission authorize a reduction in freight rates from Detroit and other producing centres to California seaports.

He proposed, however, that the commission refuse to authorize lower rates on trucks.

TORONTO MILL RATE REDUCED

Toronto, Feb. 27 (CP)—Toronto's tax rate for 1934 will be 33 mills, the lowest rate since 1930 and one mill lower than the 1933 mill rate. The City Assessment was lower for the coming year.

Printing of Money in Two Languages Did Not Come to Vote

OTTAWA, Feb. 27.—(CP) — Three measures, two of far-reaching and nation-wide importance and one concerned solely with the internal economy of government, are before the House of Commons today for second reading. All are likely to be the cause of bitter fighting if advance indications are borne out.

The first bill on the order paper is the measure to establish a bureau of translators for the government. Now translators are attached to various departments. The measure, sponsored by Hon. C. H. Cahan, Secretary of State, would bring all translators into one office under his department.

After the Translation Bill come the bills to revise the Bank Act and establish a Central Bank. It is possible they may receive second reading today or tonight in order to permit the bank and commerce committee to get to work on them at the earliest possible moment.

Money bulked large in the debates of the House yesterday. Two questions were argued at length:

McGraw Fond of Mathewson and Young

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

Miami, Fla., Feb. 27 (AP)—Fighting spirit and courage were the two qualities that appealed most to John Joseph McGraw in the host of great players he handled or developed, bought or traded, during a life time of spectacular baseball achievements.

That was why two players stood out as coming closest of all to the affections of the old master—the immortal Christy Mathewson and Ross Young, the Texan, that Mac developed into one of the great outfielders of modern times.

Both are dead now and if there's a valhalla, where the heroes of baseball gather, they will have a welcome for their former chieftain.

"Mathewson," McGraw once told me, "not only was a master craftsman in the box but he had the heart of a lion. No greater pitcher ever lived."

Pictures of Matty and Young had a prominent place for years in McGraw's, office at the polo grounds. Shortly after he turned the club over to Bill Terry in 1932, Mac came in early one day and removed them, at a time, when he thought no one would observe this evidence of sentiment. Terry walked in and McGraw hastened to apologise, saying: "Bill, I didn't think you would mind if I took these. You know how I felt about those fellows."

Spring in B. C.

Victoria, Feb. 27.—(CP)—Victorians pottered about their gardens today gazing with admiration at the early daffodils and wondering just how many meteorological records would be broken this month.

F. Napier Denison, director of the Dominion Meteorological Observatory, announced today that February had been the mildest month on record for 60 years.

There was more sunshine for the first 26 days of this month than for the whole of any February, including those of Leap Year, dating as far back as 1892.

An average of six hours a day has been Victoria's daily share of sunshine.

OUT OF THE DARK

FREDDIE MILLER

Science played a 1,000-to-1 gamble with the life of three-year-old Freddie Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Miller, of Columbia, S.C., and now the youngster is on his way to his home from Baltimore, Md., his sight restored. He submitted to seven operations, after he had run a paring knife into his left eye.

SPEED LIMIT NOT CHANGED

Candlepower of Lights to Be Increased Says Minister

Toronto, Feb. 27.—No change in the speed limit for motor vehicles in Ontario is contained in amendments to motoring laws which Hon. Leopold Macaulay will bring down in the Ontario Legislature this week.

In an address last night at the annual dinner of the Ontario Motor League Mr. Macaulay revealed several changes in the law contemplated in his legislation, some to promote greater safety, others to give added effect to laws already in existence.

All commercial motor vehicles under the legislation will be required to carry lights which will be visible both forme and aft for a distance of 200 feet to protect other traffic from danger of collision if the vehicles become disabled and stalled on the highways.

Automobile owners will be permitted to increase the candle power of their headlights from 21 to 32 owing to improvement in lamps and will be required to equip all trailers with two sets of couplings working independently to prevent trailers from running wild on the roadway if one coupling breaks.

Truck Highways Wider.

Mr. Macaulay said provision of fixed illumination on highways had been brought nearer realization by development of the sodium arc lamp which uses considerably less power than other types, but was still out of reach for the present owing to equipment costs.

Trunk highways, he said, would be widened and shoulders would be levelled to give safer passage to cars and to provide parking space for cars disabled on the road. The shoulders, he added, would give protection to pedestrians walking along highways, while ditches would be shallower and less steep.

Officers of the league were named as follows: President, W. H. McIntyre, Ottawa; vice-president, Capt. W. H. Currie of St. Thomas; Lumsden Cummings of Toronto, and Lt.-Col. W. G. Kerr of Chatham.

FRONT DOOR "JIMMIED"

Hamilton, Ont., Feb. 27—(CP) — Thieves during the night ransacked Kritzer's ladies wear store, King Street East, and carted away no less than $1,800 worth of merchandise. The front door of the store had been "jimmied".

Fourteen Deer Trot Thru Fields Herd Treks to Escape Wolves

Alliston, Ont., Feb. 27.—(CP)—A herd of 14 deer were seen trotting south through the fields north of here last week. It is known that these deer herd up in the dense swamp north of town and their migration across open country has led people to believe that they are heading for the Adjala swamps where wolves have not yet been reported.

Although an odd wolf was sighted in the fall it is common now for the settlers to hear the hunting howls at nights and a close watch has been placed over sheep and fowl.

40 M.P'S GAIN TIME TO TALK OVER 'MARCH'

Smart Manoeuvre by Laborite Turns Tables

LIBERALS HELP

Government Majority is Helpless Against Vote

(By George Hambleton)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Feb. 27.—(CP Cable) — After a stormy interlude in the House of Commons this afternoon representatives of the hunger-marchers who have flocked to London, gained a great tactical victory, all the more welcome after a fruitless visit the hunger-marchers had earlier paid to No. 10 Downing Street, home of the Prime Minister.

After the Prime Minister had declined to accede to a request the hunger-marchers be permitted to present their grievances at the bar of the House, George Buchanan, Clyde-Side Laborite, executed a smart manoeuvre by moving the House adjourn to discuss the Prime Minister's refusal to grant any facilities for hearing the hunger-marchers.

The motion required only 40 supporters and with the help of half the Liberals these were forthcoming, the motion being carried in the face of the huge but helpless government majority, and the Speaker set 11 p.m. tonight for the discussion.

SAY BLANKET USED AS ROPE

Twelve Year Old Escape From Fifth Storey is Probed

Guelph, Ont., Feb. 27—(CP) —A man who is alleged to have escaped from the Ontario Reformatory in 1922 by dropping down a blanket rope from the fifth storey of the "tower" at the institution today was committed for trial in police court on a charge of escaping from custody.

Lickman Manackerman, convicted in Toronto recently on a charge of demanding money, elected trial by a higher court when he appeared today charged with escaping from the reformatory August 20, 1922. Manackerman's evidence at the preliminary hearing showed he was committed to the reformatory January 12, 1922, from Hamilton on a charge of having drugs. On the night of August 20 it was stated he bored a hole in the heavy iron screen of his cell and split his blanket, forming a rope with which he lowered himself to the ground and escaped.

He was never recaptured until he was committed to the reformatory from the Toronto jail farm.

THE WEATHER

ROADS PASSABLE BUT QUITE ROUGH

Although snow banks rear on each side of the road to roof top level, cars are running freely between this city and northern points in the county, it was reported today. The road to Bancroft, while rough, was in fairly good condition, reported a driver of a food concern, who made the trip on Monday. Three and one-half hours were necessary to complete the trip, according to the driver.

To Marmora the road is open and in fairly good condition, it was stated by the driver of that bus at Aselstine's Garage, this morning. Tweed road, according to the driver of that bus is also open and in good condition. Little information could be given regarding the less travelled roads to points further north, although it is believed that snow plows and township employees have been making strenuous efforts to keep traffic open.

BANCROFT TRAIN FREEZES TO TRACK

One of the best of the cold weather stories of the week comes today from Bancroft, home of low temperatures and colder winds.

While the mercury stood at 32 below zero on Monday morning, a train crew came to work in the morning only to find the train frozen solidly to the tracks. A leak from the warm boiler standing on the tracks had allowed water to drip throughout the night, freezing the wheels to the steel.

While ten passengers bound for varying points in the county sat and shivered, the crew, working lustily with picks and crowbars finally gave in to defeat. The train was started only after another engine arrived to break it loose.

P.E.I. NIGHT AT CITADEL

Original Programme is Given by Adjt. A. W. Martin

An original programme was given at the Salvation Army Citadel last evening, which featured the life and spirit of the people of "Prince Edward Island, the Garden of the Gulf."

The music of the evening was exclusively the composition of the late Professor W. A. Hawley, who for many years wrote continuously for Army musical publications, and died as a Salvationist Envoy. The songs used last evening were as follows: "Four Hundred and Ninety Times, He will Forgive Me," sang by Miss Nellie Collins. "None Can With Him Compare," by Bandsman T. Adams and "He was Wounded for our Transgressions," by Adjt. and Mrs. A. W. Martin.

A visit to Cavendish, P.E.I., was tersely told by Mrs. (Adjt.) Martin, describing the "House of Green Gables" and the home of the "Anne" Books.

"The Story of Confederation" and describing the Bible finding its place in the birth of the Canadian family of Provinces, cradled in Charlottetown in 1864, was related by Adjutant Martin.

"He shall have Dominion from sea to sea."—Psalm 72-8, being in memory of Confederation, adapted as the Bible meaning of the evening.

Messages of greetings and reminiscences of "the Island" were sent by Charlottetown Salvationists through Secretary Mrs. H. Chandler, Brigadier P. Knight of Toronto, Mrs. Major Unsahi, Orillia, Mrs. Adjutant Squarebriggs, Kingston, and Captain E. Chandler, Toronto.

The programme had an unusual and momentous opening when the reading of a Vice-Regal message of greeting to the people of Belleville, was presented by Treasurer B. W. Brown from His Honour the Lieutenant Governor of Prince Edward Island, Hon. Geo. D. DeBlois.

Adjutant Martin declared the greetings of good wishes would be heartily reciprocated in the name of citizens of Belleville.

OBITUARY

LATE GEORGE N. PHILLIPS

Many friends and neighbors were Monday afternoon in attendance at the funeral of the late George N. Phillips, who passed away early Saturday morning in the Belleville General Hospital, resultant of having been struck by a truck in Cannifton the previous forenoon. CYRIL WAITE IS SPEAKER

Y's Men Told by Member of Board of City's Financial Status

Mr. Cyril Waite, manager of the local branch of the Dominion Bank, and member of the Board of Education, delivered a most instructive address to the Y's Men's Club on Monday evening, on the subject of Belleville's financial position, particularly with regard to its debenture debt.

He quoted figures illustrating some pertinent comparisons with other Ontario cities, showing that in its per capita debt Belleville stands twelfth among a list of thirty-six while in that portion of the debt incurred for schools, Belleville stands seventh.

Due to the great amount of the interest charges on these debts, the burden of maintaining a high standard of education, means a heavy load for the taxpayer. Commenting on the very high standard of education in Ontario, the speaker explained, that under the English system, for instance, there were no free high schools, but a liberal scholarship provision made possible higher education to all capable of taking advantage, while the cost of education was borne to a much greater extent by the Government rather than the municipal taxpayer.

The speaker believed that, while wonderful, that Ontario children should have the finest educational advantages available in the world, the point will soon be reached where the cost will exceed the means available, and that some measures will be taken to avoid waste of expensively trained staffs and equipment by students not sufficiently keen to take full advantage of their opportunities.

Mr. Waite was introduced to the club by member Norm Edwards, and the club's thanks expressed by President Earl Boyd.

It was announced that, as St. Patrick's day falls on Saturday, this year, the club's annual St. Patrick's Dance will be held on Friday evening, the 16th.

DUKE OTTO NOT INTERESTED

Brussels, Feb. 27 (AP)—Persons in the entourage of Archduke Otto, claimant to the Austrian Throne, scoffed today at suggestions that he planned to concern himself with the situation in Austria.

They said that while rumors were going the rounds that he had set out for Vienna, he was quietly resting in his castle. His attention is centred mainly, friends declare, in obtaining the Degree of Doctor of Political Science from the University of Louvain. He has submitted his thesis.

Boys' Place as Future Men Rotary Hears of Boys' Work

Health, Mental And Physical of Growing Boy

"Boys' Work" was the subject considered by Belleville Rotarians at the regular meeting Monday in the Hotel Quinte, the guest speaker being W. R. Cook, Toronto, National Boys' Work Secretary of the Y.M.C.A. whose subject was "The Problem of the Growing Boy." Mr. Cook was introduced to the club by Fred Smith and Rotary appreciation was voiced by Laurie Lewis.

Prefacing his address with brief reference to the work undertaken by Toronto Rotary among the boys of a populous working men's suburb Mr. Cook outlined the newest ideas in the work of the Y.M.C.A. among boys with the view to making them better men and better citizens. Teaching boys how to protect their health, mental and physical, was stressed as vitally important in the work of educating the youth of the land so that they will get the most out of life and be helpful and valuable members of the community.

One of the most important problems facing the youth of today is that of employment and an essential part of education is that which will teach the youth to adjust themselves to different kinds of employment, as present conditions in the industrial world make frequent changes of employment probable, especially in view of the rapid increase of the use of labor saving machinery, science being always busy inventing some new machine which will do the work of several or many humans. Out of sixteen thousand High School graduates recently canvassed only 3,000 had certain occupational destination, that is work to go to.

Boy Health

The health of the growing boy, both mental and physical, is a prime necessity. It is said that there are more beds for mental cases in the hospitals of Canada than for other diseases. Mental disease is no disgrace and in many cases is curable. With the stress and strain of modern times and the fear of unemployment with all its attendant evils it is necessary to train strong mental resistance in the youth, as well as physical development.

Diet is another important factor in the building of healthy youth, just as important as fresh air and exercise.

Making a Living

How to make a living and where is another important department in the education of modern youth which needs close and careful attention.

Boys should be taught to know themselves and in plain simple language initiated into the truths of life which hitherto have been concealed from them mistakenly, permitting them to get garbled and exaggerated ideas of sex life which are harmful.

How to make and hold friends, how to develop personality, sharing in happy home life, contributing to the best in community life,—all these and more entered into the modern idea of youth education tending to make for better citizenship, and were very interestingly outlined by the speaker.

Ways to use leisure would have to be added to youth education in view of the lessening demand for workers due to labor saving machinery, and even the return of prosperity will not remedy this. If there are one hundred workers for sixty jobs, the forty left out must be carried or the work spread over the hundred by shorter working periods. In any event the forty have to be taken care of, hence the need to teach helpful ways of using leisure time. Our forefathers came from a country where the hours of work were long but they had many holidays, festival days, which were not perpetuated in this country, except in those social working occasions such as barn raisings, sugaring off, corn husking, etc., in which a prodigious amount of work was accomplished with small apparent effort, and in an enjoyable way.

MAIN REPAIRS SOON EFFECTED

Residents West of Devil's Elbow Without Water Only Seven Hours

For the first time since it was installed, the 18 inch auxiliary water main laid as a relief measure three years ago this winter, proved its usefulness to the city on Monday afternoon, when a fire hydrant leading from the 16 inch service main in front of the Albert College on the Trent Road early in the afternoon was broken off close to the ground by a skidding transport truck. Immediate repairs were effected by the waterworks department without closing off the water supply to the city, and with only those services leading from the main on the Trent Road affected.

But for the auxiliary main, stated Manager E. T. Austin of the department, who supervised the immediate repairs, the city would have been shut off for a period of nearly seven hours, while repairs were being made, with only about one hour's supply of water from the standpipe on the east hill available for homes and for the purpose of emergency in case of fire. The auxiliary main however, maintained the same supply and pressure.

On the spot within a few moments after the accident had occurred shortly after two o'clock in the afternoon, when the large transport truck slewed from the road into the hydrant snapping it off clean to the surface, emergency crews of the department had commenced digging in the frozen ground above the service main to effect repairs. In the meantime residents along the Trent Road, including Albert College and the Ontario School for the Deaf, were without water for the emergency supply drawn off previous to the shut off, on the warning of Mr. Austin. Seven hours after the break, a sleeve had been placed on the main and service was resumed.

After snapping off the hydrant the large truck came to a standstill immediately above the broken spout from which water gushed upward through the loaded truck like a fountain, freezing as it splashed.

Later in the afternoon a large car attempting to turn out of a rut on West Bridge Street near Everett street, skidded on the hard surface and came to rest with a hole punched through its radiator from another hydrant on that corner. Although the hydrant was believed to have been slightly strained by the impact, it held. A serious shut down in water services to the city would have resulted in the break, it was stated by the department today.

Accidental Death Verdict in George N. Phillips' Demise

Shows Driver of Truck Took Precaution And Sounded Horn

"We, the jury empanelled, find that George N. Phillips died in the Belleville General Hospital as a result of injuries received at Cannifton, when accidentally struck by a motor vehicle owned by the Belleville Hydro Electric Commission and driven by Harold Arnott," was the verdict returned by Coroner's jury following the inquest looking into the death of George N. Phillips, who died Saturday morning last following injuries sustained the day previous at Cannifton. Throughout the entire proceedings it was clearly established that the unfortunate occurrance was purely accidental.

Numerous witnesses were called but the driver of the truck, Mr. H. Arnott, was the only eye-witness to give testimony. Mr. Arnott told of proceeding northward at a moderate rate of speed and when driving through the village of Cannifton, he slowed down to under 20 miles an hour.

"When did you first see Mr. Phillips?" asked B. C. Donnan, K.C., who conducted the inquest with Dr. R. W. Tennent acting as coroner.

"When he was about 150 yards ahead of me, and walking in the middle of the road," said the driver as he went on to relate how the deceased man had turned to the right and was apparently going to walk along the right shoulder.

"What did you do then?"

Sounded Horn

"Sounded my horn, pulled the truck to the middle of the road and proceeded to pass the pedestrian," said the witness as he told of Mr. Phillips stepping directly in front of his vehicle as he was opposite him.

"Are you sure you sounded your horn?"

"Yes, sir," said Arnott as he stated he did not believe Mr. Phillips heard or even saw him as it was snowing and blowing at the time. Mr. Arnott gave Mr. Phillips as much clearance in passing as he would have given a motor car, he said. The witness told of stopping his truck the moment it struck Mr. Phillips in the left leg. The injured man was conscious and lying with his back to the bumper and his head towards the ditch. Assistance was near at hand and Mr. Phillips was taken into the store of James Alexander. The local ambulance was then summoned. Mr. Arnott assured the jury that he had done everything humanly possible to avert the accident.

Mr. Tompkins, a Bell Telephone truck driver, told of following the Arnott-driven vehicle south of Cannifton. It was travelling at a moderate rate of speed, he said. "About 20 miles an hour or under," said the witness whose testimony was corroborated by a fellow employee, Mr. Baker. Provincial Traffic Officer L. Byles produced measurements and sketches of the accident that clearly showed Mr. Arnott had not been travelling at an excessive rate of speed. The accident apparently happened about seven feet from the right hand shoulder. When questioned as to Mr. Phillips' hearing Mr. W. Reynolds, of Cannifton, stated it might have been slightly dull. Dr. Van Blaksalee, the physician to attend the deceased, assured the court that Mr. Phillips had undoubtedly died from the shock and injuries sustained during the accident. James Alexander also told of assisting after the accident.

The coroner's jury summoned by Sergeant Arthur Booth consisted of the following: W. J. Barlow, T. G. Hammett, Thomas Thorne, Samuel Wedden, George Dawkins, S. A. Lockwood and Alfred Luscombe.

Auxiliary Water Main Serves Purpose Intended When Main Pipe Broken

Council Told of Accident When Transport Snaps Hydrant

HEAVY GALLONAGE

Interesting Discussion on Two Motions Before Board

Information was given the council at their regular session on Monday night, by Alderman W. R. McCreary, chairman of Waterworks, that the gallonage pumped on Monday exceeded by 400,000 gallons, the amount pumped during the hottest day of last summer, when the plant took care of 3,400,000 gallons of water. Both Alderman McCreary and Mayor Tice paid a compliment to Manager E. T. Austin and his efficient staff of workmen for their services during the trying time when hundreds of telephone calls from every part of city have been received about frozen pipes during this abnormal winter. "Every man in the department has put a personal service in the job", said Alderman McCreary "and the council, as well as the citizens, I am sure are proud of the department and the manager and his staff. They have done everything possible to alleviate the difficulties and to keep the citizens supplied with water at great inconvenience to themselves. City Clerk Holmes added his word, that in twenty years he had never seen the office as busy and so many telephone calls answered as has been the case this year.

New Main Serves Purpose

The new auxiliary water main laid some years ago as a relief project has served its purpose and had it not been for its presence on Monday, the whole city would have been cut off from a water supply, due to the breaking of a hydrant near the Devil's Elbow late on Monday afternoon. Alderman McCreary explained to the council how the accident happened and that temporary repairs had been made, which would make the service as effective as ever but that permanent repairs could not be made until spring and that the new main would have to carry the main load of water being pumped. Mayor Tice, thanked Alderman McCreary for the interest he had taken in keeping the supply up to normal and for the effective way the repairs had been handled by the staff of the department.

Delegation Heard

A delegation consisting of Reg. Moncrieff, president of the V.O.N. committee, Fred Smythe, a former president and Ex-Ald. Joe Imlah, treasurer of the organization, appeared before the council asking for an increase in the annual grant by the council to the V.O.N. to $1,500. The urgent need of this grant was shown by Mr. Moncrieff, who was the spokesman for the delegation. He told of the nurses attending 38 confinement cases in 1933 gratis, which would have cost the city the sum of $893.00 had they been taken to the hospital. Ninety confinement cases were tended with no maternal deaths. Two hundred and seventy-five families had free service during the year, making in all a total of 3,804 free visits. The city paid $11,779.60 for 475 patients in the hospital", said Mr. Moncrieff and "comparing that with the 275 families, that were attended by the V.O.N. at a far less cost, I think the organization is justified in asking for a grant of $1,500.00. At the present time, the society has an overdraft at the bank of $500.00, which the members have to personally guarantee. Mayor Tice explained to the delegation, that the council and himself personally were vitally interested and recognised the wonderful work, that has been done by the V.O.N., and that the council he felt, would deal generously with the request. "I would ask you, Mr. Moncrieff to put your request in writing for the next meeting of the council and when the estimates are brought down, this request can be included", said His Worship. Alderman Woodley also explained, that the estimates would be brought down earlier than last year and recognition would be given the request.

Passing into the committee of the whole with Alderman Brickman in the chair, a recommendation was passed renting the auditorium of the City Hall to Uriah Lummiss for the nights of March 12th and 13th, for the sum of $10.00 nightly. Dr. Jackson of Toronto, who holds the patent on Roman Meal Bread will be the lecturer and the addresses will be of an educational nature.

Alderman McCreary: "I voice objection to this proposal as the by-law states the amount shall be $15.00 per night except to charitable organization. True it has been rented to a local club for $7.50 but that club is fostering sport among a large number of our citizens and the firm, who is renting the hall is renting purely for an advertising proposition. I am sorry I was not in committee, when this matter was broached and that is why I am speaking to the motion at this time."

Alderman Marshall,—"After I heard of the firm wanting the hall, I met the party and I think I made a good bargain. I am quite satisfied to stand by the by-law and make the same price for all."

Alderman Harker,—"I agree with Alderman Marshall, that we should keep to the price set by the by-law."

Mayor Tice,—"I understand the lecture will be purely educational and I think we got a fair price for the rental and it will be some revenue to apply on some other project."

Alderman Harvey—"The citizens at large are in favor of the theme of the lecture and I will vote for the motion."

Alderman Marshall—"I never heard the council set a price at $15.00 and although the council passed the by-law, it has been broken before and I think my recommendation is a fair one and that I made a good bargain."

Given Use of Streets

W. C. Mikel, K.C., wrote to the council respecting the Centennial celebration to be held in this city this June and the council concurred and passed a recommendation allowing the Centennial committee the use of the streets for the amusement purposes and Victoria Park and Zwick's Island, subject to the approval of the Parks Board. Twenty-five tons of Pocahontas coal was purchased from the F. S. Anderson Company, at a price of $9.60 a ton, this being the lowest tender received. The Mayor was authorised to concur in the amended Tax Sale Bill, now before the legislature.

Under the head of enquiries Alderman Cushing asked "what had been done respecting the dispute over water rates and accounts of the Cold Storage? Alderman McCreary responding, stated as far as the city was concerned there was no dispute. As far as the adjustment of the account is concerned, there has been nothing done. The Alderman told Ald. Cushing, that the finances of the Waterworks Department were in an excellent condition there was a bank balance of some $18,000.00 and there was a possibility, that some debentures not to be retired for 30 years might be taken care of this year. "Have no worry about the department", said Alderman McCreary, "as the department is in fine shape and efficiently managed."

Alderman Domenico — "What about the barn on Carmifton Road?" Mayor Tice asked the committee if they had a report and Alderman Hill, a member of the council stated the committee had not met but, that Alderman Donahue had the matter in hand and it would be taken care of.

Mayor Tice asked permission to remove arches, that had been placed across the bridges for the Christmas decoration explaining the position that the merchants were in with respect to finances and informing the council, that probably someone might be injured if they broke loose from their moorings. Permission was granted.

Suspend Rules

Rules were suspended to introduce the motion "That motion now on books re renting of part of the basement of the City Hall to a Mr. Bartlett be rescinded" was passed, but not before the yeas and nays had been recorded and considerable discussion had taken place. To fully understand the situation, a room formerly occupied by the gas department has been rented to Mr. Bartlett for the sum of $10.00 a month in which he stores the eggs, that he buys on the market on Saturdays. At the last meeting of the council, it was decided not to continue the lease and Mr. Bartlett be asked to vacate but the motion at the meeting last night was an about face from the previous action and those recording their votes for the rescinding of the former motion were Aldermen Cushing, Domenico Foley, Harvey, Hill, Marshall Safe and Woodley all against Alderman Harker, McCreary, Wills and Mayor Tice.

Alderman McCreary in opening the discussion stated "that in leasing the property in the City Hall, the council was competing against citizens, that had space to rent. I question the legality of the move and although we are losing a revenue of $120 a year, yet I believe it is our duty to the electorate."

Alderman Harvey — "This place has been rented to this man for the past three years and I am strongly in favor of the man retaining this office.

Alderman Harker—"We are interested in the electorate and why should a man come in here with plenty of places to rent and occupy a place in the City Hall. The man can set his own price on the market and I doubt according to the by-law, if he can make any purchases on the market before ten o'clock in the morning."

Alderman Marshall — "I thought this question was all fought out in the committee and that it was agreed to settle the issue without discussion, yet it is brought on the floor of the council and I think for a grandstand play. The office has been rented to Mr. Bartlett since the gas office was moved."

Alderman McCreary —"I am only interpreting the law and I doubt the legality of the move. I am not making any grandstand play nor am I indulging in any personalities but I think we should have the advise of the solicitor on this matter."

Aderman Wills—"I corroborate the remarks of the former speaker and it is my opinion, that it is not proper nor desirable for any party not connected with the city to be occupying premises in the building."

Alderman Domenico—"Are we doing any good by putting him out? He will go somewhere else and still continue to do business on the market and the city will be out the revenue of $120.00 a year.

Mayor Tice—"I have been here for eight years and I must confess I was unaware of this man being in that office. I don't think, that the city hall should be used for offices otherwise than those occupied by city officials. It seems, that the point in dispute is $120.00 and I do not like to vote against the chairman of any department, but I am of the opinion, that Mr. Bartlett can find a place elsewhere than in the city hall to carry on his business."

Alderman Safe—"As far as protecting the citizens we are no better off. He is not doing any harm, but if we have him removed the city loses $120.00."

Assessor Congratulated

Alderman McCreary—"I am not influenced by personalities but am looking at the proposition from a business point of view. I think we would be badly advised to permit the condition to continue. We are not driving him out for there are lots of places, that he can get close to the market, that would serve his purpose just as well I congratulate the assessor for assessing this man for business tax in 1933."

Alderman Cushing—"Is not the renting of St. Agnes' Manor or houses on Station street in charge of the city just the same as renting this office in the City Hall?"

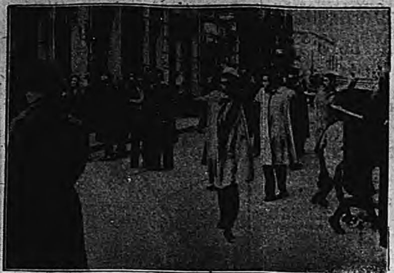
Alderman Hill—"There are several spots in the market and city hall that are rented and if he goes over the street, he will buy eggs just the same and by renting the office the city is in $120.00 a year.

Alderman Wills—"The market building is set apart for a market, and the office he is using is not set apart for a market and I do not think we have a moral or legal right to rent this office to him."

Alderman Harvey—"He is only renting a stand the same as anyone else."

Alderman McCreary — "What about a fire in this office? Would the city be protected on its policy. This is an important question and should be considered." This ended the discussion and the vote was taken with the result mentioned previously. There being no other business the council adjourned. The members present were Mayor Tice Aldermen Woodley, Hill, McCreary Foley, Brickman, Safe, Wills, Domenico, Cushing, Harvey, Harker, and Marshall.

IN SPAIN TOO, SPIRIT OF UNREST IS ABROAD IN THE LAND



..Police on the scene of a labor disturbance in Bilbao, Spain, in which a baker was assaulted. Civil guardsmen are seen searching suspects for weapons. Some of the suspects who have been searched and still are in custody, are seen with hands upraised in the picture. The Spanish captioner of the photograph stated that the recent success of the Conservatives at the polls in Spain had caused disturbances among the workers in many parts of the country, "owing to the policy of the government which is towards the capitalistic classes."

Suspension CKCL Is Recommended

Ottawa, Feb. 27—The Canadian Radio Commission has recommended to the marine department that the license of station CKCL in Toronto be suspended, the broadcasting station having linked up with the Columbia Broadcasting System, it is claimed, in disobedience of orders from the commission.

The Toronto station, it is stated, broadcast the Columbia program on the advice of its solicitor who expressed the doubt that the commission had any legal right to prevent the program being broadcast by CKCL.

According to the radio commission, CFRB is the only Toronto radio station licensed to broadcast commercial programs of the Columbia network.

WESLEY YOUNG PEOPLE'S SOCIETY PRESENTS PLAY

Once more the Young People of Wesley Church, Front of Sidney, excelled themselves when they staged their play "Cranberry Corners" a comedy-drama in four acts, in Wesley Church on Friday evening last.

Each person was well selected for the characters they represented and the comedy part of the play brought roars of laughter from the audience which almost filled the church, while the more serious parts of the drama seemed to hold the people in breathless expectation of what would happen next.

Great praise is due to all those who took part—the acting was everything one could desire of an amateur performance and which must have necessitated many days and nights of hard study.

A reading, vocal and instrumental selections were given in fine style by Miss M. J. Mitchell and Mr. Jack Hall, and from beginning to finish the audience was well entertained. The following is the cast of characters:

Tom Dexter—"One of nature's noblemen"—Maxwell Bush.

Sidney Everett—"Of the world worldly"—Jack Hall.

Ben Latham—"A wanderer" —Fred Wilson.

Andrew Dexter—"Tom's father"—Cleland Reid.

Hezekiah Hopkins—"Fond of an argument"—George Rush.

Nathan Speck—"The hired man" —Albert Hall.

Carlotta Banister—"A child of fate"—Isobel Sandercock.

Amelia Dexter—"Sister of Andrew"—Gladys Rollins.

Mrs. Muslin—"Something of a talker, "as you might say"—Lurene Smith.

Bella Ann—"Help at the farm"—Ruth Bush.

Just previous to singing the National Anthem the Young People called their pastor and Mrs. Fred Wilson to the platform and surprised them by the reading of an address in which the Young People expressed their appreciation and thanks for the way in which Mrs. Fred Wilson and Rev. James A. Plant had trained them as directors of the play and were each presented with a large box of candies. Special mention was also made of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wilson for the generous and kind hearted way in which they opened their home and "kept the home fires burning" during the extreme sub-zero weather which prevailed all through the five weeks of rehearsal. Owing to the roads, north of the highway being blocked with snow, many people were unable to be present, and a desire has been expressed that this excellent drama be put on in White's Church, Bayside in the near future. Please watch the local papers for announcement of date.

PERMANENCE AND RESPONSIBILITY

The Toronto General Trusts Corporation completed its 52nd year on December 31st, 1933, and in doing so reached another milestone in the continuing purpose of its founders. It was the first trust company to be established in Canada and this purpose was, in the words of its first President, the Hon. Edward Blake, K.C.,

"to fill a long felt public need by bringing to the management of estates the security, responsibility and permanence of corporate existence instead of the uncertainty of individual life."

The outstanding features of the Annual Report for 1933 are:

the fourth largest year in new business received, —although values are greatly below those of four years ago—this amounted to $22,588,000;

a net increase of $6,000,000 in the Estates, Trusts and Agencies managed by the Corporation; maintenance of a strong liquid position in the interests of Savings depositors,—easily realizable securities and cash held for Guaranteed Trusts Account amounted to 122% of Savings deposits;

total assets under administration of $228,658,000 the largest amount in the Corporation's history.

The Toronto General Trusts invites appointment as Executor under your Will and as Trustee or Agent in the management of Real Estate and Investments on the basis of more than fifty years of continuous experience and its strong financial position.

FIGHT COLDS THIS SAFE PROVED WAY

If your child has a cold—don't experiment! These are days when colds so often lead to grippe and pneumonia.

Play safe—follow the treatment that millions and millions of mothers have proved is best—use Vicks VapoRub.

This famous standby brings quicker, surer relief because of its famous poultice-vapor action. Through the skin, it "draws out" soreness and tightness. At the same time, its soothing medicated vapors are carried with every breath direct to irritated air-passages. All night long, Vicks VapoRub acts to relieve the cold—and safely! Being used externally, it avoids the risks of constant dosing—which so often upsets children's delicate digestions.

IN NATURAL STATE

Natural life-sanctuaries should be established in Ontario in opinion of the Royal Canadian Institute and Ontario Naturalists to insure the preservation of all the various types of animal and plant communities in this province as well for scientific as for aesthetic reasons.

"Every natural life-sanctuary should be large enough to allow as many of the native plants and animals as possible —preferably all of them—to live their complete lives, undisturbed within the limits of the sanctuary," reads a resolution passed by the institute this month. For the sake of control it is proposed that these should be established in the provincial parks, because though there is some human interference in these parks conditions in them are only slightly modified by man and they make excellent buffer areas for natural life-sanctuaries.

To include as many types of life as possible it is urged that sanctuaries of this type be set up in the following areas: Algonquin Park, Quetico Park, Rondeau Park, Temagami Forest Reserve, and the Georgian Bay area.

It is proposed that the sanctuary areas be absolutely closed to humans, and that biologists for special reasons be admitted only on special permits. This institute would have the control of the sanctuaries in the parks rest in the universities so that they might not be the same as public parks.

The Ontario Naturalists advocate the creation of additional provincial parks, their management as wild life sanctuaries, the sanctuary area to be left under absolutely undisturbed natural conditions, and the appointment of an advisory wild life board, composed of trained biologists, naturalists, and sportsmen.

There is no one but realizes that where the humans are too much in evidence is out of the question if the wild life is to be preserved and allowed to continue under natural conditions. Wild life is not like the tame fat squirrel which meets a man in the city park and looks for something to eat. The aim must be to preserve life in natural environment. Any change in that may lead to the elimination of natural life as among our flowers and certain forms of animals and birds.

Australians once thought cormorants which swarmed upon the rivers were eating up their precious fish and so slaughtered the birds with all their might. When a few hundreds of cormorants were left, fishing began to decline and it was discovered that the birds had lived on crabs, eels and other creatures that live on fish fry. Sir Arthur Thomson said about this: "The obvious moral is that man should get all the facts of the web of life before, not after, he has recourse to drastic measures of interference."

BUBBLE REPUTATION

Fame is fleeting. So much publicity is of a kind which does not endure. Men and women who occupy the front pages of newspapers are not assured by fame that they will live beyond their day and generation. Many of them sink into the grave of oblivion years before their physical mortality.

Politicians, leading lawyers, movie and other stars are not immune.

Such is fate and such is expectation. Fame or reputation built upon a momentary or mushroom bed cannot survive.

William Travers Jerome, noted lawyer in the Thaw trials is an example in point, but he knew enough to hurl that fame away. Reputation came to him as a reformer twenty-five years ago. He himself fought Tammany, blind pigs and gaming houses, but was himself a happy figure on Broadway. But the time came when his riches with which he was born shrouded him from the world. He grew sick of public life and went into retirement. He was the man who smashed crime in New York and he left politics and public life and his profession and was unknown to most men. The other day, he died, obscure, scarcely meriting a column in the metropolitan press of the day. That is what he would have wished. He had reached his goal, only to find such fame unworthy. Doubtless in his later years, he meditated on life values and found that while he was worth twenty millions, money and fame were not the hope and aim of life.

Doubtless many a time he thought the poor man who labors for a living and is happy was in a very real sense serving life as he ought to serve it.

This makes one wonder what is the value of all this fame or bubble reputation which movie stars, and other figures win. Of course it may tickle one's vanity to feel that one is being talked of by every tongue and that one is among the few who grow famous. But can the famous man realize what it means not to be famous? The famous man has lost something the "unknown" man has never lost—the ability to get along without worshipping at the shrine of the bubble. Return to common sense and the levelling process of death bring those things to rights.

The great mass of people must be unknown, knowledge of their virtues and their wrongs buried, but their influence lives in its own sphere even more than the influence of the famous.

"Beyond," the unselfish men, the lovers of their kind, even if poor, will be seen as they really are—princes of life. That is the way it is "Above."

DON'T WORRY

There's a motto that will help you every day,
When the sun is hid, and all the sky seems grey,
If you can teach your stubborn will to say
Don't worry.

It doesn't help a bit to sit and sigh,
Tho' cares of life may heavy on you lie,
It's a better time then to laugh than cry,
Don't worry.

And though I know it's not an easy task
For those in pain to wear a smiling mask,
Yet do the best you can, that's all I ask,
Don't worry.

And take my word that every time you try,
Will make it easier for you bye and bye,
Until your watchword too, will be the cry,
Don't worry.

"SPANISH PRISONER" FAKE seems to go on forever, but the promoters of this historical and standardized swindle are now using the printing press instead of the laboriously turned out hand written letters of yore. One of the latest to receive the Spanish Prisoner invitation to get rich quickly is one G. C. Cumming, of Lyn, addressed as a fruit dealer, when that gentleman has been out of the fruit business since 1887, indicating that an ancient business directory is being used for a "sucker list," European idea being that firms go on forever here as in that country. The letter is printed in imitation typewriter type while the enclosure is a printed reproduction of the familiar handwriting, reading in part as follows:

> "Dear Sir,—
> "Being imprisoned here by bankruptcy, I beseech you to help me to obtain a sum of 350,000 dollars I have in America, being necessary to come here to raise the revenue of my baggage, paying to the Register of the Court the expenses of my trial and recover my portmanteau containing a secret pocket where I have hidden two checks payable to a bearer for that sum.
> "As a reward I will give up to you the third part, 120,000 dollars.
> "I cannot receive your answer in the prison but you can send a cablegram to a person of my confidence who will deliver it to me, addressed as follows.
>
> "Am waiting your answer to intrust you all my secret; now I sign only
> "T."

INDUSTRIES PROVIDING EMPLOYMENT for citizens are sought for and welcomed by all municipalities, and most folks class an industry as a place of factory dimensions, distinguished by a column of black smoke arising from one or more chimneys. A newspaper, which is one of the best industries a community can have, is seldom classed as an industry. It is rather taken as a matter of fact affair, part and parcel of the community, born with it and raised with it, something supplied by Nature which exists as a matter of course. With all the mind and matter and money that is put into modern newspapers and the struggle to make them succeed, the newspaper is certainly some industry. Modestly speaking, take ourselves for instance, the Great Family Journal, giving steady employment to over thirty, and expending nearly forty thousand dollars a year in wages.

HOW ALCOHOL AFFECTS THE HUMAN BODY

Habitual Drinking of Intoxicating Beverages Very Injurious

By LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D. Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Whether alcohol, as such, should be considered a food is still a debated question. Some doctors do not agree with others as to whether small amounts have a beneficial effect upon the system.

Certainly all are agreed that large amounts are extremely detrimental and it may be added that the taking of small amounts often forms a habit and leads to the taking of larger ones.

In small doses, alcohol, whether in the form of beer, wine, whiskey or brandy, promotes appetite, stimulates the digestion, and because of its burning-up qualities, yields a sensation of warmth and well-being. It also removes the sense of restraint and stimulates the imagination.

On the other hand, as soon as the small quantity stage is passed—and the amount that should be considered small varies with different individuals—alcohol produces what might be termed a progressive stage of paralysis. First the mental processes are involved, then the nerves of the body. In the end, the individual is unable to think coherently and clearly and he cannot walk, stand or even move.

No one can habitually drink intoxicating beverages without a bad effect being produced upon his organs, possibly upon his mind, as a result. And certainly in the days of the prohibition amendment when most of the beverages were hard liquor and made synthetically, sometimes of deadly poisonous ingredients, the evil effects of alcoholism were multiplied a thousand times.

Alcohol ultimately causes kidney and liver disease. It undermines the strength of the heart. It causes chronic stomach disorders.

Chronic alcoholism plays particular havoc with the nervous system. Unsteadiness of the muscles, tremor, blurred and confused thinking, poor memory and general inefficiency are common results. And, as the individual finds himself slipping mentally, he feels impelled to take larger and larger doses at more and more frequent intervals in order not to break down completely.

A considerable proportion of insanity cases are purely alcoholic in origin. Delirium tremens is a possibility in alcoholics. Such patients suffer acutely. It is also a dangerous condition as regards life.

People who cannot stop drinking, no matter how hard they try, should be considered as sick. Whether the patient is a daily drinker of small amounts, or goes on a spree every now and then but remains a total abstainer between times, he is a sick man, nevertheless, suffering from a nervous disease.

One of the most difficult things to do in the wide realm of medicine is to treat chronic alcoholism successfully. But it has been done, although it requires unusual perseverance on the part of the patient and the doctor.

Knowing how handicapping and distressing alcoholism is, not only to the sufferer, but to his family and friends as well, every effort should be made to bring about a cure.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

A soft custard, which is so readily digested and therefore so good for sick persons, is made by beating one egg slightly, then slowly adding eight ounces of hot milk, two ounces of milk, sugar, a few drops of vanilla extract and a tiny amount of salt. The whole is then cooked in a double boiler, care being taken to stir the mixture constantly until it thickens.

"MAN WITH DONKEY" TO BE IMMORTALIZED

"The man with the donkey" is to be immortalized in Australian marble as typifying the spirit of the Anzacs, those great soldiers who won fame in the Gallipoli campaign, according to information recently received by an official of the Canadian National Steamships whose vessels form an important trade connection between Canada, Austria and New Zealand.

The man with the donkey was a private soldier known as "Murphy", but his real name was Simpson. One day he found a donkey which had strayed from the Turkish lines and conceived the idea of using it to bring in the wounded. Told by his officer to go ahead, he worked quietly day and night for three weeks, dodging bullets and shrapnel, rescuing the wounded from a zone of intense danger. He seemed to bear a charmed life, but one day his donkey came back alone. Later the Australians wanted to present the donkey to the king, but a search showed it had been left behind at the evacuation of Gallipoli. The Red Cross in Australia is collecting funds to build a monument to a simple hero, and his tough old donkey will be a feature of the design.

QUEEN'S PARK

In a measure, known as the Dog Tax and Sheep Protection Act, introduced by Hon. Thos. L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture, to the Ontario Legislature, provision is made for owners of sheep in unorganized territory to be placed on the same footing as is provided where there is municipal organization in connection with responsibility of dog-worrying of sheep.

Under the present act, where there is municipal organization and the municipality has paid damages for sheep worried by dogs, the municipality is entitled to recover from the owner of the dog without proving that the dog was vicious or accustomed to worrying sheep. In the portions of the province where there is no municipal organization a sheep owner can only sue the owner of the dog for any damages sustained through sheep worrying, and he is still subject to the common law rule. The new act provides that the owner of the dog shall be liable to the owner of the sheep for amount of damages and it will not be necessary in any action to recover such damages to prove that the dog was vicious or accustomed to worry sheep.

Col. Kennedy also introduced the Community Halls Acts, which provides that where the Legislature has assisted a municipal corporation to build a community hall or establish an athletic field that such hall or field shall not be sold without the approval of the government. As the act now stands, such hall or field may be sold without consent of the government and it is felt some check against this should be made.

The committee on Game and Fish, under chairmanship of Coulter McLean, Cons. Eglinton-Toronto, divided its hearings into different subjects. The anglers' petition for greater propagation of the maskinonge, asking that a full time biologist be appointed to study the problem. It was also asked that the province be divided into zones as to fishing periods.

Various hunters associations were heard on the question of use of the dog in deer hunting. Divided opinions were heard both for and against the issue, but it is likely to be brought into the House through a bill to be introduced by D. J. Taylor, Progressive, North Grey. Baiting of ducks and geese was strongly opposed, while a fifteen day period for partridge shooting for deer hunters was also asked.

A request for a government investigation into abuses in the building and construction industry was made to the Legislature by Russell Nesbitt, K.C., Conservative member for Bracondale. Methods now used Mr. Nesbitt termed "infernal" and "criminal" in connection with certain general contractors. He asked that the labor committee of the legislature be called to probe existing conditions which he claimed were responsible for pushing sub-contractors into bankruptcy, throwing men out of employment and generally creating chaotic conditions. The practice of the large bulk contractors in "peddling" contracts was criticized, and he urged a minimum wage law in the building industry.

Ontario's child welfare laws were discussed by Hon. W. G. Martin, Minister of Public Welfare, who expressed the hope that the day would not be far distant when these laws would be consolidated into a Children's Charter or Child's Bill of Rights. Hon. Mr. Martin gave a comprehensive picture of the government social welfare legislation, pointing to the Children's Protection Act under which since 1893, 32,000 children had been made wards of Children's Aid Societies and under the Adoption Act 9,000 children had been adopted into fine Ontario homes and given full legal status with the families. Since introduction of the Unmarried Parents Act in 1921, about $1,000,000 had been collected for the support of these infants thus relieving the municipalities and philanthropic societies to a large extent.

Mr. Martin expressed opposition to the suggestion that the Juvenile Court age be increased to 18 years, pointing out that while there is much to be said in favor of that move, yet at the present time the Industrial Schools of the province have no facilities for proper training of these older offenders. Consequently Mr. Martin opposed raising the present maximum age until there is provision for the segregation of those who have reached 16 from children of tender years.

Ontario's social services, he pointed out, are more advanced than those of any other government in North America and during 1932 free services at a total cost of almost $120,000,000 had been available to the people.

Young Tots Travel Long Way to Daddy

Two youngsters, aged four and six respectively, recently arrived at Halifax from Czecho-Slovakia and boarded a Canadian National Railways train for Chatham, Ont., where their daddy awaited them. The railway arranged for a woman who spoke their language to accompany them from Halifax to Montreal. On the way to Canada the young charges were under the care of the liner's stewardess. The last part of their journey from Montreal was in charge of the sleeping car conductor.

YOUR GROCER WILL HELP YOU KEEP HEALTHY AND HAPPY

Delicious Cereal Promotes Regular Habits

The right kinds of foods form the very basis of health. You need nourishment for strength and energy. And you need "bulk" to prevent common constipation.

Otherwise, this ailment may cause headaches, loss of appetite and energy. You can correct it, usually, by eating a delicious cereal.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN adds generous "bulk" to your daily menu. Tests show this "bulk" is similar to that found in leafy vegetables.

Inside the body, the fiber of ALL-BRAN absorbs moisture, and forms a soft mass. Gently, this clears out the intestinal wastes.

ALL-BRAN is also a good source of vitamin B and iron.

Isn't it safer—and pleasanter—to enjoy this food in place of taking patent medicines?

Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily will overcome most types of common constipation. Chronic cases, with each meal. If seriously ill, see your doctor. ALL-BRAN makes no claim to be a "cure-all."

Serve ALL-BRAN as a cereal with milk or cream, or cook into fluffy muffins and breads.

Remember, Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is all bran with only necessary flavoring added. It contains much more needed "bulk" than part-bran products. Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

Belleville Juniors Meet Petes in Next Junior O. H. A. Round by Defeating Queens 9-8

Score of Second Game of Second Round 4-2 for Tricolor

BARRIAGE STARS

Locals Looked as Good as Queens When on Offensive

Playing a purely defensive game, after holding Queen's to a one-all tie in the first period, the Belleville Juniors advanced to the second round of Junior O.H.A. playdowns, when they downed the Queen's kids 9 to 8 on the round, despite the fact they dropped last night's tilt by the score of 4 to 2, at the Jock Harty Arena in Kingston in an uninteresting game, from a spectator's viewpoint.

The Thomas-led kids now meet the speedy Peterboro Juniors in the second round, with goals to count. The first game of this series is scheduled to open at the Lift Lock City on Wednesday night with the return game being played in Belleville on Friday night of this week.

Open on Offensive

The local team opened last night's tilt purely on the offensive and carried the play the better part of the initial frame. From then on the "Red and White" endeavoured to hold their advantage with defensive tactics, that all but proved their ultimate undoing. In the latter stages of the game, however, the locals did endeavour to carry the play and were amply rewarded by a goal in the third period.

Cy Barriage at centre and "Stewie" McElrath stood out head and shoulders over their teammates with Barriage's famous poke check repeatedly stopping the continuous Queen's onslaught at centre ice. Bob Greer, Semark and Ridley entered occasionally into the picture with Semark playing his best game of the season in a local uniform.

The Queen's Kids, three goals down, repeatedly missed scoring chances owing to over-anxiousness. Davis, at right wing, was by far the best player to parade before the 500 odd fans to witness the tussle with Lewis and Avery following in order. McGinnis led the defencemen. Neither goalkeeper impressed, however. The homesters showed a better method of attack but proved rather weak around the nets or when in scoring position.

The Play

For the better part of the initial frame play ranged the length of the ice with both teams endeavouring to score first. Skipper Thomas returned Ethier to patrol the right boards after an absence of five games.

McGuire sailed in close but the puck slipped out of his possession as he was about to shoot, while Davis tested on the return play. Barriage was working overtime at centre with his poke check, continually harassing the homesters in the centre ice area. Harvey rifled one and Semark missed a scoring chance on the rebound. McGinnis missed a forward pass and Semark raced up the left boards, gave Hammett a perfect pass to have Bill open the scoring and put Belleville four goals up on the round. Thirty seconds later Davis shot an easy one past Sinfield to even the count. Barriage stickhandled through to have Gibson pull his feet from underneath him as he was about to shoot, penalty for Gibson. The local kids looked far the better team going both ways this period and not only outskated but outshot the Queen's kids repeatedly. The period ended with Davis hitting Sinfield's pads from close-in.

Long Range Shooting

Both teams opened the middle frame entirely on the offensive with Queen's continually shooting at long range. Barriage missed Ethier's pass out from the corner. Marshall came out to beat Barriage. Davis shot long, Sinfield came out to save and Avery poked the puck into an open Belleville net during a scramble, putting Queen's one up on the game. Queen's went on the offensive and Christie missed by inches. Play became ragged, when Belleville passed the defence forcing Queen's to shoot from the blue line. Lewis shot over the net and Queen's applied the pressure without results until Queen's broke away three abreast with Avery taking a forward pass from Lewis to score a nice goal making the score 3 to 1 for Queen's or 8 to 7 on the round in favor of Belleville.

Marshall beat Ethier and Ridley. The period ended with Queen's purely on the offensive and continually out-playing Belleville.

McElrath opened the last period by testing with a low drive, that Marshall came to his knees to stop. Davis held McElrath's stick and drew a penalty. Ridley dumped Avery to draw a penalty and Queen's moved four on the attack. During a scramble in front of the Belleville net Christie drew a penalty for pushing the puck with his hand into the net. Semark coasted up the left boards drew McGinnis aside, passed to Barriage who made sure of his count by side-stepping Marshall making the score 3 to 2 for Queen's. With Sinfield out of the net Semark threw the puck to save a sure goal but drew a penalty. Queen's literally bombarded for the next few moments and were rewarded when McGinnis passed to Davis, who scored from close-in just before Semark came back. With the score 9 to 8 on the round Queen's again applied the pressure. McGuire and Barriage broke away but Marshall saved. Queen's moved five up forward but the Belleville team staved off defeat by continually shooting to protect their lead. The game ended 4 to 2 for Queen's giving Belleville the round.

The line-ups:

Belleville — Goal, Sinfield, defence, Greer and McElrath, centre, Barriage, wings, Ethier and McGuire, subs, Hammett, Semark, Ridley and Harvey.

Queen's—Goal, Marshall, defence McGinnis and Gibson, centre, Avery, wings, Davis and Lewis, subs, Murley, Brackenbury, Smith and hristie.

"Congratulations Belleville"—"Bring on those Petes". Just when things began to look gloomy for the local cause at Kingston last night Eddie Thomas' charges rose to the occasion and showed their mettle to stave off what looked like certain defeat. The Queen's kids threw their all into the tussle but the local lads had that something that has brought them to the front all season, and demonstrated it with victory. The local Cubs battled to the last ditch and won the honors they now enjoy. It was a hard fought struggle. The local kids, after eliminating Queen's, now meet that much-heralded Peterboro junior squad from along the shores of the Otonabee River. According to the information at hand the first game is to be played at the Liftlock City on Wednesday night with the return game being scheduled for Belleville on Friday evening.

History nearly repeated itself last night when the "red and white clad aggregation from Belleville tried in a most unprolificly manner to play defensive hockey and protect their lead much too early in the game. Last year's elimination through the same channels should have resulted in sufficient lessons in this method of puck-chasing. While the locals were on the offensive last night they looked equal, if not better, to their opponents, but the moment they tried the "kitty-bar-the-door" type of hockey they lost what initiative they had; proving that old chestnut—"offence is the best defence you can play".

Cy Barriage, that mighty little atom of energy, literally worked himself into exhaustion last night and to cap off a good night's work, he played practically the entire third period to assure a local victory. McElrath returned to form and played a stellar game while Jim Semark turned in his best effort yet seen in a local uniform. Ridley is improving rapidly. Last night's game did not impress due entirely to the fact that one team was playing defensive hockey and the other but trying to pull down a substantial goal lead, enjoyed by their opponents. The homesters fought back gamely but the locals repeatedly rose to the occasion when pressed the hardest. With the material at hand and the opportunities that have presented themselves the 1934 edition of the Belleville juniors is to be congratulated on the position they now enjoy. A win over the Petes will mean much to Belleville junior hockey circles.

"Baseball's greatest manager"—"the corner-stone of the game's competitive spirit"—"the best in the business"—"a true sportsman". Those were the things they said yesterday of John J. McGraw. And although the fight, hustle and strict discipline he practiced and asked of others made him enemies galore to weigh against his thousands of admirers and friends, the world of baseball mourned as one the passing of the rotund little Napoleon of the ball-diamond.

There has been a slight change in the original dates set for the interscholastic hockey play-offs between Marmora High School and the Belleville Collegiate Institute pucksters. Originally the tri-color were to have played in Marmora on Tuesday night with the return game being played in Belleville on Thursday evening. Early today, however, Coach Shiels announced that the first game would be played in Belleville on Thursday with the return game being staged at Marmora on Saturday next. Last year the "northerners" experienced little difficulty in vanquishing the local contingent in the play-offs, winning both games. Coach Shiels started to work on his 1934 edition of the B.C.I.V.S. hockey team much earlier this season and has gathered togehter an evenly balanced team that should reverse last year's score. The home game will commence at 7:30 p.m. and be followed by public skating.

Recent press dispatches from St. Paul, Minn., tell us that Lawrence "Larry" Goyer of this city, is going great guns these days in the newly formed Central League. "Larry" is at present leading the scorers in the loop and is described as the club's "big thrill-producer". Despite recent hampering muscle injuries, Goyer has inspired his team mates to a point where they now enjoy second place in their league and are travelling at top speed. In a game played at Hibbing, Minn. recently, Goyer scored two goals and assisted in the third counter that gave the Saints a 3 to 2 victory. Even in his junior days in and around Belleville Larry Goyer was a wizard at the art of stick-handling, an asset he still enjoys to the utmost, rumors say.

Primo Carnera will defend his heavyweight title for the first time on American soil tomorrow night when he steps into the squared circle against Tommy Loughran at Miami. The wise guys of sportdom are rather skeptical as to the drawing powers of the fracas and outwardly prophecy the project will be a financial flop. Time alone will answer that question. Right at the same time boxing will be presented for the first time this season here in Belleville when the South End A. C. promoters assume the limelight with a ten-bout card. Matchmaker Joe Samaine completed all final arrangements for the card this morning and was assured the appearance of all contestants. The bouts are of the highest possible calibre.

Sam Jones of the White Sox and Bobby Roth, a member of the White Sox in 1914 and 1915, are tied for the record of having served on the most American League clubs. Each has played with six teams. Jones never worked for the Athletics or Tigers and Roth was snubbed by the Tigers and Browns. Joseph C. Schultz was with seven National League clubs from 1912 to 1925, missing only the Giants.

PRESTON RIVERSIDES OUT IN NEXT ROUND

Defeat Niagara Falls 8-6 on Round After Being Held to Tie at Falls

Niagara Falls, Ont, Feb. 27—(CP)—Scrappiest team of youngsters, Preston has produced in a long time, Riversides today were enroute to further honors in the Junior Ontario Hockey Association series. They stepped along the victory path after one of the toughest battles they had been through this season—the 3-3 overtime tussle with Niagara Falls juniors last night.

In the first game of the two-game total-goal series in Preston, Riversides came out on top 5-3 and last nights draw gave them the round 8-6. Systematic hockey and always on the spot for opening enabled Riversides to hold the fast-stepping Falls' team to a deadlock.

SHORTAGE OF ROSES PROBABLE

Cold And Extreme Hard Winter May be The Cause

Rose lovers of the city will experience one of the most noticeable shortages of their favorite bloom next year, according to the opinion of expert horticulturists of the city. Their expected scarcity will be just another result of the early and continued winter of the present season. It is believed, however, that bulbs and other roots will be unharmed, by the winter's unprecedented temperatures.

The matter was carefully explained by Mr. Chas. Bishop, seed dealer of the city who was questioned today.

"Most of the individuals, who owned rose bushes were caught short by the first few unexpected frosts at the beginning of the winter. Hundreds of rose bushes were killed, and others weakened so badly by the cold weather that their resistance could not fight the following low temperatures. The majority of them were irreparably ruined. I don't think, however, that the majority of the bulbs that have been planted were harmed much. The thick snow will help a lot, but the above ground shrubbery experienced one of the hardest winters on record."

ELECTRIC SHOCKS FOR UNWILLING MULE

Mules Loaded For Italian Army With Aid of Device

An experimental consignment of mules, intended for the Italian army, was loaded on shipboard with the aid of an electric shocking device attached to the end of a fishing pole. When the mule hesitated it was touched on the hindquarters with a piece of weakly electrified wire, a proceeding which, says the Agricultural Department of the the Canadian National Railways, greatly facilitated loading.

During the Great War, the Italians learned that the mule was more sure-footed than the horse, and 20,000 army horses are to be replaced by this hybrid animal.

The loading was done at Saint John, New Brunswick, by trained mule-handlers.

FLOATING POWER
These engine mountings are the only type that support the engine in balance. Engine vibration cannot reach the frame of the car.
INDIVIDUAL WHEEL SPRINGING
The type used on Plymouth is the strongest made. Each wheel takes its own bumps. No bouncing, no jar. Every 1934 Plymouth has this feature.
SAFETY-STEEL BODY
HYDRAULIC 4 WHEEL BRAKES

Plymouth is the only lowest-priced Car with All of these features . . . And it's the Biggest Lowest-price Car

YOUR PLYMOUTH DEALER is waiting to show you the new 1934 Plymouths. And he has special reasons for wanting you to see them — ride in them — drive one yourself.

For this year—Plymouth has four vital features that you cannot get together in any other lowest-priced car.

Before you buy any low-priced car—see the tremendous difference between a car that has all of these fundamental features —and one that hasn't.

The year's big development in automotive engineering is individual wheel springing. But note this, Plymouth is the only lowest-priced car that has individual springing on ALL models . . . even the lowest-priced.

Individual springing takes the bumps out of the road. But, it's important to take the vibration out of the engine as well!

So every Plymouth has Floating Power engine mountings. Engine vibration can't reach the driver or his passengers.

Then—you're safer when you ride in a Plymouth. Because Plymouth has both hydraulic brakes and a safety-steel body.

Hydraulic brakes equalize themselves—so you never swerve to a stop. As for bodies—you're obviously safer in a body of steel reinforced with steel.

De Luxe Plymouths with 114-inch wheelbase are the biggest low-priced cars built.

Eight Examples of Plymouth Quality

1. Rigid-X Box Section frame. Much stronger and more rigid than conventional types.
2. T-Slot Pistons. Better fit between piston and cylinder.
3. Four Rings per Piston. The extra ring gives better compression.
4. Engine Oil Filter. Better lubrication—and longer life from your lubricant.
5. All-Quiet Transmission. Plymouth is quiet in low, second, high and reverse.
6. Four Main Crankshaft Bearings. Instead of the usual three.
7. Independent Hand Brake. An extra braking system.
8. Thirty Frictionless Bearings. More than any other low-priced car.

Visit the nearest Chrysler-Plymouth showroom—and see what your money ought to buy this year.

PETRIE—SANFORD

(Contributed)

A quiet, pretty wedding took place at seven o'clock, Saturday evening, at the parsonage of the Rev. Dr. Semple, when Pauline Louise, only daughter of Mrs. Louise Sanford, Church street, became the bride of Mr. Raymond W. Petrie, youngest son of Mr. Lewis Petrie and the late Mrs. Petrie, College street, the bride looked charming in a dress of powder blue, French crepe, with hat and accessories to match. Mrs. Harry Petrie, sister-in-law, of the groom, made a lovely bridesmaid, in a dress of triple sheer crepe glory blue with hat and accessories to match. Mr. Harry W. Petrie, brother of the groom was groomsman. The happy young couple will reside in Belleville at 52 Church street.

AIKENS W.A.

The monthly meeting of the W.A. was held at the home of Mrs. Hubble on Thursday with a good attendance.

After the usual sumptuous dinner an interesting programme was given. Mrs. S. Westover took charge of the meeting as the past president Mrs. A. Saylor had resigned. Meeting was opened with a hymn and prayer by Mrs. T. Hinchliffe. The Scripture reading was given by Mrs. P. Grills and the lesson answered by a verse of Scripture. Short readings were given by Mrs. C. McMullen and Mrs. Brickman. Mrs. Lee Grills rendered a piano selection and Mrs. Earl Bush a vocal solo which was enjoyed by all. A contest made up of questions of which the answers would be found in the Bible was to be carried on for another month as some had not had a chance to work on them. Mrs. Spafford gave a reading entitled— "Dr. Johnson's Picture of a Cow."

A president for the remainder of the year was voted on, Mrs. C. McMullen being elected. Mrs. G. Brickman will act in the position of secretary which was held by Mrs. McMullen. Mrs. F. Moon was nominated as press secretary owing to resignation of Mrs. W. Bush. Miss Aletha Parry gave a reading on — "Take it Easy." The treasurer's report of the past year was given and all were well satisfied with the result of the year's work. Meeting was closed with a hymn and prayer by Mrs. S. Westover. Dinner collection amounted to over three dollars.

SALEM W.M.S.

The February meeting of the Salem W.M.S. was held on Friday, Feb. 16 at the home of Mrs. S. Haight. There were 16 members present and one visitor. The meeting opened with a hymn, followed by all repeating "The Lord is My Shepherd." Mrs. Cole read the Scripture. Roll Call was answered by a verse containing word "Prayer" and next month to contain the word "Love". The reports were given and business discussed. A social evening was decided upon to be held at Mrs. T. Leslie's in the near future.

The programme for the World's Day of Prayer was then very carefully carried through, the theme being "Pray for the Peace of Jerusalem." This programme was very interesting and helpful to all. The meeting closed with prayer in unison.

General Proportions and Method for Soft Custard

To 1 cup milk, allow a few grains of salt, 2 tablespoons sugar, and 1 egg (or 2 yolks, which will make a richer custard); for flavouring, use 1-4 teaspoon vanilla or some lemon rind scalded in milk, or some caramel or coffee flavouring. (Coffee may be scalded in the milk, then strained out.)

Scald the milk in double boiler first, for custard sauce; beat slightly the whole egg or egg yolk (or 1 egg and 1 yolk); beat in the sugar and salt and stir in the hot milk. Return to double boiler and cook, stirring constantly, until mixture coats a silver spoon. Remove from heat immediately sauce is this thick—and at no time let the water boil in the lower pot. Flavour and strain. Place at once over cold water.

IF CUSTARD CURDLES, beat smooth with a double Dover beater.

If you have to get along with 1 egg yolk to a cup of milk, mix 2 teaspoons flour with your sugar—it will help to thicken your custard. Stir the heated milk into the sugar and flour cook, stirring, until thickened. Then stir slowly into the beaten egg and finish as usual.

Firm Custard

One of our simplest and most popular egg dishes is that well known dessert—the firm custard. Though so very easily made, the custards must be combined by very definite rule and the proportions carefully watched.

There will be a full lesson on desserts at the end of this course; but because they belong so closely to the subject of egg cookery, the custard puddings are included here.

General Proportions and Methods for Firm Custard

2 cups milk, scalded; 1-4 teaspoon salt; 2 to 4 tablespoons sugar; 2 eggs or 4 yolks; 3-4 teaspoon vanilla.

Beat the eggs slightly, add sugar and salt. Gradually stir in the scalded milk and continue stirring until the sugar is dissolved. Flavor, strain, pour into wet custard cuts or large baking dish. (If cooked in large amount, increase eggs to 3 for 2 cups of milk.)

To Cook Firm Custard

STEAMING—Steam over gently boiling water until firm.

OVEN POACHING—Place baking dishes or custard cups in a pan of hot water, cook in a rather slow oven, 325° F., until firm.

To Test Firm Custard

Insert a silver knife into the centre of the custard. If it comes out clean, unmisted, the custard is cooked.

TO UNMOULD individual firm custards: When quite cold, run a knife around edge, invert over serving dish and shake out gently.

Toppings—Serve alone or with whipped cream or canned or fresh fruits.

Precautions in Making Firm Custard

1. Stir hot milk GRADUALLY into egg mixture.
2. Always strain before cooking.
3. Do not allow water to boil rapidly in lower part of steamer, and do not bake without using outer pan of hot water.
4. Remove from heat AS SOON AS COOKED.

Variations of Firm Custard

CHOCOLATE—Scald 1 square chocolate with the milk; increase sugar to 1-3 cup.

CARAMEL—Flavor with 1 1-2 tablespoons caramel syrup and 1-6 teaspoon vanilla.

SPICED—Flavor with grated nutmeg.

Bread Puddings

Bread puddings are firm custards in which 1 cup breadcrumbs have been substituted for 1 egg (if crumbs are very dry use only from 1-2 to 2-3 cup). The method for combining and cooking is practically identical with that for Firm Custards.

Plain Bread Pudding

2 cups scalded milk; 2 to 4 tablespoons sugar; 1 cup bread crumbs; 1-4 teaspoon salt; 1 egg; 1 1-2 tablespoons butter; 3-4 teaspoon vanilla.

Pour the scalded milk in which the butter is melted, over the breadcrumbs, let stand until soft, then beat until very smooth. Do not strain. Otherwise complete and cook as Firm Custard. Serve with hard sauce or foamy sauce.

Variations of Bread Pudding

CHOCOLATE—Scald 1 1-2 ounce chocolate with the milk. Increase the sugar to 1-3 cup. Prepare and cook as Bread Pudding.

COCOANUT—Substitute 6 tablespoons shredded cocoanut for 1-3 cup crumbs.

LEMON—Flavor with 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 3-4 tablespoon grated lemon rind. Omit vanilla.

ORANGE—Omit 1-2 cup milk. Stir in at the end 1-2 cup orange juice, 1 tablespoon lemon juice and 1 tablespoon grated orange rind, as flavouring. Increase sugar to 1-3 cup.

QUEEN'S PUDDING—Use 2 egg yolks in place of 1 egg in plain bread pudding. When cooked, spread with jam or jelly, cover with meringue, made by beating the whites until stiff and gradually beating in 4 tablespoons sugar; return to oven, oven-poach in a slow oven, 275° F., until brown.

Bread and Butter Pudding

Cut stale bread in 1-3 inch strips, spread with butter, arrange in buttered baking dish, making only 3-4 full. Cover with raw mixture for firm custard (made as directed). Let stand 1 hour, cook as Firm Custard. (May be flavoured with spices or varied by the addition of fruits or by spreading each layer with jam.) Stale cake, unbuttered, may be substituted for the bread.

CHEESE

As I have said at the beginning of this lesson, cheese is like egg in two ways—it belongs to the substantial body-building foods—and in cooking, it cannot be given a strong heat; low heat or a short time of cooking is necessary for good cheese dishes. You will observe that all the best cheese dishes can be quickly made or that cheese is combined with foods already cooked, so the dish can be finished with little heating.

You have noticed how well the nippy flavour of cheese fits in with foods like bread, biscuits, macaroni, rice—things with a bland and gentle flavour of their own; it goes well with vegetables, too, and cheese and eggs, although they are so much alike in the work they do, make an excellent combination (since both cook rapidly and egg has a mild flavour.) Cheese and bacon give another "natural born" combination of flavours.

I am going to give you one example of as many kinds of cheese dish as possible in this lesson—and you can make others from each one.

CHEESE SANDWICHES—Use soft spreading cheese, or grate Canadian cheese and soften it with butter or cream or salad dressing. A little mustard improves many cheese spreads. Use plain or with chopped nuts, chopped olives, or pickle, orange marmalade, tart jelly or jam, to spread between brown or white or nut bread. (Different additions will suit different kinds of cheese.)

TOASTED CHEESE SANDWICHES—Spread 1 slice of buttered bread with soft or grated cheese, the other slice with orange marmalade or chopped fried bacon, touch of catsup, etc. Put together and toast on both sides. Serve very hot.

CHEESE DREAMS—Make cheese sandwiches, with or without fried bacon, fry sandwich to a golden brown on both sides in a buttered pan. Serve very hot (in lettuce cup or on cress, when possible.)

MACARONI AND CHEESE—Cook macaroni or spaghetti in a large potful of boiling salted water, until tender. Drain it in collander, run cold water through it.

Make plenty of cream sauce and add 1-3 cup grated cheese to each cupful of sauce. Allow at least 2 cups sauce to 2 cups cooked macaroni.

Put alternate layers cooked macaroni and cheese sauce in a greased baking dish—keep mixture very moist. Spread top with good layer of grated cheese, plain or with buttered crumbs, and sprinkle with paprika. The secret is the cheese sauce—and plenty of it. (You learned to make it in Lesson 1.)

Use canned spaghetti if you like, even if made with tomato sauce. Just add the cheese sauce and cheese topping.

Place macaroni or spaghetti dish in a pan of hot water and bake in moderate oven until golden brown on top.

CHEESE AND RICE CROQUETTES—Mix 2 cups cold boiled rice with 2 tablespoons melted butter, 1 slightly beaten egg and a little salt and pepper. Shape soft cheese or grated cheese softened with butter, in small balls, the size of a walnut. Around these press a coating of rice mixture to cover completely. Roll these larger balls in sifted biscuit or dry bread crumbs, then in beaten egg, mixed with a little water, and again in the crumbs (which should be seasoned with salt and pepper.) Fry balls in deep hot fat. (Temperature 385-390° F. or hot enough to brown a small square of bread in 40 seconds.) Serve with cheese sauce (Lesson 1.)

CHEESE OMELETTE—Make either the plain omelette or the fluffy omelette, as I taught you to do in the first part of this lesson. Before folding it, spread half generously with grated cheese—and if you like, serve cheese sauce with the omelette.

It is delicious to pack an omelette with both a vegetable like asparagus, creamed peas or creamed celery, and the grated cheese.

POACHED EGGS WITH CHEESE—Make a cheese sauce either by adding grated cheese to the cream sauce or for a snappier dish, in the way I shall give you next.

Pour this over hot buttered toast and slip a poached egg on each slice. Sprinkle lightly with paprika.

CHEESE SAUCE—RAREBIT STYLE—Put 1 tablespoon butter and 1 1-2 cups grated cheese in double boiler over hot but not boiling water, and when melted, stir in 1-4 cup milk and season with salt, pepper and a little mustard. When smooth, slowly stir into a beaten egg, return to double boiler, cook a few moments, (stirring) and when thickened, remove from heat and beat with egg beater. Do not overcook.

CHEESE TARTS—Make the superior flaky pastry which I taught you in Lesson 4. Roll chilled paste thin and bake as small tart shells.

For the filling, beat 3 tablespoons whipping cream until fluffy, then combine with 1 cup cottage or white cream cheese, which you have beaten smooth with a fork. Add 1-8 teaspoon salt and 1 tablespoon fruit sugar. Beat well, adding a little more cream if necessary to make very light.

Partly fill cold tart shells with currant or grape or gooseberry jam or jelly, then spread with the cheese mixture and drop a spot of jelly on top or sprinkle with finely ground nutmeats.

CHEESE AND BACON PIN WHEELS—Slice fine-textured fresh bread the lengthwise way of the loaf, about 1-4 inch thick. Trim off all crusts. Spread with butter and with soft cheese or grated cheese. Roll up like a jelly roll. Cut down in slices about 1 inch thick, wrap a very thin slice of fat side-bacon around each, fasten the bacon with a toothpick. Toast in the oven until bacon is crisp. Serve very hot.

Some of my best cheese sandwiches and delicious canapes, not to mention other good cheese dishes, are given in "Planning the Party;" you will also find in this little book of the Easy-Way Series, egg dishes which (like a lot of other things in it) you will never reserve for company occasions only!

MR. AND MRS. FLOYD SANDERCOCK ARE HONOURED

Bayside—Neighbours and friends numbering about ninety-five from Frankford, Brighton, Trenton, a sleighload from 2nd Concession and friends of Bayside gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Sandercock, Thursday evening to spend a social time together before they leave for their new home in Murray. About ten o'clock the gathering was called to order and the following address was read by Mrs. Albert Jones:

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Sandercock:

"Dear Friends,

"We, the neighbours and friends of your community have assembled here to spend a social hour or so with you before going to your new home. Although you are not moving so very far away from us yet we feel that we wish to take this opportunity of assuring you of our kindest wishes and good-will.

"We, the neighbours and friends of this community feel that by your departure we are the loser of a kind neighbour. Your willing hands have always been ready to aid in every undertaking but we feel what is our loss will be the gain of others. We are still all glad that you are not going so very far away from us. We ask you to accept these chairs not for their intrinsic value but of your kind friendship and the high esteem we hold for you and your family. We pray that God's richest and choicest blessings may follow you not only in your new home but all through life as shall our kindest thoughts for we are your friends.

"(Signed on behalf of your neighbours and friends), Mr. Albert Jones, Mr. Sam Reid."

An oak rocker and arm chair to match were then presented. Mr. and Mrs. Sandercock fittingly replied, thanking their friends for the gifts and urging one and all to visit them in their new home. Refreshments were then served. The rest of the evening was spent in games and dancing.

Miss Ella Brooks spent a few days last week, with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sandercock.

Mr. and Mrs. William Westfall spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Roy Westfall, Trenton.

Mrs. Walter Jones, Muriel and Marian visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Harry, Thursday.

Mrs. Rowe Hunt, Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Hunt, Miss Rhoada Hunt and Mr. Will Haffner spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Flay Boulton of Smithfield.

Miss Helen Jeffrey spent last week with Mr. and Mrs. A. Crews at Mount Zion.

Miss Eleanor Saylor spent Sunday with Miss Clarabel Bonisteel at the home of Mrs. W. Bonisteel.

Mr. and Mrs. Saunders and family have moved from their home here on the Gothard farm to Canifton.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Frost entertained some friends to a social evening Thursday night.

Miss Irene Reid spent the week end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Reid.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Reid entertained relatives from Ameliasburg on Thursday evening.

Mrs. Helen Bramhall is visiting her sister, Mrs. Paice.

Miss Marie Stickle spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Stickle.

Mrs. Clayton Stickle and daughter, Ruby, of Frankford, spent a few days last week at the home of Mr. Jim and Ben Harry.

Mr. and Mrs. George Gay attended the funeral of the former's brother which was held on Sunday in Albury.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Sandercock, Verna and Billy and Mr. and Mrs. Bert Sarles spent the dinner hour Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Megginson.

Mrs. Jas. Sandercock spent the week end with her daughter, Mrs. Fred Wilson.

AT THE CAPITOL

"House on 56th Street"

Through "The House on 56th Street," on the screen at the Capitol Theatre today and Wednesday, presenting Kay Francis as the star in this Warner Bros. picture, runs a double drama. The story, as it progresses, becomes the drama of a mansion as well as the drama of a woman.

"The House on 56th Street" is probably the first motion picture to make the history of a gorgeous city mansion once the home of a young wealthy society couple, and thirty years later, a garish night-club and gambling hall, the setting for a striving emotional drama.

Interwoven with the history of her home where she began life as a bride, is the varicolored life of Peggy of the Follies, as Kay Francis delineates her in this picture. Spanning a period of thirty years in the history of both the mansion and its mistress, "The House on 56th Street" has for its background all the events that made the years from 1903 to 1933 memorable and colorful. It is there that Kay Francis first comes as the "Flora-dora" girl who married one of New York's social lights. It is there she returns after a cruel blow by fate, to act against her wishes as a blackjack dealer for a notorious gambler.

A famous historian once remarked that it takes less than fifty years for a New York house to fall from the home of aristocracy to the level of a tenement of vice, crime and degradation, so rapidly does the center of fashionable population shift in the great metropolis from one decade to another.

"The House on 56th Street" strikingly dramatizes this theory, besides being an absorbing story of a woman's life and the sacrifices she is compelled to make for those she loves.

Around Kay Francis as the star of the picture are grouped such seasoned players as Margaret Lindsay, John Halliday, Ricardo Cortez, Frank McHugh, Nella Walker, Stella Terry, Henry O'Neill, William Boyd, Gene Raymond, Philip Faversham, Philip Reed, Renee Whitney, Helen Barclay, Pat Wing and Lorena Layson.

Added film subjects include: Mirthquake comedy, Cartoon, Camera adventure: "Symphony of the River." "Royal Princess" dinnerware gifts Tuesday. Matinee, 2.30; evening performances at 7.15 and 9 p.m.

AT THE BELLE

"ORIENT EXPRESS" AND "DAY OF RECKONING"

Graham Green's best-selling novel comes to the screen of the Belle Theatre today (Tuesday), for a two day engagement under its original title "Orient Express".

The picture is reported as being even more sensational than the book. Fox Films has reconstructed on an exact scale the deluxe train with its coaches and thundering engines, its cosmopolitan dining cars and the milling crowds and noisy stations of Europe.

The story of "Orient Express" is novel, in that it gives a dramatic characterization of seven strange people who meet on board a train speeding from Ostend to Constantinople. The seven are a dancer; a wealthy young merchant, who falls in love with the dancer, a cockney Englishman and his domineering wife; a thief, fleeing from justice; a beautiful girl, a communist leader and a woman reporter. The emotions and ambitions of these seven people are dramatically characterized. As the train nears the Jugo-Slavian border, the communist gives the dancer an incriminating letter which leads to her arrest along with the thief and communist himself. How the dancer finally disentangles herself from the grasp of the net, fate has cast around her, brings the film to what is reported as a tense and exciting climax.

Heather Angel, has the leading feminine role, while Norman Foster plays the romantic lead opposite her.

"Day of Reckon'ng"

When a man goes to prison his wife may have to wait one year, even two, but seldom more than three.

All the romancing and sentimentalism that has been woven about the families of men in the "big house" can be reduced to just that iron formula. It is not a statement of any highbrow expert, but is the actual experiences of thousands of men "up the river".

Richard Dix and Madge Evans head the notable cast of players assembled to portray the leading roles in the story. The cast also includes such favorites as Conway Tearle, Una Merkel, Stuart Erwin, and McFarlane. The Belle Current News and the Autograph Hunter will also be exhibited.

Belleville Lucky Compared to Ottawa

Back from Ottawa, where he had been attending a convention, Mr. A. B. Baird, chief of the local Dominion Entomological Laboratory, stated today, that civic departments in this city had emerged with flying colors through the coldest weather. Compared with the Capital city, Belleville has been lucky.

On one day of low temperature 85 fire hydrants were reported out of commission through frost, while several mains in all sections of the city were also reported frozen. Frost had reached a six foot depth there, it was reported, stated Mr. Baird.

The butter market was quoted 29½c to 30c per lb. for No. 1 in carlots or l. c. l. lots, unchanged from last week's close. Receipts were only 11 boxes.

The egg market was quoted 45c for A-large, 43-44c for A-medium, and 42-43c for A-pullets. Receipts were 797 cases. Prospects are said to be for a firm market for the next week or so, stormy weather continuing to hold up production and deliveries.

Write To Clerk Regarding Relative

Civic offices have apparently gained the reputation through past successes of being a first rate lost and found and information bureau from seekers throughout the country.

Today a letter had been received at the city hall by Wilfred J. Holmes, city clerk, from the Canadian Research Company, Montreal requesting any information that could be given on the whereabouts of Mary Ellen Ross, who had resided it is believed in this district previous to the year 1932. Other information regarding relatives, etc., was also requested.

"Any information that you might be able to give me would be beneficial, to herself and family," stated Mr. Oliver Page, Montreal, writer of the letter.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

NEW YORK - TORONTO - WINNIPEG

WALL STREET FINANCIAL

New York, Feb. 27—(AP)— Financial markets displayed a little firmer front today, but most traders continued to maintain a watchful waiting attitude.

Stocks were highly irregular and exceptionally dull in the early hours and the ticker tape was frequently idle. A mild rally later failed to enliven the proceedings to any great extent. Bonds had a better tone.

Shares of U.S. Smelting came back 3 points, while American Smelting and Cerro De Pasco advanced 1 each. Case, Sears Roebuck and Montgomery Ward recovered a point or more, but Penney dropped 1.

Canadian securities moved within narrow confines. Shares of Dome, McIntyre and International Nickel were steady to slightly higher. On the curb Hiram Walker got up a sizeable fraction. Canadian government 4s edged a shade higher. The Canadian dollar was 1-3 cent lower at 99.31 1-4 cents.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Feb. 27 (CP).—Industrial stocks were inclined to recover moderately from the sell-off of the last few sessions in today's early trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange. Brazilian traction was sold rather freely, apparently on the assumption that income would be trimmed by the new regulations enforcing collections by the company partly in Brazilian currency and the price was unable to get above 12½, off ⅛. Ford A. sold down to 22 in the first hour but improved a little before noon.

International Nickel staged a recovery of 40 cents to 23.40 and Consolidated Smelters at 153 was up 3 points. Distillery shares were up on active turnover. Walker's Common holding at 46 at noon for a net gain of ⅜ while Distillers Seagrams at 20¼ was unchanged and Industrial Alcohol was up ⅛ at 15¾. Brewers and Distillers added 10 cents, selling at 2.75.

Metal shares assumed the leadership after the board as a whole had presented an unsteady appearance through part of the morning session. International Nickel moved up 60 cents to $23.60 and Smelters recovered 5 points of its recent set-back. The general tone was firm to strong this afternoon. Ford A. and Brazilian were weak spots in the early trading, Ford getting back to 22 and Brazilian turning over quite actively at 12¼. The Motor Stock firmed to 22½ this afternoon on good buying.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, February 27. — (CP)—Trading dragged slowly with prices barely steady in the early session of the Toronto Exchange, Mining Section today. All the Senior Gold Stock shares were practically out of the picture. Silver shares were moderately weak and Base Metal issues narrowly off.

Dome registered a recovery of 35 cents to $35.10; Hollinger at $13.95 was up to 10 cents; Lake Shore gained 25 cents to $45.25; Wright Hargreaves was up 3 cents to $7.20 and Bralorne at $11 was unchanged. In the medium-priced shares the tone was steady, several issues including San Antonio, Howey, Siscoe and Ashley gaining 1 to 3 cents each.

Silver shares weakened uniformly on a low volume of trading Eldorado dropped 8 cents to $3.47; Nipissing 5 to $2.60; Bear Exploration 2 to 70, and Castle 3 to 70.

The big Gold Shares firmed on limited buying this afternoon and in the Silver Group the considerable losses of the morning were reduced or erased in the case of Eldorado which sagged to $3.47 off 8 cents, the price recovered to $3.60 for a small net gain this afternoon and Castle, and Nipissing and Mining Corporation were steady.

The improved tone for the Metals on the New York Market had a helpful influence on the Toronto listings, Noranda, Sudbury Basin, Falconbridge and Hudson Bay all doing better this afternoon.

NOTICE TO WATER CONSUMERS

Owing to the extreme cold weather and the fact that it is necessary to let house taps run to keep services open, the present pumpage of water at the city plant has reached a figure never before duplicated. This demand has taxed the department to capacity. We would appreciate the co-operation of the consumers of the city in trying to keep down wastage of water by allowing as little flow from opened taps as possible to keep the service open.

E. T. AUSTIN,
Manager Waterworks Department.

OLD DOBBIN HAS HIS INNINGS

Cars have been parked in their garages, and Old Dobbin is coming into his own in the district of Cannifton, it was reported at the general store of Mr. Wm. Reynolds, Cannifton, today. Although the highways through that section are reported in fairly good condition side-roads still present a problem for even the sturdy teams and sleighs. Mail carriers in particular have been having heavy going, while further in on the concession roads, farm houses are still marooned in the snow and residents are making no attempt to buck the drifts.

Passing of John J. McGraw Removes Colorful Figure from Baseball World

The death of John Joseph McGraw has removed from baseball its most successful manager and one of its most colorful figures.

Born in Truxton, N.Y., April 7, 1873, he was only seventeen years of age when he got his first professional job, playing the Olean, N.Y., in the old Iron and Steel League. In two years he was transferred to the Baltimore Orioles, who were under the direction of Ned Hanlon, and numbered such stars as HughyJenney, Willie Keeler and Wilbert Robinson.

From the Orioles he went in 1899 to the St. Louis Cardinals and in 1902 he played his first game for the New York Nationals. Shortly after he was appointed manager and set about building a new team. One of his first acquisitions was Christy Mathewson.

From there he went from one success to another. The above pictures illustrate the highlights in his career.

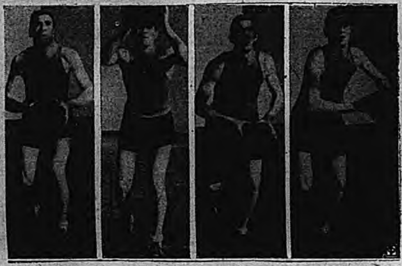
Always Look at Basket in Faking Shot; Other Deceptive Move You Should Know



By JACK LIPPERT

Deception is part of every good basketball player's equipment.

You hear it called "feinting" and "faking".

A player fakes a pass and dribbles; he fakes a pivot to the right and pivots to the left; he fakes a dribble and makes a bounce pass; he looks to the right and passes to the left; he fakes a shot and passes the ball (which is shown in the accompanying moving picture sequence).

In faking and feinting, the idea is to fool the opponents, not your own teammates. Therefore it is important that your teammates understand your peculiarities and mannerisms or else they will be fooled too by your faking!

For this reason, every player on the team ought to use all his resources in faking and feinting during the team's practice scrimmages, so that each member of the team becomes familiar with what to expect from every other member.

In faking a shot, as in the accompanying pictures, sometimes it is not necessary to go as far as flashing the ball up toward the basket (as in picture No. 2). Merely looking at the basket, then whipping off a chest pass to the right or left, is frequently sufficient. But the player must be sure to keep his eyes fixed on the basket. This is usually sufficient to disconcert the guard.

A player must have an assortment of fakes and feints in order to carry him successfully through a game by the use of deception.

If he had only the fake shot and actual pass, as his one deceptive weapon, his guard would soon be on to that.

He has been interested in, and successful in the breeding of Ayrshires for the past forty years, and a director of the association for twenty-seven years. Mr. Hume is the Honorary President of Northumberland County Ayrshire Breeders' Association.

PRE-GAME PREDICTIONS

By A. E. FULFORD

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Tommy Gorman and Lester Patrick may be annoyed about this but the fact must come out, that Toronto Leafs are making plans in which Chicago and New York Rangers don't rate as possible opponents in the National Hockey League title series.

Having made practically sure of the Canadian division, Leafs are preparing to battle Detroit Red Wings for the League title, figuring Jack Adams' team are a cinch to take the United States section.

And Toronto is going about it no haphazard way. They will scout the Wings and have a board of strategy to work out their wins on paper before they ever hit the ice.

Conny Smythe, Leaf manager, will watch Rangers play Wings in Detroit tonight, stay over Thursday to get a few pointers from the Montreal-Maroon-Detroit game Thursday and return to confer with his "Brian Trust."

Smythe,. Coach Dick Irvin, King Clancy, Happy Day and others of the more experienced players will put their heads together again next Monday after Detroit play Leafs here Saturday and they expected to have their probable opponents all figured out by that time.

Of course either Black Hawks or Rangers might come from behind and nose out the Wings, who now have a lead of five points, but the Leafs don't think they will.

While New York Americans, their opposition for a playoff spot, are idle until Sunday, Montreal Canadiens expect to start tonight to pick up points that will have it awfully tough for Joe Simpson's team to catch him.

The Habitants play tonight, Thursday and Saturday but couldn't have picked softer opposition if they arranged the schedule with their present situation in mind. They play Ottawa tonight and Boston Thursday and Saturday, both cellar teams.

St. Michael's the Team to Beat for the Junior Hockey Title

Here is the junior hockey team to beat for the Dominion championship. They represent St. Michael's College, Toronto, and as a team they are considered to be one of the strongest ever turned out in Eastern Canada. Edmonton and other centres in the West will have to step fast to keep pace with this team. Gathered from all over the province of Ontario, they started out to be a team of individual stars. But coach, Dr. Jerry Laflamme, soon knocked that out of them, and now even the pros marvel at their smooth passing plays and clever back-checking. There seems to b nothing on the horizon capable of holding these lads from the C.A.H.A. Memorial trophy, though strange things happen in hockey play-offs. Th team, (shown above) is; TOP, LEFT to RIGHT: Johnny Acheson, Johnn Hamilton, Pep Kelly. INSETS, RIGHT to LEFT: Don Wilson and Left Bauer. BOTTOM ROW: Art Jackson, Harvey Teno, goalie, shown i sweater of his old love, Windsor; Reggie Hamilton and INSET, Nick Met

Talaraemia Communicable to Humans at this Period

Rabbits at Peak of Their Seven Year Cycle Believed

Rabbits are at the peak of their seven year cycle this year, it is reported by farmers and residents of rural sections through this district, but with their plentifulness a periodic recurrence of the "rabbit plague" is also reported. The condition has engaged the official attention of the Royal Ontario Museum who have just issued a questionnaire to hunters, trappers and sportsmen in all sections which will assist the Museum in building up their knowledge of the plague.

From other sources it has been seen that the formerly rare and dangerous disease called tularaemia which will decimate the ranks of the little animals during the next week or so, by killing off thousands of them, has also just at this season become particularly communicable to humans engaged in their capture.

Reeve R. C. Brett, of Limerick Township, one of those questioned by the Ontario Museum, has in recent years seen and described the plague, which attacks the rabbits. Hundreds of them have been observed by him huddling in the snow in the swamps and woods, too far gone to move or hop out of the way of the human, who might pass along. On closer inspection they have been found to be alive with ticks which burrow through the skin into the flesh, sapping the vitality of the animal. Whether these ticks, blisters and other ailments are conducive to the dread disease tularaemia, has not been established by the Museum. They are, however, anxious to find out, hence the questionnaire.

One case of the above disease which is readily contracted by those who may engage in skinning a dead afflicted rabbit, was reported in this city some time ago. Through a small cut or break in the skin, the disease germs entered and caused the resident some anxious moments and considerable pain before the trouble was over.

Be careful when handling wild rabbits at this period, people are warned. Danger of contracting the disease from eating the cooked meat is believed to be small; cooking, it is said, destroys the germ.

Third Thurlow, Feb. 27.—Mr. Fred Rupert, who was injured some time ago by a fall on the ice, is slowly improving.

Miss Mildred Tweedy is spending a few weeks with friends in Belleville.

The Misses Edna and Bertha Badgley, also Mr. W. N. Badgley of the fourth line called one day last week on Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Cooley.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Morrison of Melrose visited recently at Mr. John Morrison's.

The roads in this locality are very heavy owing to recent storms and drifts.

Miss Mary O'Brien is spending a few weeks with her sister, Mrs. Eugene McAvoy, Roslin.

Owing to blocked roads, the mail was very irregular last week.

Mr. Horace Casey and Edna called one day this week on the Misses Walker.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Brown and Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Eggleton and family were guests last week of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Scott, Avondale.

Mr. Harry Tweedy is able to be around again after having cut his foot while chopping wood.

PERFECT CROP MAY RESULT

Moisture Will Penetrate Deeper Due to Frost Being Slow to Leave

"Did you ever observe" asked one of the best known rural residents of this section this morning, "that now and then when we do get a real humdinger of a winter, the summer following, from the agriculturist's view point, is a real one? But don't quote me," he added hastily "that's only my personal observation."

Pursuing the question futher statements made by other agriculturists bore out the statement of the first one. Each "coldest" winter has produced a perfect crop during the summer following.

This present winter, according to those questioned will be a perfect one for rural residents all through this section. Frost has penetrated the ground this season deeper than it has before in recent memory. Snow lies banked to the tops of fences in many sections of the district. When the thaw does come, it will probably be gradual and slow and the ground will not be wholly free from frost until the real warm weather sets in.

Here is where the farmer will benefit, particularly the wheat grower, it is pointed out. The moisture will be retained to the ground and gradually fed to the upper surface throughout the warm months. In an "easy" winter the frost penetrates only to a shallow depth. When spring comes the land soon dries, and becomes parched long before the hot months arrive. With the gradual thawing of the deep frost, it is expected that considerable moisture will remain this year until well into the growing season. Growth of nearly all varieties of farm produce will thus be greater and brisker than that following normal years.

have a silver as well as a gold backing:

2. Whether Canada's money should be printed in the French as well as the English language.

The former was decided in the negative. The latter was not decided at all as it did not come to a vote.

The silver resolution was sponsored by Thomas Red, (Lib. New Westminster), who found some support for the principle of bi-metallism on the Government side, particularly from Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce. The latter explained, however, that Canada could not mark out a new monetary course in defiance of the views and practices of the great money nations of the world.

Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance took advantage of the opportunity and moved to strike out the vital parts of Mr. Reid's motion and substitute an amendment endorsing the world silver agreement signed at London last summer, which is designed to stabilize silver prices. The amendment was adopted almost unanimously.

Lively tilts were witnessed when the bilingual currency resolution proposed by J. A. Barrette (Cons. Berthier-Maskinonge), was called at the night session. Mr. Barrette proposed a committee of the House to study bilingual currency but this was not satisfactory to Oscar Boulanger (Lib. Bellechasse) author of a similar move last session. He proposed an amendment to strike out the committee proposal and call upon the government to take immediate steps to comply with the constitution and print the nation's money in the two official languages.

have heard also that they got out all right."

Disconnected from their pilot after it plunged down the embankment, the cars went on by the momentum of their speed, estimated by some to be between 35 and 40 miles an hour.

The combination express-smoker dived off an embankment 500 feet past the engine, resting its front down on the ground and its rear on the trackbed. The diner remained upright. The day coach knocked down the signal tower and was buried in the debris. It is here the bodies are feared buried.

Cars Turn Over

The two sleepers turned over, one above the engine and tender, the other against a three storey building, knocking down large piles of bricks.

Dazed by the tragedy, the survivors of the ill-fated "No. 1533", told their stories of the plunging steel giants from hospital cots. Men, paled by the nearness of death, and women hysterically holding nondescript pieces of clothing to bleeding wounds, trudged through knee-dee snow drifts to shelter after th wreck, they said.

Only three minutes more—and i wouldn't have happened. The [illegible] York bound train would have [illegible]pleted its run into the Union Station about 9:35.

Mrs. Mary Connell of Youngs town, buyer for a department stor told how a man's calm voice quieted the passengers after the terrifi impact, that threw people all th way from the rear to the front o their coach.

"The porter was making up th berths," she said. "All of a sudde the car began to sway. Then w flew past a burning object. Th crash followed. Everybody in th back of the car was thrown forwar with bags and luggage crashing o top of us.

"At first there was a bedlam o screams and groans. Then som man called out in a calm voice. H told us to be quiet.

Charity's eyes danced with amusement. Pat didn't know her. She tried to say seriously: "Couldn't I have a job as your assistant? I can sweep and scrub floors."

Pat tried to look stern but a little smile turned up the corner of his mouth. "Don't go vampin' me now, miss. I ain't the one that does the hirin' of the help."

Suddenly Charity threw her arms around the old Irishman and gave him a tight squeeze, saying. "Oh, Pat—don't you know me?"

He stepped back and looked at her closely, shaking his head. "That I do not, but your voice sounds a little familiar. "Glory-be! It—it's Miss Jones."

Charity had never seen Pat so flustered. She laughed and tried to put him at ease. "It's the hair cut, Pat. I hardly know myself. How have you been?"

"Foine, Miss Jones—er, I mean [illegible] Temple. Sure and I'm glad to set eyes on you."

He stepped back to survey her the better, shaking his head. "Don't you look grand, now! Sure I never would have known you in a million years all fixed up like a posy."

Charity grinned when he bent over to whisper loudly. "Come in and burn the tabby cats up—Miss Jones. Just let 'em get a look at the new riggin'."

That was an ordeal Charity dreaded. But she knew she could not appear at the bank without going around and speaking to the people she had worked with so long. Pat led the way, not wanting to miss a word of what was said to the new Mrs. Temple.

Charity had worn ashes of roses, her most becoming color. It gave her cheeks a pink glow and made little dark lights dance in her gray eyes that were shaded with a black shadow veil throw carelessly over her little rose hat. There were long black gloves against the milk white of her arms. The Wall Street Trust Company had never seen a more smartly dressed lady with in its rich walls.

No one recognized Charity until she spoke to them. Their obvious embarrassment and amazement gave Charity the advantage, so that she went through the greetings with a great deal more ease than she had hoped. Once she had been plain Miss Jones—the drab little girl who looked after old Temple's affairs. Now, like Cinderella, she had been transformed into a beautiful lady with a gay smile and clothes fit for a princess.

It was Pat who walked with Charity to the private elevator that led to Simmons' office and rang the bell for her. He could scarcely wait for the door to close so that he might hear what the girls had to say.

Miss Randall, who had taken Charity's place in the office, was surrounded by a group of babbling girls. Pat joined them in time to hear her say dramatically, "It can't be Charity Jones! It's a couple of other Joneses."

A little blonde shrugged her shoulders. "Well, who couldn't look swell with all that money! It's no credit to her."

Every one agreed except Pat. He could not let the former Miss Jones go undefended. He joined the group, to say hotly, "Sure, and ye're jealous. Though I can't say I'm blamin' you. But don't be after forgettin' this. Charity Jones was as foine a girl as ever set foot inside this place. Always a lady, she was. Workin' hard and supportin' her father and mother and livin' on nothin' so's she could do it. If she'd put all her earnin's on her back like some I could be namin' around here, you wouldn't be talkin' about her like you are now. You ought to go hide your empty heads, you ought."

Pat was breathless ere he finished. He turned on his heel and went back to his work with all the dignity he could muster, feeling he'd given the girls something to think about.

It was an hour later when Charity stepped out of the elevator with Simmons. They walked through the office, talking seriously, and every one wondered what business the new Mrs. Temple had with the family lawyer. It must be something important. A divorce, perhaps!

Rafferty was waiting with the car. Simmons helped Charity into the limousine with a personal interest that did not escape her. She held out her hand and smiled happily, as she said ,"I'm so glad I've been able to make you see the way I feel about these people"

"It's your money, Mrs. Temple. And there aren't any strings to it."

CHAPTER 20

Their business disposed of, Simmons hesitated, and Charity was certain she knew what he wanted to know. She smiled.

"And now you're dying with curiosity to know how everything is going in the Temple menage?"

The lawyer looked surprised. He grinned sheepishly. "You're been reading my mail!"

"We don't scrap any more," Charity told him. "Doug goes his own way. I'm going to be pretty busy from now on if all the plans we made this afternoon work out. So I think everything is going to be all right."

"I'm glad there's a truce." Simmons looked relieved. "It wouldn't have been so pleasant for you if he had gone on the way he was."

"He isn't such a bad boy," Charity defended her husband. "You can't blame him for being a little upset about having a —lemon willed to him."

Simmons eyes rested on her with amusement. Then he said gallantly, and meant it, "You've turned into a —a bloomin' Elberta peach—and you're as well aware of it as I am. He'll wake up and see it some of these days, if he hasn't before this."

Color stained Charity's cheeks. As she motioned to Rafferty to start the car, she said, "Don't expect miracles! I'll see you again next week."

Charity hurried back to the penthouse hoping to catch Doug if he came home to dress to go out to dinner. She'd have to offer some explanation for her actions of the evening before.

She was half running back to the private elevator when she saw Batch. He came toward her grinning. "Hello, Nursie. I was just going to call you to see how about a double date tonight?"

"And what's the big idea?"

"There's a doctor friend of mine in from Chicago. I thought maybe you'd get Billie and we could go to the opening of the Casino roof!"

When Charity hesitated, Batch grinned again. "It's quite proper—"

Charity remembered what Billie had told her —that she must give Doug a little of his own medicine if she ever expected him to treat her differently. He hadn't even come home last night. She said slowly, "I—think that would be lovely. I'll call Billie."

Billie was as much delighted as surprised when Charity telephoned. It meant that Charity was really coming to her senses. That she meant to take Doug at his word when he told her to go her way and do as she pleased. And, something told her that Doug wouldn't like it.

It would be Charity's first public appearance since she became Mrs. Temple. Billie felt it was vitally important that both she and Charity look as beautiful as it was possible for them to look. All Park Avenue and Broadway would be at the opening of the Casino roof. So she told Charity not to dress until she got there.

Billie looked her own gowns over and decided on green with a silver wrap. It was always wise for a redhead to wear green in the evening. Her hair and nails had been done that afternoon. That was a relief. When she gave herself a final look in the mirror she knew she had never looked better. She hoped her escort could say as much for himself. Although it would be just her misfortune to have a little sawed off runt of ninety pawned off on her. That was usually her luck....

She wasn't at all thrilled with the idea of meeting a new man but she was more than a little excited over being with Charity when she made her first night life appearance along the Rialto.

Sylvia was brushing Charity's hair when Billie rushed in with, "Ain't I ne plus ultra?" Billie strutted around the room so they could look her over.

Sylvia stood in open-mouthed admiration at the stunning auburn-haired model. She was thrilled beyond words with the opportunity of seeing Mrs. Temple dressed to go out in the evening for the first time.

"Sylvia has me all worn out," Charity laughed and held up her hands. "She did my nails, gave me a massage and a clay pack, and for the last fifteen minutes she's been brushing my hair to make it shine."

"Doesn't madame look beautiful?" Sylvia gave the black head a final pat.

"Marvelous," Billie agreed, "but wait till I get through with her. You'll see sumpin'! Now what had you planned on wearing?"

"Anything you say." Charity sat back good-naturedly. "You started it—now finish the job."

Billie studied a moment. "I'm wearing green. Let's see what would go best with me? White! You haven't worn the white taffeta, have you?"

"Nope, get it, will you Sylvia?"

Sylvia came back holding the gown on her arm, her cheeks pink with excitement. She stood by, watching intently while Billie put green mascara over Charity's eyes, rouged her cheeks faintly, and carmined her lips. Then they slipped the gown over Charity's shoulders.

"Oh!" Sylvia clasped her hands in admiration. "Madame you are the most beautiful woman I have ever seen."

"After me, Sylvia," Billie grinned. "We'll say she's the most beautiful brunette. I'm the most beautiful redhead, and you're the most beautiful blonde."

Charity went over to the long mirror and surveyed herself carefully. She did look grand. The raven black of her shining hair was lovely in contrast with the long sweep of her white taffeta gown. It molded to her figure perfectly to below her knees, then flared in great old-fashioned flutes to sweep the floor, a la Mae West.

A worried little frown gathered on her white brow when she thought of Doug. But she quickly put him out of her mind. He hadn't even given her the benefit of a doubt—he staying away from home sulking like a little boy. She'd give him something to worry about—if he would worry. She hoped a little that he would.

By the time Sylvia helped her into the short little taffeta evening wrap with the big puffed sleeves, and handed her a wisp of a silken fan, she had made up her mind she was going to have a marvelous time and forget all about her temperamental husband. The clock on the dressing table said 7.30. It was time to meet Batch downstairs.

Billie gave her a final careful looking over and she did the same for her. They made up their minds they had improved on nature as much as possible, and hurried to take the elevator to the lobby. Charity felt delicious little thrills of uncertainty running up and down her spine. Billie sensed her mood and took her arm, to say firmly:

"None of the old inferiority complex lady, or it's you and me all over town. There won't be two sweller looking dames on Broadway tonight than us. What more do we need?"

Charity swallowed her fears and grinned. "Ye—yes, ma'am. I ain't skeered.

When the elevator door opened Batch and his friend stood waiting for them. Batch's eyes lighted with delight when he saw Charity, tall and straight and smiling, walking toward him. He felt his heart beating uncomfortably when he took her hand.

"Lovely lady!" He forced the old careless grin. Then he turned to the tall dark young man. "Mrs. Temple may I introduce Doctor Phillips—and Billie Miller, Doctor Phillips."

Billie's heart gave a flip flop of glad surpise. The doctor was all of six feet two and the handsomest dark-haired, blue-eyes male she'd encountered in many a day, even to the dimple in his chin. Dr. Phillips was so smitten with the first look at the stunning model that he felt like a college freshman at his first prom. When he stood staring at Billie boyishly, Batch grinned. "Disappointed Bim? That's the trouble with these blind dates."

The doctor got his bearings and took Billie's arm, freshly. "I knew I'd rate an old gal fat and forty—but come along. Nobody knows me in this town anyway."

Billie gave him a little kick in the shins and the party was on.

It looked as though everyone in New York had made up their minds to attend the Casino roof opening. Batch was glad he'd had the presence of mind to reserve a a table several days before when he saw the crowd. He'd ordered a ringside seat where they would be facing the floor show.

They made their way through the crowded tables and were just about to sit down when Charity stopped dead in her tracks. At the next table, oblivious to the world around them, sat Doug and Yanner.

CHAPTER 21

Billie saw Doug and Yanner at the same time and put her hand on Charity's arm, to squeeze it warningly. When Batch saw Doug his face reddened. It was a most embarrassing situation. Billie thought faster than she'd ever thought before in her life. Doug looked up. Before he had a chance to show surprise, Billie pounced upon their table.

"Are we late? Howdy, Yanner! We brang your wife as per instructions, Doug. Aint she scrumptuous? Pull up the table, boys."

Two waiters leaped to move the two table together—and Charity blessed Billie silently. Doug found his voice and jumped up. "Hi. The more the merrier. Set—boys and girls."

Dr. Phillips was enlightened as to the sudden change of table arrangements when Batch said hurriedly, "Miss Vandergriff, Doctor Phillips—and Mr. Temple, Doctor Phillips."

Billie felt like laughing out loud when she saw the look on Yanner's face as her eyes lit on the transformed Charity. At first she looked incredulous. Then her soft mouth curled for a second with fury. She caught herself in time to say casually, "How have you been, Charity?"

Charity found herself saying equally casually, "Oh — I've been just lovely. And you?"

"Getting around." Yanner smiled weakly.

Batch felt himself in a mighty tight place, although Doug had made it quite plain he didn't care what Charity did. That was before Charity cut her hair and showed what clothes could do to a girl. He looked at Yanner with her blond curls and her weak little rosebud mouth, and wondered how Doug could go around with her when he had a wife like Charity. The man must be blind.

TARZAN THE TERRIBLE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Only a portion of the grotesque creature's back was visible to Tarzan. The rest of its body was lost in the dense shadows beneath the tree. On a level with the ape-man's eyes, the ridge of its backbone loomed twenty feet high. From every spinal certebra grew a thick, heavy horn. Now arose the sound of giant jaws powerfully crunching flesh and bones, telling Tarzan the strange mammoth was feeding upon the lion's carcass the ape-man had slain the night before.

As Tarzan's eyes, straining with curiosity, vainly sought to get a better view of the creature, he felt a light touch upon his shoulder. Turning, he saw that his companion, the man-thing, with his forefinger to his lips was cautioning silence. And at the same time he attempted by pulling on Tarzan's arm to indicate that they should leave at once. The ape-man did not readily consent to give up this chance to inspect a creature he judged was entirely different from anything in his past experience.

But he realised he was in a strange country evidently infested by ugly creatures of titanic size, with habits and powers of which he was entirely unfamiliar. He also knew there were enough dangers ahead of him without courting this unknown one. So he allowed the man-thing to have its way and followed as it descended the tree on the opposite side of the nocturnal prowler. The two companions moved silently away through the dim shadows across the plain.

As the sun rose Tarzan found himself again upon the verge of a great forest. Into this his guide plunged taking nimbly to the tree branches. Though aided by his prehensile tail, fingers and toes, the man-thing moved through the forest with no greater ease or surety than did the giant ape-man. Both sped along for several miles with the effortless celerity which came from long habit and hereditary instinct, before the man-thing dropped to earth upon a grassy slope.

FROST IS NOW 5 FEET DEEP

Average of Hundred Calls a Day Registered by Waterworks Dept.

Frost touched the five foot depth in the city this week, and the troubles of the waterworks department are numerous and heavy.

In spite of the welcome break in the weather experienced on Monday, the department reported the following today.

More phone calls from householders throughout the city than during the coldest weather on record last week. An average of one hundred calls a day are being received from residents whose water supply has failed through freezing.

The greatest pumpage of water in record of the department. Three and one half million gallons of water per day are necessary to keep up with the running taps in homes.

The whole underground network of the waterworks system contracted to the absolute minimum from the cold. Officials of the system dread the day, when the frost leaves the ground and the pipes again start to expand.

"But, at that, we're far luckier than they are in other cities," stated Manager E. T. Austin today. "I notice in news despatches, that whole wards have been frozen up in other cities, with the water works departments unable to keep up with the calls. Hydrants and even the whole systems have been frozen up elsewhere, but so far we've managed to keep every hydrant open, and render as good service as it was humanly possible to householders. Not a single hydrant has been reported out of action, or unable to answer any sudden demand through fire, that may be made.

"Our pumpage this week has reached the highest figure on record of the department, a total tonnage that would do credit to a city far larger than this one. Hundreds of taps are left running, and we have had to pump all the faster to keep up. As it is now our facilities are just about taxed. It would be a great co-operation to us if householders would leave the taps just barely running to keep their services open, instead of allowing them to run gallons per minute. All that saves us is that the consumption is fairly steady."

Elsewhere in this issue a notice appears from the department asking for the co-operation of residents in the matter.

EDEN AND PARADISE

Names Are Guarantee in Maritime Province

If you should be looking for perfection in this year you can find both Paradise and Garden of Eden in Nova Scotia, according to the Tourist Department of the Canadian National Railways. The state of the places is no guarantee but the names are.

Paradise is located at the junction of the Paradise and Annapolis Rivers, along the northwest shore of Nova Scotia. It is an early French settlement. Garden of Eden is just 25 miles from New Glasgow, a coal mining centre. Garden of Eden had its Adam who lived to a great age and near the community are to be found Mount Adam and Eden Lake. There appears to be no sign of Eve, but trout, salmon, moose and deer make the area acceptable to the sportsman.

33 MILL RATE PROPOSAL

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 26.—(CP)—Windsor City Council today reaffirmed its position favoring a 33 mill tax rate for 1934 and against the 35 mill rate proposed by the committee of supervisors.

Guild Advisory Board

F. S. RUTHERFORD

Director of Vocational Education for the Province of Ontario, who is acting on the advisory board of the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild which is offering $17,000 in scholarship awards to Canadian boys in the 1934 miniature model coach building competition.

MANY ENROLL IN CONTEST

Fisher Body Competition Attracts Canadian Youth of All Ages

Hundreds of boys have already enrolled for the 1934 coach building competition being sponsored by the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild, according to C. B. Wait, secretary of the Canadian section. All over Canada they are hard at work constructing, in miniature, the historic Napoleonic coach, guided by detail specifications supplied by the Guild. Scale models are to be submitted for the annual judging held in July.

Guild awards for 1934 will be stepped up considerably. In 1933, ceive the Guild certificate of craftsmanship. Points will be awarded for fidelity to scale, woodcraft, metalcraft, trimcraft and paintcraft. The purpose of the Guild is to reward handicraft and place a premium upon fine workmanship.

Acceptances to act on the advisory board have been received from many prominent Canadian educational directors, including F. S. Rutherford, Director of Vocational Education for the Province of Ontario.

"In my opinion," commented Mr. Rutherford, "the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild is doing a worthwhile and constructive piece of work in co-operating with the schools to provide for Canadian boys an opportunity to engage in a profitable and suitable extra-curricular activity."

Others who have signified their willingness to sit on the advisory board include: W. K. Tilbert, Director of Vocational Education for New Brunswick; Dr. F. H. Sexton, B.Sc., three scholarships were earned by Canadian boys. This year, eight scholarships totalling $17,000 are being offered Canadian youth for skill and perseverance in craftsmanship. Of these scholarships, four awards will go to the junior group (12 to 15 years, inclusive) and four to the senior class (16 to 19, inclusive).

A Guild member winning any of these awards will be considered a Guild graduate. Every Guild member submitting a completed coach model in the competition will re- D.Sc., LL.D., Director of Technical Education for Nova Scotia; Augustin Frigon, Director of Technical Education for the Province of Quebec, and Dean of Ecole Polytechnique, University of Montreal; W. G. Carpenter, Director of Technical Education for Alberta; John Kyle, Director of Technical Education for British Columbia; S. T. Newton, Director of Technical Education for Manitoba.

$10,000 SILK GOODS FOUND

Police of Two Cities Find Caches in Montreal

Montreal, Feb. 27 (CP)—Toronto and Montreal detectives today found $10,000 worth of stolen silk goods from Toronto hidden in two east end warehouses here. No arrests were made immediately. The detectives said the silk formed part of the loot from two robberies in Toronto Jan. 23 and Feb. 6.

Thieves broke through a wall on the premises of Canfield, Burns and Gibson Co. on Spadina Avenue, Toronto, Jan. 23, and carried off $3,000 worth of silk goods. Another theft on Feb. 6 from Canadian Celanse Silk Company, also in Toronto, caused loss of another $7,000 in costly silk fabrics.

Detectives George Winters and J. O'Driscoll of the Toronto police force were assigned to the case and recovered the goods with the aid of detectives of the Montreal department. Winters and O'Driscoll trailed the stolen silk from Toronto to Cardinal, Ont., where they found the truck the thieves had abandoned when it broke down. They learned at Cardinal that another truck had been secured and the trip to Montreal continued. In the abandoned truck the officers found burglars' tools stained with plaster similar to that in the walls the burglars bored through in Toronto.

The two Toronto detectives reached Montreal a week ago and aided by Montreal police, carried on an extensive search before being successful in locating the stolen silk. Arrests were expected shortly.

Tweed's Oldest Resident Celebrates 92nd Birthday

Mr. Samuel Bowers Takes Pride in His Gardening

Tweed, Feb. 27 (Special)—Tweed's oldest resident, Mr. Samuel Bowers, celebrated his 92nd birthday on Thursday, February 22nd. Mr. Bowers is still enjoying splendid health and in spite of the extremely cold weather and his advanced age may be seen enjoying his daily walk about town. He was born in Thurlow Township in 1842, a son of Britton Bowers and Charlotte Cronk moving later to Hungerford Township where he engaged in farming for practically his whole life. For a number of years he was employed as a shantyman and river driver. The past fourteen years have been spent in Tweed on his two acre lot on the lake side of South Victoria Street just at the entrance to the village. Here he employs his time in summer in raising fruit and vegetables. Few amateur gardeners in the village have ripe tomatoes and corn as early as he. In his garden are two black walnut trees which he expects will soon yield an abundant crop. Mr. Bowers says the present winter has been the coldest in his recollection. Six children are living, Mrs. Herbert McCaugherty, Mrs. John Redmond and Edgar Bowers, of Watertown, N.Y., Nelson Bowers, of Governeur, N.Y., Mrs. Henry Belden, Rochester, N.Y. and Mrs. Thomas Kincaid of Hamilton, Ont.

Mr. Samuel Bowers — who recently celebrated his ninety-second birthday.

An interesting program was given in the church parlors of the United Church on Friday evening. The numbers on the programme were provided by the choir and the Sunday School in aid of the Salvation Army. The room was well filled with people who realised the work that the Army is trying to accomplish in the community and the difficulty met with in raising money sufficient for their needs from among their own people.

The programme was opened with a hymn and prayer by Capt. Wood. Mr. J. G. Frost read the 100th Psalm. The following programme was presented:

Selection — "The Awakening Chorus"—The choir.

Violin solo—Master John Locke.

Reading — Dominique — Anna Kleinsteuber.

Selection—"Love Divine" — The choir.

Piano Duet—Misses Marion and Alice Nicholson.

Quartette—Dr. and Mrs. M. G. Dales, Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Connor.

Vocal solo—Miss Cara Moffat.

Club swinging act—Mrs. Alfred Davis.

Piano solo—Miss M. Nicholson.

Reading—Anna Kleinsteuber.

Play—"The Trial Scene" from "The Merchant of Venice."

Characters:

Portia—Miss Cara Moffat.
Shylock—Miss Margaret Moffat.
The Duke—Miss Lois Ketcheson.
Antonio—Miss E. Drinkwater.
Bassonio—Miss Dorothy Burnett.
Gratiano—Miss Isobel Sills.
Nerissa—Miss Audrey Priest.
Salerio—Miss Ethel Kerr.

A synopsis of the play up to the trial scene was given in an interesting manner by Miss Audrey Priest. The parts of Shylock and Portia were will taken by the Moffat sisters.

The entire programme was well given and each number was greatly enjoyed. The proceeds was thirty dollars.

The funeral service of the late Mrs. E. B. Cooke was held on Tuesday afternoon at the United Church in Cannington with Rev. R. H. Rickard M.A., M.R.E., of Oakwood, chairman of the Lindsay Presbytery in charge.

The funeral address was delivered by Rev. Dr. Holling, ex-President of the Bay of Quinte Conference. Thirteen ministers of the United Church assisted in the service. Interment was made in Mount Pleasant cemetery, in Toronto.

Mr. W. S. Gordon and Mr W. E. Tummon M.P., attended the funeral service of the late Mrs. E. B. Cooke in Cannington on Tuesday. The impassable condition of the roads prevented the attendance of a large number of members of the United Church who had planned to attend.

The juvenile league has provided Tweed hockey fans with some interesting games this winter. The schedule ended with the Columbias and Black Hawks tied for first place. They played off the tie on Thursday night and the latter representatives of the Anglican Church defeated their opponents by a score of 3 to 2. The marksmen for Columbias were Joe Courneyea and F. Doyle, for the Black Hawks H. Elsbury, G. Simmons and S. Luffman.

The line-ups:

Black Hawks — Goal G. Mouck, defence, H. Prevost and J. Arber, centre, G. Simmons, wings, W. Cronkwright and S. Luffman, subs, B. Arber, D. Drew and G. Beatty.

Columbias—Goal, L. LaVallee, defence, Don Courneyea, C. LaVallee, centre, Joe Courneyea, wings, Dorian Courneyea, F. Doyle, subs. Kinlin, Shanque, Rivers.

TRANSPORT HITS HYDRANT WATER SERVICE CUT OFF

Residents of the Trent Road from the Devil's Elbow to the Ontario School for the Deaf and including that institution are waterless today owing to the breaking off at the service of a hydrant near the Albert College at two o'clock this afternoon by a Smith Transport Co. loaded truck and trailer which skidded from the highway. Waterworks employees were at work immediately making repairs.

3 SOLDIERS ARE WEDDED

Southampton, England, Feb. 26—(CP Cable)—A triple romance of a troopship occurred in Southampton today when three soldiers arriving aboard the Transport Dorsetshire after two years of duty in the West Indies, were married with only a few hours remaining before they were to proceed for service in Egypt.

Sgt. W. Graham, Lance-Cpl. A. Scott and Fusilier M. Digney of the 1st Battalion, Northumberland Fusiliers, had arranged for their brides-to-be to travel to Southampton to be married under special license today. The brides, respectively from Newcastle, Armthorpe and Exthorpe, were awaiting the Troopship when it docked last evening and the weddings took place in three Southampton churches.

After a honeymoon that will be cut short by the Transport's sailing tomorrow the brides will return to their homes, but having been married "on the strength of the Regiment" they expect to join their husbands in Egypt later.

The Troopship's arrival caused a great reunion in this port. Mothers, wives and other relatives of the soldiers flocked into town, 700 of them travelling by special trains from the North, to spend a few hours with the soldiers whom they do not expect to see again for some years.

Little Benny's Note Book

Today in school Miss Kitty was telling us about the Golden Rule, saying, If everybody observed the Golden Rule strife and dissention would be things of the passed and there could be no more wars because nobody could have any enemies, for the Golden Rule is to Do unto others as you would have them do unto you. Now I want somebody to give me an illistration of how he would put the Golden Rule into practice, she said, Well, Charles? she said.

Meening Puds Simkins waving his hand, and Puds got up saying, If there was some guy and he'd been telling lies about me behind my back I'd puntch his nose for him because I'd expect somebody to puntch my nose for me if I didn't have any better manners than to tell lies about people behind their backs.

Well, your illistration is logical in a way but I very much feer you haven't quite cawt the sense of the Golden Rule, Miss Kitty said. Who elts wants to be heard from? she said.

Wich Raymin Levy did, saying, If some guy tried to trip me up while I was wawking along minding my own bizzness I'd give him a good licking even if he was a little bigger than me, because if I tripped innocent fellows up I wouldn't expect to get away with it free.

Mercy cant any body think of a kindly deed as an illistration? Miss Kitty said.

Wich I could, saying, If I saw a little baby hanging out a window with its dress cawt on a nale I'd ring the doorbell and warn its mother to run upstairs and save its life because if I was a little baby hanging out a window cawt on a nale I wouldn't want people down in the street just to stand there pointing up at me like a sideshow instead of ringing the doorbell and observing the Golden Rule.

Well, it's a little far fetched but its a slite improvement, I sippose, Miss Kitty said. We will now go on to geogriffy, she said.

GIRLS PAID TWO OR THREE DOLLARS WEEK

Minimum Wage Board Head of Quebec Tells Probe

PRICES DICTATED

Piecework Called Curse of Industrial Life

Ottawa, Feb. 28 (CP)— Wages as low as $2 and $3 a week for girls are paid in the Montreal needle trade, Gustave Francq, Chairman of the Quebec Minimum Wage Board told the House business probe today. Reliable manufacturers let contracts to men for as low as 35 cents a dozen for boys trousers and 50 cents to $1 for a dozen men's trousers. With such low prices, the contractors would not pay more than $2 and $3 a week to their workers.

Department stores were the worst offenders in dictating low prices to clothing contractors, the Quebec official said. It was a common practice for a store buyer to tell a manufacturer how much he would pay. The manufacturer would be forced to take the low price or go out of business. He took the order, passed it over to a clothing contractor who filled it through sweatshop wages.

5 to 11 Cents an Hour

In 1932, inspectors of the Minimum Wage Board found a biscuit factory in Montreal with 451 employees paying from 5 to 11 cents an hour to its girl workers. Thirteen girls received five cents; 45, six cents; 60, seven cents, 24 at eight cents, 77 at nine cents; 100 at 10 cents and 132 at 11 cents.

The board took steps to raise the wages.

Low wages also were paid in the Montreal shoe industry, said Mr. Francq and manufacturers dodged the minimum wage laws by firing girls who received $9, $10 and $11 a week and took on boys and single men at $2 and $3 a week. The plants in rural Quebec in recent years had increased in number. They paid less wages than Montreal plants, thus reducing general wages.

One shoe plant in rural Quebec was found to be paying $1.50 a week to its girl workers for 75 hours. The owner was prosecuted but was let off with a $10 fine as a first offender.

Goods Reflect Prices

It had been his experience, said Mr. Francq that manufacturers did not wish to pay low wages generally because they were reflected in the quality of his goods. But he was forced to reduce his cost to keep in business and naturally started with the pay of his workers.

"There is no doubt about the suffering among girl workers in Montreal," said Mr. Francq. Girls today, through lack of work and the low wages, minimum or not, cannot exist in the cities. It is impossible.

Minimum wages were $12.50 in the women's dress trade. "But it is only the most efficient and experienced girl who can make the minimum wage or above it through piece work. And as soon as a percentage of the girls in a shop make more than the minimum wage, bang goes down the piece work basis again."

Piecework Curse

Mr. Francq had known of piecework basis being reduced from 50 cents to 15 cents for a complete dress in a Montreal shop. This was due to competition in the trade and the fact experienced girls, by working long hours were able to exceed the $12.50 minimum weekly wage and employers decided to reduce the basis.

"Piece work is the curse of industry. We can control hours of labor and a flat or minimum rate but not piece work."

Some Montreal plants even employed trucks to deliver goods to homes so girls could work on Sundays on piece work.

The minimum wage board had a blacklist of firms that cheated its employees, paid low wages and broke the law. They were checked weekly and "the quicker we are able to drive them out of business, the better for all concerned".

Chapter of Woes in Loss of Money Lighted Cigar Ends Woeful Tale

Washington, Feb. 28 (CP) — Charles P. Bloom's complaint was against four banks that took away all his money but he told it to NRA today because "it breaks my heart" and NRA ought to know about it."

The Philadelphia small brass manufacturer, exporter and importer said his money was in one bank which failed.

At last a 20 percent dividend was paid depositors. Bloom put the cheque in another bank, which promptly failed.

In the course of time there came a 10 percent dividend on the 20 percent dividend. It went in a third bank, "then all the banks closed."

What became of the fourth bank was not revealed because a lighted cigar set Bloom's coat on fire at that moment.

Slew Mad Monk Rasputin Says Prince Youssoupoff

Monk Said to Have Told He Was in Pay of Germany

DANGER TO RUSSIA

London, Feb. 28.—In short crisp sentences, Prince Chegofieff Youssoupoff told a tense court room today in the trial of his wife's libel suit that he killed Rasputin, Russia's "mad monk", for the good of his country.

The descendant of one of old Russia's most noble families took the stand after the defence had intimated that he had not slain the powerful monk in St. Petersburg during the stirring days of the Great War.

His wife, Princess Irina Youssoupoff, is suing the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Pictures, Limited, for $2,000,000, alleging the picture "Rasputin and the Empress", libelled her by linking her objectionably with Rasputin.

Youssoupoff claims he killed Rasputin when the latter told him he was in the pay of Germany and planned to seize the Czar's throne. It was his first narration of the event in court, although he has written of it.

"In doing what I did, I thought I was acting in the service of my country," said the prince under questioning of counsel for the plaintiff, driving hard to overcome doubts cast upon the identity of the monk's slayer by defence questioning of the princess.

"Did you determine that in the interest of your country Rasputin should die?" Sir Patrick Hastings one of England's leading barristers, asked.

"Yes," replied the witness, as a deep silence fell over the court room, "because I thought he was a danger to my country."

FAIR AND MILD AFTER ELEVEN BELOW ZERO

Many Residents Unprepared For Sudden Cold Snap

A bristling north wind, which keened through the city last evening, left in its wake as it whistled across the district another siege of zero weather for chilled residents, when thermometers all through the district dropped to an unexpected level of just 11 below zero. The wave of cold weather, coming unexpectedly after a day of warm weather and sunny skies, caught many unprepared, with furnaces burning only feebly for the first time in weeks, and radiator solution in automobiles thinned by use. Several cars were reported frozen during the night, and radiator repair men on Wednesday enjoyed again a slight wave of prosperity. Highest mark for today was given at 19 above, but bright sunshine and warmer winds will result in peak temperatures throughout the latter part of the day. "Fair and mild", was the pleasing announcement of the weatherman for Thursday.

DUKE WITHDRAWS SUIT AGAINST NIECE

LONDON, Feb. 28.—(AP)—The Duke of Westminster has withdrawn a libel suit against his niece, Lady Sibell Lygon, 26, a Socialist.

Settlement of the action on the following terms was announced in court today:

A "sincere public apology" for an article Lady Sibell wrote for the Oxford and Cambridge magazine, and payment of the costs of the action. Particulars of the complaint have not been made public.

NEW EMPEROR SEEKS FAVOR

Enthronement of Henry Pu-Yi Takes Place Thursday

(By James A. Mills, Copyright 1934 by the Associated Press)

Hsinking, Manchukuo, Feb. 28 — Henry Pu-Yi, on the eve of his enthronement as Emperor of Manchukuo, made a bid for foreign recognition in a statement given the Associated Press today.

He reviewed the progress made in the Japanese-assisted state during the two years he has acted as administrator.

"Let the world judge this," he invited in the statement, "whether we deserve the right of a separate existence, or whether we ought to have foreign encouragement or recognition.

"By suppressing banditry, corrupt rule of "squeeze" and exploitation of the masses by predatory war lords, we feel we have made a distinct contribution to the peace of Asia and to the welfare of the people."

The enthronement of young Henry Pu-Yi as Emperor of Manchukuo tomorrow marks the culmination of a long series of historic incidents of which world attention has been focused.

These include Japanese military occupation of Manchuria, creation of the State of Manchukuo as a result of that occupation, condemnation by other powers of Japan's action and Japan's resignation from the League of Nations.

Nanking, China, Feb. 28 (AP) — The National Government's foreign office announced today that upon the occasion of the enthronement of Henry Pu-Yi as Emperor of Manchukuo tomorrow it will issue a statement saving the Chinese government's attitude in regard to nonrecognition of Manchukuo remains unchanged.

"The latest development in Japanese aggression in Manchuria a spokesman said, will not alter the Nationalist government's stand.

WEATHER

Toronto, Feb. 28.—(CP)—Synopsis—Pressure is high over the eastern portions of Canada and the United States, also on the Pacific Coast and relatively low from Manitoba northwestward to Alaska and over the southwest States. BARON SEMPILL DIES

Fintray House, Aberdeenshire, Feb 28.—(AP)— Baron Semphill died of pneumonia today. He had never fully recovered from the spine wounds he received in France at the Battle of Loos, Sept. 25, 1915, when he was colonel in command of the 8th Battalion of the Famous Black Watch.

FARCE NAME GIVEN HOUSE BY McGOVERN

Speaker Warns Laborite Language Not Tolerated

MANY TUMULTS

McGovern Finally Yields to Speaker's Direction

London, Feb. 28 (CP Cable)— "This House is a damn farce," angrily exclaimed John McGovern, left-wing Laborite, as he strode from the House of Commons this afternoon after failing once more to get permission for the representatives of unemployed hunger-marchers to address the House.

Outside in the rain and snow a number of the 2,000 marchers who have gathered in London from all parts of the country to protest against the Revised Unemployment Bill were waiting in the hope of gaining entry to the bar of the House.

Another turbulent scene occurred in the Commons as McGovern renewed the fight started yesterday to have a deputation speak at the bar. The speaker told McGovern there were certain rules governing admission to the House which he could not alter.

Strong Language

McGovern then protested he had to go outside to see some of his constituents. Angered, he shouted, "It's a damnable outrage."

The speaker sharply reminded him that such language could not be used in the House.

McGovern, expelled on a previous occasion for seizing the mace, attempted to continue speaking while the speaker was still standing. The House stormed "Order, Order."

"To Hell with you," McGovern was heard to shout through the din. But he finally yielded to the speaker. "If my constituents are not allowed in the House it's no use my remaining," he exclaimed, and left.

Centre of many tumults in the House, and heard to audibly protest "this display" on the occasion of the state opening of Parliament. McGovern was plainly disgusted as he failed to gain his point.

ONLY 5 DAYS ABOVE ZERO

Longest Sustained Cold Spell in Memory of Oldest Resident

The month of February, 1934, will probably be recorded in the memory of residents of this section as the month of sustained unprecedented temperatures and billowing snow drifts, with the heaviest fall of snow registered in many years.

On the first count little dispute may be found with official records. The month just ending has set an all time mark for sustained temperatures. Just five days of the twenty-eight this present month have been above zero, according to registrations at the pump house; twenty-three of them were marked by numbing temperatures ranging from the lowest registration of 39 below zero to an average of five below.

But, according to past records, the month just ending has not been marked with excessive snowfall. During February, 1933, an "easy year" for residents a total downfall of 14 inches of snow in this district had been marked. During the present month a total of 19 inches has been recorded. High winds throughout the month, which drifted the fallen snow, only made it appear more.

Careful registrations of official temperatures, recorded at the city pump house on government tested thermometers, and at the weather bureau of the local Dominion Entomological Laboratory on East Dundas Street, during the month of February, will be reprinted in a day or so in this paper, for amateur files.

Largest Employment Gain is Made Best Showing in Canada for Years

Ottawa, Feb. 28 (CP)—Decided recovery from seasonal employment losses is reported by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. On Feb. 1 the largest employment gain on that date since 1921 was noted. The increase in staffs of the 8,463 firms reporting, over the figures for Jan. 1. was 25,945 or 3.1 percent. The reported staffs aggregated 846,943 persons.

The improvement on the latest date was substantially more than seasonal, the Bureau reports. It compared favorably with declines recorded at the beginning of Feb. 1931, 1932 and 1933. The index, based on the 1926 average as 1000, stood at 91.4 on Feb. 1, 1934, compared with 88.6 on Jan. 1 and 77.0 at the first of February of last year.

Heads of Families Forced to Seek Relief Although on Full Time Employment

Mass Buying Committee Told How Minimum Wage Law Avoided

SMALL WAGES

One Man Cited As Working 72 Hour Week For $9.00

OTTAWA Feb. 28.—(CP)—Low wages and long hours heads of families forced to seek relief from the city despite the fact they are employed full time fear of discharge keeping workers from complaining are not uncommon conditions in the industrial and trading organizations of Ontario according to evidence laid before the special parliamentary committee on business practises.

Today the committee turned to the Province of Quebec to make a survey of labor and wage conditions there after its glance at Ontario. R. A. Stapells of the Ontario Minimum Wage Board and A. W. Laver Welfare Commissioner for the city of Toronto, revealed conditions in that Province.

Mr. Stapells told of several ways in which the minimum wage law was avoided but insisted the law was being enforced as well as it could possibly be. No law, he added was observed 100 per cent. A common practise, he said, was for employers to engage girls for a few hours of the day, perhaps at rush hours of their business.

Part Time Employment

When this was done they could not be compelled to pay a full day's wage and they were thus enabled to pay less than the minimum wage.

Mr. Stapells did not agree with Hon. H. H. Stevens, chairman of the committee, that this was a negation of the work of the Minimum Wage Board. If employers were forced to pay for full time, when employees did not work full time, that was unemployment insurance and not wages.

Picking cases at random from city records, Mr. Laver gave numerous instances of heads of families in Toronto working full time for $5 to $10 per week. As this wage was wholly inadequate to keep a family the wage-earner was forced to come to the city for relief and the low wages paid were a contributing factor to the heavy relief expenditures in Toronto. They also added to the city's burden in providing hospital care for people could not pay for medical and hospital attention for themselves.

Toronto Makes No Complaint

The city made no complaint to the Ontario Provincial authorities, when such cases came to light, Mr. Laver said, for fear the employees concerned would be dismissed.

In effect, Mr. Laver said, the city was subsidizing firms paying low wages by assisting their employees through relief agencies and these companies were competing with others paying decent wages.

Department stores, manufacturers, restaurants and a service station chain were mentioned by the Welfare Commissioner as employers paying low wages to heads of families.

A restaurant employee working 72 hours a week for $9, a service station employee working 64 hours a week for $10 were two of the instances of long hours and low pay cited by Mr. Laver.

Mr. Stapells believed the Minimum Wage Law could be made more effective by amendments suggested to the Legislature this session. One of these would give the Board of Control over hours of works and another would enable it to prevent employers from discharging women and employing men and boys at lower rates of pay. The Board now had control over the wages of female workers, apart from farm and domestic workers.

Canadian Spy

Mrs. Mary Louise Martin, alleged Canadian, and suspected head of an international spy ring that worked out of Helsingfors, Finland, is seen here under questioning, as some of her alleged comrades wait their turn for quizzing. Twenty-three Finns and two Americans were seized with Mrs. Martin and since their apprehension Finland has been building up a case against them with the aid of authorities of many countries.

MIAMI BOUT IS POSTPONED

Rain and Continued Wet Weather Given As the Reason

Miami, Fla., Feb. 28 (AP)—Rain today forced a postponement until tomorrow night of the World's Heavyweight title fight between Primo Carnera, the champion, and challenger Tommy Loughran, which had been scheduled for the Madison Square Garden outdoor arena here tonight.

Announcement to delay the fight another day was made by Garden officials as rain, which has fallen here intermittently during the past two days, continued to drench the countryside this morning.

Managers of the two fighters were called into conference with officials of the Garden and after receiving a weather forecast that the unsettled weather probably would continue all day, the postponement decision was reached.

Loughran, who has completed his training for the 15-round title bout at headquarters in west Palm Beach, was notified of the postponement just as he was preparing to come here to weigh in with the giant man-mountain champion.

As a result of the postponement, the fighters will not weigh in until 1.30 p.m. tomorrow.

City and District News

OVERSHOE FREEZES TO RAILWAY TRACK

It was so cold here Sunday morning it cost Howard Welbeck an overshoe.

Howard, facing a northern blast, and with local thermometers hovering near the twenty below zero mark, trudged from his home on the east side of the city along the railway tracks south of the city. Near the C.P.R. railway station he stepped into a small unfrozen puddle of water left by a standing engine, that had just pulled out, and then attempting to cross the tracks, stepped squarely on one of the rails.

The wet shoe froze hard and fast. Howard, after unbuckling it strove vainly to relase it, but with a mighty pull succeeded only in tearing the cloth half of the uppers from the bottom. The sole still clutched in a death grip on the cold steel refused to part.

Soon after, Howard, with only one overshoe on his foot, stood sorrowfully by and watched a thundering way freight complete the work of destruction.

FRUIT TREES NOT DAMAGED

What effect the present season's low temperatures will have on fruit trees in orchards throughout the district may not be known until warmer weather sets in, stated orchardists and residents of this section questioned today. It is believed, however, that damage will not be extensive, although loss had been reported in other sections of the province.

It was pointed out by one well known resident of Sidney that the zero temperatures have been fairly constant and little thaw has been felt since the start of winter. Trees will thus escape the damage ordinarily occasioned by recurrent thaws such as have been experienced in previous winters.

MERCHANTS DISPLAY ALL SPRING WARES

Winter's chilly hand has definitely weakened its grip on this district, and budding flowers and the spring time carol of birds lurk just around the corner. Proof?

A Front Street drug store has a quarter window display of old-fashioned time-tried spring tonic.

New spring fabrics have arrived—two weeks earlier this year than in previous years—at a large chain tailoring store, and are now on display.

An uptown hardware store has a window filled with sap buckets, cans, spiles and evaporating pans for the making of maple sugar.

SOCIAL EVENING HELD BY LADIES

The Ladies' Aid of Rednersville United Church held a social evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Irish on Thursday evening last. A very enjoyable time was spent in games, card-playing and dancing. There were two quilts disposed of, one being given for the closest guess on the number of beans in jar. Mrs. Robert Babcock was the lucky winner.

ISSUE 3 PERMITS IN FEBRUARY

Saws and hammers rung more frequently in this city during the month of February just ending than during the same month one year ago, according to statistics of the month made up by the office of the city engineer. During February a total of three building permits were issued, at an estimated value of $1050.00. Two permits were for alterations on stores on Front street, while one was for alterations on a residence.

The figures for the present month contrast with zero in permits issued for February, 1933; a total of $300 for February, 1932; $3,400 for 1931 and $8,750 for February, 1930, the highest year on recent record for total issued.

RESPONSE TO PLEA OF RELIEF OFFICE

A gratifying response had been made today to the plea of Central Relief Bureau officials for donations of old clothing and other cold weather necessities for those on relief. Several phone calls received at the office from residents throughout the city were being answered today by a city truck engaged in picking up the donations.

EXCAVATION WORK NEARLY COMPLETED

With all possible locations now fully explored by the men who are working on the relief project on Zwick's Island, it is not believed that further relics or bones of a vanished Indian race will be found. Some time ago what is believed to have been a family burial of three was unearthed under one small mound. Since then, although it has been freely predicaed that further discoveries would follow, none have been made. All likely locations have now been dug and levelled by the workers on the island who are reported now to be two thirds finished with the excavation work.

ARCHES ON BRIDGES ARE TAKEN DOWN

The Christmas arches, decked and festooned with evergreen on the solid wooden frame work which had been hanging over the centre of each bridge since their erection by the merchants of the city just before Christmas time, were removed yesterday by an unemployed man of the city who had previously offered to take them down for the wood they contained. Permission had been given by Mayor Tice for their removal.

WHEREABOUTS OF W. H. SMART WANTED

A communication from the city treasurer and city engineer of St. Thomas, Ontario, addressed to the "assessment commissioner" at Belleville, was received by city clerk Wilfrid Holmes today, requesting information regarding Mr. William H. Smart, said to reside in this city. The gentleman, stated the writer of the letter, is a former resident of St. Thomas.

DISMISS CHARGE AGAINSTBREWERY

His Worship Finds No Breach Under the L. C. A.

A charge of illegal delivery of liquor was dismissed by his Worship Magistrate Mikel against the Budweiser Brewing Company in today's police court.

The case arose out of the delivery of six quarts of beer, that had been delivered to Jas. Haggerty's garage, 111 Station street on January 7th last. During the court proceedings it was established, that Mr. Haggerty purchased 12 quarts of beer on the morning of January 7th., taking six with him and leaving the remainder to be called for. Later in the day, Mr. Haggerty telephoned the brewery and requested the delivery truck, as a personal favour, to deliver some automobile parts from a local garage and also include the six quarts of beer, purchased by him in the morning.

The Security Transportation Company, a subsidiary of the Brewer's Corporation who do the legal delivering for the local branch, consented to the request with A. W. High driver, making the delivery. No denial of delivery was made. No record of the beer having been purchased was found in Haggerty's individual liquor permit but, the individual requisition was signed by him, making the purchase legal.

A. E. Whitten, manager of the Budweiser Brewery, testified that he thought, it was not necessary to sign the requisition under the circumstances. Charles A. Payne, K.C., who represented the defendants, asked for a dismissal owing to the fact, that no offence had been committed under the L.C.A. "Apparently the agreement arose between High and Haggerty", stated His Worship as he dismissed the case against the Brewery.

Charged with not reporting a motor accident, a local citizen pleaded not guilty. The case was enlarged for two days. The damage entailed at the time of the accident was set at $78.10. A case in the Juvenile Court found a local youth charged with the theft of money from the canteen at the Arena. He was given one year's suspended sentence and ordered to make restitution. The youth was also ordered to stay away from the Arena in the future.

STARLINGS TO BE DESTROYED

Measures to Control the Increase Given by The O.A.C.

Millions of starlings will die all through the Province of Ontario this coming summer by the hand of man, armed with traps, poison gas and shotguns, if elaborate plans now being made by the Ontario Department of Agriculture to wage war on the gregarious birds on a big scale are carried out.

The decision to carry the battle to the birds, with the ultimate hope of reducing their numbers to a considerable extent is the result of the findings of a questionnaire sent out by the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph to farmers, city dwellers and others, asking for all available information on the pest. One received in this city has been answered and returned to the College by City Clerk Wilfred J. Holmes.

From the answers received to the questionnaire it was revealed, that thumbs were down on the starling. His depredations in orchards and wheat fields had earned much condemnation on the part of the farmer, while the city dweller merely called him a nuisance owing to his unclean habits, his pilfering ways and raucous screech.

The following measures of control have been advanced by the O. A. C. investigators:

To show all fruit growers and farmers interested in the control of the starling how to prevent successful hatching on thier own premises.

To have openings in church belfries, towers and water towers where starlings are known to nest, covered with wire netting.

To have all insulation tubes on Hydro transmission lines where starlings are known to nest, so fixed as to make it impossible for the birds to nest there.

To have all village, town and city buildings that harbor brooding starlings always under observation, with a view to destroying the birds and their eggs, or their young.

To locate all roosting places in the open country, and to destroy the birds by night with gas, where that may safely be used.

In places where a number of starlings gather for night roosting near dwellings, to try trapping, netting, water power, shooting or whatever proves to be most effectual where poison gas may not be safely used.

In winter time to encourage every township council interested in the control of the starling to construct one or more traps in time to commence trapping by Dec. 1st.

To control backyard feeding of starlings as completely as is possible, except in selected places where trapping is to be carried on.

To have all garbage burned or covered immediately after being deposited in dumps, so as to discourage starlings from congregating at these places.

Ministers Will Preach for Call

Arrangements for supply have been authorized and plans made for the hearing of a number of Presbyterian ministers who will preach for a call to fill the pulpit of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church rendered vacant by the untimely and lamentable death of the minister the late Dr. J. A. Seymour, M.A.

This step was taken at a joint meeting of the managers and the kirk session of St. Andrew's on Tuesday afternoon at four o'clock, Mr. Arthur McGie, chairman, stated after the meeting. Mr. McGie explained that according to the procedure the board had power to pass on applications to be heard by the congregation or if they deemed fit, ask ministers to preach for a call.

When the first minister to be heard for a call will preach in the church, is not definite.

3 HYDRO CREWS RESUSCITATE MATE

Sarnia, Ont., Feb. 28 (CP)—Three crews of Hydro Electric employees applied artificial respiration to Alex Kirk, 48, Canadian National Railway employee, who received a severe electrical shock at the local railway terminal today. Kirk was working on top of one of the electric locomotives when he came in contact with the high voltage wires. He was rushed to hospital and Hydro men were called to employ artificial respiration. He is expected to recover.

REPERCUSSIONS FROM QUEEN'S PARK

Toronto, Feb. 28—If amendment to the Motor Vehicle Act introduced some days ago in the Legislature is carried, owners and drivers of private motor vehicles will be relieved of all liability in cases of accidents to passengers.

"My amendment will also protect the driver from actions brought by dependents of the passenger killed" Mr. Robertson explained. "Of course, it will not apply in the case of buses or taxis, or other motor vehicles driven for hire or gain."

In the opinion of the Liberal whip, the liability for accepting a ride in an automobile should be borne by the passenger, except in taxis or buses.

On both sides of the House, no battle is expected till the Public Accounts are brought down possibly next Thursday. A concerted attack by the Liberals is expected especially on the administration and costs of the Northern Development Branch, the Highways Department and the whole question of roads as well as the finances of the province with the capital debt increased $319,000,000 in the past ten years with a total of $610,000,000 and one-third of the total revenue of the province required to pay the interest charges each year.

In a quiet week of the debate on the speech from the Throne outstanding proposals were made by N. O. Hipel, South Waterloo and Russell Nesbitt, K.C., Bracondale.

N. O. Hipel, South Waterloo, attacked fire insurance firms for collecting excess premiums from farmers; paying two thirds or less than that policy figure; "robbing" them in the case of one firm; and proposing that the provincial insurance superintendent call companies into conference to arrange greater protection. He charged low premium payments coupled with the federal government's 6 percent. sales tax prevented replacement of 50 percent. of burned barns, thus forcing more farmers off the land each year than the land settlement board established in two years. Citing dismissal of a motorist who crippled a man, and punishment of another for a technicality, he demanded: "Is there one law for the rich and one for the poor?"

Russell Nesbitt, K.C., Bracondale, proposed that building construction should be investigated by the government and teeth be provided in the Act to enforce a minimum wage in the building trades.

Endorsing the Conservative member's suggestion, Dr. G. A. McQuibban, Liberal House Leader demanded that the enquiry take in also the highway construction industries.

The charge was made by Mr. Nesbitt that most contract on large buildings and construction works are now obtained by construction brokers who farm out the sub contracts, and make a large commission without ever doing a stroke of the work. Mr. Nesbitt's bill would oblige bulk contractors to state the particulars of their sub-bids in tenders.

It was promised by Premier Henry that an inquiry into mass buying in the construction industry and sub-contracting would be launched, and the Liberal House Leader and the Liberal group intend to press for the inclusion of highway construction in the investigation.

A great deal of the Liberal ammunition is ready for the Public Accounts Committee which, it is now fairly certain, will soon be called.

Out of last week, also, has come the certainty that the Conservative government are not satisfied with the amount of white-wash applied to the McCaughrin case, and the charge of the former Orillia police magistrate that there is a nefarious traffic in legal offices which are, as Hon. Wm. Finlayson admitted during examination by the Legal Bills Committee, in reality the gifts of patronage. According to the Minister of Lands and Forests, the Filling vacancies in his riding go in turn to certain districts. The Government has decided to call more witnesses in the McCaughrin case, embarrassed by the silence of the Liberal members in committee, and their attitude that the explanation belongs entirely to the Conservative administration, since it appointed Magistrate McCaughrin, and, in claiming that he was a failure, leave themselves plainly open to the charge that they not only appointed an incapable man but kept him in office for six years with the power of sending men who appeared before him to jail and prison for terms up to ten years.

Thousands of Wee Japanese Arrive to War on Corn-Borer

Best Allies Canadian Farmer Has, Chief of "Lab" Says

Thousands of squat little Japanese immigrants, weary and tired after their long ocean and rail voyage from their native Japan to Canada, slipped quietly and unnoticed into Belleville this week and are now quartered in comfortable surroundings here, recuperating from their long voyage. Their arrival was unheralded, in spite of their huge numbers, and only a few local officials were aware of their coming. Since they entered Belleville they have kept quietly to their own quarters and have not ventured forth into the open.

The new arrivals had little trouble with port immigration men. Previously they had been vouched for, and bona fide letters with officials seals accompanied them. Only a casual glance into the packed quarters in which they travelled was enough to assure customs and immigration men. They were sleeping soundly when inspected.

Their appearance means war, to the hilt, it was positively stated today by those in charge. It will be a war in which Canada, for the first time, will be assisted by these Japanese allies. After a month's rest, or longer, the new allies will be despatched quietly from this city to the district throughout the section where the first engagements will be fought. After that it will be a steady, determined battle to help Canada rid itself of another race of undesirables over which neither deportation proceedings nor the law has any control.

The shipment of the Japanese allies received here marks the first shipment of healthy vigorous corn-borer parasites sent from that country to help Canada in its unremitting and relentless war on the corn-borer. They are described by Mr. A. B. Baird, chief of the local Dominion Entomological Laboratory as being "the finest fighters and probably the best help we've ever had in the fight against the borer."

At present the parasites are being fed and cultured at the laboratory on East Dundas Street in preparation for the spring's work.

OBITUARY

MISS B. M. RONAN

Miss Bridget Mary Ronan, a life-long resident of this city, passed away early this (Wednesday) morning at her late residence, 31 Alexander Street, following an illness of some time's duration. The deceased, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ronan, was born in Belleville and lived all her life here. A devout member of St. Michael's Church, Miss Ronan had many friends in that congregation and throughout the city. A brother, Patrick Ronan, is the only immediate surviving relative.

BASIC PRINCIPLES OF BOOK-KEEPING SHOWN

Good Attendance at Lecture Sponsored by Chamber of Commerce

There was a good attendance, Tuesday evening in the Y.M.C.A. lecture hall of those following the business lectures sponsored by the local Chamber of Commerce. Last evening's meeting was the fourth of the series: the fifth and final class of the course is to meet in the Collegiate auditorium Tuesday evening next.

"Accounting results as an aid to management" was the subject selected by R. G. H. Smails of Queen's University commercial school to convey to his hearers the basic principles of book-keeping and cost accounting. His talk was of a strictly business character and along lines to be found in text books relating to book-keeping instruction.

Former Resident Seriously Injured

Word has been received in town of the serious injury to a well known former resident, Harry Bird, in an automobile accident early Saturday morning at Toronto.

Mr. Bird was one time Ford dealer at Trenton and later resided in Belleville. His companion, Ernest Spencer, is also well known in the vicinity. He received painful injuries to his face and chest while Bird was unconscious after the car crashed into a tree on Spadina Ave. His condition is reported as serious.

Details of the accident are meagre although it is understood that the two men were talking at the time when the car left the slippery road and crashed a tree. Spencer was at the wheel.

Trenton Strikers Demand 35 Cts. Hour, No Piece Work, 50 Hour Week

Workers Meet to Discuss Situation and Officials on Ground

ADVISED TO RETURN

Trent Cottons Spend $150,000 Annually in Wages, Taxes, Etc.

Trenton, Feb. 28.—(Special)—The plant of the Trent Cottons Ltd., was again idle last night as a result of the strike Monday at 7.45 p.m. when the entire night gang walked off the job.

Mr. F. Allen, general manager of Hamilton, arrived in Trenton, late yesterday but as yet no contact has been made between the committee of the strikers and the company officials.

Mr. Allen and Mr. Behan local supt., met the Town Council last evening, over the matter. It was pointed out, that the Trent Cottons spend over $150,000 annually in the town of Trenton in wages, power costs, taxes, etc.

After considering the situation the Council decided that under present conditions the town was glad to have this industry employing so many and advised the strikers to return to their jobs.

Strikers Hold Out

The strikers met in the Liberal Committee rooms and discussed the situation from all angles and it was decided to hold out for thirty-five cents per hour and were unanimous on no piece-work. The men also favoured the formation of a union in Trenton. A 50-hour week instead of 60 to 84 also received the support of the gathering.

The strikers pointed out to the press, that no Red nor any other organization were behind their motives.

The Trenton United Workers are in sympathy with the strikers and no member will apply for any job vacated by the men on strike.

Communication between the company officials and the strikers' committe will take place some time today. As yet the entire day-gang are at work.

Imperials and Project No. 28 Win

Two more games in the Town Hockey League were turned out to the fans on Monday night when the Imperials downed the Cottons 5-3 and the Relief Project No. 28 defeated the Cities Service 3-2.

Three accidents marred the evening when Jim Kerr and "Whip" Lemoire of the Cities Service lost teeth and Scott, their goal-tender had a rib cracked in a collision.

Imperials 5; Cottons 3

George LaBrash's charges forced the play in the opening and Wells opened hostilities right at the beginning when he beat Foote from a blue line shot. The second line notched the second tally when "Beanie" Anderson shot Smith's pass by Foote. Richards drew a penalty for slashing.

Fred Hubbs, lengthy defence stalwart of the Cottons, helped score against his team when he passed the puck from behind his own net directly out to Wells, who scored. Bowden and Coughlin notched a counter each to make it 3-2 but two minutes later Wells tallied again on a pass from Jack Miller.

In the last period Hubbs scored on Coughlin's pass and Benny Bowen made the sensation play of the evening when he skated the full length of the ice to get the Imperials' last counter.

For Imperials, Wells, Miller and Bowen looked the best with Anderson Smith and Beale topping the alternates. "Banty" Anderson played a good game between the posts. For the Cottons, Lott, Scarlett, Drake and Coughlin looked best with Alexander and Waldron ably doing the rear guard duty.

Cottons—Goal, Foote; defence, Alexander and Waldron; centre, Bowden; wings, Lott and Scarlett. Alternates—Drake, Coughlin, Richards and Johnson.

Imperials—Goal, Anderson, defence O'Malley and Cottrell, centre Miller; wings, Bowen and Wells. Alternates, Whyte, Anderson, Smith, Beale and Waldron.

Referee—"Barney" York.

Summary

Imperials, Wells	1.00
Imperials, Anderson (Smith)	11.50

Penalties—Richards.

Second Period:—

Imperials, Wells	5.00
Cottons, Bowden	2.00
Cottons, Coughlin	5.00
Imperials, Wells (Miller) ..	2.30

Penalties—Alexander.

Third Period:—

Cottons, Hubbs (Coughlin) .	15.00
Imperials, Bowen	2.50

Penalties—None.

Relief Project No. 28, 3; Cities Service, 2.

The surprise of the evening came when Les Johnson and his Project boys from the R.C.A.F. camp defeated the fast travelling Cities Service by a 3-2 score. "Frenchy" Richardson, Trenton boy, rose to heights in the Project net. "Frenchy" played goal in the old Juvenile League some years ago, and hasn't forgotten how you stop them yet. Another nice hockey player was spotted in Henderson, the Project defenceman.

The Cities Service boys were checked to a standstill in the first period and when the bell sounded the Project had netted two counters from Green and Leal's sticks.

Each team scored in the second stanza. Price got the Cities Service's first counter while Whitehead scored on Henderson's pass for the Legionaires.

Davis scored for the gas boys just before the closing bell to end the game 3-2. Referee Miller handed out fourteen penalties for minor offences.

For the camp boys Richardson starred in the net with Henderson. Leal and Whitehead looking best on the line. Davis, Price and Staples outshone Long Dadswell and Kerr with Thompson looking best on the defence for the Cities Service.

Project No. 28 —Goal, Richardson; defence, Henderson and Bardy; centre, McCoy; wings, Seames and Green. Alternates—Whitehead, Leal Loft, Sero, Maracle and Milligan.

Cities Service—Goal, Scott; defence, Lemoire and Thompson; centre, Davis; wings, Price and Staples. Alternates, Long, Dadswell, Kerr and Ferraro.

Referee—"Bill" Miller.

Summary

First Period:—

Project, Green	10.00
Project, Leal, (Whitehead)	3.00

Penalties—Davis, Whitehead and Lemoire.

Second Period:—

Cities Service, Price	7.00
Project, Whitehead (Henderson)	3.00

Penalties—McCoy, 2; Ferraro 2; Long, Leal, Davis and Sero.

Third Period:—

BRONICHAL TUBES ARE SENSITIVE TO COLD

Probably Have Touch of Asthma if You Pant and Wheeze

Do you pant and wheeze after walking briskly down town from your home to the office?

Does your breath come in short gasping sighs when the mercury drops down to twenty below, and your nose feels like another part of you altogether?

Think nothing of it. You are just one of many whose bronchial tubes are a bit sensitive to cold weather. Or maybe you have been harboring faint symptoms of asthma, not noticeable until cold weather really strikes.

Either one of these reasons may be the cause of your shortness of breath during cold weather, according to expert medical opinion. Doctors of the city were inclined to scout the theory of any increase of oxygen in cold weather, but gave their own reason for the peculiar shortness of breath after a brisk walk to the office, or a climb on snowshoes to some hill top.

Oxygen content of the air does not increase with the cold weather, in the considered opinion of Dr. G. H. Stobie who was questioned Reason for shortness of breath can be found elsewhere, he believed.

"Many people suffer slightly from asthma. Until cold weather comes they are unaware of it. That is the main reason," stated Dr. Stobie "Then, too," he added, "bronchial tubes are sensitive to the cold. They contract slightly when cold air strikes them, and you have to puff harder to draw your breath."

In warmer weather the flues are more open, he intimated.

Simple, isn't it?

Movie House Ushers Vote To Go On Strike

New York, Feb. 28 (AP)—Announcement of a general strike of ushers and other front-of-the-house employees of New York motion picture theatres in effort to force recognition of their union was made at the offices of the theatre and amusement employees union. The strike was voted early today, but it is not expected to start before Thursday.

Figures that Speak

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company presents figures from its Annual Statement for 1933 and makes comparisons which show how the Company has carried on during the five difficult years since 1928

THROUGHOUT a period of almost unparalleled world-wide depression the institution of Life Insurance on this continent has furnished an example of achievement that wins admiration wherever it is understood.

Between January 1st, 1929 and January 1st, 1934, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, which insures the lives of more than 25,000,000 persons—nearly one-fifth of the total populations of Canada and the United States—paid to its policyholders and their beneficiaries more than Two Billion Dollars ($2,000,000,000).

During the same period, its policyholders contributed, through their premium payments, toward the increase of more than One Billion Dollars ($1,000,000,000) in the assets held for future distribution to themselves and their beneficiaries.

After payment, during that period, of more than Four Hundred and Fifty Million Dollars ($450,000,000) by way of dividends to policyholders, the Company's surplus was increased by more than One Hundred Million Dollars ($100,000,000).

These figures, of one company alone, are striking evidence of the reliance which the people of Canada and the United States place on the security and protection of life insurance.

Life Insurance is the most effective and satisfactory means of providing for the future of one's self and one's dependents.

BACKWARD AND FORWARD

February passes into the memory of the present generation whether the generation be ninety years old or of the schoolboy class as probably the severest in Belleville's records. A temperature of thirty-nine degrees here early in the month seems to have been a record or near the top while in zero weather this month was almost entirely under the zero mark, only a few days with the lowest temperatures above the zero range. On this continent Indians may have known severer days or even the pioneers, but no records of these could be kept because thermometers were not in use. How many early pioneers had thermometers, if any, there seems to be no record.

Man knows when ice freezes and melts and can at any period in history tell that, he can record when streams freeze up, how deep the snow has been, and when navigation opens and closes.

But these are not definite enough marks of cold. So enters the thermometer with its graduated reading.

Legends of cold or mild winters in the past are of little value in a scientific age, when a dip or rise of a thermometer degree has vast implications in the world of science.

Today the average man is interested in a thermometer because he lives in an age when exactness in reading of cold and heat is an absolute necessity, so much is he surrounded with inventions and devices. In old days the water he drinks and cooks with came from a well. To get it all a man needed was the well, an axe and a pail and rope. Today he needs water pipes from a central waterworks system and he must keep fires going so the pipes will not freeze. If they do, electricity is used to thaw them.

Galileo invented the thermometer, in all probability, the first, though his was unsealed. Ferdinand, second Duke of Tuscany, invented a sealed and graduated thermometer. Mercurial thermometers were known in 1655 and Fahrenheit after whom thermometers now in general use in English-speaking countries are named, invented his type of thermometer in 1714.

In this February of 1934, from the midst of a tangle of water-pipes, hydrants, and all kinds of inventions, man naturally has looked at the thermometer which tells exactly the truth. Incidentally he finds something to talk about or even boast about. Not many days ago Bellevillians (of course some of them only) "got their backs up" against certain news broadcasts because the "terribly" cold weather here was not shouted all over the country. Strange what things men, even women, take pride in.

Now at the end of the month a backward glance does give Belleville a reason for pride that depression and cold didn't make things unbearable, and that there was so little hardship in spite of the severity of the weather.

Now all eyes turn to the opening of the month of March with its herald of weather-to-be. Enter a lamb and exit a lion or vice versa, enter a lion, and exit a lamb with all the accompaniments of lambing in the fields and such delightful and yet far-away evidences of warmer days. Mankind "fed up" with the medicine of cold and bluster yet says, "Go on with your winter and get it over with," and welcomes a lion with bluster and drifting snow instead of a lamb unless the lamb wants to stay.

LOCAL INDUSTRY

The annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce once again brings to the attention of the citizens of Belleville that industrially and commercially this city is in a fortunate position. It is among the few cities which have been listed on the continent where business has been good during the depression. It is also a city where the industries have been so well assimilated and made so much a part of the very life of the city and district that even a slump does not strike so hard.

Secretary Manager J. O. Herity brought this out clearly in a report made last night, pointing out that some people look upon a huge motor industry as most desirable which in times of progress is a mark of progress while in "bad times" the unemployment incident to the reduction of the staff of such a plant would have been a most undesirable burden.

The Chamber has stood Belleville in good stead in fostering the industries we have, in stimulating the establishment of new industries and in looking into possible new industries with a caution which does not place a millstone about the ratepayers' and tenants' necks. It is easy enough for a municipality to be talked into some "shining" industry by clever men and to be coaxed to supporting an industry to come this way but Belleville has found that the industry which is out looking for anything but a chance to stand on its own feet and to develop business by its own strength and executive's ability and foresight is to all intents and purposes quite undesirable.

One of the finest marks of the industrial life of Belleville has been the stability of the industries of long standing and of the newer industries.

Those who survey the present industrial position cannot but feel that the recent accretions to industry in the form of industries attached to or under the aegis of, established plants is a good sign.

As mentioned before local industries while many of them serve the world, yet are part and parcel of the people here. It is this which lends stability.

Having stood in the breach during four or five years when times were bad elsewhere, the Chamber of Commerce has been able with the council to render worthwhile service. This being so, with the fostering hand of the Chamber of Commerce rocking the industries-to-be Belleville's future cannot but be much brighter.

REASON FOR SONG

O, song is a bit of a puzzle
When anyone wants to know why
Words spring from the heart set to music
At sight of a star in the sky!

The reason for singing eludes one,
Though song may be sweet on his lips
When he watches the white riffles foaming
In the wake of the out-going ships.

So many things move to the measure
Of song through the day and the night:
The river, the wind in the willows,
The wings of the sea gulls in flight.

So great is the urge of its beauty
That translating a rose into words
Is no more of a task to the singer
Than their morning songs are to the birds.

Though the reason for singing is hidden,
Still the need lurks, abiding and deep
As the need of bread is for the hungry.
—Aline Michaelis.

"THE CADAVER OF GIDEON WYCK" one of the latest books to leave the press, has reached Belleville and is arresting the interest of readers as a story of unusual novelty, in fact something decidedly different. The name of the story is not inviting but it piques the curiosity and the story itself with its baffling mystery holds the reader's interest to the end, and gives a decided surprise in the denouement. Everybody might not like this story which purports to be written by a medical student at a small medical college in Missouri and concerns principally the staff and students of the college. However, it is different and very interesting to those who like mystery stories. Demonology, pre-natal influence, medical ethics and advances are treated with not too light a hand, and even the dissecting room gives up some secrets.—so it is safe to predict that "The Cadaver of Gideon Wyck" is destined to be, if not a best seller, very much in demand.

THE LOCH NESS MARINE MONSTER is still among the missing, but whether lost, strayed or stolen, it is difficult to say as yet. The sea serpent or whatchamacallit which brought Loch Ness into world-wide fame has left Loch Ness for fairer fields or deeper waters, and the innkeepers of that part of Scotland are justly indignant that the creature should have let them down thataway, especially when they were willing to provide food and drink for the beastie if it would only stick around and attract tourists, preferably with a thirst.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma and my sister Gladdis took little Willie downtown to the fotographer's to have his picture taken this morning, and after supper ma started to tell pop about it, saying, We certeny had our hands full with your grandson, Willyum, if he'd been a grate primma donna he couldn't of acted more like a tempermental movie actor.

Couldn't you get him to smile? pop said, and ma said, Exockly, you've hit the nale squarely between the eyes. Each time the fotographer invited him to look at the berdy he seemed to take it as a cue to register Russian dejection of the deepest dye, she said. Musselinny himself couldn't of looked more stern and forbidding. He seemed to have the weight of the whole round werld on his little square shoulders. Gladdis reminded him of all the funny things she could think of, with the sole effect of deepening his generel gloom. Willie she'd say, Willie, didn't little Russel Scott look funny when he had the mumps. And she gave an imitation of a child with the mumps that was really so comical and true to life it had the fotographer and myself in stitches, but still Willie remained true to his frown, and just when everything seemed lost for the morning I had my grate inspiration, ma said.

Dont tell me you went over and tickled him? pop said, and ma said, Certeny not, I meerly used the power of suggestion. I said, Willie, do you remember the last time you were at grandmother's house and grandfather tripped on the rug and made such funny motions and nocked into the table and thawt he'd broken his leg and you laughed so hard? Shall I ask him to do it again for you, Willie? I said, and with that his little face lighted up like the midnite sun and the fotographer snapped the picture like a drowning man snapping a straw, ma said.

By gollies if you show me a copy of that picture I'll ruin it, pop said. And he got in back of the sporting page and stayed there.

Him still having a mark on his leg from the leg of the table.

METROPOLITAN LIFE PAYMENTS BREAK RECORDS

Dividends to Policyholders for 1934 Third Largest in History

A very satisfactory financial report for 1933 featured by a record-breaking total of payments to policyholders; an increase in assets; and declaration of the third largest dividend to policyholders in the Company's history, is presented today by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company to its more than twenty-five million policyholders. The Company is entirely mutual, having no stockholders.

This report gives striking evidence of the reliance of the people of Canada and the United States on the security and protection of life insurance, as more than Two Billion Dollars has been paid by the Metropolitan Life to its policyholders and their beneficiaries during the past five years.

In 1934 $95,280,452 was reserved for dividends to policyholders. The regular scale of dividends on premium-paying policies are the same as those of a year ago. Including 1934 declaration, the Metropolitan since its organization has paid or credited a total of $918,472,210 to policyholders in the form of bonuses and dividends. Of this amount $400,000,000 was earned and declared during the last four years.

HARRY D. WRIGHT
Third Vice-President and Manager for Canada, Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, who reports increased investments in the Dominion.

Commenting on Canadian activities of the Company, Third Vice-President Wright, Manager for Canada, said: "In 1933 we paid out more to our policyholders in the Dominion than in any year since we commenced business here in 1872. During the last five years the total amount so paid was $116,074,446." It was also pointed out by Mr. Wright that investments of the Metropolitan Life in Canada had been increased during the year to $246,233,408, and that the amount of Canadian business in force exceeded One Billion Dollars.

The total assets of the Company on December 31st were $3,800,761,191, an increase of $91,388,766 over 1932. It was pointed out that one of the principal changes in the assets during the year had been an increase in the bond holdings—chiefly in Government, Provincial, State and Municipal bonds—and in the cash item, placing the Company in an even more liquid position.

The Company's total income for the year was $871,233,003. This was amply sufficient to meet all the demands of the year; to make payments to policyholders, to pay expenses, to make the necessary additions to reserve, and finally to increase the surplus funds to $243,123,032. An additional margin of safety is contained in the contingency fund of $43,000,000.

Payments to Metropolitan policyholders and their beneficiaries, which passed the half-billion mark in 1932, surpassed even that record last year, when $572,679,580 was disbursed in the form of death benefits, matured endowments, annuities, dividends, disability benefits, cash surrender values, etc. Of the total amount, $151,586,374 was paid in settlement of death claims and well over $400,000,000 to living policyholders. These payments averaged $4,740.73 a minute for each business day.

The total issued, revived and increased in 1933 was $3,174,994,475. Of this amount, $1,583,300,706 was in the Ordinary department, $1,505,470,439 in the Industrial (premiums payable weekly or monthly), and $86,223,330 in the Group. A distinct increase over 1932 was registered in the Ordinary department—$1,583,300,706 in 1933, against $1,571,593,135 during the preceding year.

The total amount of Metropolitan Life insurance in force at the end of 1933 was $18,802,984,818, which amount was sufficient to assure the Metropolitan's continued supremacy among all life insurance companies. Of the total in force, $9,936,236,416 was in the Ordinary department, $6,424,469,056 in the Industrial, and $2,442,279,346 in the Group. In addition, the Accident and Health insurance in force totalled $1,218,622,700 principal sum benefit, and $12,536,918 weekly indemnity. The number of life insurance policies represented by the total insurance in force was 41,660,510, including 1,852,614 lives covered by Group policies.

The daily average of the Company's business in 1933 was 2,026 per day in number of claims paid; 19,929 per day in number of life insurance policies issued and revived; $10,518,227 per day in life insurance issued, revived and increased; $2,221,475 in payments to policyholders and addition to reserve; and $302,612 per day in increase in assets.

FACTS ABOUT THE WORKING OF THE MIND

By LOUIS F. BISCH, M.D. Ph. D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

It is not merely for purposes of convenience that science divides the mind into two parts, the conscious and the unconscious. The distinction really has great practical significance.

The conscious mind—and let it be emphasized that this is consciousness and not conscience—is that part of our thinking mechanism through which we receive impressions from the world outside of us.

Through our sense organs—eyes, ears, mouth, nose and skin—we see, hear, taste, smell and feel. Just as soon as these mental images are experienced by the nerves that constitute the conscious part of the mind, however, they are immediately submerged into what might be called the deeper recesses of the mind, namely the unconscious.

The reason for speed is the fact that consciousness must continually clean the slate, as it were for the recording of new impressions that write themselves upon it without cessation during the hours that we are awake. As quickly as possible the mental impressions must be tucked away somewhere for future use.

If such a system were not operative it is easy to understand that the conscious mind would soon become a hodge-podge of thoughts and impressions, so mixed up and confusing that the individual, figuratively speaking, would not know whether "he was coming or going."

Another way to look upon the difference between the conscious and the unconscious is to liken the former to the door of a room through which all our daily experiences pass in order to be catalogued and properly shelved in the permanent storehouse of the mind, the unconscious.

This morning, for example, you passed a shop window and noticed a display of fur coats. A second later, when you watched yourself so as to avoid being run over by the traffic, the impression of the fur coats was already classified and placed in your unconscious mind. And now, as I mention the experience, you are able to recall the fur coats—in other words, you are able to dig down into the unconscious, resurrect this past experience and relive it in your consciousness again.

It stands to reason, therefore, that millions of thoughts, actions and feelings of the past must be recorded somewhere in your unconscious mind. The unconscious, in effect, and not the conscious, is the real you.

One might say that you are what you are today because of all the experiences that have ever occurred to you from the cradle up to the present time. In one way or another every impression that has ever passed through your consciousness into your unconscious mind has influenced you.

You can readily appreciate why, because of this psychological fact, it is highly important that we implant as many healthy thoughts and experiences in a child's mind as possible. You can also appreciate why psychology nowadays talks so much about the unconscious and why it tries often to resurrect buried memories.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

The old axiom about "an apple a day keeping the doctor away" might well be remembered and the advice followed. For the apple contains Vitamines A. B. and C.; it possesses a cellulose make-up which helps to overcome constipation; its starch content has been converted into sugar by the time the apple is ripe; and its acid content, in the ripe form, is negligible.

QUIT CLAIM DEED ON LOVER'S AFFECTIONS

Unique Record of Marital Affairs At Sydney, N. S.

There is in Sydney, Nova Scotia, a unique record in marital affairs, states the Tourist Department of the Canadian National Railways. It is a quit claim deed to a man's affections and is duly engrossed into with legal formality. It seems that a young blood of Sydney was paying attention to a young lady and after paying court to her decided that he preferred her sister but before the sister would consent to marry she demanded and obtained a quit claim deed from her sister to the effect that she would not interfere in any way with her future husband nor exercise any undue influence on his affections by reason of their former association. The record forms part of those of St. George's Anglican Church in Sydney, which was built around 1785 as a garrison church and contains a genuine Chippendale chair which came from Nelson's cabin when his ship visited there with a fleet about 1806 when chasing the French Admiral Villeneuve.

SICK PLANTS IN HOSPITAL

Operating Theatre in Australia For Plants

Montreal, Feb. 28—At Australia's Federal Capital, Canberra, there exists a remarkable hospital for the treatment of sick plants. Complete with operating theatre, surgical and medical wards, isolation blocks, etc, it has been designed to save the country hundreds of thousands of dollars annually, states an official of the Canadian National Steamships.

The "wards" are glass houses screened against summer sun and warmed against the winter frosts. In one, lie the incurably anaemic plants. At night, they need the help of a huge electric lamp of many hundreds of candle power. Their wasted cells cannot absorb sufficient nourishment during the daylight hours.

Through the glass walls of the "ward" next door can be studied exactly the progress of disease upon the leaves and even roots of a number of infected plants in enormous tubes. Next door, again, are cereals growing in beds equipped with a complex system of warmers to adjust the ground temperature.

In the operating theatre, stems, buds and seeds are dissected to ascertain why fruit refuses to set, why it is small and deformed or why crops are light. In the dietitians department the effects of fertiliser are noted. In the bacteriological laboratories cultures are growing of the germs which attack plants. Even the consequences of late autumns, mild winters and early springs upon the yield of fields and orchards are the subject of continuous intensive study.

Dies Twelve Hours After Examination

Toronto, Feb. 28 (CP)—Just 12 hours after he had passed a voluntary medical examination for work in a road camp, Joseph Osadca, 35, of the Fred Victor Mission Hostel, was seized with a heart attack and died a few minutes later. He was telling other inmates of the hostel about going away last night when he succumbed.

Kill that COLD!

Don't Merely Coddle It with Half-Way Measures!

A cold is nothing to trifle with. Don't waste precious time—take Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine quickly. It does the four things necessary. First, it opens the bowels. Second, it combats the cold germs in the system. It relieves that headache and "grippy" feeling, tones the entire system and helps fortify against further attacks.

WARNING! Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is being insidiously imitated. Don't be deceived by these inferior products. Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is NOT chocolate-coated because that would interfere with the action of the tablet. Dealers who offer substitutes do so because they make more money on them. Exercise your rights. Insist upon GROVE'S Laxative Bromo Quinine and look for the name on the package.

Chamber of Commerce Looks Forward Confidently Tomorrow Bright with Promise Reports Indicate Past Year's Achievements are Given in Detail

New Problems Studied, New Industries Sought by City

1933 NEWCOMERS

Annual Meeting Hears Chamber Out of Debt With Bank Credit

Belleville Chamber of Commerce is for the first time since its organization in November 1919 out of debt with a credit balance in the bank.

This achievement is a real feat after four years of difficult times and is a symbol of the care and thoroughness with which the Chamber is handling the peculiar special problems which come within its range.

[illegible] Chamber members have hopes for the brightest era in the history of the organization and of the industry of the city when the recovery strikes its full stride. Reasons for these optimistic outlook are not difficult to find.

Some may not know it, but the fact is recognized that business in Belleville has been called good throughout the depression period by one of the greatest business agencies or barometers in North America.

Progress Indicated

Last night the annual meeting of the Chamber was held at the Y.M.C.A. in conjunction with the fourth lecture of a series on modern business. Reports from officials and from the manager indicate the healthy position of the industrial life of this city, the efforts put forth to entrench the industries already locating here and to bring about a solid industrial expansion. Besides the establishment of five new industries, which the Chamber was happy to announce as having located in Belleville last year, the changing phase of post-depression problems was emphasized in the references to the navigation question, British-Canadian trade through the Commerce Crusaders, freight rates and other matters of importance.

At the meeting last evening, Mr. J. B. Boyce occupied the chair, in the absence of the president, Mr. [illegible] Springer at present in Florida. The following messages were presented from the officers and the manager.

Brief History of a Great Movement

1768–The first British Chamber of Commerce was formed at St. Helier, in Jersey; one of the Channel Islands, during the month of February, 1768—the original Minutes are in the possession of the Jersey Chamber of Commerce today.

1768–The first Chamber of Commerce on the Continent of North America was established by the British in April, 1768.

1773–The second Chamber of Commerce on the Continent of North America was established by the British during the year 1773.

1782–Over 151 years ago the Jamaica Chamber of Commerce at Kingston, Jamaica, had for Patron, George, Lord Rodney, Admiral of the White Squadron, who had brought into the Kingston harbour, deGrasse the French Admiral, whom he had conquered off The Saints on the twelfth day of April, 1782, and saved the British West Indies for the Empire.

1783–The Chambers of Commerce at Glasgow, Scotland, at Belfast, Northern Ireland, and at Dublin, Irish Free State, have celebrated their 150th anniversaries.

1785–The Chamber of Commerce at Leeds, England, has been serving its community for over 148 years.

1785–The Chamber of Commerce at Edinburgh has been serving the Scots for over 148 years.

1794–The Chamber of Commerce at Manchester, England, has been in existence about 140 years.

1796–The Chamber of Commerce at Cape Town, South Africa, has functioned continuously for 137 years.

1808–The Chamber of Commerce in Guernsey, another of the Channel Islands, has to its credit over 125 years of service. The original Minute book reference the formation of the Guernsey Chamber of Commerce may be seen at their present office.

1813–The Chamber of Commerce in the City of Plymouth, Devon, England, has been serving usefully for over 120 years.

1813–The same is true of the Chambers of Commerce at Birmingham, England, and at Greenock, Scotland.

1815–The one at Newcastle-Upon-Tyne, in England, since its inception in the year when the Battle of Waterloo was fought and won, has consistently served its community.

1825–The Chamber of Commerce at Kirkcaldy, in Scotland, is in its 108th year.

Incorporated by Royal Charter many British Chambers of Commerce have been serving their communities for over 100 years.

The Association of British Chambers of Commerce has a record of three-quarters of a century of service.

His Majesty The King is the Patron of the Association of British Chambers of Commerce.

The Congress of Chambers of Commerce of the British Empire has been serving the Empire for half a century.

Each local Chamber of Commerce is a part of a great network of Chambers of Commerce in all progressive communities throughout the world.

In each of them men are gratuitously giving their time, knowledge and experience for the benefit of their own community and for the advancement of the country.

It is possible for a proposal to be originated by a member of any local Chamber of Commerce, and to pass through the various channels until it is submitted by the International Chamber of Commerce to every principal government in the world.

The Chamber of Commerce is a service movement. It commenced as such in 1768 when the motto "Non Nobis Nati Solum" was adopted. Interpreted it means "Not Born For Ourselves Alone".

A study of the history of the work of British Chambers of Commerce proves this to be true. Each local Chamber of Commerce is a link in this great British Institution that has done so much to strengthen the ties of our great Empire.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

From far-away Florida, President W. O. Springer sends to the members of the Chamber of Commerce cordial greetings and an expression of hope that the year 1934 may be the best in the history of the Chamber of Commerce and of the City of Belleville. As one of the foremost of the "Builders of Belleville" Mr. Springer believes our city has been laying a firm foundation for a magnificent industrial future.

PAST PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

While the past year has been a difficult one, conditions have improved and will doubtless continue to do so.

In closing my term of office, I wish to thank most heartily the directors and members for their excellent support and also our city council for their support and helpful co-operation in our activities.

We have many good industrial prospects which are being carefully followed up and we feel, through the efforts of our very capable manager, that some of these, at least, will materialize with the return to more normal times.

I trust that the membership will not only be sustained but increased and with the hearty co-operation of all, we may look forward to a bright future.

W. A. PARKER.

MANAGER'S REPORT

To the members of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce:

The city of Belleville has passed successfully through four years of depression, severe beyond all previous human experience. All former records for low prices, unemployment, idle factories and lack of commercial movement have been shattered. That quadrennium of difficulty and dire distress will long stand out in memory as the most baffling in world history. All previous rules and guides proved unreliable and inadequate. It seemed as though an epoch had come to an end rather than to the termination of a mere cycle in business fluctuation.

Five New Industries Arrive.

It was not expected that there would be marked industrial expansion during a period when manufacturers were mainly concerned with standing off their bankers and trying to hold their mechanical staffs and their markets while there was greatly reduced demand for their goods. Under such conditions it has been extremely gratifying to be able to report that during the year just closed there were five entirely new industries or branch industries established in our city. While these were not of major proportions individually, collectively they represent an impressive record of growth. And let us all remember that small industries often expand into larger industries. In fact, nearly all the major industries of the world today began in an exceedingly modest manner. Let us therefore welcome these newcomers to our city and try to give them every encouragement.

We sometimes hear people express a desire to have established here some dominating major industry, as for instance the motor industry in Oshawa or Windsor. No greater mistake could be made. When all the industrial eggs are in one huge basket disaster is likely to follow any major business reverse and the whole community becomes involved. On the other hand, where there is wide variety in our manufacturing enterprises, as we have it in Belleville, then we may have an occasional suspension upon the part of some industry and no person will suffer outside of those immediately concerned.

The five new industries that have located or been developed here since the beginning of 1933 are as follows:

LIME AND HYDRATES PLANTS INC., YORK, PA. — This company has made manufacturing arrangements with the Stephens-Adamson Co. and the latter company has already installed much of this special equipment for customers in eastern Canada.

AMERICAN WELL WORKS CO., AURORA, ILL.—The company has also made manufacturing arrangements with the Stephens-Adamson Co. and considerable business has already developed.

BIG "A" CO.—This new development is devoted to the manufacture of oil-burners for ranges and furnaces. The patterns and rights are supplied by a leading manufacturer of Chicago.

INDIVIDUAL MAUSOLEUMS OF CANADA LTD.—This company is a development from a larger American organization and began business in Belleville about five months ago. The Canadian charter has been secured and several Belleville men elected to the executive. The company has already developed a considerable business and placed a number of these mausoleums at various points in the district.

KING, RANKIN AND CO. LTD.—This new organisation has entered the canning field and has inaugurated a new system of placing small individual canning plants with the farmers. The company put up 50,000 cases of tomatoes in that way during the past season and was able to market profitably what would otherwise have been almost an entire waste.

It ought also to be mentioned that Messrs. A. Safe and Co. have extended their business by introducing equipment for cutting steel and other metals into standard sizes for more convenient marketing. This gives employment to several more people and virtually amounts to a new industry as far as Belleville is concerned.

Better Navigation.

The Chamber of Commerce has been endeavoring to arouse interest in the better development of navigation along the Bay of Quinte. Special attention is being given to the further deepening of the channel of navigation at Telegraph Narrows. Because of the unprecedented low levels of water in the Great Lakes during the present season the channel at Telegraph Narrows now gives only 11½ feet depth. Much difficulty has been experienced by those bringing cargoes for the Cement Company, the Distillery, the oil companies and for out-going shipments of cheese, apples, etc. The Chamber of Commerce therefore appealed to the various municipal councils and Chambers of Commerce in the district as well as the local members of the House of Commons to co-operate in the application to the Department of Public Works at Ottawa to have this channel deepened to fourteen feet clear navigation at low water so as to correspond with the depth of the St. Lawrence canals. Favorable action was taken by the City Council and Chamber of Commerce of Peterborough, the Town Councils of Trenton, Campbellford and Lindsay and the favorable support has been assured of the local members of the House of Commons. Hon. H. A. Stewart, Minister of Public Works, has promised to have a thorough survey of this channel made by the engineers of his department so as to report back during the coming session of the House of Commons.

Differential in Freight Rates.

The Chamber of Commerce in July last took up with the heads of the freight departments of the two Canadian railway systems the difference in freight charges on British coal carried from Montreal to Belleville as compared with the charges from Montreal to Toronto. The coal to Toronto was being carried at $1.50 a ton as compared with $1.70 at Belleville. An appeal was also lodged with the Canadian Board of Railway Commissioners to see if something could not be done to remedy this apparent injustice. The latter body has taken the ground that application will have to be made to the Board of Railway Commissioners for a sitting at Belleville if that is thought advisable.

Farm Products Week.

The Chamber of Commerce co-operated with the Ontario Department of Agriculture in arranging for window displays, particularly of Canadian farm products during the month of October. The interest aroused by this competition was very great and should have a very favorable effect in the increase of demand for those goods, the production of which forms the very foundation of our prosperity.

Friendly Discussion of Civic Affairs.

It is felt that much good was accomplished by the two Open Forum meetings that were held in conference with the members of the City Council and the Board of Education at which there was a full, frank and friendly discussion of civic affairs particularly the financial situation at the present time. The discussions that took place were of the most amicable nature and the suggestions that were made at these meetings have in a large measure been put into effect.

Conventions Attended.

The president of the Chamber of Commerce, former president, E. V. Illsey and the vice-president, Mr. W. H. Morton, had the privilege of attending the tenth annual convention of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce which was held at Ottawa in October. This body is filling an exceedingly important place in the business and commercial life of Canada and bids fair to become of infinitely greater service in the years to come.

The manager of the Chamber of Commerce attended the recent convention of the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce held at Hamilton in November.

Prominent Citizens Called By Death.

The untimely demise of John Elliott, last March, removed from our city one who had for a quarter of a century been a leader in the civic and business life of Belleville. He was an enthusiastic supporter of the Chamber of Commerce and one of its ablest champions at home and abroad. He was elected to the presidency of the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce and ably represented Belleville Chamber of Commerce at the various conventions of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce and at several of the triennial conventions of the Federation of Chambers of Commerce of the British Empire.

The death of Judge Richard D. Ponton, last May, prematurely brought to a close a brilliant and successful professional career. He had been appointed to the judiciary of the province only a few months before his death. He too was a faithful supporter of the Chamber of Commerce and a firm believer in organised community effort as the most effective means of promoting the civic welfare.

The county of Hastings and the city of Belleville last a valuable citizen and a faithful public servant when W. H. Nugent, for many years county clerk, passed away in January of the current year. He gave of his best to promote the public weal.

The demise of His Honor Judge Wills a month ago has also removed from our midst a most excellent and honorable citizen who had the welfare of his native city deeply at heart. His constructive efforts for the betterment of Belleville during his biennial term in the mayoralty did much to bring into existence this more beautiful and better city of which we all have reason to be proud.

No Grant From City Council.

It has been brought to the attention of the manager that reports have been circulated and statements have been published that the Chamber of Commerce receives an annual grant from the city council. Why such incorrect assertions continue to be made it is difficult to imagine.

Let me state again and most emphatically, that since the Chamber of Commerce was first organized, more than fourteen years ago, no grant, large or small, has been made to it by the city council, with the single exception of a grant of moderate amount made for a special purpose in the year 1932. No other grant has ever been asked or received.

The work of the Chamber of Commerce is of such a nature that it benefits every citizen and property-owner, particularly when it has been the means of inducing important industries to locate in Belleville. The office work, correspondence and promotion of public movements and enterprises are, in the aggregate, of enormous benefit to the city and in the strictest sense of the word, are city work just as directly as though carried on at the city hall. Yet the entire expense for stenography, printing, postage, telephone calls, rent and other important incidentals is borne by the funds contributed by voluntary subscriptions from citizens who believe in a greater Belleville.

Equally erroneous are reports to the effect that the luncheons at the weekly meetings held by the directors are paid for by civic funds. As a matter of fact the directors pay for these luncheons out of their own pockets and do not touch a cent of funds of the Chamber of Commerce, let alone receiving a grant from the city treasury. It is hard to understand why anyone should busily circulate such incorrect statements when the truth could be so easily ascertained.

Now Out of Debt.

For the first time since the Chamber of Commerce was first organised in November, 1919, the treasurer and the auditor are able to report that the Chamber of Commerce is out of debt and the year has been ended with a surplus. Auditor Neal reports a credit balance at the bank of $106.57 at the end of the year and a surplus for the year of $855.05.

When the present manager took over the administration of Chamber of Commerce affairs, the organization was in debt to the extent of $5,000.00. Year by year this has been gradually reduced, until 1932, when the debt was extinguished and a surplus achieved. Such a result was not brought about by accident but by economy of the most drastic description and by sacrifices such as no other civic organization has been called upon to make. Many essential activities had necessarily to be omitted because funds were lacking and let us therefore hope that improving business conditions will also place the Chamber of Commerce in a position where its usefulness may be achieved to the full.

Business Training Lecture Course.

An experiment that has already attracted wide attention and given promise of highly important results was launched at the beginning of the present month in the Business Training Lecture Course by collaboration with Dr. W. A. McIntosh, director of the Department of Commerce and Administration of Queen's University, Kingston, a program of lectures has been arranged by which the members of the Chamber of Commerce and the young men and women of the city are given an opportunity, at nominal cost, of hearing lectures on subjects of deep interest by men of eminent academic standing. At the time of writing three of the lectures have been delivered and the assembly room at the "Y" has been crowded with earnest young citizens who have an ambition to become more than mere routine workers.

The Commerce Crusaders.

A promising new departure in promotion of Empire trade has been made by a group of business men at Belleville who are calling themselves the "Commerce Crusaders". The new movement, which has been largely under the direction of Captain W. E. Schuster, a member of the Chamber of Commerce, has for its object the direct exchange of goods from the Belleville district for goods from Great Britain, particularly anthracite coal from the Welsh collieries. Wide publicity for the movement has already been given by the press of Great Britain and of Canada. Belleville goods are now prominently displayed and featured in the stores of Swansea, Wales, and in other British cities. It is hoped to facilitate this laudable work by establishing a direct line of steamship communication between the port of Belleville and Swansea.

Better Port Facilities.

Coincident with this new endeavor has been a demand for better docking facilities at Belleville harbor. The question was fully discussed at an Open Forum meeting of the Chamber of Commerce held in December. As a result of the impetus there given the Department of Public Works at Ottawa has earnestly entered into the proposition and made a survey of the section where the proposed extensions are to be made. The city council and the board of harbor commissioners are also lending their fullest co-operation and it is strongly hoped that action will result in the very near future.

A Great Corporation 100 Years Old.

Our congratulations go out to the American Optical Company upon attainment of the century mark since the company was first launched upon its way in a very modest manner at Southbridge, Mass., in 1833. The Canadian branch at Belleville was established here 12 years ago under the able direction of Mr. E. W. Worth, now in charge of the company's British plant at London, England. Mr. Arthur Groves has succeeded Mr. Worth as local manager and has already made for himself a fine administrative record. The American Optical Company has been an important contributor to Belleville's prosperity.

"Where Business Is Best".

No higher compliment could be paid to Belleville than the almost unbroken record in Babson's monthly report that Belleville is numbered among eighteen of the Canadian towns and cities "where business is best". Every month this reliable commercial agency gathers material from the incontestable records of the Department of Statistics at Ottawa, from banks and mercantile establishments, about the business activities and conditions in the various urban communities of Canada. From these records the name of Belleville has therefore been appearing month after month as one of the towns and cities where business is best. Our reputation for financial dependability and substantial business standing has received this notable endorsation.

United Endeavors Have Made For Success.

The success of the Chamber of Commerce has not been due to the efforts of the manager or to any individual but to the united endeavors of the board of directors, the committee-men, and to the loyal body of members. To all those who by their generous contributions of work, of money and of goodwill have made these community achievements possible, the manager takes this opportunity of expressing his deepest appreciation.

Let us look unitedly forward to what we have every reason to believe will be better days, a more prosperous year than any in the recent past, to expanding business and a greater and a finer city.

J. O. HERITY,
Manager.

CITY ROADS SOON WILL BE OPENED

With twenty men still engaged on the work of snow removal all through the city, it is expected by City Foreman John Henderson today that the majority of the snow-banked sidewalks in the residential sections of the city would be cleared late today. In the meantime snow plows and city graders in other sections of the city were attacking the drifts, that had blocked many streets. Particularly heavy drifts had been reported from the outlying sections of the city, while the more sheltered parts had escaped the heaviest downfall.

LOWER SCHOOL RATE

Stratford, Ont., Feb. 26 (CP) — Separate School Board has struck its tax rate for the ensuing year at 10 1-2 mills half a mill lower than last year, and will ask city council to levy that much against Separate School supporters.

MANY ATTEND LIBERAL EUCHRE

At the Belleville Liberal Club euchre and dance held at the Front Street clubrooms Monday evening, the following prize winners were announced as the result of the euchre games. Ladies—Mrs. Charleston, Mrs. Cory and Mrs. Crawford. Gentlemen—Mr. Harris, Mr. Dauphine and Mr. Wm. Tice in order named. A large crowd graced this initial effort of holding the parties by wards. Foster and Samson Wards were represented last evening.

Following refreshments, Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Samain gave an exhibition dance, after which dancing was enjoyed by the large number. Four novelty dances for which prizes were given were also arranged.

DEPUTY GROND REGENT TO VISIT MOOSE WOMEN

Mrs. Josephine Jackson, Toronto, Deputy Grand Regent of the Women of the Moose, will be a visitor of the Belleville Chapter tomorrow, when guests will include members of the Association of Eastern Ontario. Other distinguished visitors will be past regents from Smith's Falls and Peterborough.

Mrs. Jackson has been active in the work ever since she joined the West Toronto Chapter in 1919. The following year she was chosen Recorder an office she held for six years. Mrs. Jackson has visited practically all the Ontario Chapters and made one trip entirely across the Dominion to visit Western Canadian groups.

Having six children of her own, Mrs. Jackson has always been interested in and helped with work for underprivileged children. She is the wife of J. G. Jackson, a prominent consulting heating engineer of Toronto, who belongs to the Loyal Order of Moose. She belongs to the West Toronto, Y.W.C.A. and for a time was connected in an official capacity with the department of emigration.

HALLOWAY W. M. S.

The Halloway W.M.S. met at the church on Wednesday, February 21st. Dinner was served to twenty visitors and members. Mrs. Harry Townsend opened the meeting by devotional exercise taken from the W.M.S. monthly. Hymn 137 was sung as a prayer. The 18th chapter of Luke, verses 35-43, was read and hymn 136 was sung.

The President then taking charge of the business, Mrs. John Townsend gave a reading.

The ex-President was presented with a small token of remembrance of her good work in the last four years as being president.

Miss Bessie McMullen read a letter from the Belleville Presbyterial and the President was appointed to go as delegate to Napanee.

Mr. Mutton gave a short talk and the meeting was closed by prayer by Mrs. Mutton. Proceeds $5.10.

MISS HERRINGTON HOSTESS AT PARTY

Massassaga, Feb. 27—Miss Rhoda Brummel of Melrose, spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. Brummel.

Mr. I. Nightingale spent Wednesday evening at Mr. Roy Valleau's.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wallbridge spent Sunday with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. Jamieson.

The social evening which was held at the home of Miss C. Herrington was a real success. Part of the evening was spent by progressive card playing, the favors were won by Miss Helen Wallbridge and Mr. Sidney Johnson. The winners for the contest were Miss Pearl Brummel and Mr. Douglas Wallbridge. Dainty refreshments were served and a social hour spent.

Mr. W. G. Anderson called at Mr. Howard Wallbridge's on Tuesday afternoon.

The weekly meeting of the Young People's League was held at the church on Wednesday evening with a good attendance. The meeting was opened by hymn No. 273 followed by prayer by Mr. Fletcher. The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Gordon Anderson. The business was then discussed, it was decided to have a sleighing party in the near future. Mr. Dulmage gave a talk on "Poverty and Wealth." Miss Pearl Brummel and Mrs. Lasher gave readings. Mr. Norman Wallbridge gave a piano solo. The meeting closed with a hymn and prayer, after which a social hour was spent.

A number from this vicinity attended the shower for Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wallbridge (nee Marjorie Jamieson) on Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. Jamieson.

Miss Audrey Way of Mountain View spent Sunday evening with Miss Gertrude Wallbridge.

Miss Eileen Swain spent Sunday afternoon and evening with Misses Gertrude and Helen Wallbridge.

GIVEN HONOR

Mrs. H. C. File of the teaching staff of the Napanee Collegiate Institute has been made an honorary member of the Six Nations Indians tribe at Caledonia. She was given the name of Ka-Noe-Rohn-Kwa, meaning Loving Heart. Mrs. File for several years took much interest in the educational work of Indian children, and for six years taught at the Central School, west of Deseronto, on the Tyendinaga Indian Reserve. She attributes the honor conferred upon her to the historical research work which she did in attempting to learn Iroquois ritual. Mrs. File spent some time delving into the early history of the Iroquois Indians, their customs, legends, and folklore.

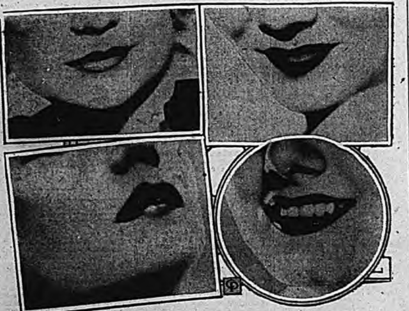
By Their Lips You Shall Know Them!



Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 27.—According to Henry Olive, noted artist, you must look, not into a woman's eyes to know her soul; but at her lips. The common belief is that a woman's eyes are "a mirror of her soul" —Mr. Olive's theory contradicts that belief. Suppose you read the lips pictured, and their characteristics, and see if you can guess whose lips they are in each case, before you look at the identification at the bottom. The pictures read from the top left, and left to right.

No. 1 pictures lips which "offer a great contrast. The upper lip is full, while the lower one is almost a horizontal line. They say that the owner is inwardly emotional, outwardly calm, and they give to her countenance a sleek sophisticated look."

No. 2 is almost the reverse of No. 1; depicting a full lower lip. "They disclose a nature that is strikingly ambitious."

No. 3 are the lips of a girl "who could weather emotional storms without concern."

No. 4 are lips that are "full and firm, indicating a temperament of great extremes; of utter happiness and utter despair."

And now to introduce the names of the ladies whose lips are pictured, and whose natures have been described by Mr. Olive after a study of their lips.

Can you guess? No. 1 is Miriam Hopkins; No. 2 is Claudette Colbert; No. 3 is Carole Lombard; No. 4 is Jean Harlow.

Stirling Council Discusses Improvements To Theatre

Stirling—The village Council convened at a special meeting held in the Hydro Electric Office on Friday evening for the purpose of personally interviewing a representative of The Dominion Theatre Equipment Company of Toronto regarding the purchasing of the repairs which have been in use on trial for the past few weeks in the Stirling Theatre. An amicable settlement was arrived at when the price was arranged suitable to both parties. Since the installation of the new parts, the attendance has increased due to the improved acoustic properties, and it is hoped that the patronage will be continued.

West—In Stirling, on Saturday, February 24, 1934 to Mr. and Mrs William C. West, a daughter.

Mr. Kingsley Joblin of the University of Toronto was a weekend guest of his parents, Rev. and Mrs. F. G. Joblin.

Mr. Clarence McGee of Peterborough spent the week end in town the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wright. Mr. McGee has been employed in the C.N.R. freight sheds at Peterborough but has been transfered to the C.N.R. in Belleville where he assumed his new duties on Monday.

Mr. Clifford Baker has returned home after spending Thursday, Friday and Saturday of last week in Windsor on Business.

Friends of Miss Jean McCubbin of the Public School Staff are glad to learn that she is able to be out again following her recent illness.

All A.Y.P.A. activities of St. John's Anglican Church have been temporarily suspended for the Lenten season. The A.Y.P.A. in lieu of their Monday evening meetings, joins with the congregation in observing the Wednesday evening Lenten Service.

Rev. J. Knox of Belleville will occupy the pulpit in St. Paul's United Church next Sunday in the continued illness of Rev. E. W. Rowland, pastor.

The joint services of St. Paul's United Church and St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church were held on Sunday with Rev. J. A. Koffend of St. Andrew's conducting the services. The matinal devotions were held in St. Andrew's Church when the pastor took for his text "Except Ye See Signs and Wonders, Ye will not Believe" (John 4-48). The choir rendered an anthem and Mr. Gerald Clute sang the solo "There Were Ninety and Nine" Mr. Chas. Allen organist of St. Andrew's Church presided at the organ during the services as well as at the evening services in St. Paul's Church. In the evening Rev. Koffend took for his sermon the Golden Parable of the Prodigal Son which he fittingly concluded with the singing of the beautiful solo "The Prodigal Son". Mr. Gerald Clute again sang a pleasing solo, "The Bird With The Broken Pinion." Splendid congregations turned out for both joint services of morning and evening.

Mrs. Angus Rosebush of Lindsay is visiting her daughter Mrs. George Luery for a few weeks.

Friends of Mr. Harold "Pete" Way are sorry to hear of the death of his father in Welland. The funeral is being held in Tweed on Tuesday. "Pete" was a former member of the Stirling News-Argus staff and recently secured a position on the staff of "The Planet", Coldwater.

The usual weekly meetings of the Brownies and the Girl Guides were held on Friday, the former on Friday afternoon at 4 with Brownies Leaders Marion Bailey and Madeline Luery in charge and the latter at 7 in the evening with Captain Kay Munday in command.

Mr. Allan Bailey was seized with a weak spell one day last week and fell. It was at first thought that it had resulted in nothing serious but on Sunday Dr. Demorest was called and found that Mr. Bailey had fractured several ribs. Dr. Demorest is now in attendance.

The first game of the semi-finals in the Centre League and the first game in the play downs in the Rawdon League, the first slated for last Friday evening and the second for Monday evening were postponed due to the impassable condition of the roads.

The local High School sextette go into the final game of the playdowns in the South Hastings Interscholastic loop on Wednesday evening in the local arena. In the first game played in the Paper Town on Friday evening the locals succeeded in holding the home towners to a 3 all count and so the teams enter the combat on Wednesday evening with a 50-50 chance of pulling out a win.

The Pathfinder Club of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Matthews on Thursday evening. The regular business meeting was first conducted following which a social evening was enjoyed.

Rev J. A. Koffend was in Kingston on Tuesday on a business trip.

FAREWELL PARTY FOR NEIGHBORS

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Will Hickerson was the scene of a very pleasant gathering on Friday evening when their neighbors and friends spent a very enjoyable evening with them. About midnight Mr. and Mrs. Hickerson and family were asked to come forward and Miss Ila Robertson read an address while Mr. H. Shetler and Mr. H. Murphy presented two beautiful chairs; Clayton received a tie, and Miss Sylvia, a silver jewel case, as a token of the best wishes of their friends.

The address follows:

"Mr. and Mrs. Hickerson and Family.

"Dear Friends,—

"We are gathered here tonight to spend one more evening with you. We regret very much your removal from our community where you have made many friends. Your kind neighborliness and hospitality has not been unnoticed by us and we are sorry that the tie that binds us so closely together as friends and neighbors must so soon be severed, but we hope the change will work out for your advancement. You will make many new friends but we know you will not forget the old ones, and we ask you to accept these gifts as a token of our regard for you and yours. May you be abundantly blessed with health, prosperity and happiness in your new home.

"Signed on behalf of the community,

Harvey Shetler
Harry Murphy."

Mr. and Mrs. Hickerson both expressed thanks for the gifts and invited all to visit them in their new home. A delicious lunch was served and dancing was enjoyed until the early morning hours. Leitch brothers furnished delightful music. Many were prevented from attending as the roads were drifted full in places, but those who attended enjoyed the evening together.

Mr. and Mrs. Hickerson expect to move next month to their new home near Selby.

QUINTE BRANCH

The February meeting of Quinte Branch Women's Institute was held Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Kenneth Vivian, Shannonville. There was a good attendance of members and visitors despite unfavorable weather conditions. The President Mrs. Bunnett had charge of the meeting which opened with the Ode, followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison. The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted. Several letters of appreciation were read for flowers and fruit sent during illness. After routine business and discussions had been disposed of Mrs. W. Johnson, leader for February capably took charge Community singing at intervals during the afternoon brightened the proceedings. Many familiar airs were sung. 'O Canada', 'Jingle Bells' and others in keeping with the times. The guest speaker Dr. Welsh of Roslin addressed the gathering on "Man's Attitude Toward His Physical Life," stressing on the word 'attitude.' He touched on 'Child Welfare', prevention of diseases, keeping physically fit for life's duties, but despite all God was the present help of all our troubles. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded Dr. Welsh for his instructive message. The visitors were called upon for a few words and all expressed their gratitude at being present and were inspired by the splendid address.

The roll call, remedies for colds, burns and poisons was helpfully responded to.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem and singing of grace, Mrs. Vivian assisted by the convener served a delicious lunch.

Endeavourer's S. S. Class

The endeavourers Sunday School Class, West Huntingdon, held their Monthly meeting for February at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mellville Donnan.

The meeting was opened by singing a hymn followed by prayer by Foster Wilson. Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. M. Reid. Roll call was answered by a verse of scripture. Twenty one members and six visitors being present.

A very interesting paper was given by Clifford Elliott and a solo by Mrs. Willie Fitchett. Members were very fortunate to have with them, Miss Edna Thrasher who rendered several lovely selections on her guitar. Readings were read by Elmer Poste and Frank Hammond. Business was dealt with and the Misses Edna Thrasher, Lelia Johnson and Frances Read favored with another selection.

Mrs. Frank Hammond put on a Bible contest. The meeting was closed by singing a hymn.

A very dainty lunch was served by the host and hostess after which everyone returned to their home feeling it was a very worth while evening spent.

AN AUTOMOBILE OUT OF ORDER is taken to a mechanic, not to apply more power or take out some part, but to adjust what is wrong so that the power mechanism can exert its influence and make the most remote wheels run correctly. Now, the human body may be likened to a delicate piece of machinery run by the motor power—the brain—sending out its mental impulses to all parts of the body through the nerves. Any irregularity in the working of the body is caused by the failure of the nerves to perform their function. The rational way—the chiropractic way—would be to hunt up the place where the flow of vitality is checked and again open up the channels of life.

AT THE BELLE

"ALL OF ME"

"All of Me", the title of which cannot convey the human grandeur that enriches this Paramount picture that comes to the Belle Theatre tomorrow (Thursday) and will establish itself immediately as the popular magnet it deserves to be.

Not only is the picture noteworthy from a standpoint of compelling drama, but its cast, led by Fredric March, Miriam Hopkins, George Raft and Helen Mack, offers sterling performances.

Briefly, "All of Me" is the story of an odd, interesting character, a society girl who rivets attention and sympathy regardless of her strange quest of love. Miss Hopkins, calling on her entire store of talent, makes this character understandable, and Fredric March, playing opposite her as the college instructor and engineer, sustains the dramatic march of the story with an equally brilliant performance.

Contrast to the social world background is provided by the parallel romance of George Raft and Helen Mack of the underworld, whose love for each other is a sublime thing, despite their life and surroundings.

Belle's Select Shorts

Thelma Todd and Patsy Kelly are appearing on the same program in an uproarious comedy creation, "Air Tight." "Yeast is Yeast", a smart and tuneful revue, and "Precision," a novel, and entertaining vehicle round out a program of excellent screen entertainment that should not be missed.

"Treasure" Gifts

A beautiful four-piece Sheffield Tea Service with Tray, is the major gift of the weekly "Treasure" night gifts to be presented at the Belle Thursday evening at 9 p.m. Nine other excellent silver gifts will also be given away.

"Orient Express" Finish

When a man goes to prison...... what happens to his family? This question is answered in the startling drama, "Day of Reckoning", based on an original story by Morris Lavine, metropolitan newspaper man of wide experience, and featuring Richard Dix, Madge Evans, Conway Tearle, Una Merkel and Stuart Erwin, it will be presented at the Belle tonight for the last time, with Heather Angel and Norman Foster in "Orient Express," a story abundant with thrills, speed, romance, luxury, comedy and drama. A very interesting Belle News will be exhibited on the same program.

George Raft in "All of Me", coming to the Belle, Thursday.

AT THE CAPITOL

"SWEETHEART OF SIGMA CHI" AND "POLICE CAR 17"

College faculties to the contrary, the flirtatious co-ed is a necessary evil. Campus life would be as dull as a radio announcer's advertising talk without her. Not only is she the life of every party, she scatters infectious gayety wherever she goes, and typifies youth, romance and feminine charm even to the grinds. Grouchy professors may frown upon her outwardly, but secretly they admire her colorful personality and chuckle at her antics. Instinctively a heart-breaker, she usually plays square, and manages to keep the friendship of her ex-suitors, even after she has "got her man" and gone merrily on her way.

A typical example of one of these modern charmers is to be found in "Sweetheart of Sigma Chi" Monogram's college musical, which comes to the Capitol Theatre, on Thursday. Vivian is her name, and she lives up to the traditions of her kind by collecting fraternity pins with the same avidity that the first Americans collected scalps. Loved by most of the Sigma Chis, Vivian finds her man among them, but jilts him unceremoniously when the occasion presents itself. Everything is settled satisfactorily, however, at the big crew race on home-coming week, when Bob North the favored man, proves himself a champion oarsman in one of the most thrilling races ever screened.

Mary Carlisle, heroine of "College Humor" impersonates the irrepressible Vivian in "Sweetheart of Sigma Chi," and Buster Crabbe ex-college athlete, and one time Olympic champion, plays opposite her.

The second feature presentation on this double bill program is "Police Car 17".

Tim McCoy, popular Western star, lays aside his familiar chaps, ten-gallon hat and high-heeled boots and dons the trim, blue uniform of the Radio Police in "Police Car 17", the Columbia action-drama.

Chases in high powered cars; thrilling gun battles and daring rescues, enough love interest to appeal to lovers of romance and really splendid performances by McCoy down to the smallest "bit" player are features of this new film. It is, incidentally, McCoy's first non-western portrayal and he proves just as effective and competent in this type of role as in the more familiar western character.

Last times today Kay Francis in "The House on 56th Street".

PERMIT MUST BE ACCESSIBLE

Following a recent order-in-council passed in the Ontario Government notice to all owners of commercial motor vehicles and trailers was issued. The local police department were in receipt of the order-in-council today, which immediately goes into effect and reads as follows:—

"The permit issued for a commercial motor vehicle or for a trailer shall be carried by the driver of such commercial motor vehicle or trailer or placed in some readily accessible position in the vehicle and shall be produced, when demanded by a police constable or an officer appointed for carrying out provisions of the Highway Traffic Act or Public Commercial Vehicle Act."

Attention is directed to the fact that a penalty is provided under Section 60 of the Highway Traffic Act for failure to comply with the regulations passed pursuant to the Act. The new act will immediately be put into force locally.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

NEW YORK - TORONTO - WINNIPEG

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO, Feb. 28. — (CP)— Market leaders were buoyant in the Industrial section of the Toronto Stock Exchange today and gains had the edge of losses at the end of the second hour. Walker's common had the leadership for both volume and price advance, holding at 49 1-2 at noon for a net gain of 2 points. The stock was taken in heavy blocks. Industrial Alcohol gained 1-2 to 16 1-4 and Distillers Seagrams 7-8 to 21 1-8. Brewers and Distillers was unchanged at 2.70

All the interlisted leaders were up with exception of Brazilian Traction, which slipped another half point to 12 and substantial turnover. Nickel gained 30 cents, selling at 23.90, Ford A added 1-8 and C.P.R. was up a narrow fraction.

Rising of the temperature thawed out traders today and they made purchases so freely that Industrial Stock prices scored a substantial advance. Metal, Distillery, Utility and Food shares were arrayed on the upside this afternoon with volume heavy in the liquor shares, Nickel and Ford A.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Feb. 28 (CP)—Mining shares firmed slowly in the morning session of the Toronto Stock Exchange today with extra strength developing in Wright Hargreaves which climbed to 7.50. Hollinger was a heavy trader and in the base metals Noranda came in for better demand than in recent weeks but sales were mainly in odd lots.

Activity in Hollinger added 15c to the price and in McIntyre an advance of 75 cents to 40.75 was recorded. Dome gained 15 cents to 35.25, Teck Hughes 5 cents to 5.90, Pioneer 10 cents to 11.60 and Bralorne lost 15 cents to 10.85.

Senior gold shares struck out a little more confidently today with Wright Hargreaevs in the lead and the whole board was firm to strong this afternoon.

Wright Hargreaves was carried up to 7.80 for a gain of 60 cents in the first three hours. Hollinger added 20 cents, selling at 14.15. Dome, Lake Shore, McIntyre and Pioneer also did better.

Noranda advanced lightly on fair buying demand and other base metal stocks merely held their ground.

WALL STREET

New York, Feb. 28 (AP)—Financial markets looked toward the ides of March today with some degree of complacency and prices generally maintained a steady to firm tone.

Although stocks turned quite dull after an early expansion of activity, the list recorded gains of fractions to around 2 points.

Steady to slightly higher prices prevailed in the Canadian list. Dome and Canadian Pacific were about unchanged while McIntyre and International Nickel edged fractionally higher. On the curb Lake Shore improved a shade and Hiram Walker got up around 1 1-2 points. Dominion Government 4's were steady. The Canadian dollar was unchanged at 99.31 1-4 cents.

Shares of U.S. Smelting got up 3 points and Union Pacific and Du Pont advanced about 2 each. There was a revival in the amusement issues with Pathe, Paramount, Warner Bros. and Lowe's firming fractionally to [illegible] point.

IN MEMORIAM

TAYLOR — In loving memory of our dear father, Joseph Taylor, who passed away one year ago Feb. 27, 1933.

Just a memory fond and true,
To show dear dad, we think of you.
Memories drift to scenes long past,
Time rolls on but memories last.

—Always remembered by Sadie, Margaret, Bell and Alice. f28-1t.

IN MEMORIAM

CUNNINGHAM—In fond memory of Geo. Cunningham, who passed away Feb. 28, 1933.

Happy days we once enjoyed.
How sweet their memory still;
But death has left a loneliness
The world cannot fill.
When I am sitting all alone,
I seem to hear him say,
Don't weep for me, I am at rest,
We will meet again some day.

—His wife, Mrs. Geo. Cunningham. f28-1t.

DIED

BROWN—At the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Henry Lough, Eldorado, on Tuesday, February 27th, 1934, Susannah Brown, widow of John Brown, in her 86th year.

The funeral will be held from the above address on Thursday, March 1st, 1934, at 1.30 p.m. to the Eldorado United Church for service there. Interment Fox Cemetery. f28-1t

DIED

RONAN—In Belleville on Wednesday, February 28th, 1934, Bridget Mary Ronan, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ronan.

The funeral will be held from her late residence, 31 Alexander St., on Friday, March 2nd, at 8.30 a.m. to St. Michael's Church for mass at 9 o'clock. Interment St. James' cemetery. f28-1t

NOTICE TO WATER CONSUMERS

Owing to the extreme cold weather and the fact that it is necessary to let house taps run to keep services open, the present pumpage of water at the city plant has reached a figure never before duplicated. This demand has taxed the department to capacity. We would appreciate the co-operation of the consumers of the city in trying to keep down wastage of water by allowing as little flow from opened taps as possible to keep the service open.

Detroit Red Wings Likely to Tangle with Toronto Leafs for Championship of N.H.L.

At Present Have Seven Point Lead Over Rangers

LEAFS WIN

Canadiens Odd-on Favorites to Nose Out Americans for Play-off Berth

By A. E. FULFORD
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

It seemed more likely than ever today that Detroit Red Wings would tangle with Toronto Maple Leafs in the five-game series that will decide the 1934 championship of the National Hockey League.

Whipping Rangers 5-1 in convincing fashion last night, the team Jack Adams built strode into a seven point lead in the United States division; making it tougher than ever for the New Yorkers or Chicago Black Hawks to catch them.

Leafs, conceded a walkaway in the Canadian section weeks ago, wiped out the last mathematical chance they might be beaten by winning 2-1 in overtime last night from Montreal Maroons, their closest opposition at this stage.

Victims of Boston Bruins, who hadn't won a game since February 4, Chicago stay tied with Rangers for second place in the U.S. section, positive of a play-off position. Their 3-1 loss to the lowly Boston fans probably will revive gossip that they are content to qualify for the Stanley Cup series and will not make an effort for division honors.

Canadiens Move Up

Montreal Canadiens moved up on Maroons by beating Ottawa 3-1 and now are only a point behind the Gerardmen. They have played the same number of games as New York Americans and lead them by four points, making them odds-on favorites for a play-off position.

Two goals Johnny Sorrell scored in less than a minute of the first period sent the Wings away to their win from Rangers; Sorrell got the first all alone and combined with Larry Aurie for the second 45 seconds later.

Ebbie Goodfellow, the centre, turned defenceman, added another for Wings in the same frame and Happy Emms and Aurie scored in the final period. New York stars, who usually got their names through the summaries were out of the picture. Danny Cox got the only Ranger goal on a pass from Ott Heller.

Only 5,000 paid to see the Leafs-Maroons game, which failed to sparkle. Jimmy Ward got the first goal in the second period on Russell Blinco's pass, when they were a man up through a penalty. Frank Clancy tied it up for Toronto on a play which Ken Doraty started in the third and Bill Thoms won the game with only two minutes of overtime left.

Small Crowd at Ottawa

Another small crowd saw thrill-packed hockey at Ottawa with the result in doubt until the last minute of the game. Johnny Gagnon gave George Mantha a pass for the first Canadien goal in the opening period and got the second lone in the middle frame.

Syd Howe brought Ottawa into the picture with a goal in the second and for most of the third the Senators used four forwards in an effort to tie up the game. They pressed the Canadiens until the last minute when Wildor LaRochelle broke away for a counter, that made it safe for the Habitants.

Boston won their season series with Chicago by taking last night's game. It made their wins, three to two defeats and a tie. They had not won a game since they beat the Hawks in Chicago 2-1 on February 4.

Marty Barry added two counters in the middle period to Nels Stewart first frame counter, to give Bruins their total. Leroy Goldsworthy got Hawks' only marker in the second on Lionel Conacher's pass.

RETURN GAME HERE FRIDAY

Juniors Leave for Peterboro for Junior O.H.A. Tussle Tonight

Fresh from their recent victory over the Queens juniors in a hectic series, that took four games, the Belleville juniors left this afternoon for Peterboro where they encounter the Peterboro juniors in the first game of the second round on junior O. H. A. play-downs. The second and final game is scheduled to be played in the Belleville Arena on Friday night. The total number of goals scored on the round will determine the winner.

Manager Eddie Thomas took his entire full team to the Liftlock City and expects to surprise the Buckland-coached wearers of the blue and white with a first period attack. Both clubs will be at full strength for the tilt.

The teams will line-up as follows — Belleville — goal-Sinfield, defence-Greer and McElrath, centrt-Barriage, wings-Ethier and McGuire, subs- Ridley, Harvey, Semark, Hammett and Lee. — Peterboro - goal-Clarke, defence-Jopling and Wier, Centre Calladane, wings - Burton and Gardner, subs - Vitarelli, Hill, Kingsdom and Williamson.

THE BIG SEVEN

(By The Canadian Press)

Aurel Joliat, little winger of Montreal Canadiens, goes out of the Big Seven once in a while but it's not for long. Joliat was back in the circle today when he obtained an assist during Canadiens' 3-1 victory over Ottawa last night. Marty Barry was the only other member of th Big Seven to add to his points. He scored two of Boston's goals when Bruins whipped Chicago 3-1.

Marty Barry, Boston, helped Bruins beat Chicago with two goals.

Bill Thoms, Toronto, got the winning goal in Leaf's 2-1 victory over Maroons.

BOTH TORONTO TEAMS OUT OF PLAYDOWNS

Tigers Eliminate Toronto While Cataracts Defeat Nationals

AN UPSET

Riddled by Pros., Niagara Falls Not Given Much Notice

TORONTO, Feb. 28.—(CP)—One of the high spots in sport of Toronto's Centennial celebration this year is to be the Allan Cup finals in March. But because of the manner in which developments have occurred, it may be just a little difficult for celebrating Toronto to enthuse over this amateur hockey classic.

For one thing there won't be a Toronto team in the series. Hamilton Tigers and Niagara Falls Cataracts looked after that last night, Tigers eliminating the Torontos as they were expected to and Cataracts unexpectedly ousting West Toronto Nationals. Hamilton and the Falls will play for the Senior "A" O.H.A. Championship.

At Hamilton, the Tigers overpowered Torontos in impressive fashion, winning 5-1 and taking the two-game, total-goal round by 8-4. The teams had played a 3-3 tie at Toronto in the first game. By far the most consistent outfit in the group during the regular season, the Bengals accomplished only, what was expected of them.

But Niagara Falls' triumph over West Toronto was a startling upset. The Cataracts were champions last season but since then the Ottawa Senators have taken four outstanding players away to the National League and left a team, that was not regarded as very serious threat.

Cataracts Surprise

Cataracts finished fourth in the standing to qualify for the playoffs. They earned a 2-1 decision at home over the Nationals and came here last night to get eliminated. The Nats were top-heavy favorites to overcome the lead. But they didn't. They were held to a 2-2 tie and the Falls took the round by 4-3.

West Toronto tied the round score with a goal in the second period by Robinson, but the Cataracts ran in two in the third session to make their position secure. Gordie Peterkin scored the first on a pass from George Hastie and Steele passed to Benchley for the other. The game was nearly over before McAlpin tied the score of the game, leaving the Toronto team trailing on the round.

Maxie Bennett, Toe Blake and the Veteran Gonzy McGowan shot Hamilton to victory over Toronto. Bennett scored two goals, one in each of the first and second periods. McGowan got two and Blake the other. Normie Lamport scored the only Toronto tally in the second period.

So Hamilton or Niagara Falls may carry Ontario's Banner to the Allan Cup Finals—perhaps Moncton Hawks or McGill or Winnipeg Monarchs or Trail Smoke Eaters will steal this show.

CURRENT SPORT

(Day By Day)

After a hectic four-game series with the sturdy Queen's juniors Eddie Thomas' charges left for Peterboro late this afternoon where they meet the fresh Buckland-coached Petes. Considerable has been heard about the prowess of the blue and white clad youths from the Liftlock City and their accomplishments in junior O.H.A. circles thus far this season. They even go so far in the Peterboro press to insist that in the next round the Petes will demand the final game of the series to be played at home, owing to the fact that they have had the first home game in their two play-downs to date. Apparently the Pete juniors have already won the series with the locals and will have to but go through the motions versus the Thomas-led aggregation.

While there is yet time to mention the fact perhaps the local kids have fared equally as well as their Peterboro rivals. First they won their group without sustaining a single loss and in the group play-off defeated Hastings 13 to 4 and 10 to 4 respectively, giving them the round 23 to 8. The Petes eliminated the Fenelon Falls juniors recently by a 13 to 7 score on the round and thought they did a great stroke of business. From what outside information we could gather the Petes are somewhat of a one-man team, Bill Calladine, who hurled for the Peterboro seniors last summer, being their great goal-getter and threat par excellence. Kingdom and Jolin are also mentioned frequently in press despatches.

According to the Peterboro sport scribe Manager Ed Thomas was wholely and solely responsible for the replay of the Queen's-Belleville series. "How do you get that way. If the Petes were even, as the locals were, in a group play-off, would they consent to finish the series on a foreign ice?" We have an over-size picture of any Peterboro hockey team consenting to such advancements. The Queen's-Belleville replay was mutually agreed upon by both clubs concerned. After playing a hectic four game series with the Queen's kids and taking a long ninety mile jaunt to Peterboro this evening the local kids cannot be expected to be seen performing at their best. If, however, they can hold the Petes to a close margin tonight, one of the best junior games in many years will be afforded the fans at the Belleville Arena on Friday night. Win, lose or draw, the Belleville kids have come from practically no place at all to the Eastern Ontario junior finals.

The promoters of tonight's South End A. C. boxing bouts are going to be right in the swim insofar as up-to-the-minute service is concerned. Besides giving the fans ten rounds of good boxing they intend announcing, by periods, the result of the Belleville at Peterboro junior game and also the final result of the Primo Carnera-Tommy Loughran heavyweight bout for the championship of the world. All bouts scheduled for tonight have been assured except the Parry-Cusack match, which had to be postponed owing to the fact that Parry cracked a rib while training the night before last. This bout will be replaced by a real top-notcher, however. Matchmaker Joe Samaine journeyed to the airport this morning and signed Howard Cole to meet a lad named Smith from Trenton. Cole, it will be remembered, is the lad that beat Wright recently at the airport when the bout terminated in a donnybrook with both scrappers finishing activities outside the ring and in a free-for-all.

Insofar as Parry is concerned the club physician assured him that he could not don the gloves for at least two weeks at the earliest. Naturally Freddie was somewhat disappointed as tonight's bout was to have seen his return to the local amateur ring after an absence of nearly three years. All the other bouts are ready to go with the Morris-Wheeler bout being the main attraction of the evening. This bout will decide which boy is the best in Central Ontario at 118 pounds. Their last meeting was one sweet memory that has lasted. They are both willing to mix it and plenty of action is assured. The other nine bouts are equally as well matched.

Some of the members of the local junior O.H.A. squad have a rather tough assignment ahead of them this week. Besides playing two O.H.A. games they will be included in the B.C.I.V.S. line-up versus the Marmora High School sextette in the C.O.S.S.A. interscholastic play-downs on Thursday in Belleville with the return game being played at Marmora on Saturday. Coach Shiels had his pets out for a light work-out last evening and fully expects to reverse last night's score on the "northerners". A win for the tri-color will put them into the C.O.S.S.A. semi-finals.

Here's a golf story from Mexico City. Dr. W. Harmon Cole, a Canadian surgeon practising in Mexico was playing in a threesome on the course at Monterey. Cole drove toward the last green but the ball disappeared into the mud skirting a small pond guarding the green. No sooner had the ball landed, however, than a large bird rose from the pond with the sphere in its mouth. It circled round trying to chew it and finally dropped it on the edge of the green. Profiting by the bird's kindness, Cole holed out for a birdie.

Snow Shovels New Fire Equipment

If you happen to be placed in the embarrassing position of having to turn in a hurried alarm to the local fire department, you can depend upon it that the department will get to the fire by hook or by crook—even if they have to shovel their way through the snowdrifts.

Two large snow shovels for each truck have been added to the standard equipment of the department since the recent heavy snowfalls. So, like the Mounties, who always 'get their man', the department will be able to get to that fire.

Fire Chief Wm. Lynch doesn't know just how long it has been since snow shovels were needed by the department as extra equipment.

Tweed Wins 5-1 and Secure Revenge for Previous Loss

TWEED, Feb. 28. — (Special)—Tweed Juniors secured sweet revenge on Friday night from Madoc representatives for the defeat, which they sustained at their previous meeting, taking the long end of a 5 to 1 score. The score just about represents the difference between the teams on the night's play. The playing of Tweed's second line was a bright feature of the game, as they secured four of their team's goals and completely outshone the first line. Shanque secured two, Marsh and Bell one each. Maguire secured the other, the first goal of the game early in the opening session. Akey secured the visitor's only tally in the second session. He was closely watched by his check and not given much chance to shine. McCutcheon in goal played his usual steady game turning aside shots which were labelled goals. Geo. Geraldi handled the bell in an efficient manner. The largest crowd of the season turned out to witness a fast game. Many ladies were in the crowd accepting the management's offer of free admission. This favour will probably be withdrawn for future games as it does not help the coffers to any appreciable extent.

Madoc—Goal, Nickle, defense, West, Ashley; centre, Alexander; Wings, Armstrong, Akey. Subs, Ross, Keller, Hailstone, Embury.

Tweed—Goal, McCutcheon, defense, Leal, LaFontaine; centre, Rashotte; wings, Maguire, Cotton. Subs—McCrea, Bell, Shanque, Marsh.

BADMINTON

Port Hope Badminton Club played their return game with Belleville on Saturday night, Feb. 24th. In spite of the severe weather there was an excellent turnout and the games were very keen. Port Hope players showed the result of more efficient team playing and were successful in carrying off the majority of the feats.

PART TIME JOBS DEFEAT WAGE LAW

Ottawa, Feb. 27 (CP)—Employers of labor in Ontario may circumvent the Ontario minimum wage laws by hiring a girl only a few hours a day in rush hours, it was admitted today before the house business inquiry by Richard Stapells, chairman of the Ontario Provincial Wage Board. The girl would not receive a full day's wage for a few hours' work and no regulation of the Board could force the employer to pay her full wages.

Carnera Rules 3-1 Favorite Over Loughran in Miami Bout

"Wise Guys" Laying Even Money on a Knockout

(By Alan Gould Associated Press Sports Editor)

Miami, Fla., Feb. 28 (AP)—For no apparent reason other than to prove it can be done despite all obstacles, Primo Carnera fights Tommy Loughran tonight in defence of the World's Heavyweight Championship 15 rounds or less, wind and weather permitting.

The 258-pound Italian giant ruled a 3 to 1 favorite to beat the 185-pound American challenger and it was even money he would win by a knockout.

Doomed to financial failure from the outset by a combination of circumstances, the fight hit hard by several days of unruly weather. Rain dampened the ardor, if any, of thousands who may have entertained an idea of purchasing tickets at a scale of $2 to $20. Cool drafts of air today from the snowbound north, with the further possibility of showers suggested the chance of postponing the whole show until tomorrow night.

Gate Receipts Down

Officials of Madison Square Garden of New York promoting the fight, declared today most of the 2,000 ringside seats at $20 each had been sold or reserved, even so it was unlikely the net gate receipts would go far beyond the $50,000 mark.

The attendance, cash and on the cuff, may not pass $35,000.

For a heavyweight title battle this would be the lowest "gate" in more than 30 years, contrasting sharply with the glamorous $400,000 fistic show that followed Tex Rickard's first invasion of this southern resort in 1929.

Despite an extraordinary "build-up" for the popular and clever but light hitting Loughran's chances, insiders consider Carnera a sure thing to win, probably by a knock-out inside six or eight rounds.

One of the things that reflects confidence in the outcome is the fact that plans already are pending to match Carnera with his motion picture rival Max Baer, for the big outdoor title fight of the year in New York.

BUFFALO BISONS ON TOP

Fort Erie, Ont. Feb. 28—(CP)—Buffalo Bisons today perched atop the International League, supplanting Detroit Olympics whose idleness the last few days has kept them out of the point-getting column. Bisons obtained the necessary points to put them in front by defeating cellar-place Cleveland Indians here last night 5-1.

Buffalo was on top throughout the first two sessions, Indians leaving their offensive until the final session, when they found it too late to catch the heavy scoring homesters. Paul Armand, "Doggie" Kuhn, Cliff Barton, Normie Schultz and Jack Keating were the winners' scorers while Dick Benson tallied Cleveland's only goal.

LESS ICE CUT LESS SAWDUST

No Sawdust Famine, Less is Required Today

Commercial ice dealers of this city have not been faced with any saw-dust shortage this season as reported in other cities of more settled districts, and the reason here is a simple one. Even if saw mills throughout the district are cutting just about half the timber they did years ago, with a correspondingly smaller amount of sawdust as a by-product, ice dealers are also cutting just about one-half the amount of ice they did even five years ago, it was reported by one dealer.

"The electrical refrigerators are cutting into our business," stated Mr. Harry Smith today when questioned. "The more they sell of them, the less natural ice we sell. Our cut of ice is just about half of what it was five years ago."

To pack this season's cut of ice, it has been necessary for ice dealers to draw the sawdust from outlying points. Mills at Cannifton, Chatterton, and other points supply enough of the material for every dealer, even if the production of the saw mills throughout the section has fallen off to about one-quarter of former mark.

penthouse love

BY alma sioux scarberry

Yanner had never known such agony of mind. She mentally compared herself with the tall, raven-haired Charity in her stunning white gown, and for the first time in her life felt inferior in looks to another girl. She saw, with a shock that all eyes were upon Charity and Billie, and it made her furious.

She looked at Doug out of the corner of her eye and saw with a pang, which made her feel ill, that he was looking at Charity as though he had never seen her before.

Every one in the party breathed a sigh of relief when the lights at the tables dimmed and the dance floor lit up for the floor show. It saved the painful job of trying to make conversation. Charity picked up a program and smiled inwardly when she saw that Chickie Belle was one of the stars. Maybe that would take a little of the wind out of Yanner's sails too. For she knew [illegible]'s girl friend was bitterly jealous of the red-haired dancer.

It was a beautiful show, starring some of the biggest of Broadway names. Charity had never seen anything like it before, but Doug scarcely saw it. He found his eyes constantly straying to Charity. The lights swept their table every once in awhile, playing over Charity's shining hair, her finely chiseled face, her soft sweet mouth, her perfect teeth. He caught his breath and wondered how he could ever have been "too blind" to see her beauty—even in the unbecoming clothes she had worn the day she became his wife. Had his father perhaps seen her as she really was?

Doug's eyes strayed to Yanner and he studied her closely. It shocked him to see the hatred that came into her eyes when he caught her off guard looking at Charity. He'd loved Yanner so long and so much, surely he couldn't stop. It was just a mood and he would get over it. But again he felt his eyes straying to Charity. He wondered what it would be like to hold her cool, white beauty in his arms. But he could never do that. Charity hated him.

He saw then that Batch was not taking his eyes off Charity. When she turned and smiled a little half happy smile at Batch, Doug was certain Charity was in love with the handsome doctor. He remembered that Billie had warned him Batch was becoming very interested in Charity—and he hadn't taken it seriously. At that time he'd been certain a man like Batch could never fall in love with a girl like Charity Jones.

It would be rotten of Batch to make Charity care for him— and not care for her in return. He knew the doctor's way with woman, and it wasn't the sort of way a girl like Charity should be treated. She had been decent—and never done anyone harm. Anyway, she'd been a darn sight better to him than he deserved.

There was the night she'd let Yanner make a fool out of her—and the good-natured way she'd taken her treatment by the crowd at Templehaven that week-end, and then appeared on the beach just in time to save Batch from drowning. She must have loved him then—or she wouldn't have risked her life for him.

Billie and Dr. Phillips were the only two who enjoyed the rest of the evening. Charity's cool exterior hid the inner turmoil of her emotions. It wasn't so easy sitting at the same table with her rival, wondering what she really was to Doug; how soon he'd be asking for a divorce so he could marry the little blonde darling of society.

Looking at Charity smiling wistfully around her, Batch knew with a sudden pounding of the blood in his temples that he loved her. He wanted, more than he had ever wanted anything in his life, to take her in his arms and tell her so.

[illegible] before it was time to go home Billie leaned over to say to Charity under her breath, "Oh, darlin', isn't he wonderful! I—think I'm in live."

Charity smiled, humoringly. Things didn't happen like that. But wouldn't it be nice if Billie and the good looking doctor did fall for each other! Billie deserved a home—a good husband who would appreciate her. But there couldn't be any one good enough for her.

Charity was certain the evening would never end. Batch saw how tired she was, and knowing what a strain it must be for her to sit so near to Yanner and Doug and keep up the pretense of having a good time, he said, as if a bright idea had just struck him, "Let's drop around to my diggings for a night-cap."

And for the first time that evening felt relieved. He could have slapped Batch on the back. For how to get Charity and Yanner home, and straighten the mess out without being conspicuous about it, had been giving him a headache all evening.

The Casino opening was a grand flop—for at least four of its best dressed patrons.

July, August and September seemed to pass by on wings for Charity. She had never been so busy in her life—and certainly never so happy.

It seemed to Doug that she was never at home. As the weeks went by and October touched the trees at Templehaven and turned them to gold and brown and red, he became more and more curious as to [illegible] Charity was doing.

Since the night he had asked her to go to dinner and the theatre and she had stood him up, he had never quite gotten up nerve enough to run the risk of her indifference again. Seeing her at the opening of the Casino roof with Batch so soon afterward had certainly not helped his pride.

He turned to the companionship of Yanner with ever increasing uncertainty. To her frequent question as to when he was going to divorce Charity, Doug begged impatiently for more time. Things like that couldn't be done overnight. A girl like Charity couldn't be thrown away like an old shoe—not after the decent way she had acted since their marriage. There wasn't a thing she had done that would justify his divorcing her.

And as Doug evaded, Yanner became more and more furious. It wasn't easy to answer questions as to just how soon the Vandergriffs would be able to get their fingers into the Temple pie. There were many night when Yanner cried herself to sleep because Doug seemed so cold and indifferent and no longer a slave to her blonde charms. It infuriated her when she thought of Charity and how she had changed. She was sure Charity was using every wile possible to lure Doug away from her.

She wouldn't have believed the strange Mrs. Temple capable of using the old method of indifference as a weapon against her. That Charity, thanks to the advice of the worldly wise Billie, made it a point to make certain Doug only caught glimpses of her.

It was a warm day early in October, clear and too beautiful to stay indoors, when Doug suddenly decided he hated New York and the penthouse and decided to take a run down to Templehaven. He felt like being alone. Like stretching on the beach and watching the blue water of the Sound lap the white sand at his feet.

He threw his bathing things into a bag and waited impatiently while Rafferty went to the garage for his roadster. He dismissed the chauffeur almost curtly at the door, and jumped into his car. It gave him a feeling of being let out of school. Many times lately Doug had the feeling he wanted to get off by himself but it was seldom he gave in to it. There were too many disturbing thoughts waiting to chase themselves through his troubled mind.

Thoughts of his father, of the strange way he had provided for him in his will—of how, after all, the old man seemed to be getting his own way.

CHAPTER 22

Certainly something was happening to him, Doug thought as he drove along. The old ways and old associations seemed strangely boring and empty. He was not happy. Sometimes even the thought of going to work intruded itself upon his troubled mind. But he thrust it aside as foolish, since he had more money to spend than he could use, as it was.

Doug made his way through the traffic of the Queensborough bridge and was on Northern Boulevard before he realized it. Soon he was far out Long Island where the land was level and little side roads lined with tall autumn-kissed trees invited the gypsy-minded to leave the beaten path and explore the country lanes.

Not far from Templehaven was a road Doug had loved when he was a boy. He hadn't been on it since he started to College. Then it had led to big farms with wide green orchards and fields of waving corn. Doug remembered with a thrill that it was time for pumpkins to be lying in the sun for fodder in the shock. A sudden nostalgia to explore boyhood lanes seized him and he turned off the big road. Perhaps he could find something he wanted to paint.

Doug drove along slowly drinking in the beauties of autumn on Long Island. Surely there was no more beautiful spot in the world. All the artist in his soul cried out for a canvas and a brush. He had ridden along perhaps two miles when suddenly his eye was caught by a wide stretch of farm land, which reached for miles.

Then he saw that there were hundreds of people working in the fields. When he saw near the huge white house that seemed to be the centre of activity a long row of tents, he stopped his car and sat back to watch the hum of activity.

It looked like a tremendous agricultural project. Some were husking corn, other men piled the fodder in shocks, still others plowed long strips of lands getting the ground ready for the next spring.

He drove on slowly and as he neared the house he was surprised to see children playing on the wide green lawns, women sewing under the trees. Still other women sewed on machine on the wide side porch.

Doug stopped his roadster at the gates and sat back again. It was an interesting sight. He must find out what it was all about. Then his eye was caught by a little tan runabout license number. But —it couldn't be her car. He took another look and knew he couldn't be mistaken.

Doug's first impulse was to drive through the gates and see for himself what Charity could be doing there. But he decided against it. It would look too much as though he had folowed her. The arm of coincidence was long—but seldom that long.

He had started to drive away when he saw Charity. She was crossing the lawn just a short distance from him. He waited, too curious to go on, his heart beating loudly against his ribs. She was in a henna suit, high at the throat, a knitted dull green beret against her black hair. He thought suddenly how perfectly she blended in with the autumn leaves swirling about her feet. Almost as if she had deliberately dressed for the setting. The artist in him wanted to paint her.

For a moment panic seized Doug. It looked as though Charity were coming through the gates to go to her car. But a few feet away she stopped to lean down and swoop a little boy into her arms. Doug saw with a shock that the little fellow wore braces. Infantile paralysis, perhaps. It made him a little quivery.

Charity's eyes— Doug could see them plainly—were bright as stars. Rose pink stained her cheeks, which had lost their too slender look. When she smiled he saw with surprise two dimples appear and disappear in her cheeks. He thought he'd never in his life seen anyone quite so genuinely happy. The child clung to Charity's neck as though he would not let her go. Charity sat down among the leaves, holding him tightly. The wind carried her laugh clear and young, to Doug. Then he heard her say happily, "Two more weeks darling, and Dr. Batchelor says we can take these old braces off your little legs."

Batch! So-Batch came to this place in the country, too—whatever it was. It looked like some kind of home. Suddenly Doug's day was ruined. Batch and Charity had been seeing each other often since the night of the opening of the Casino roof. He was sure of it. That was what had been taking so much of her time. Doug was sure then that she was in love with his old friend. He drove away slowly, feeling more gloomy than he had felt before he left New York.

Batch wasn't the sort of man for a girl like Charity. He knew Batch's reputation with women. There had been a great many in his life. But he'd seemed never to even think of marrying any of them. A here today gone today boy. A man like that would never make a girl like Charity happy.

Doug looked at his gas meter and realized he needed fuel. A short distance down the road he saw a service station and drove in. The attendant, an old man, jumped to activity when he saw the expensive make of Doug's car.

"Been down to visit the East Side Farm?" The man asked casually as he busied himself with filling the tank.

It was Doug's chance to find out what it was all about.

"I passed by" He leaned over conversationally. "Looks like quite a place."

"I'll say 'tis." The old man wagged his white head and went around to wipe the windshield. "They got about five or six hundred people from the tenements of New York down there now aworkin' for their board and keep."

"Who owns it?"

The old man scratched his head. "Well, nobuddy seems to know, exactly. Some young woman with more money'n she known what to do with, I guess. Purty she is, too. Her and some doctor feller seem to be runnin' it. They say the gal puts up the money. She come out along about the last of June with a lawyer feller by the name of Simmons and bought it from old man Bowser."

Doug struggled to hide his astonishment, and to say casually, "I guess the people must be unemployed."

"Guess so." The man wagged his head again. "I been down several times with gas for the farm engines and they sure are a different lookin' lot of humans than they was when they come out here. The kids sure like it. They're gettin' fat and sassy as a lot of Indians. There wasn't a well-fed lookin' kid among 'em when they come out from the city."

"This girl—Doug asked then, to make sure of her identity, "what does she look like?"

"Well," the old fellow studied thoughtfully, "she's got her a funny hair cut with bangs—black, I think they are. And she's tall and kind o' thin like. A durn purty girl to be spendin' her time workin' out the salvation of a bunch of East side furriners, if you ask me. She must be some society gal. Now— lemme see—I believe they call her Miss Jones. That's it—Jones. But it prob'ly ain't her right name."

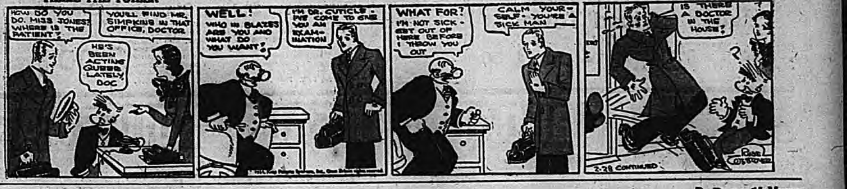
A WANT-AD will FIND IT!

TILLIE THE TOILER

By Russ Westover.



HOW DO YOU DO. MISS JONES? WHERE IS THE PATIENT?
YOU'LL FIND MR. SIMPKINS IN THAT OFFICE, DOCTOR
HE'S BEEN ACTING QUEER LATELY, DOC
WELL! WHO IN BLAZES ARE YOU AND WHAT DO YOU WANT?
I'M DR. CUTICLE - I'VE COME TO GIVE YOU AN EXAMINATION
WHAT FOR? I'M NOT SICK - GET OUT OF HERE BEFORE I THROW YOU OUT
CALM YOURSELF - YOU'RE A SICK MAN IS THERE A DOCTOR IN THE HOUSE?

TARZAN THE TERRIBLE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Beneath a great tree whose branches overhung a tumbling brook, Tarzan and his strange companion halted for the first time during their forest journey. Tarzan was surprised to find that the wound made by Numa's claws was healing nicely and no longer pained him, thanks to the antiseptic powder the man-thing had sprinkled upon it. They drank from the deliciously cool water, fresh from its icy descent down the lofty mountains and Tarzan filled his great chest with deep breaths of flower-scented air.

Casting aside his loin cloth and weapons, Tarzan entered the little pool, swimming, diving and splashing about with the joyousness of a boy. He emerged greatly refreshed and with a keen desire for breakfast. He noticed that his companion was examining him with a puzzled expression on his face.Taking the ape-man by the shoulder he turned him around. Pointing at the end of Tarzan's spine, he curled his own tail up over his shoulder.

Then he wheeled Tarzan about again, pointing first at the ape-man and then at his own caudal appendage. Meanwhile he jabbered excitedly in his own tongue, the puzzled look still wrinkling his brow. Tarzan realized that probably for the first time his companion had discovered that Tarzan was tail-less by nature rather than by accident. So he called attention to his own great toes and thumbs to impress upon the creature that they were of different species.

The fellow shook his head dubiously as though entirely unable to comprehend why Tarzan should differ so from him. Then with a shrug he gave the problem up, laid aside his own weapons and jeweled ornaments and himself dove into the pool. After bathing he redonned his scant apparel, seated himself at the tree's base and opening the little pouch belted to his side, motioned Tarzan to sit beside him.
